Samuel Francis Smith

The man who wrote 'America'

by JOHN W. STOKES

Probably more Americans, from childhood on, have sung the verses of the patriotic hymn that begins with "My Country, 'Tis Of Thee," than have been able to sing the stanzas of the national anthem.

Yet, "America" has never been officially recognized by Congress and few Americans know who wrote it or how it came to be written.

Samuel Francis Smith was born Oct. 21, 1808, in the North End of Boston, "under the sound," he used to say, "of the chimes of the Old North Church." He attended Eliot School and graduated from Boston Latin School where he was awarded the Franklin medal and a prize for poetry. He was a member of the Harvard class of 1829 along with Oliver Wendell Holmes, who became a physician and author. Many years after graduation, at a class reunion, Dr. Holmes wrote a poem about his classmates entitled, "Our Boys," in which he mentioned Smith:

See, there's a youngster of excellent pith,
Fate tried to conceal him by naming him Smith.
But he shouted a song for the brave and the free,
Just read on his medal, 'My Country, of Thee'

Following graduation, Smith entered Andover Theological Seminary which had been established as part of Phillips Andover Academy in 1808, the year Smith was born. It was the first institution of its kind in the United States solely for the training of Clergymen.

While at the seminary, he roomed in the house on Main Street, Andover, now known as "The America House." He earned his board and tuition by translating articles for "The American Encyclopedia". He also worked for Lowell Mason, the noted composer, translating and compiling a collection of songs for school use.

One day he came across a German song, the tune of which pleased him so that he was captivated with its simple and easy movement. Noting that the German words were patriotic, he was impelled to write a patriotic song of his own.

"Seizing a scrap of paper," he later recalled, "I put upon it, within half an hour, the verses substantially as they are now."

Originally he wrote five verses, later to be reduced to four. He was 24 years old at the time.

Smith sent his translations and original poems to Mason with "America" thrown in. Mason published it in a collection of songs known as "The Choir." He also included "America" in a program he prepared for an Independence Day celebration at the Park Street Church in Boston in 1832, where it was sung publicly for the first time.

The song caught the attention of the audience and spread rapidly throughout the nation.

Following his graduation from Andover Seminary, Smith was ordained as a Baptist minister. He was pastor of the Waterville, Me., Baptist Church until 1842. At the same time he served as professor of modern languages at Waterville (now Colby) College.

In 1834 he married Mary White Smith of Fireworks Friday at North High

An aerial fireworks display, the first in Newton in about 15 years, will take place Friday, July 2, at Newton North High School's Dickinson Stadium.

A band concert will precede the display, which will begin at about 9 p.m.

The fireworks should be visible from just about anywhere in the city. In the event of rain, the fireworks display has been rescheduled to Tuesday, July 6.

The fireworks are presented by the Newton Bicentennial Committee in cooperation with the Newton Recreation Commission.

Parking will be extremely limited. Those who plan to attend should park at least a half-mile from the stadium in order to reduce congestion.

Spectators are also urged to bring blankets.

Police Chief William F. Quinn has also announced that Lowell Avenue and Walnut Streets will be used as one-way streets Friday night between 7 and 11 p.m.

Lowell Avenue between Washington and Commonwealth Avenue will be completely for southbound traffic tomorrow night and Walnut Street between Washington and Commonwealth will be for northbound traffic.

Other events

The Newton Centre Improvement Association has announced it will hold its annual Fourth of July celebration for children at Newton Centre Playground Saturday, July 3, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

There will be decorated doll carriage and bicycle parades, races, ice cream and candy. This celebration will be held Monday, July 5, if it rains Saturday.

The first singing of "America" will be reenacted at historic Park Street Church Sunday, July 4.

The junior choir, garbed in Colonial attire, will stage the reenactment at 10 a.m. outside on the steps of the church.

The hymn, written by Samuel Frances Smith, was first sung in the church on July 4, 1831.

David Barndt, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ronald Barndt of West Newton, is a member of the choir. Flutist Steven Yen of Newton will also participate in the Bicentennial concert.

Jury finds former treasurer innocent

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Former City Treasurer Theodore Scafidi was found innocent of all eight charges of conflict of interest by a jury at Middlesex County Superior Court last Friday.

Scafidi said after the verdict, "I'm happy that it's over. I always felt I never cheated. I'm happy for my family. It's been traumatic for them."

Scafidi added, "I hope no other honest man has to go through this."

Scafidi was charged with the violations of the conflict of interest statute early this year. The complaints, issued by the office of the Middlesex County district attorney, cited four violations while Scafidi was still treasurer and four after he went to work for the Harbor National Bank.

Since last July, when Scafidi left his city job, the city has been without a permanent treasurer. Applications, including that of Scafidi, have been under consideration by an aldermanic committee.

Under the city charter, the Board of Aldermen is responsible for hiring a treasurer. The treasurer is responsible to the Board.

The charges against Scafidi were specifically that he deposited $1 million in Harbor National bank while he was an employee of the city of Newton and negotiating employment with the bank, and that as a former employee he invested the money at the bank.

Acting Treasurer George Stiglich testified that Scafidi had called him on at least two occasions and suggested that Stiglich reinvest some short-term certificates of deposit with the bank for which Scafidi was then working.

Scafidi admitted to having transferred money from a local bank to the Harbor National Bank before he became an employee of the bank.

The essential point of dispute between the testimony of the two men was in the

Metco staff reduction may cause program to end here, Fink warns

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

Funds for three professional counselors and the Hale Reservation program were included in the $82,000 cut from the direct services for Metco children in Newton next year.

During the seven-hour School Committee meeting Monday night Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said the cuts will have "severe detrimental effects" upon the 350-student voluntary busing program with Boston.

The revised budget of $616,000 was sent to the state Metco board by the Wednesday deadline, but Fink warned that the reduced services may cause the state not to send any Metco children here.

During the meeting Chairman Alvin Mandell made use of his legal powers and ordered police to remove citizen Sandra Fleishman from the audience of Day Junior High School at 2:13 a.m. Tuesday.

Questions of parliamentary procedure and uncertainty of what was being voted on often stalled the seven-hour meeting. Mayor Theodore Mann and School Committee Chairman Emeritus Manuel Beckwith said at different times that the 5-4 vote on Metco was prearranged.

Mayor Mann, Beckwith, Honora Kaplan, and Robert Cohen represented the losing four votes on the superintendent's original recommendation to cut a social worker and a counselor plus other expenses that would reduce by $37,363 from the $82,000 shortfall in state reimbursement funding for the 350 Metco students.

The removal of one of two psychiatrists, a guidance counselor, social worker, curriculum coordinator, the Hale Reservation outdoor education program, and funds for tutors and supplies may lead the state Metco board to decide not to send any Boston student to Newton, Fink said.

Metco coordinator for Newton, Katherine Jones, said that she had even protested the proposed cuts by the superintendent, and after the further cuts, said "they cut the heart out of it."

LeConti and Prince were asking for Trash dispute settled today

Local 800 membership was expected to ratify an agreement on a labor contract this morning (Thursday) at 8 a.m.

Negotiations have continued almost around the clock for the past week to try to resolve the dispute between the public works union and the city administration, which has left the city without appropriated funds for rubbish collection after July 1 and no long-term plan for collection.

A blackout on all matters of negotiation was reimposed by state mediators early this week, and neither Mayor Theodore Mann nor union officials were allowed to discuss possible terms of the contract.

Last Friday, Labor Relations Commission mediator Angelo Colella temporarily lifted the ban, which has been on all during the bargaining, because it was felt that the public should know some of what was going on.

At that point last Friday, the mediator had recommended to the city and to Local 800 a modification of the mayor's last proposal, which would save 55 of the unfunded jobs in the sanitation division under a two-year contract, but still give the rubbish collection to a private contractor.

Terms recommended then included severance pay of $100 minimum per year of service up to $1000 for each man who would not be retained.

Fifteen men would be hired by the contractor.

There would be a 6 percent pay increase starting July 1, 1976, and another 5 percent next July.

Fringe benefits would also be increased.

The union's proposal last Friday had apparently abandoned the so-called Plan B, which would have kept the rubbish collection an in-house operation using new equipment and 36 men.

According to Jane Pitt, the mayor's chief administrative officer, the union had reverted to insisting that all the men with more than one year's service (81 men) be retained, although union officers at a public meeting had agreed to a cutback to 36 men from the present 90 employed in the sanitation division.

The union would have gone without a pay increase the first year of a proposed three and one-half-year contract, but asked for 8, 7, and 7 percent increases in succeeding years.

The decision by Mayor Mann to give the rubbish collection to private contract would save the city $4 million in the next five years, he has said.

The Board of Aldermen has vehemently opposed the plan. It deleted all rubbish collection money from the budget and has fought to retain the municipal collection.

The contract and the collection of commercial and recyclable rubbish, which will be done by the city, would cost $735,000 the first year.

If the mayor's plan to go to contract and keep 55 men for the next two years is accepted by the union, additional money will need to be appropriated along with the $735,000, but the five-year saving, according to the mayor would still be more than $3 million.

A delay of one month in implementing the revaluation of of Newton's real estate was ordered Tuesday by Judge Henry Chmielinski.

The city's Board of Assessors and the city solicitor appeared Tuesday before the judge who three years ago ordered the full and fair valuation of real estate to present their acceptance of the Cole-Layer-Trumble revaluation program.

The July 1 deadline was extended by Judge Chmielinski so that the court-appointed master, John Cremens of Boston, may submit a report to Chmielinski on whether implementation of the revaluation program will comply with the order of the court.

The acceptance of the program by the Board of Assessors touched off a reaction of disappointment and outrage among some citizens and aldermen.

Ald. Richard Bullwinkle tried to get the assessors to hold a public hearing before the July 1 acceptance deadline, but the assessors had already agreed to accept the CLT program and felt that public education on revaluation would be more fruitful.

A public meeting has been scheduled for July 8 at City Hall's Memorial Auditorium at 7 p.m. The assessors will answer written questions sent to them and will take some questions from the audience on matters that were not brought up in the written questions.

Both the assessors and a consultant employed by City Solicitor Howard Levine to evaluate the revaluation program independently have concluded that the revaluation is now acceptable.

Last year the city obtained a one-year stay in putting the new assessments into effect because of the many complaints that the CLT appraisals were not accurate.

The new assessments will take effect with the next real estate tax bills due in November.

The tax rate must be set by August.

While assessments on most houses, especially old houses, will go up because of the undervaluation that has prevailed over the years, the tax rate per thousand dollars of valuation will decrease.

A house appraised at $8000 under the old system is probably worth and consequently now appraised at $35,000.

Last year the tax rate of $159 would have resulted in a tax bill of $1272. Using the estimated 1976-77 rate of $50, the tax bill on the same house may be as much as $1750.

Although the revaluation figures have been accepted and probably cannot be changed, the Board of Assessors can grant abatements to persons suffering true financial hardships from the increased tax bills.

Widows, the elderly, disabled veterans, and the blind all receive exemptions on their taxable property, but the exemp-

Democratic city committee meets

A general meeting of the Democratic City Committee will be held Wednesday, July 7, at 8 p.m. in Grace Episcopal Church, Newton Corner.

New development board first meeting is tonight

Two new agencies that replace the Newton Redevelopment Authority hold their organizational meetings tonight at 8 p.m. at the old NRA office in Lower Falls.

The Planning and Development Board, a seven-member group, will first hear City Planning Director Charles Thomas appoint a treasurer and an assistant treasurer for the Newton Community Development Authority, which has Thomas as its sole member.

Thomas also sits as a voting member of the new Planning and Development Board.

The Board will elect a chairman and other officers from among members Cecil Cadwell, Margaret Smith, Carol Robinson' Stanley Miller, and David Lurensky.

A seventh member, as yet unnamed, is to be appointed by the Governor in consultation with the State Department of Community Affairs.

The new agencies will oversee all new construction of federally and state-assisted housing in Newton and the federal housing rehabilitation program just initiated in West Newton, Nonantum and Newton Corner.

In addition, they will supervise completion of the Lower Falls Urban Renewal Projects.

A Newton housing Rehabilitation Fund to help low and moderate income homeowners pay for needed home repairs is administered through the rehabilitation office at 48 Silver Lake Ave., Nonantum.

Low-interest loans and grants are available to families with incomes from $7,770 up to $15,450, depending on the number in the family.

Thomas is Coordinator for the program, with former NRA Executive Director Gerald Early as its director.

Early's title has been changed to Director of Rehabilitation and Renewal, to indicate changes in responsibilities.

He will split his time between the NRA office and the rehabilitation office. Community Development funds will reimburse NRA for half of Early's $21,000 a year salary.

The NRA office at 2256 Washington Street will remain in operation with Mrs. Eleanor Bennison as Administrative Assistant until the Lower Falls projects are completed.

The Community Development Authority will be meeting the second Thursday of the month at the NRA office and the Lower Falls Project Area Committee will continue as an advisory group to CDA on the project, Thomas says.

Two professionals and a secretary staff the Silver Lake Ave. office, open from 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Thomas said last week that about 15 applications have been received to date for rehabilitation assistance.

"Hopefully the pace will pick up," he said.

$150,000 is available to Newton residents during the first year of the program.

Man charged after accident

A Waltham man was charged with three motor vehicle violations Saturday night after he allegedly hit another car head in Newton Corner over the Massachusetts Turnpike.

George L. Yore, 31, of 58 Harvard St., Waltham, was charged with driving under the influence, leaving the scene after causing property damage, and operating a motor vehicle in the wrong direction.

Stefan J. Malek, 32, of 238 Winchester St., Newton Highlands, was stopped at the Centre Street bridge when Yore's car allegedly hit his car head on, backed up, hit his car again, and left west on the Pike.

Police stopped Yore's 1967 Oldsmobile coupe near the West Newton exit and charged him. Yore said he was not in an accident, police reports say.

Land Use Committee

Developer offers housing as trade for building OK

The purchase and rehabilitation of two- to four-family houses in various areas of the city for low- income family housing has been offered by Oscar Wasserman, would-be developer of a 112-unit condominium on Nahanton Street, in exchange for a zone change and permission to build.

Wasserman made his proposal at a public hearing before the Land Use Committee Tuesday night.

If given permission to build the $9 million project, Wasserman also would sell to the city for $1 24 acres of the 28-acre site owned by his realty trust.

The land, including that on which Wasserman wants to build, is listed for acquisition as conservation land in the 1977-82 capital improvement program.

The offer to buy and rehabilitate housing for lease to the Housing Services Commission for its subsidized housing program is Wasserman's answer to the unwritten policy of the Board of Aldermen than requires developers to lease 10 percent of their new apartments to the city's housing agency for low-income persons.

The policy has recently been extended from the requirement that the apartments be in the new development to the acceptance of housing off the site.

Wasserman would either turn over the rehabilitated houses to the Housing Services Commission or lease them to it and manage them, he said.

The building would contain 42 one-bedroom and 70 two-bedroom apartments, selling for an average of $60,000-$65,000 each, Wasserman said.

He estimated the tax revenue to the city at $450,000 a year.

Opposition to Wasserman's proposal arose mainly from residents of Winchester Street and streets off Winchester Street, who feared the impact of the additional traffic, although John Lacy, 261 Nahanton St.' across from the project, opposed the zone change because of three changes in zone in the area since 1960, he said.

The Newton Conservators, Inc., a private conservation group, opposed rezoning because of the effect the zone change would have on the value of other open space in the city.

In a prepared statement, the Conservators pointed out that the possibility of rezoning will drive up the value of all the other privately owned open space, making municipal acquisition almost impossible.

The Conservators also supported the Conservation Commission's position that the land should be acquired as conservation land.

Helen Heyn, secretary of the Conservation Commission, reported to the Land Use Committee that the commission had voted 5-1 against Wasserman's proposal at its last meeting.

"The developers are only giving the city a 12-acre swamp they can't use anyway," she said. The swamp would be protected by wetlands laws.

Teresa Walsh, 33 Wallace St., presented a petition she said contained signatures of more than 100 people opposed to the condominium complex because of the increased traffic it would generate.

Richard Steinberg of Esty Farm Road and Mortimer Goldman of Olde Field Road spoke in favor of the proposal.

In a brief working meeting after the public hearing, Wasserman elaborated on his proposal for housing rehabilitation and said he thought the process would help other rundown houses in a neighborhood by showing what could be done.

There are many details of the housing and the contractual agreement still needing work, Wasserman acknowledged.

The Planning Department wants to see safeguards written to provide perpetual control over the land to prevent its being used for two-family housing, as would be possible if the zone is changed from Residence A to E as requested.

The Planning Department also has reservations about the location of the building on the land and wants its moved to preserve the hill at the rear of the property as well as to minimize water runoff into the wetland.

Planning Director Charles Thomas said at the meeting that he approves the concept.

Wasserman presented a traffic study showing that the two affected streets now have very little traffic.

Between now and July 22, when there will be another Land Use Committee working meeting, Wasserman and the Planning Department are to work out their differences.

Conservation Commission wants entire parcel saved

BY PRISCILLA LEITH
Graphic Correspondent

Developer Oscar Wasserman faces competition from the Newton Conservation Commission in his efforts to get a zone change from the Board of Aldermen for Nahanton Street condominiums.

Commissioners voted 5-1, with Nathan Tucker dissenting, to oppsse Wasserman's petitions after discussion at the June 23 meeting.

The Commission has long eyed Wasserman's 28 acre parcel for conservation acquisition, and the Board has put it into the city's Capital Improvements Program.

All but Commissioner Tucker, a recent appointee, consider the Wasserman land a "keystone" that will herald intensive apartment development in the surrounding area if aldermen grant a zone change to allow the 112 units in two six-story buildings.

Wasserman wants to build on four acres and deed the other 22 acres of unbuildable floodplain land to the city for conservation purposes.

Tucker favored it because the tax revenue would be beneficial and because the city would get a lot of land for nothing.

Commissioner Helen Heyn disagreed, saying, "The value of the proposed gift is, to my mind, not worth it."

If the condominium project is allowed' the conservation land donated will be surrounded on all sides by noisy, intensive uses and its value for conservation land destroyed, Commissioners feel.

The site is also the last undeveloped parcel to slow down runoff from Oak Hill and "recharge" it in underground rock and soil before it goes into the Charles River.

In addition, all the runoff from the project's roads and parking lots will go into the swamp, raise the water temperature, and cause all animal and plant life in that area to change, Commissioner Howard, a biologist, pointed out.

Norumbega landtaking July 6

Land acquisition and illegal dumping on publicly owned land dominated the monthly meeting of the Newton Conservation Commission on June 23.

Norumbega Park land is expected to be taken by the city on pledge July 6, after formal money of state to pay half the purchase t.

Funds are due to come from the 1976 conservation account administered by the Department of Environmental Affair Division of Conservation Services.

A June 30 Planning Board hearing on subdivision plans filed by the owners of the land should not affect the land-taking.

The Newton Corporation, Louis R. Perini Jr.; ' and Paul Mark Ryan; owners of the parkland, want to extend Woodbine St. and divide the riverfront property into 29 single family house lots.

The Commission refused to rescind a cease and desist order issued May 11 to the Farina Corporation for illegal dumping at the end of Rustic Street.

Objections received from the Nonantum contractor to the citation were termed a "lame excuse".

John A. Farina, in a letter to the Commission June 22, said the dumping has been done "by unknown parties who sneak in" unseen.

Furthermore, the junk may well disappear soon because Farina and other owners along Rustic Street plan to develop the land, the letter said.

Some of the demolition debris, which blocks the Metropolitan District Commission easement along the Charle River, has been identified as coming from storefronts torn down along Watertown Street.

It may be traceable to the contractor who did the job, the Commission suggested.

Over in Chestnut Hill, debris on MDC conservation land may be cleared by Carabetta Enterprises because it will be visible from their high-rise Chestnut Hill Gardens development.

The dumping, termed "extensive" by one MDC official who viewed it, was allegedly done by the former owners of the defunct Chestnut Hill Towers project.

The situation has grown worse over the years because property lines were incorrectly drawn on city maps.

Five Newton schools could close by 1981

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

The school population in all Newton schools in five years will drop 2,000 below this year's 15,381 enrollment, which wil l enable the School Committee to close up to five elementary schools.

Last week's report by Vincent Silluzio of the School Department said that with the present grade organization, Memorial, Hyde, and Hamilton elementary schools could be closed by September, 1981, along with Weeks Junior High.

Vincent Silluzio

With grade ieoorqzonithin the elementary, junior, and senior high schools on the south side of the city, either four or five elementary schools could be closed , he told the School Committee last Wednesday.

The 303-page report also listed options for school redistricting to relieve overcrowded elementary schools on the north and central sections of the city and made general enrollment projections to the late 1980s.

The current enrollment decline will bottom out at about 11,000 in the late 1980s, followed by 15 years of enrollment increases from children of babies born in the 1940s and 50s.

The report by the director of research and planning includes many options for consolidating school districts, but suggests that with the present grade organifeasiblezation it would be most to close Memorial School in September, 1977, Hyde in 1979, and Hamilton and Weeks in 1981.

Memorial School was scheduled to be closed in September, 1976, but the new School Committee rescinded the vote of the old Committee because the members wanted to make a long range plan for closings.

The reasons for the closing the four recommended schools under the present organization are as follows: newton'

Memorial was recommended instead of Oak Hill or Spaulding in 1977 because Spaulding will hold all the children in Memorial, which is a smaller district, and closing Oak Hill would fill up Countryside, precluding closing a school in an adjacent district.

Hyde School is chosen for closing in 1979 because it is the oldest school in the city and its central location in Newton Highlands Square makes it easy to distribute the population to five adjacent school districts' which are Emerson, Beethoven, Bowen, Countryside, and Mason-Rice.

It would be possible to close Emerson or Countryside in 1978, but closing Emerson would mean losing federal Title I funding, and Countryside is newer and larger than Hyde.

Hamilton is chosen for closing in 1981 instead of Bowen in 1980 or Beethoven in 1981. Bowen and Beethoven are newer and larger schools, and closing Beethoven would preclude other closings.

With the present K-6 elementary organization, Weeks Junior High could close in 1981 if Meadowbrook Junior High houses only grades 7 and 8, and South High School holds grades 9-12.

With a K-4, 5-8, 9-12 organization, five elementary schools could be closed in 1981. Those are Memorial, Hyde, Countryside, Bowen, and Hamilton. Angier School students would go to Warren Junior High and Newton North High.

With a K-5, 6-8, 9-12 organization, Hyde, Memorial, Countryside, and Hamilton could be closed in 1981.

Reorganizing grades to close many elementary schools would preclude closing of a junior high school, and would require additional crossing guards and buses for safety reasons.

Committee action

The School Committee's subcommittee on closings will not meet until September to act on the report. Chairman Paul Ash said this week that he expects subcommittee members Honora Kaplan and Dr. Edward Prince will report to the full 8 Committee by December with a recommendation.

The aldermanic Education Committee wants the city Planning Department informed of any expected empty school buildings, after the School Committee determines school space needs.

The third step in the process recommended by the aldermen is for the Planning Department, aldermen, and mayor to determine how empty buildings will be used.

Ash's subcommittee is supposed to consider PTA and civic group input before making its report.

Overcrowding

Despite city-wide declining enrollment, four schools in the central section of the city will continue to be crowded through 1980 unless the district lines are changed.

Overcrowding is determined by the guidelines established by the Cit8izens Advisory Committee on Declining Enrollment which met during 1974 and 1975. The number of rooms needed for a school is somewhat larger than the average 23.4 pupil-teacher ratio times the number of students, plus two or three activity rooms per school. These same guidelines were used for determining surplus space in the schools chosen for closing.

Williams, Peirce, Claflin, and Ward schools will be crowded in 1980 by this formula, and the "space deficit" at Underwood, Mason-Rice, and Beethoven will be taken care of by smaller enrollments by 1980.

The redistricting of the four schools between Washington Street and Commonwealth Avenue will not have any effect on the possible closings, but in nearly all the redistricting options, students will have to walk further to school or be bused.

Projections

Vincent Silluzio's reputation for reliable enrollment projections was upheld when he showed that he has only been off by an average of 0.5 percent in the past five years.

For this report Silluzio was asked to bring in projections for 10 years or more and beyond, something he has declined to do in the past.

"Long-range projections are at best uncertain," his report states, "based on projections of births and migration patterns, and these are based on a series of elusive factors which cannot always be clearly understood."

He considers a wide range of factors in trying to predict Newton's school population in the year 2000, but settles on giving the School Committee the three standard fertility rate

Paul St. project up for Board vote

A Newton Centre elderly housing project returns to the Board of Aldermen Tuesday night with near unanimous committee approval, despite heavy opposition from area residents.

The Newton Housing Authority's plan for a 50-unit building rising between 5 and 7 stories at Paul and Centre Sts. has drawn fire from the Newton Centre Neighborhood Association and over 300 petitioners who call it "an unfortunate precedent for the construction of other high buildings in Newton Centre and other Newton villages." newton'

The Land Use Committee, at a June 24 business meeting' stood on its original vote of 6-1 approval and refused to reconsider the item, despite lengthy pleas from a number of abutters.

Sixteen votes are needed at the July 6 session for NHA to go ahead. Firmly opposed to date are Ald. James Miller, Ernest Dietz, and Dominic Taglienti, who owns apartment buildings next door to the site.

A hint from Ald. David Cohen and Edward Richmond that the Committee should "modify" its vote and compromise on a 49-unit alternative plan brought no Committee response.

That plan is frowned upon because elderly people would be relegated to basement apartments that look out onto a bridge abutment and parking lots.

Elderly people feel much more secure living off the ground floor of a building, said NHA Executive Director Frank Quinn.

"I am rapidly, since becoming an alderman, approaching old age, and I wouldn't want to live there," commented Ald. Ethel Sheehan on the proposed basement apartments.

The proposal was one of three alternatives suggested by NCNA to reduce height and density that NHA architects explored and found unfeasible.

The 50-unit plan is already "marginal" financially, being more than 2 percent above HUD"s new prototype guidelines, the architects said.

The basement proposal, which reduces the top floor nearest the MBTA tracks and puts five apartments into space allotted for NHA offices, runs 8.63 percent over the prototype, they said.

A 40-unit plan, taking one floor out of the building and retaining the basement offices, goes ll.24 percent over.

HUD will allow up to 5 percent overrun, said NHA Chairman James Miller.

Air rights over the MBTA tracks are not feasible because land taking would be necessary on adjoining property, and a third elevator required at an added cost of $40,000 Miller said.

He urged the aldermen to vote Paul Street "up or down." Any reduction in the development will cause it to fail, he added.

Ethan Pollock, Jason Kirshen and Nancy Wallace of NCNA joined Ald. Ernest Dietz in arguing strenuously against what Dietz termed a "monstrosity" on that site.

Ms. Wallace asked the Board to build elderly housing in every one of Newton's 13 villages first before approving more in Newton Centre.

David Young

Helping David to get around

A little more than a year ago David Young was in an automobile accident that left him paralyzed from the neck d wn.

Today he is attending the University of Massachusetts.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Young, 15 Colgate Circle, Lower Falls. He is 20 years old.

While he lived in Newton, David attended Newton Junior College for two years and was on the dean's list. His interests include music, sports, art and science.

Now David must live in Middlesex County Hospital where there are facilities for special care and rehabilitation.

He has firm intentions of becoming as independent as possible and is starting by going to UMass.

A quadriplegic has undreamed of problems. For example, David can run his wheelchair with a control handle operated by kis ckin.

But his wheelchair will not fit into an ordinary car. David cannot be removed from the wheelchair, as paraplegic persons can.

The financial burden of the past year, plus the cost of special transportation for David, are so great that the Youngs cannot afford to buy the special window van that will not only get him back and forth to school but also provide him the opportunity to get out more.

John Young, David's father, says in appealing for money to buy a van, he has thought deeply about "balancing family and personal pride with the urgent need and welfare of my son."

As decided, the essential and continued rehabilitation must take precedence for the present."

David Young's Transportation Fund has been established at the Norfolk County Trust Co., 342 Washington St., Wellesley Ma 02181.

Fire and police jobs may not be eliminated

Thirteen jobs in the Fire Department and seven police-cadet jobs may not be cut from the 1977 budget after all.

Mayor Theodore Mann deleted the positions from the budget, which takes effect July 1, last spring.

This week he said if Chief William Quinn can find the money in the Police Department budget and can present a "detailed plan" on where the money is coming from, then the cadets can probably be retained.

On the manning of one Fire Department pumper, Mann said Chief Frederick Perkins "has a plan to achieve the financial objective without endangering public safety."

Firefighters have been conducting an all-out campaign both personally and in newspaper advertisements against the removal of the pumper from service.

The firefighters have claimed that public safety will be endangered by the removal from service of one pumper. Mayor Mann claims that it will not.

The question may be answered by a survey of Newton's fire service to be conducted in late summer by the Insurances Services Offices, a national rating bureau.

According to an engineer at the Insurance Services Office, the survey entails on-the-spot examination of the city's water supply, fire-alarm communications, fire prevention (code enforcement), and fire equipment, among other factors.

At the end of the survey, the firm will report to the city with its recommendations, which will include a recommendation for the number of pieces and type of equipment needed.

The survey is done without charge. The last survey was done in 1960.

County board has new office

The Middlesex County Advisory Board has been given office space on the third floor of the Superior Courthouse in Cambridge.

The MCAB began its operation approximately one and one-half years ago, mandated by Chapter 35, Section 28B, to serve as watchdog over the county budget. Initially it borrowed office space from the commissioners; later the county treasurer give the MCAB desk space.

McLaughlin is the sponsor of House Bill 474 that would allow the 54 communities of Middlesex County greater latitude in appointing designees to the MCAB.

America's violence

Amnesty, International keeps what is apparently quite an accurate account of political prisoners around the world and their mistreatment. The ease with which authoritarian regimes arrest dissidents without court orders or legal summonses and the likelihood that the families of the detained may never know why or what happens is appalling to Americans.

And yet are things any safer for the innocent in the United States?

There are more violent deaths in the City of Detroit alone in one year than the murders sparked by religious and national fanaticism in Northern Ireland that so appalls Americans. Tourists in Iran, Spain, China, the Soviet Union, Cuba and several other nations which arrest suspects indiscriminately report that they walk the streets, native markets and countryside even at night without fear of muggings. Murders in many of these areas aroused shocked horror. The same is not true for any major city in the United States where senseless violence often takes over even before the sun goes down. Racial antagonisms are involved but often may be only used as excuses for the vandalism, physical attacks and thefts.

Courts in many large communities are jammed with backlogs of cases which make a mockery of justice for the aggrieved or even of preventing the accused from committing more crimes in the meantime. Juvenile systems in several cities including New York are acknowledged failures. Prison rehabilitation is not a great success and shutting the criminals away from the public may help prevent a few crimes but is costly and hardly a real solution.

Americans may take pride in the fact that political pressures and the power of those in office cannot wreak vengeance upon opponents and critics. Yet we have a long way to go to ensure the physical safety of ordinary citizens and recent trends are discouraging.

Presidential game plan

By SKIP SESLING

Today this column comes to you from the secret headquarters of the COMMITTEE for REPUBLICAN AMERICAN PRESIDENTS. This committee, I am told, was formed to insure the reelection of Gerry Ford, and should he be knocked off by Ronald Reagan, then they will seek to assist him.

But you ask the question, how will this all come about? Well join me for a couple of moments as this elite group meets.

Mr. Smith: They've got us on Watergate, the Middle East, Indochina, S-l and B-l and that makes them A-l.

Mr. Jones: Yeah, Yeah, I'm aware of all that. What the devil can we do to balance all that stuff?

Mr. Smith: Simple. We have to create a Democratic Watergate. We have to catch them doing something illegal. We have to document it, create a lot of publicity and then use it during the campaign. It's a the old smokescreen game. We'll let the Dems harp on issues. Let them worry about what's happening to the country and the world, and in the meantime we'll sock it to 'em with the scandal. We can have a series of scandals exposed over the next few months, each set to go off a few weeks apart. The public will be more interested in that than in the issues, they always are. Heck, we can knock off a few Congressmen and Senators while in the process of electing ourselves a Republican president!

Mr. Jones: Sounds good, but we all know that Democrats are honest.

Mr. Smith: You're right, you're right, those blasted Democrats are honest. But everyone has their weak spot and I've found theirs!

Mr. Jones: No kidding?

Mr. Smith: I'm not kidding, this is serious stuff. Their weak point is sex.

Mr. Jones: So what's new?

Mr. Smith: Look, we'll hire a few broads, line up some Congressmen and expose them...in the papers that is.

Mr. Jones: Good plan.

Mr. Smith: I have, in fact, already set up a couple of girls in some Congressional offices. Those old fogies fell for it. Wait till it hits the press. I've lined up a book publisher to crank out a paperback, a television talk show to interview one of the girls and one of those women's mags to do an exclusive with another of the girls. It's so beautiful. There are so many congressmen that the President won't have to worry about issues, he . can just go with the righteous moral routine we've been rehearsing for the past couple of months.

Mr. Jones: Knowing Gerry we'll need a couple of more months before he can memorize those lines without flubbing them all up.

Mr. Smith: No, no. We don't want him letter perfect. He'll be naturally outraged. He'll make a Freudian slip or two that will bring the house down.

Mr. Jones: Yeah, but don't forget Gerry was a Congressman once too. What if he's implicated for what he did them?

Mr. Smith: Gerry's so honest he could have been a Democrat himself. You can tell he's Republican..sex comes after money.

Mr. Jones: I'm worried. Gerry could still get in trouble.

Mr. Smith: No way, he's too dumb.

Mr. Jones: That's true. Go ahead with the plan.

From hogtone to snake oil

By John D. Lofton, Jr.

WASHINGTON — "We also began to manufacture our own patent medicines for humans and animals. Our first effort was suggested by a radio ad for 'Master Liquid Hogtone,' which claimed that hogs that ate it in their slop were healthy and heavier. Our imitation was 'Humphrey's BTV (Body Tone Veterinary),' which we mixed in our basement. I'd fill five 50-gallon steel barrels with the stuff and we'd pay kids a dime for each gallon glass jug they brought in. We'd sterilize the jugs and fill them with BTV.

The label made grandiose claims that couldn't pass any modern truth-in-labeling act, but a few swallows accomplished most of what was claimed: it provided minerals and it wormed the hogs."

Reading this stirring passage from Hubert Humphrey's just-published autobiography, from the chapter titled "Pills, Hogtone, and Nosedrops" the uninformed reaction might be that the former vice president, two-time Democratic presidential candidate, and present candidate for Senate majority leader, has certainly come a long way since he first held gainful employment in his father's drugstore in Huron, S.D. in the 1930s.

But after closely examining Mr. Humphrey's current legislative pride-and-joy, S. 50 — the "Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act" — one realizes that the Minnesota Democrat's career has actually come full circle.

Whereas 40 years ago he was making grandiose claims in attempting to sell phony patent medicine for hogs, nowadays he's still making grandiose claims only this time he's attempting to sell snake oil to the American people.

It is impossible to get any Democratic committee staffer to tell you the truth about S. 50 unless you grant that individual anonymity. So, I've agreed.

Here is what I have been told by a key economic aide to a very important Democrat senator, who plays a crucial role in the new congressional budget process:

"The Humphrey bill doesn't provide for one single job except for a new deputy director of the Congressional Budget Office.

"Its plans and programs are probably not worth the paper they are printed on. S. 50 is being pursued with extreme cynicism by its proponents, the strategy being to get the Republicans in the Senate to filibuster it, — embarrass them this way—then if it passes, get Ford to veto it and put the onus of being against jobs on the President.

"The interior view of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee staff is — although they won't say this — that S. 50 is an abortion."

Referring to the bill as "a real Rube Goldberg invention," something "a lot of people would like to see die" but that "organized labor wants as a political issue," this person tells me:

"But the guy in the street doesn't know this. He thinks that if the Humphrey bill becomes law people who don't have jobs will have them. And this is a deception."

Proxmire is particularly bothered by the prevailing-wage section of S. 50 which he says makes it a national Davis-Bacon Act. "This means," he says' "If somebody's hustling pizzas' or working at a checkout counter, or a tough job that doesn't pay much, they can say to hell with it, and go to work in a government job that will have to pay them 9,000 or $10,000 a year. This part of the bill would mean at best double-digit inflation. It'll be very, very difficult to hold down prices."

The conservative comeback

Commentary by Gus Tyler

NEW YORK — "No one needs to be told that we are in the midst of a conservative revival in politics," writes Hilton Kramer, art critic for The New York Times. The same kind of backlash is expressing itself in hairdos, sex styles and student behavior. Kramer goes on to point out that in the arts, too, there is a trend to the old ways, to what he calls the "Mostly Mozart" syndrome.

The notion that a culture swings to the left and right as a whole is appealing, because it suggests a "zeitgeist," a mood, that penetrates every aspect of a society.

But is it really an accurate description of our times?

Consider the position of Jimmy Carter, for instance, on how to deal with theproblem of unemployment. He backs the Humphrey-Hawkins bill that would once have been labeled as out-and-out socialism.

Indeed, Carter serves on the board of the full employment council, founded originally by Leonard Woodcock of the United Auto Workers, and presently co-chaired by Murray Finley of the clothing workers' union and Coretta King, the widow of Martin Luther King.

The legislation proposes to go beyond the present "full employment law" of 1946 by setting a numerical fix on what the term "full" means. No more than three per cent jobless, a rate that allows for some movement in a society where people are free to change jobs and where temporary layoffs are normal.

Humphrey-Hawkins calls for long-range and short-range operations by the President, Congress and the Federal Reserve Board. If enacted, the bill will bring America closer to a democratically planned economy than anything the nation has ever seen.

Or consider another major piece of legislative action: National Health Insurance. Carter is pledged to it as is Republican President Ford although there are differences as to exact form.

Or consider the matter of taxes. All the Democratic aspirants, including George Wallace, have been insisting that our federal income tax law requires radical reform so that the rich shall pay their fair share of the taxes. Carter agrees.

None of these major propositions — planning for full employment, health insurance for all, taxing the rich — is conservative. Ince they would have been termed "radical." Today they are liberal.

And yet Kramer is right, in a sence. By the definitions of the mid '60s, we are turning our backs on what was then thought to be the progressive standards. We find it difficult today to make political criteria out of homosexuality, hair lengths, nudity, narcotics, abortion or even school busing.

Not to say that these questions are of no concern or import to many people. But they sort of shrink, alongside the overtowering quest to stay alive — jobs, health and taxes.

In the '60s, it was assumed that the economic matter was settled. Sooner or later, we would all be affluent. With this worry behind us we could now turn to the really important questions, many of which revolved around a life-style.

Those who were not ready to go bohemian, to accept the counterculture, were termed "conservative," even if their political views on the American economy were radical.

What we are experiencing today is a society that is going in two directions at once: the economy — if Carter wins — is likely to go from conservative to liberal while our life-styles are likely to go from bohemia back to basics.

'Do elephants just naturally have suicidal tendencies?'

Our wars with Great Britain

By Henry J. Taylor

As we celebrate the 200th anniversary of the United States, our shocking and dangerous neglect of American history causes few to recall that we declared war on Britain a second time. Who would know it?

We have always – always – had to fight for the security of our country, and probably always will.

Precisely 164 years ago this month (June 18, 1812) we declared the war that saw Washington D.C. captured, Baltimore cannonaded into cinders, Ohio invaded and the white flag of surrender run up over Detroit.

After our Revoluntionary War we formally gained our independence by a treaty with Britain in 1783, but British troops remained in parts of the United States for more than 10 years.

Several other European powers refused to recognize us at all – powerful Portugal until 1791, Russia until 1809. And from 1793 forward the French Revolution likewise entangled us in European quarrels.

The central third of the United States still belonged to France. Napoleon did not propose to let it go to England. In 1803 he sold "New France," five times the size of France, to the United States for $15 million – the Louisiana Purchase.

Within nine years the fat was in the fire. Britain, France and Spain still tried to use us in their battles for land and trade here. And by 1812 this took us to the second declaration of war against Britain.

It included a virtual sea war with France and many engagements with Spain. And for the first two years each land engagement was an American disaster. But our small nation, hardly born, won the war on our lakes.

An American fleet under Com. Thomas Macdonough was victorious in Lake Champlain's Cumberland Bay, near Plattsburg, that caused the British to abandon the invasion of New York.

Incredibly, we also fought throughout the seven seas.

We were defeated off the coast of Chile. We were defeated again off the coast of Wales. But we broke the clamp of the awful blockades and at last freed the Caribbean.

This victory was a great anticlimax. The peace was signed at Ghent Dec. 24, 1814. On Jan. 8, 1815, British Gen. Sir Edward Pakenham led a frontal attack against Gen. Andrew Jackson's earthworks at New Orleans – one of the most stupid maneuvers in British military annals.

Pakenham was slain and about 2,000 of his troops killed or wounded. We lost 70 men. The battle lasted only half an hour. And it remains famous for having been fought, due to slow communications, two weeks after the peace was signed.

Superior statesmanship has avoided several wars. By 1823 several Latin American countries had achieved independence from Spain. And in 1823 French Ambassador to London Jules Polignac proposed to France a detailed carving up of Latin America among several European powers. This led to our counterweight warning – the Monroe Doctrine.

France backed down and peace was saved.

In 1862, again, a war was avoided by Britain paying peacefully through the nose in the Alabama affair; British Chancellor of the Exchequer William Gladstone's mistake of hailing a new nation in the United States under Confederate President Jefferson Davis.

Go to the beautiful "Alabama Room" in the old town's 16th century City Hall in Geneva, Switzerland. A plow share beaten from the swords of American officers killed in our War Between the States hangs there. The Confederacy's "Alabama," built and armed in England, sank 67 Yankee ships before sunk. After the war the U. S. government sued England. In the "Alabama Room," we won a $15.5 million award.

Wars may well be the coincidence of blunders plus the miscalculation of calculated risks. But history reveals that we must take conflict for granted and the defeat of the United States as a permanent objective by someone, somewhere, always.

God knows, we wish with all our hearts that it were different today. But the terrible truth is that equating life and conflict simply cannot be denied by any student of human behavior and history.

'Searching for the truth'

To The Editor:

I am still searching for the truth of the potential savings to be realized if the Memorial Elementary School is closed. I have reviewed Aaron Fink's letter in response to my challenge for the facts and figures to back up the $200,000 per year savings claim and find that I must respectfully take exception to several of his statements.

My exceptions are based on the budgets of both Memorial (pages 52, 53 and 54) and Spaulding (pages 61, 61 and 63) as presented in Mr. Fink's recommended budget for fiscal year 1977. According to the budget book, the total projected enrollment in a consolidated Spaulding-Memorial School will be 406 students (Spaulding 256 and Memorial 150).

My comments on the paragraphs in Mr. Fink's letter are as follows:

Mr. Fink says I should use average salaries and not specific salaries of people now employed at Memorial. I believe that the present principal is the low man on the totem pole and will most probably be the one to go, but I'll give Mr. Fink the additional $4,654 he claims, even though the difference between the average principal's office and Memorial's principal's office is $7,590.

I arrive at this number by taking the total principal's office elementary budget of $847,196 and dividing it by 23 elementary schools in the system. The average is $36,835 and Memorial is $29,245. I wonder how Mr. Fink arrived at his number of $4,654 when (using his reasoning) it should be $7,590.

I cannot specifically comment on the claimed savings of $13,503 for food services and maintenance as I don't have a breakdown but, if the maintenance portion is high, I question the advisability of significant maintenance expenditueres on a building he feels should be closed. On the food services, if any of the amount specified is for subsidies, that amount would transfer with the students.

Mr. Fink introduces figures from a new unpublished study to attempt to justify savings which were projected for fiscal year 1977 during the school closing controversy of last year. His argument should be based on his fiscal year 1977 budget book to retain any validity. The attempted introduction of new figures from Dr. Silluzio's new report are not acceptable.

Continuing with the items in his third paragraph:

If you reduce 2.5 teacher positions ($41,150) in a consolidated Spaulding-Memorial School that will leave 15.0 teaching positions for the projected enrollment of 406. That is a pupil teacher ratio of 27.07:1.

If you take additional reductions in secretarial time of $6,428 you will leave the fantastic sum of $273 remaining in the budget for secretarial and clerical time for the consolidated school, as my figure included the reduction of that account number by the amount of $8,305 would leave 0.7 positions at $6,701. Subtracting his $6,428 further reduction thus leaves $273 to pay for a secretary.

Reduction of $14,221 claimed savings in the teacher aides account is really confusing. Using the elementary-system average salary of a teacher aide of $5,267 (teacher aides total elementary system budget of $189,605 divided by the elementary-system total positions of 36.0). He is claiming a reduction of 2.7 teacher aides (2.7 X $5,267 - $14,221). Somehow, he is claiming 0.4 position savings more than are shown in the combined Spaulding $11,001) and Memorial $2,910) budget of 2.3 positions at $13,912.

Mr. Fink has taken credit for a savings of 0.4 teacher aide position which does not exist. Having attempted to justify his original claim of ssvings, he has increased the pupil-teacher ratio to 27 and reduced the teacher aides to a minus number. Is this legitimate?

Further analysis of Mr. Fink's letter continues to provide discrepancies.

Mr. Fink does not total his claimed savings based on fiscal year 1977 (September, 1976-June 1977). Using his numbers the total potential savings for fiscal year 1977 is $158,178 ($78,122 my claimed savings plus $4,654 principal's office; $13,503 food services and maintenance; $41,250 teachers; $6,428 secretarial time and $14,221 teacher aides).

I have previously shown above the fallacies in his cutting teachers, and aides which did not exist in his budget book.

Mr. Fink now jumps a year to fiscal year 1978 (September, 1977-June 1978), adds 5 percent to arrive at $166,087 and 8 percent to arrive at $170,832 for his initial year savings.

I suggest that using this method we should wait until September of 1980 fiscal year 1981) when the estimated savings in the initial year, assuming a 5 percent to 8 percent increase each year, would be between $192,267 and $215,199. The cumulative savings for five years, assuming the same 5 percent to 8 percent increase each year, would then be between """""" $1,062,396 and $1,262,487, or an average $212,479 to $252,497 per year.

I'm sure Mr. Fink won't buy waiting until September, 1980, to close Memorial to save more money and I won't buy using fiscal year 1978 through fiscal year 1982 to justify the $200,000 per year and $1 million in five years, either.

Mr. Beckwith stated at a recent School Committee meeting that, had we closed Memorial (referring to the previous Committee's vote to close the school this June, 1976), we would have $200,000 to spend on other important items and in five years have saved $1 million.

At that meeting Mr. Fink backed up Mr. Beckwith's statement. I believe that at that time Mr. Fink should have made the statement that is in the last paragraph of his letter in response to my challenge. He stated, "At any rate, I hope the judgments concerning potential savings from any proposed consolidations of schools will await the publication of our long-range study, and the deliberations of the School Committee." Had that answer been given at that meeting' I would not have challenged Mr. Fink and Mr. Beckwith.

I think we all recognize that if the decline in enrollment continues, this city will face the hard task of closing a number of elementary schools, possibly junior high school(s) and possibly even a high school.

I look forward to having the information in Dr. Silluzio's long-range study available to me and the rest of the public so that I can intelligently follow and possibly contribute to the deliberations of the School Committee on this important issue.

Maneuvering

To the Editor:

Mr. Stiglich's desire to no longer be considered an applicant for the positi8on of city treasurer could only be prompted by the procrastination and political maneuvering of the Board of Aldermen. They should be thoroughly ashamed of themselves.

Mr. Scafidi left the treasurer's position voluntarily, presumably for a better position at a bank.

The Board of Aldermen had tried to postpone a permanent appointment for the city treasurer until Mr. Scafidi's second trial came up.

To date there has been no criticism, at least no public criticism, of the job being done by the present temporary treasurer, which would lead one to believe that the treasurer's office is being run in a credible manner. Yet the Board of refuses Aldermen to make what would seem to be a logical and automatic appointment. WHY?

What is wrong with the Board of Aldermen that it would overlook all Mr. Scafidi has done and still consider him a viable candidate for such a sensitive position?

It would appear that Watergate is dead and buried and it can be assumed that the electorate has once more lapsed into its familiar apathetic state. WHY?

Analysis needed

To the Editor:

The recent verbiage regarding the status of Newton's fire department proves that the parties involved, including many residents of Newton, are approaching the subject with emotion and not with reason. I have yet to read or hear any argument based on an analytical survey completed by a disinterested third party.

Newton should look carefully at what it spends on fire protection and how a firefighter's time is spent while he is on duty. Large busy fire departments spend less than 2 percent of their time in active firefighting according to recent remarks by a former Los Angeles fire official.

Firefighters around the country are realizing that, in order to earn their substantial salaries, they must become productive for more hours of their tour of duty. No longer can the argument "We must be available and ready to fight fires" justify large expensive fire departments which are inactive a good part of the time.

The fire department should be delivering emergency medical services, fire prevention training in the schools, industrial fire inspections, C.P.R. training to Newton residents, and residential fire and safety inspections. In many stations, such as Upper Falls, were the average week produces only five runs time is available for these essential activities.

The City of Newton should take this opportunity to review all public safety services in the city, including police and fire. Until this review is completed, the citizens of Newton should not be upset by the obvious scare tactics being utilized by the Newton Firefighters Association. Also, until such a survey is completed, the mayor should withhold any decision regarding fire equipment and manpower.

Sound planning

To The Editor

Newton Centre has been selected to provide an additional 50 units of low income housing for the elderly. As a community we welcome this opportunity.

However, the first suggestion which is to build a 7-story buildingat the corner of Paul and Centre Streets does not reflect sound planning. The location is excellent and a low building on that site would be an asset to the residential and business community.

However, a 7-story building will do harm to the residential area and will undermine the unique and pleasing character of the business area. The pleasing character is due, in large part, to the fact that most of the buildings are one story high, none are over three stories.

As of yet, alternative designs for the building, additional funding, and additional sites in the Center have not been explored. This should be done before a less than adequate proposal is even considered.

Inadequate

To the Editor:

Last week, under the Campus Column, the news item pertaining to Randall Glickman was inadqequate.

It should read: Randall Glickman, 55 Wheeler Rd., Newton Centre, received a masters in business administration degree from the University of Rhode Island. He was a member of the Beta Gama Sigma Honorary Society. He did his undergraduate work at University of New Hampshire where he was a member of the Honorary Society Psi Epsilon.

Carl Glickman, a 1964 graduate of Newton High School, received his doctorate degree in educational administration from the University of Virginia. He was former principal of Durham, N. H. open classroom schools.

Ruth Glickman received a bachelor's degree in liberal arts, cum laude, from Harvard University Extension at the Commencement exercises on June 17.

Ruth Glickman is the mother of Randall and Carl Glickman and grandmother of Corey, Jennifer and Rachel Glickman.

Pines pushing state law for posting drug prices

State Rep. Lois G. Pines of Newton has applauded the recent Supreme Court ruling permitting competitive advertising of P prescription drug prices.

The Supreme Court recently held that consumers have a constitutional right to receive price information on prescription drugs. Pines believes the Court ruling will substantially benefit the consumer.

As a result of the Supreme Court decision, Massachusetts is one of more than twenty states whose law appears to be unconstitutional. Rep. Pines has attacked as "detrimental to the public interest" the Massachusetts law prohibiting the price advertising of prescription drugs.

In a campaign to restore justice to the consumer, Pines has been a crusader for mandatory drug-price posting legislation in Massachusetts for more than two years. The Newton lawmaker filed bills in the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1975 and 1976.

"It is the mandate of every elected official in this state to assist the consumer in every way possible," Pines said. "Instead, the Massachusetts statute has constructed an effective barrier to the flow of price information necessary to make correct consumer decisions."

In Massachusetts, as well as in other states which have prohibited posting of drug prices, studies have uncovered evidence demonstrating price variations in the range of 1200 percent for the very same medications. "Consumers are unable to compare the prices offered by different pharmacies," commented Pines, "and are forced to suffer the financial burden of outrageously high drug costs."

Pines voiced special concern for the elderly consumers who account for a large percentage of prescription drug sales. She said, "The elderly, along with the chronically ill and those on fixed or marginal incomes, are those hardest hit by the lack of drug price posting. Faced with this depressing reality' these people must spend the greater part of their lives searching for affordably priced medication essential to their health."

The Mandatory Drug Price Posting bill, of which Pines is a co-sponsor, has been reported favorably out of committee and presently is awaiting action by the House Ways and Means Committee. In light of the Supreme Court decision, the lawmaker from Newton is hopeful that the Massachusetts legislature will expedite passage of the legislation which requires posting of prescription drug prices by pharmacies. Pines predicts passage will result in a savings of millions of dollars for Massachusetts consumers.

Two Newton men charged in jewel break

Police arrested two Newton men Saturday morning for allegedly breaking and entering into the Come and See jewelry store in Newtonville late Friday night.

After investigations aided by witnesses police held Paul J. McCarthy 20, of 24 Madison Ave., Newtonville, and Andrew Litvin, 19, of 19 Scotney Rd., Chestnut Hill.

Witnesses saw a man break the window in front of the store at about 10:20 p.m., take some jewelry, and drive away in a blue station wagon. Another witness gave police the car registration number and McCarthy was arrested at his home at 2:30 a.m. Saturday. Litvin was arrrested at the police station.

Secretary Guzzi to unlock state copy of Declaration

The copy of the Declaration of Independence owned by its first and most famous signer will go on public view in Massachusetts for four hours during the July 4 holiday.

State Secretary Paul Guzzi of Newton, keeper of the Commonwealth Archives, said the document will be taken out of its locked case in the basement museum and placed on display in Doric Hall from 2 to 5 p.m. during a special celebration at the State House open to all residents.

Guzzi said the event will be the first time the state's copy of the Declaration has been removed from the Archives where it is on permanent display.

He will carry the document from the Archives in a ceremony which will include the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, the governor's honor guard. Making a brief trip with the officials will be descendants of the original signers who will read the Declaration at 2 p.m. in public ceremonies at the State House.

A special exhibition case is being made by the State House carpenters to house the Massachusetts copy of the Declaration of Independence on July 4. It will be under security surveillance during the three hour display with representatives from Massachusetts militia units appearing as honor guards.

The copy has been owned by the Commonwealth since 1780 when Hancock became governor. It was printed by Mary Catherine Goddard, a Baltimore printer and the first to reproduce signed copies of the document. The first thirteen copies were distributed to the original colonies.

The names of only two of the original 56 signers, those of Hancock, president of the Continental Congress and Charles Thomason, secretary, appeared on the first limited copies of the Declaration of Independence circulated immediately after its adoption. By this association, the name of Hancock became identified in the public mind with that instrument.

The wealthiest person in the Colonies, Hancock was a close associate of Sam Adams and was condemned to death by the British. He was elected governor of Massachusetts in 1780 and held that office, except for two years, until he died in 1793.

State Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton), House chairman of the Legislative Commission on Privacy and the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, said that with the implementation of the state's new privacy law July 1 Massachusetts will enter a new phase of protecting individual rights of privacy.

The law, the Fair Information Practices Act of 1975, is designed to set forth the responsibilities of government agencies and the rights of individuals regarding the use of personally identifiable data.

"Its purpose," Mofenson said, "is to provide safeguards for the selection and use of personal information. People will now be able to find out whether they are data subjects in state files, have reasonable access to their records, and be able to challenge and correct errors."

"Furthermore," Mofenson continued, "the law outlaws any secret state data banks. Every state agency which operates a personal data system must register with the state secretary and submit annual reports describing the system's nature, purpose and kinds of data maintained."

The law also provides for legal remedies. Each agency is responsible to any person who suffers damages because of that agency's violation of the law. In addition, an agency may be liable for a fine of at least $100 per violation.

Any individual may initiate such legal action against an agency. The Attorney General may also act against an agency on his own initiative or at the request of an aggrieved data subject.

"It's a landmark piece of legislation," Mofenson said, "but its full potential will only be realized if people use it."

Metco staff reduction—

evidence of benefits from the program, and wanted to know why the Metco children needed more psychiatric attention than Newton children. Mrs. Jones said the move to a new situation here creates the need for more counselors.

Finally Cohen, who was pleading for accepting $40,000 less in reimbursemnt, said, "Give these kids a break. Give them the same opportunity."

Cohen admitted, "I never thought I'd be asking you to take less (money) for Metco."

Chairman Mandell had sent for the police twice during the meeting after remarks by Mrs. Fleishman who called the Commmittee's actions "irresponsible" from her seat.

Mrs. Fleishman left voluntarily when approached by Officer James O'Donnell who also cleared the entire hall when ordered to do so by Mandell.

The chairman adjourned the meeting without a vote of the Committee and when the hall was clear called an emergency meeting to work on the final budget to meet the June 30 deadline.

During the meeting there were several recesses when five or more members were discussing things in private.

The complex motions of the meeting on reconsideration, tabling, referring to committee, and voting to call the question helped hide the long standing question of what the Metco program costs the city to run, and what the Metco students should receive in Newton.

The voluntary busing program of Boston minority children to Newton has been going on for 10 years. When it started with 50 students, Newton only asked to be reimbursed the direct costs for those students, plus the cost of transportation.

In January, 1975, Newton increased its Metco participation by 100 to 225. At that time the School Committee requested and received not only the per-pupil cost for direct costs and transportation, but also the indirect costs for basic instruction. Together with the direct costs, these totaled the per-pupil cost charged for a state ward or other non-Newton resident in school here.

Last September several communities who wanted to join the Metco program couldn't because other communities had asked for total reimbursement and there wasn't enough money in the state budget.

For next September, the state Bureau of Equal Educational Opportunity designed a formula which will reduce the reimbursement to only $200 per pupil for direct costs, plus the instructional and transportation cost.

With the reduced reimbursement Newton would receive $81,729 less than last year's amount which totaled $676,000. The Metco budget was passed with the school budget in February and the anticipated Metco reimbursement was subtracted from the gross budget of $32.4 million.

Michael LeConti said the $82,000 less in reimbursement is 23 cents on the tax rate, which is too much to ask the taxpayers to pay.

Last week the Committee tabled a vote to ask the Board of Aldermen for the $82,000.

Before that was reconsidered, Cohen said, "You'll never convince me we're not making money on the Metco budget," in response to contentions by Chairman Mandell and others.

Cohen and Kaplan tried unsuccessfully to postpone the reconsideration of the request of funds from the Board, but they failed.

The request to the Board for a maximum of $82,000 which passed two weeks ago with LeConti and Prince opposed was defeated this week 3-5-1, with Kaplan, Cohen, and Beckwith in favor and the mayor abstaining.

Shortly before 12:30 a.m. Ash moved and Prince seconded that the full shortfall be taken out of direct costs.

Superintendent Fink said "That would be tantamount to killing the program"'

After a recess Mayor Mann agreed with Hubert Jones, husband of the Newton Metco coordinator Katherine Jones, who said, "Metco is a financial winner for the Newton school system, which is taking in more money than is actually needed to run the Metco program."

Throughout the early morning hours Ash maintained that the program would not be killed by shaving direct costs, and repeatedly asked the superintendent to suggest further cuts.

After more bickering LeConti finally recommended the cutting of a psychologist, the Hale Reservation outdoor education program, and money for classroom supplies and tutors.

Fink refused to make further recommendations of his own and finally gave the Committee LeConti's proposal to vote on.

"Any further cuts would be extremely dangerous and detrimental" to the program and would distract from the benefit Newton children get from the program.

"I honestly do not recommend any of these" additional cuts, he said, and it didn't matter to him what was further cut.

"When you kill somebody what difference does it make if you shoot them or cut off their head with a knife?" he asked.

In other action the School Committee deliberated for two hours over rules that the administration must follow before participation is approved for any voluntary cooperative education programs outside Newton.

A subcommittee chaired by Paul Ash failed to bring in a compromise procedure. Beckwith's more general plan giving the superintendent and staff more freedom was defeated in favor of Ash's nine specific rules, which include a option for asking for a waiver if the schedule can't be met.

The superintendent was given appointing authority to hire staff in the summer and new organization of learning disability workers was approved.

Revaluation delayed—

tions — from $2000 to $5000 on the value of the property — mean much less applied against the new appraised values.

Assessor Philip Waterman this week explained that in cases of inability to pay the higher tax bills, the Board of Assessors has the discretion to grant abatements for severe financial hardship, but abatements will be given sparingly, and only after th orough discussion of the applicant's finances.

The assessors also intend to encourage the use of a tax deferment by the elderly. A fairly new law allows deferment of taxes up to half the value of the house. Upon the death of the owner, the taxes would be paid by the estate.

The Board of Assessors will soon begin a series of informational articles on taxes that will appear in local newspapers.

Mayor Theodore Mann, at a news conference this week, commented on the revaluation program by scolding the state legislature for not having taken "corrective action" on increasing the exemptions.

"In theory," Mann said, "revaluation is good, but as a practical matter it is a horrendous, traumatic, chaotic, financial experience that should have been handled by the legislature."

All communities have been ordered to revalue, but many have not begun the process. Their failure to comply with the law puts those which have complied at a fiscal disadvantage in several respects.

Mann, as president of the Massachusetts Mayors' Assn. and as mayor of Newton, has been active in submitting proposed legislation to delay revaluation until all communities have revalued, but was not successful.

The revaluation cost the city $345,000, $88,000 of which was withheld by the mayor until the CLT program was judged acceptable.

Chmielinski this week ordered payment of all but $20,000 pending the report from the master, Cremens.

His goal was taking care of people

When Paul Magni was a trainer for the football and basketball teams at Newton North High School, he became interested in a career in medicine. At first he considered physical therapy but found the tuition at a four-year college would be too costly.

Nevertheless, he wanted to make a career out of caring for people. Nursing was a strong possibility, and tuition at a two-year diploma school was more within his reach. He applied and was accepted at Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing, the first man to enter the school directly out of high school, and was among the 75 students who graduated from the school Saturday, June 19.

Magni, whose mother, Margaret, is a widow, is one of 10 children, and he knew financial aid would make things easier for his family. Several community groups pitched into help make an education a reality for him. Scholarships came from the Newton Kiwanis Club, the Sons of Italy, and from his high school in the form of the Riley House Award and aid from the school's scholarship foundation.

Between his freshman and senior years, Magni worked as an aide on one of the patient floors at Newton-Wellesley.

"That's where my heart and soul still are," he said. "The staff was terrific in teaching me various medical techniques and the rationale behind them, and the experience helped me in school."

Magni found that being from a large family, most of whose members live in Newton, can be quite an advantage in working in a community hospital.

"Patients frequently recognized my name and felt they knew me because they knew someone from my family. That helped put them more at ease," he related.

After he finds a job in nursing, Magni said he hopes to resume his training work with the high school athletic teams in his spare time. An interest he picked up when he was a sophomore at Newton North, he continued to pursue it till he graduated in 1973 and even into his first year at nursing school.

Now that he has graduated, Magni claims the greatest satisfaction in nursing is initiating a plan of care for a patient, implementing it and seeing the patient get better.

Besides Magni, there were several other Newton residents in the graduating class. They were: Gail A. Asaley, Deborah J. Donahue, Deborah L. Jordan, Patricia M. Marshall, and Paula Mills.

Acquisition of the Martin property on Circuit Ave. in Upper Falls has been completed and the land is to be used for conservation purposes.

The property is next to the Frank Barney conservation land, already owned by the city and soon to be assigned to the Commission's jurisdiction.

The two parcels are the only city-owned land designated for open space in Upper Falls, aside from some along the Charles River pathway system.

assumptions used by the US Bureau of Census to predict the range of future school population.

He considers birth rate, fertility rate, divorce rate, attitude toward family size, age at first marriage, migration patterns, and composition of the labor force to predict how Newton will grow.

Newton's birth rate, the number of births per 1000 people, was 7.8 in 1974, when the national average was 14.9' the lowest in the history of the nation.

Surveys and statistics show that nationally couples get married later, want to have smaller families, and have their first child later in the marriage. than in the past 15 years.

The average (median) age in Newton was 33 in 1974, when the national average was 28.6. Silluzio attributes this partly to the high cost of housing in Newton.

He states, "the trend seems clear. After completing their education increasingly large numbers of Newton young people leave the city, raise their families elsewhere, and are not replaced by an equal number of people in the same age group.

"Generally, this group of young people is replaced by persons about 10 years older," he said.

Through his own survey he found that the average age of the person who buys a home in Newton is 34, and the average cost is $51,743.

The federal fertility rate assumptions are 1.7, 2.2, and 2.7 per marriage. Even the lowest, 1.7, is far above Newton's current rate of 1.2, which represents about 1,200 births in the reproductive lifetime of 1000 women at the current birth rate.

All the above feasible school closings are based on projected enrollments with a future fertility rate of 2.7, which would give a school population of about 11,500 by 1987.

Using this high fertility rate, 8 the enrollment would peak in the 1990s at around 14,000. With the other fertility rates projected through the year 2000, school population would peak at about 12,000 or 11,000.

The complete report is available in each branch library.

Natural cosmetics for a more beautiful you

Apricot, Walnut, Cherry, Cocoa, Blackberry, Wild Cherry, Cinnamon, Wild Orange. A fruit store? No, they're labels on jars containing cosmetics on the shelves of the plant laden "I" cosmetic shop in the Chestnut Hill Mall.

Store manager Barbara Himmelstein, beautifully groomed and most enthusiastic about this new cosmetic concept, is happy to explain the use and benefits derived from these natural products. But first there's a customer, 20 year old Linda Capachetti from Winchester has come in for a moisturizer. Linda tells us she is studying occupational therapy and works on cadavers (which she assures us she loves doing) and the fumes have caused her to have skin problems. A friend and she's completely sold on "I".

The cosmetic line originated 5 years ago in New York by Lois Muller an advertising director for Capezio shoes. Lois had a great interest in health foods and wanted to create a line of natural cosmetics. She now has 35 shops around the country. For those not able to invest the $100 to $125 needed to buy the entire line, it is suggested that they open their home to "I" and invite people to witness a cosmetic demonstration thereby receiving a discount on their own cosmetic purchases.

"Everything in the line," explains Barbara, "has a fruit and an oil base to it. If it's not a water base then it's a fruit base and that means that the oils are very much like our own skin oils and when you put on the makeup it's all very blendable and readily absorbed into the skin.

"We really don't cater to the person who likes heavy makeup. Most cosmetics are made from a mineral or petroleum base and when you put it on your face it sits on the top surface and clogs your pores. We do not cater to the person with bad skin who wants to cover up skin problems—our makeup is light and healthy giving you a glowing look—so, you see, we don't promise miracles that do away with blemishes and wrinkles—we say our makeup will make you look a little better with a natural look.

"We teach people how to cleanse their faces and how to apply makeup. Whenever someone comes in we do a makeup, fill out a chart and then they buy whatever they need."

Though it began as a cosmetic shop for young people alone, the age group of loyal customers falls in the 20-45 year old bracket. Barbara admits that older women are very set in their ways and if they've been accustomed to using Revlon for 20 years it's difficult to start them on something new. All products are priced between $2.50 and $6.50.

The beauty regime begins with a cleansing program and the cost is $6 or $6.50 for each of the 7 items in the step by step treatment.

Soap—it's lemon fluff and with it comes a little brush for a bit of a scrubbing action. No harsh detergents. Removed with water, there is still a bit of residue and that's when the most requested product, Grapefruit Astringent is used. Derived from the oil in the rind of the grapefruit and natural distilled water (no alcohol), it will not dry out the skin—it's a stimulent, toner, shrinks large pores and may be refrigerated during the summertime and used as a refreshing splash.

Moisturizer—best used in the morning before putting on makeup, as a protection. For the combination type skin Barbara suggested the Orange Moist—oil from the rind of the orange and just a touch on the skin is sufficient. For an oiler skin it's best to use the lemon product.

Almond oil is the newest product; it contains honey and glycerine and manages to work its way deeper into the pores and so is better than a facial. With it comes a round brush for better application to be done in a circular motion and worked into the skin, then washed off.

Clay masque is "I's" original product and it works like a vacuum cleaner when applied to the oily and dirty areas especially around the nose. Left on for 15 or 20 minutes, you can almost feel it working.

"All of these treatments," said Barbara, "when used faithfully, take a couple of months and then the customer sees great things happening. As for the cost of the line, look at it this way—a woman might spend $100 on an outfit and wear it just a few times, then economize on a makeup and treatment products whereas your face is with you every minute of the day!"

When considering "I's" color line, there is a toner for people with poor tone problems and Barbara tells us that includes practically everyone. Some people have sallow skins, some olive and some with ruddy complexions and "I" has neutralizers for every skin tone. And then there is the foundation and their waterbase and vegetable base foundations can deal with all skins.

"We use a highlighter," explains Barbara, "with a water base—there are dark, dark tawny colors or peachy colors to contour the face. Our under eye stick contains vitamins A and E and wheat germ oil—this is so important for the older woman who is beginning to wrinkle.

"As for eye color, you can get 20 different looks for the eye and most people can wear any color. I like to match eye colors with what I'm wearing. I use contour stick under the eye, around the brow and down the side of the cheekbone. The gleamer sick makes the eye look wider. Our mascara has an olive oil base and gives body to the lashes.

"Blushers with a lanolin base are very natural and the powder blushes are buttermilk based.

Lipsticks are made from honey beeswax and carnuba wax and there's a shine in clear, red and brown—this is all you need take out at night when you need a touchup. Our finishing powder has talc and it's sheer, not pasty—it finishes your makeup and gives you a nice smooth look."

If you're interested in a wholesome look, visit the "I" shop and enjoy a demonstration of the 18 steps to a more natural makeup.

Food and Fashion

Across the kitchen counter

With the grand and glorious Fourth of July weekend, it's time to declare your own independence. Plan ahead so that you will be able to relax and enjoy the weekend along with the family.

A picnic on the Fourth is as traditional as Uncle Sam's top hat and striped trousers. According to Webster's dictionary, a picnic is "a pleasure party, the food for which is usually provided by members of the group and is eaten in the open air." We all love picnics, however, assuring your family a safe and enjoyable picnic meal requires a little advance planning.

In general, picnic foods should be quick to make, simple to carry and easy to eat. Finger foods (crackers, peanuts, raw vegetables, pickles), cold cooked meats, hearty salads (potato, macaroni, rice, coleslaw), hot and cold thermos drinks and uncut fruit travel well.

Sandwiches are always popular for picnics. Make them ahead and wrap individually or carry different fillings in plastic containers along with a variety of bread and rolls.

For some, a picnic isn't a picnic unless fried chicken is served. Following are some hints for preventing bacterial spoilage: First, since most bacteria live at a temperature range of 40 to 140 degrees, hot foods should be kept very hot: cold foods below 40 degrees.

It is safer to fry chicken a day or two ahead, refrigerate or freeze it and pack in an insulated bag rather than fry it at the last minute and try to keep it warm. Potato salad, best when made with potatoes still warm from cooking, is also best chilled and then packed in an insulated bag. (It's a good idea to combine the potatoes and vegetables and pack an unopened mayonnaise bottle separately-at the picnic, blend all ingredients. Sour cream may be substituted for mayonnaise and has less chance of spoiling because of its acidic content.)

Any kind of soft drink or iced tea or coffee goes well with picnic foods and for dessert thick wedges of icy cold watermelon would be perfect!

CURRIED SHRIMP SALAD

2 cups chopped cooked shrimp
1 cup finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup chopped cocktail peanuts
6 hard rolls

Combine shrimp and celery in a large bowl. Mix together onion, salt, curry, lemon juice, parsley and mayonnaise. Blend into shrimp mixture. Chill. Add peanuts. Cut ½-inch slice from top of each roll, then scoop out soft center. Fill hollow of each roll with shrimp mixture. Makes 6 sandwiches.

OPEN FACE DILL BEEFERS

¼ cup salad oil
¼ cup dill pickle liquid
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed
1 small clove garlic, crushed or dash garlic powder
1 pound cooked thinly sliced roast beef
¾ cup sliced dill pickles
¼ cup chopped onion
1 can (3 oz.) mushroom slices, drained
6 slices buttered rye bread

Blend oil, pickle liquid, salt, pepper, oregano leaves and garlic in bowl. Dip roast beef into marinate to coat on both sides. Remove beef slices at they are coated, to another bowl. Add pickle slices, onion and mushroom to remaining marinade; toss until coated. Cover both meat and vegetables and chill for several hours. At serving time, prepare open-face sandwiches by placing a slice of rye bread on each serving plate; top with beef slices and spoon drained marinated pickle mixture on top. Serves 6.

SAVORY BEEF BURGERS

2 pounds ground beef
1 cup prepared garlic croutons
¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 tomato, chopped
8 hamburger rolls

Mix together lightly ground beef, croutons, mustard, egg and tomato. Shape into 8 large patties. Grill over hot coals 10-15 minutes or until done, turning once. Serve on rolls with additional mustard or ketchup. Serves 8.

SPINACH SALAD

1 pound fresh spinach
6 scallions, minced with green
two-thirds cup salad oil
1 garlic clove, mashed
½ cup wine vinegar
½ cup mayonnaise
2 strips crisp bacon, crumbled
3 hard cooked eggs, sliced

Wash spinach in several changes of cold water; discard any woody stems. Drain and dry thoroughly. Add scallions. Beat oil, garlic, vinegar and mayonnaise with fork, to make dressing. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Just before serving, toss salad with dressing, sprinkle with bacon crumbles, and garnish with sliced egg. Makes 6 servings.

RICE 'N SPICE SALAD

1 pkg. (9 oz.) frozen green beans
2 cups quick-cooking rice, uncooked
1 can (13¾ oz.) chicken broth
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
¾ cup bottled Italian dressing
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
¼ teaspoon onion salt

In saucepan, combine beans, rice, and broth. Bring to boil. Cover; cook over low heat about 5 minutes or until all liquid is absorbed. In a large bowl, combine rice mixture and remaining ingredients. Chill. Makes about 5 cups.

WATERMELON MEDLEY

2 cups watermelon balls
1 cup green seedless grapes
1½ cups diced pineapple
¼ cup grenadine or Kirsch
1 tablespoon sugar

Combine all ingredients. Chill at least 3 or 4 hours. Makes 6 servings.

WATERMELON SHERBERT CUP

Fill sherbet glasses with ripe watermelon balls. Top with a scoop of lemon, orange or pineapple sherbet. Garnish each with a watermelon ball and fresh mint leaves. (This is for the back yard picnic.)

The best part of a picnic is the food. Celebrate the Fourth of July with a crunchy shrimp salad sandwich!

Information please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Ma. 02026.

Question: Years ago I had a very good recipe for what was called Mock Lobster. I would appreciate the recipe at your earliest convenience, please.

Mrs. D. E., Westwood

Answer: A very good fish dish for these warm evenings. Serve on a bed of lettuce or on toasted hot dog rolls.

MOCK LOBSTER

2 pounds filet of haddock
1 large onion
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
½ jar horseradish
½ jar chili sauce
½ cup sour cream

Cook haddock fillets with salt, pepper and chopped onion for 10 minutes or until fish flakes easily. Remove fish with slotted spoon to a bowl and allow to cool. Flake fish and add remaining ingredients. Allow mixture to stand for at least 4 hours before serving. Serves 6.

Our thanks to Mrs. H. G., Dedham who shares with us her favorite recipe for Chafing Dish Meatballs.

KAY'S CHAFING DISH MEATBALLS

pound ground beef
½ cup dry bread crumbs
one-third cup minced onion
¼ cup milk
1 egg
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup shortening
1 jar (12 oz.) chili sauce
1 jar (10 oz.) grape jelly

Combine ground beef, bread crumbs, onion, milk, egg, parsley, salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce; gently shape into 1-inch balls. Melt shortening in a large skillet; brown meatballs. Remove meatballs from skillet; drain fat. Heat chili sauce and jelly in skillet until jelly is melted, stirring constantly. Add meatballs and stir until coated. Simmer for 30 minutes. Serve hot in a chafing dish. Yield: 5 dozen.

Question: Do you have a recipe for the Spanish soup, Gazpacho? I will look forward to seeing it in your column.

Mrs. B.F., W. Roxbury

Answer: A soup that does not need any cooking and so refreshing during the summer months:

GAZPACHO

1 clove garlic
4 small or medium tomatoes, peeled and quartered
½ large green pepper, seeded and cut into strips
½ small onion, peeled and cut in half
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon coarsely ground pepper
3 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons wine or tarragon vinegar
½ cup ice water
1 cucumber, peeled and sliced coarsely

Place all ingredients in blender, cover and blend on high speed for 6 seconds. Arrange 4 ice cubes in serving bowl. Empty mixture into bowl. Ladle soup and ice into individual soup plates which have been chilled. (Serve with toasted croutons or crusty bread. Additional cucumbers, tomatoes, onion, green pepper and chives chopped up may be served with soup in separate bowls. A meal in itself on a hot summer day. Serves 4.

Question: My daughter has returned from her first year being away at college and she raves about a chocolate cake sent to her dorm by a friend's aunt. All she could tell me was the cake had brandy and coffee in it and that it was the very best chocolate cake ever! Have you ever heard of this particular cake and if so, I'd greatly appreciate your recipe. Thank you.

C. I., Newton

Answer: I found the following recipe in "A Salute To Chocolate" by Sylvia Balser Hirsch and Morton Gill Clark—it should please all chocolate lovers!

BLACK VELVET CAKE

two-thirds cup butter
one and two-thirds cup sugar
3 eggs
two-thirds cup cocoa
2¼ cups sifted cake flour
¼ teaspoon baking soda
1¼ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup black coffee
one-third cup brandy
1¼ teaspoons vanilla

Cream butter and sugar together, add eggs and beat until very light and fluffy. Combine cocoa, flour, soda, baking powder and salt. Sift together. Combine coffee, brandy and vanilla. Add dry ingredients and coffee mixture alternately to egg mixture, blending after each addition. Beat until just smooth. Grease and flour two 9-inch cake pans. Pour in batter evenly and bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes. Cool in pans or turn out on rack. When cold, fill and frost with the following:

BOILED BUTTER FUDGE ICING WITH PECANS

2 cups sugar
2 ounces bitter chocolate
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
¾ cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
1 pinch salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup finely chopped pecans

Combine sugar, chocolate, syrup and milk in saucepan and cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved. Cook without stirring until it reaches the soft ball stage, 238 degrees on your candy thermometer. Remove from heat. Add butter and salt and blend. Place pan in bowl of ice water and beat to spreadable consistency as it cools. Add vanilla and chopped pecans. Beat again and set aside until needed. If it should be too thick, add a little cream to thin.

Gaffin recognized nationally for 19 years as big brother

Stanley Gaffin of Newton, past president of the Jewish Big Brother Association of Boston, was selected from more than 200 nominees as runnerup in the national "Big Brother of the Year" competition of Big Brothers of America. Nominations for the award were received from big brother organizations throughout the country, and Gaffin was presented his runnerup plaque at the recent Big Brothers of America annual meeting in Indianapolis.

An active big brother for more than 19 consecutive years, he is currently assigned to his seventh little brother, and on two separate occasions has served as a big brother to two brothers. His first little brother is now an active big brother with JBBA, and Gaffin's son is also an active big brother with the organization.

Stanley Gaffin

Under his leadership, JBBA achieved a record number of big and little brother matches, and established such innovative programs as a Women's Division and a Century Club, whose members contribute a minimum of $100 in annual dues.

Since leaving the presidency, Gaffin hs has served as chairman of the JBBA's Public Relations Committee, helping plan the largest advertising campaign in the agency's history, utilizing radio and TV public service time, as well as billboards and newspapers.

On Nov. 9, 1975, he was awarded the key to the City of Newton for his work with JBBA, a constituent agency of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

He is CPA and head of Stanley Gaffin Associates.

Clair of Waban, president of the Service League at Boston Hospital for Women, plants a disease resistant Americen elm tree near the Concord Bridge as part of the National Farm and Garden Association's salute to the Bicentennial. She is a former president of the association. Standing behind her is an honor guard from Concord High School.

Exchange seeks homes for foreign students here

The International Cultural Exchange (ICX) is looking for host families who will provide room and board for students from Europe and South America for a year. The students have all their travel expenses paid, sufficient spending money and accident insurance and will arrive in August.

Charles Bullwinkle, field representative for ICX said in spite of all the preliminary work, including screening of students and transportation arrangements, the trip will not become a reality if homes are not found for the visitors

Per Johnsson, 16, from Sweden, thinks it "could be of great use to have been in the USA for a year," and specifically hopes to stay in the Boston area. Santiago Pinto, 17, of Ecuador, a good tennis player and swimmer, also hopes to be placed in the Boston area.

For more information or an application call Bullwinkle at 265-2576 after 5 p.m.

Weddings

Donna Jacobs and Glenn Sussman are wed on the S.S. Stuyvesant

Donna Elise Jacobs, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jacobs, and granddaughter of Anna Jacobs of N. Y., was recently married to Glenn David Sussman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold B. Sussman of Newton Centre. Also in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. William Wigod, maternal grandparents of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Sussman, paternal grandparents of the bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Phillip Jacobs in a double ring ceremony performed by Rabbi A. Sussman aboard the S. S. Peter Stuyvesant at Pier 4.

Judith Sharpe of Maplewood, N. J. was maid of honor, and Ronald Gashin of Brookline was best man at the private ceremony held on the stern of the boat for the immediate family. Elyse Suzanne Sussman and Ellen-Jane Sussman, sisters of the groom, were bridesmaids.

Mrs. Sussman graduated from American University with honors, majoring in business administration and marketing. Mr. Sussman also graduated with honors from American University where he majored in sociology and government.

Following a trip to Hawaii and The Islands, the couple will reside in West Orange, N. J. where they will operate a men's fashion store, Maguire's of Maplewood, formerly owned by Mrs. Sussman's late father.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn D. Sussman

The Wicks are wed in double ring rite

Victoria Elizabeth Aghababian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vahe H. Aghababian of Newton, was married June 19 to Bruce Whitman Wicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wicks of Cranston, R. I. in a ceremony held at St. Stephen's Armenian Apostolic Church, Watertown, Maine. The bride was given in marriage by her father in a ceremony performed by Rev. Torkom Hagopian.

Mrs. Alice Hagopian, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Carol Ann Martin and Barbara Welch were bridesmaids.

Mr. Ronald Brickett was the best man and Gary Luba and Douglas King were ushers.

The reception was held at the Cambridge Boat Club, Cambridge, Maine.

The couple met at Bates College from where they both graduated in 1974. The bride has just completed her M.B.A. from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Mr. Wicks is employed by Manufacturers Hanover Trust of New York.

Following a trip to Maine, the couple will live in New York City.

Levin receives MD from Northwestern

Donald L. Levin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Levin, 73 Rockland Pl., Newton Upper Falls, received the degree of doctor of medicine (MD) from Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.' at its June 12 commencement.

Dr. Levin will enter residency at Northwestern Memorial Hospital in Chicago. The six-year Northwestern medical student is a 1970 graduate of Newton South High School where he was editor of the yearbook and the Orr Award recipient.

Dr. Levin was married May 22 to Nancy Ann Rubenstein of Syracuse, N.Y. Mrs. Levin received her bachelor's degree from Northwestern in 1974 and a masters from the University of Michigan in 1975.

The couple spent their honeymoon in Hawaii prior to commencement. Dr. Levin's residency began June 29.

Emergency callbox network set for interstate highways

A proposal for an expanded emergency communications system on interstate highways in Massachusetts has been signed into law by the governor.

The program, proposed by State Rep. Lois Pines of Newton, will be funded by the federal government, with some matching funds furnished by the state.

A long-time proponent of making emergency communications available to distressed motorists, Pines cited the success of the network where it has been installed, and the need for full expansion.

"The specter of trouble on dark, lonely stretches of superhighway will be greatly diminished through an expanded network of sophisticated callboxes," Pines explained.

"Trouble occurs in many forms, some of them deadly. A medical emergency is just minutes away from treatment for a motorist requesting help, and often those minutes mean the difference between life and death. A man feeling an approaching heart attack, a woman in premature labor and injuries resulting from an automobile accident all require immediate assistance.

"There are substantial benefits in situation where a life is not in immediate danger.

The system is designed to eliminate the need for motorists to leave their cars and walk many miles to the nearest exit in order to secure help. It will also eliminate the hazards associated with such treks (e.g., being struck by a car, falling, etc.) which are multiplied by darkness, inclement weather and the isolation of many of these highways.

The network involves a direct radio link between as a stranded motorist and the nearest state police barracks. Located every one-half mile, the callboxes contain buttons representing the type of assistance needed — police, repairs, or medical treatment. Once a button is pushed it immediately registers on a console loated in the barracks and manned 24 hours a day. The The location of the callbox and the nature of the problem are logged, and a signal is sent back informing the motorist that the message has been received.

Pines pointed to the unqualified success of the pilot program. Deployed on an eight-mile stretch of I-495 between Littleton and Chelmsford, it was responsible for nearly 2600 instances of immediate aid. In addition, there was no damage to any of the units due to vandalism, knockdowns or equipment failure.

The Pines billfor opens the door the inclusion of Rte. 128, Rte. 3 from Boston to the Sagamore Bridge, Rte. 6 (the Mid-Cape Highway), and the Northeast Expressway. These highways will join the current system which encompasses the entire lengths of I-91, I-495, and I-95. The Massachusetts Turnpike (I-90) is not included because its status as a toll road makes it ineligible for federal funding.

Mrs. Minkin names nursing home director

Dr. Bernard L. Busfield, Jr., a psychiatrist in Boston, has been appointed medical director of the Minkin Family Nursing Homes according to Gladys Minkin of Newton Centre, president of the nursing homes group.

Baruch looks, at knowledge in year 2000

Rhoda Baruch of Newton, director of career development at Dartmouth College has just participated in Project: Knowledge 2000, a Bicentennial program exploring the country's knowledge needs for the next 25 years.

Baruch, a graduae of Harvard Graduate School, took part in the forum June 27 to 30 at the Xerox International Center for Training and Management Development in Leesburg, Va.

The goal of the project was to stimulate thinking and discussion about the generation, transmission and used of knowledge in the years to come. After each of the series of forums, videotapes and guides for group discussion will be distributed to communities throughout the nation.

The project is sponsored by the National Science Foundation, the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, and Xerox Corporation.

Crutches did not stop Mayor Theodore D. Mann from offering personal congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Fitzpatrick on their 50th wedding anniversary recently. More than 100 relatives and friends gathered for a party in Newton Corner to celebrate the event. Host and hostess for the gathering were the couple's son and daughter, Frank M. Fitzpatrick and Anne L. Bulger. Congratulatory telegrams were received from Gov. Michael Dukakis, Sec. of State Paul Guzzi and Boston Mayor Kevin White.

Rev. Holladay to preach July 4 to Protestants

Guest preacher at the Bicentennial July 4 service of the Newton protestant churches participating in the cooperative summer series will be Rev. William L. Holladay of Newton Centre' Lowry Professor of Old Testament at Andover Newton Theological School. His subject will be "God's Almost Chosen People."

Services for July are being held at the Newtonville United Methodist Church, Walnut Street near Washington Street, at 10 a.m.

He has served as campus minister, pastor of congregations, teacher and lecturer. From 1963-70 he was professor of Old Testament at Near East School of Theology in Beirut, Lebanon.

His most recent book is "Jeremiah: Spokesman Out of Time," published by the United Church Press in 1974 and widely used as a study book. Buckness Press will shortly publish "The Architecture of Jeremiah 1-20."

The Newton summer union services are now in their forty-first season. The cooperating churches are Central Congregational, Newtonville, Union Church in Waban, Second Church in Newton, and Newtonville and Newton Centre United Methodist Churches.

CAR CORNER
by John Borelli, Mast. Tech. No. 3428
It was in France during the last decade of the 19th century that the automobile began to assume some of its present form and popularity. The wide, level boulevards of Paris, and the fine paved roads radiating out of the French capital were the ideal settings for rich sportsmen to display their noisy new playthings. By 1885 there were so many self-propelled vehicles puttering about, that the French language added a new word to describe them. The word was, of course, automobile, from the Greek word for self (auto), and the Latin word for moving (mobilis).
This is the time of year when many families are planning their Summer vacations; we at NEWTON CAR RADIO, 873 Walnut Street (cor. of Beacon, at 4 Corners), 332-2487, hope that you will include us in your plans by purchasing your CB radio from us. Hitchcock Factory provides colonial touch to homes

American colonial furniture is what The Hitchcock Factory Store is all about. With branches located in both Norwell and Sudbury, Hitchcock supplies historical Massachusetts with some fine colonial pieces.

The Hitchcock Factory Store offers a wide selection of colonial kitchen sets, living room sets and dining area sets. There is also a variety of furniture accessories styled in the historic American design.

Connecticut and Long Island have boasted Hitchcock Factory Stores for years. Two years ago Hitchcock set up an outlet in Sudbury and a year later opened another branch in Norwell.

The Norwell and Sudbury stores will host a July Bicentennial sale running through the first two weeks of July.

C&C Fence Company has much to offer

After several years in Jamaica Plain, Ken Calvagne decided to move his fence company to Dedham. Now located at 858 Providence Highway in Dedham, the C&C Fence Company is doing a profitable business and offers much to their customers.

C&C offers screen stockade, post and rail, chain link, and picket fences to interested buyers. As an added feature, picket fences may be made to order.

Free estimates and bank financing are just a few of C&C's policies. C&C Fence Company offers the bank financing through an affiliation with the Norfolk County Bank.

Out of a total of 25 employees, 20 are fence erectors making up four to five crews. C&C Fence Company not only provides quality residential fencing but also industrial fencing.

A touch of Spain makes tasty grilled chicken

Delectable aromas that waft across the nation from outdoor grills when the weather is pleasant to attest to the all-American appeal of backyard barbecuing.

Sauces may vary from one region to another but in every part of the country, chicken is a favorite for cooking on the grill.

Actually, barbecuing has been a part of the American scene since the Indians occupied the land. Early Spanish explorers found natives using crude wooden racks to smoke fowl and other meats over an open fire. The word "barbecue" is the English adaptation of the Spanish "baracoa."

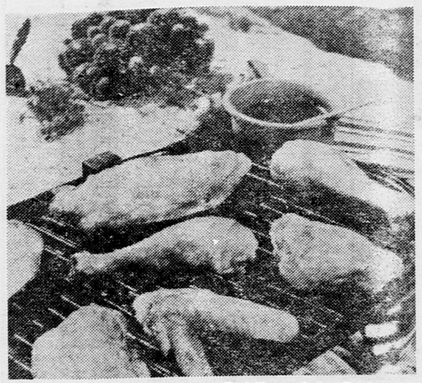

Adapting to the New World meant adopting food at hand. From the Indians of the area that is now Mexico came foods such as peppers and tomatoes and to these tasty ingredients, the Spanish conquerors added chicken and other European favorites.

Mexican-Americans are also responsible for introducing the United States to many kinds of chili peppers, both green and red; some mild, some extremely hot.

The National Broiler Council has modified two of these regional sauces in easy-to-use recipes that will add new interest to cooking chicken on the grill wherever it is served.

The first, called "Red Honey-Onion Chicken," is chili-flavored but with a subtle goodness the whole family will enjoy.

When cooking chicken on the grill, the National Broiler Council also adds these timely tips: to preserve the natural flavor and moisture of chicken, it should be cooked slowly over glowing coals with no fire showing. Start with skin side down and the grill close to the coals, turning chicken once at this level to seal in juices. Raise grill and complete cooking, turning and basting often. To test for doneness, insert fork; when juices run clear, cooking is complete.

A Zesty Treat

Red Honey-Onion Chicken is a new taste treat which can be cooked on the grill.

RED HONEY-ONION CHICKEN

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving parts or 8-10 favorite broiler-fryer chicken parts
¼ cup vegetable oil
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons honey
1 cup tomato sauce
2 ounces onion soup mix
2 teaspoons chili powder
Salt to taste

Wash chicken parts and pat dry. Place in large bowl. Put remaining ingredients in small saucepan, bring to boil and simmer 15 minutes. Pour over chicken parts and marinate at least 2 hours. (It's ideal to prepare in morning and marinate in refrigerator until mealtime.) Drain sauce from chicken. Cook over glowing coals for about 45 minutes, turning often to brown evenly. For additional 15 minutes, brush generously with sauce, turning and basting. Remove chicken when juices run clear upon insertion of fork. Heat left-over sauce to pour over grilled chicken. A delicious meal with corn chips and cole slaw. Makes 4 servings.

Barbeques get new fueling

The broilmaster gas grill is only one of several gas grills promoted by the Bay State Gas Company. Manufactured by Aarm Morning, broilmaster cooks food without the use of hot coals, high flames and leftover messy ashes' yet still gives food that great outdoor barbeque taste.

Broilmaster is fueled by propane gas which is stored in a 20 lb. tank attached to the grill. The grill can also be mounted in the ground and attached to a pole for an easy hookup to natural gas.

The portability of broilmaster makes it ideal for patio, poolside and backyard cookouts. The sturdy wheels at the base of the grill makes transportatation easy.

Bay State Gas also patronizes several other gas grills. There are various brand names and a wide variety of sizes available at all Bay State Gas outlets. Broilmaster and the other brands available are also sold in most appliance and retail stores.

Sunglasses changing their looks

There was a time when sunglasses came in tiny "granny" glasses, upswept harlequin shapes and just about any other fancy a designer could think up. Lenses, too, were fanciful, in pink, yellow or mauve.

Fortunately, that phase, when everyone realized that sunglasses could be fashion items and went crazy over the discovery, has finished. Even fashion designers, amny of whom now are creating sunglasses collections as a form of fashion accessory, are saying that function and fashion must go together.

Whatever their shape, frames are everywhere oversized. Not only are the large sizes more protective, they are more flattering. They frame the entire eye area, emphasizing it instead of hidding it.

Where lenses come in the gradient tintint, darker at top and shading out to light at the bottom, as Yeves St. Laurent's big frames in leopard markings, the eyes are visible and the effect of framing them is especially pretty.

Eyes need protection from strong sunlight. Sod does the skin around the eyes, which is thin and dry, even when the rest of the face is oily.

Without sunglasses, your squint Do that long enough and you'll have crowsfeet ,ong before you should. With eye protection the first beauty aim to have in mind, look over the lens variety offered in today's sunglasses collections.

Besides the gradient lenses already mentioned, there are others tailored to specific conditions. Best-known are the dark gray or green lenses evenly tinted all over. These two colors are best for cutting down general glare.

Other colors do not filter glare and should not be worn except as fun glasses when sunlight is not a problem. Gradient lenses are also meant for glare, but under conditions where most of the glare is coming from overhead. Their effect is like that of auto windshields that are tinted at the top in order to leave straight-ahead vision unimpaired.

The newest fashion in lenses is the mirrored lens. Some women dislike it because it completely hides the eyes. However, it has become especially popular with young people. Originally, mirrored lenses had to be glass, since the high heat required to apply a mirror coating would melt plastic.

Lately, Cool-Ray has discovered a process that successfully coats plastic lenses, and polarized ones at that. A very thin film of chromium is deposited, through ehich one can see perfectly well while getting the reduced glare that makes any lens a true sunglasses lens.

In choosing sunglasses for eye protection, rememer function first, both in size if frame and in correct lenses for the conditions under which the glasses are to be used.

Although quality sunglasses now range from about $6 - up, it may be worth it to your eyes and your un-crowsfooted skin acquire a wardrobe of sunglasses with varied lenses.

The St. Laurent View

Yves St. Laurent likes the fun look of leopard markings on his new sunglasses frames, but bows to function in their ample size and the gradient-tinted lens that cuts down overhead glare.

Comfort found in Prestige Pools

Prestige Pools has offered refreshing relief to many area residents for the past twelve years. Under the ownership of Manuel Premak, Prestige Pools offers a variety of in-ground and above-ground pools of various sizes and shapes.

There are three types of pools available at Prestige, which is located in Wellesley Hills. The in-ground pool is made of sturdy extruded aluminum with a vinyl lining.

There are two above ground models available; one partially inground and the other totally on the ground. Both these models are made of aluminum, vinyl lined, and surrounded with a complete walk-around and patio extension.

Premak says that no wood is used for the patio. The patio is all aluminum and fully carpeted. He furthur states that all Prestige Pools are designed for comfort and relaxation, with little maintenance involved.

The durability of the Prestige Pools is guaranteed for many years.

All the pools are designed by Weatherking. They are pre-engineered with a bridge-type support for additional strenth' with colorful aluminum railings.

"The pools have a stronger extruded rib wall construction because strenth is where it's needed," says Premak.

There is also a choice of two filtering systems' and an upswing aluminum ladder provided with the pools. MORE

Premak says that the pools come in many sizes and shapes. "They come in oval, octagon, and rectangular shapes."

Premak invites all over to his store to view the model pools on display and get additional information.

Safety tips for swimmers

"It is a safe bet that more than 20 people a day will drown along our 12,383 miles of ocean shoreline this coming summer," writes author Peter Benchley in the April issue of Reader's Digest. He goes on to say, in a basic account of how to survive in the sea: "Such deaths will almost always be the result of ignorance or over-confidence."

Cardinal ru,e No. 1 is never fight the sea. Rips, runouts and drifts create treacherous currents and undertows; if you try to swim against them, you're in trouble. Swim across a current, or swim parallel to the beach until you find calmer waters. If you are caught by a large wave and knocked flat, Benchley's advice is to relax — go limp. The undertow will carry you out to deeper waters where you can catch your breath before you try again.

If you are not a competent swimmer — and the National Safety Council estimates that fewer than 12 percent of American swimmers are — make sure someone is watching when you go in for a dip. It is also a good idea to learn a water-survival technique called "drown-proofing," which can help you stay afloat almost indefintely.

Drown-proofing is based on maintaining a vertical floating position, arms hanging limp at your side. Take a deep breath and let your face go underwater. When you're ready to take the next breath, exhale through your nose, cross your hands in front of your face and spread them "as if you were parting curtains." After your arms are stretched out push down toward your sides and tilt your head back.

bring your mouth out of the eater so that you can breathe. Drown-proofing can be repeated until you feel rested enough to proceed toward shore.

Ocean swimming is a great source of recreation and exercise, but it is essential that the swimmer be prepared and not foolhardy.

Chamber to print new community brochure

John L. Vaccaro, CPA, president of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce, announces that two major Chamber projects have begun.

In conjunction with the Dorset Company, the Chamber will publish its first community brochure in four years to highlight the advantages and facilities of the Newton-Needham area.

Vaccaro said that it was clear that the Chamber must continue to help attract its share of new residents and business firms in a very competitive economic situation. The brochure will be a combination of narrative and pictures highlighting history, commerce and residential advantages of Needham and Newton.

In addition he announced the appointment of William A. Moynihan, vice-president of Cramer Electronics, as chairman of the Chamber's Long Range Planning Committee.

Following a self-evaluation report of the organization by a group of four task forces, a plan of continuing improvement will be formulated.

Task forces will be headed by Moynihan, Vaccaro, Chamber Senior Vice-president Paul Duncan of New England Telephone Co., and William M. Cahill of BayBank Newton-Waltham Trust Co.

The task forces will examine organization, staffing, plant and equipment, membership and public relations, the program of action and finances. The final report to the Chamber's Board of Directors will be made in December.

Waban man helped to build camera for Mars

Salvatore Staulo of 220 Woodward St., Waban, was part of the project team that built the cameras which is photograping the surface of Mars this month.

A staff mechanical engineer at Itek Corporation's Optical Systems Division in Lexington, Staulo worked on the imaging system which is part of NASA's Viking Lander, scheduled to reach the Red Planet July 4. The Viking spacecraft will have travelled almost 500 million miles during its 10-month journey.

The imaging system which Itek built consists of two cameras which will assist in the Viking mission's primary task of determining if life is, or ever was, present on Mars. The cameras will take stereo photographs in both color and black and white.

Unlike conventional cameras, the Viking imaging system uses no film, but instead records images through electro-optical signal . Because the lander will not return from Mars, the photography must be constructed on earth from radio signals transmitted from Mars.

It will take the signals 20 minutes to reach the earth. Itek also built the ground reconstruction equipment which will produce high quality photographs of the planet's surface using a computer.

Itek's Optical Systems Division is a leading designer and manufacturer of aerospace camera systems. The division also produces precision lenses and mirrors used in telescopes, and other precision optical components.

Shawmut Bank board elects Crawford officer

Robert C. Hussey' president of Shawmut Community Bank, has announced the election of Richard D. Crawford to the position of business development officer by the Board of Directors.

Crawford joined the bank's staff in October, 1972, as branch manager of the Marlboro West Office, and in 1974 he was named the bank's business developer.

Prior to 1972 he was with the Norfolk County Trust Company in Dedham in their management training program, and then associated with the Consumer Savings Bank in Worchester as a manager.

Crawford is a past Vice President of Marlboro Jaycees, a current member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and he's serving on the South Middlesex Area Chamber of commerce membership committee.

His hobbies include golfing, tennis' slow-pitch softball, basketball, and sailing.

Newton East Red Sox

The Newton East Red Sox have just finished an impressive season with an overall 16-3 record. Having already finished in first place they continued winning to capture the playoffs. Were awarded trophies at Newton East Picnic on Thursday, June 24. Front row left to right: Adam Shapiro, David Popkin, Roy Tessler, Steve Arduno, Steve Stein, Stan Ross, Andy Stubblebine, Peter Goldberg. Second row: Andy Chess, Scott Saklad, Jim Rosenthal, Larry Filler, Jerry Marcus, Manager Marty Harris and coach Doc Saklad.

Newton gals all stars

By JANE WOLFSON

Last Thursday night marked the annual Newton Gals American League All Stars game. The two teams, North and South, were made up of the better players from every team in the American League. The North team was made up of girls from the Orioles, the Twins and the Tigers. The South team was made up of girls from the Athletics, the Royals, the Red Sox and the Rangers.

It was a great game and both teams deserved to win but unfortunately only one team can win and that was South, by a score of 8-6. Both teams were managed brilliantly, North by Gale Wilgoren and South by Gene Kushner.

These managers taught their girls the art of winning and losing gracefully. (The Athletics with manager Gene Kushner finished first in the league and the Orioles with manager Gale Wilgoren finished a very close third.)

The players from the South team were: Donna Bailey, Faith Raider, Justine Metz, Amy Hochberg, Diane LaCamera, Carolyn LaCamera, Dana Kesselman, Anne Castelanos, Randi Cohen, Judy Meir, Jesse Koffman, Dede Mannix, Beth Rosenson and Susan Saidall.

The girls from the North team were Julie Wilgoren, Julie Kingston, Randi Shone, Leah Garrett, Susan Prendiville, Yvonne Wu, Nancy Cimmeta, Kathy Daly, Lynn Walstein, Ruth Kennison, Justine Olansky, Tanya Ziener, Kathie Moffie, Kim Samson, Debby Bacon and their faithful mascot Jodi Wilgoren.

A few beautiful plays were a backhanded catch by Lynn Walstein, two great hits by Justine Metz, and a great hit by Julie Wilgoren in the second inning.

The two teams were evenly matched and the score was close throughout the entire game. Also the coaches of both teams must be congratulated. The North team was coached by Glen Goldman, Nancy Hoffman and Jane Wolfson. and South was coached by Stanley Becker, Scott Freedman, Guyall Morris and Harvey Raider.

A different drummer

ROCHESTER, Mich. (UPI) — Jim Purol has drummed his way into the Guinness Book of World Records.

At 9 p.m. Tuesday night, the 24-year-old professional musician from Livonia, Mich., broke the old record of 248 hours of continuous drumming. He plans to make it an even 300 hours by keeping up the pace through midnight Thursday.

Purol's goal is to raise $500 for the Metropolitan Detroit chapter of the March of Dimes.

He said he decided to do the stunt because his family lost a niece to birth defects.

"This is something I've wanted to do for a long time," Purol said. "So many people have called and stopped in to encourage me. It's been tremendous."

Two months of Newton West Little League Minor League play have come to an end. For some it has been a successful campaign, in terms of winning or losing, but for all it has been a dissapointing one in many ways. The kids were there, the managers and coaches were there and the League was there. Where then, were all the parents, all the moms and dads? One would think that with twenty eight kids involved in a ball game, the stands at Burr School would be jammed. Such was not the case. One game I attended boasted all of SEVEN adults. That can mean only one of two things; the two teams playing had twenty one orphans or twenty one kids had parents that couldn't spare the time to go watch their own kids play ball. In either case, how disheartening it must be for the kids for no one to see them play a good game and yet, feel there is always someone around to knock them when they get in a little bit of trouble.

Also very disappointing to me this year was the lack of responsive action on the part of the City of Newton's Recreation Department in providing decent fields for some of the teams to play on, not only at Newton West, but in other areas as well. The Minor League fields at Burr School and Albermarle were nothing short of deplorable. It seems a miracle that no youngster has been seriously injured playing on these obstacle courses. Compared to some of the fields I looked at in Wellesley and Natick our facilities are shocking. Perhaps it will take a shattered knee cap sliding into home at Burr or a broken collar bone when some unfortunate lad steps in the hole called second base at Albermarle to get the fields put into playable condition. Pity it always has to take something like that to get action.

The opinions above are those of the writer and in no way reflect, necessarily, the views of Newton West Little League as a whole.

Newton gymnast wins national all-around

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS — Marcie Ravech of Newton captured the coveted All-Around title at the United States Gymnastic Federation Junior Olympic National Championships held in San Antonio, Texas recently.

Ms. Ravech shared the first-place honors with another gymnast, as both youngsters posted scores of 72.35 in the combined compulsory and optional meet attended by the 16 top advanced girls in the country.

On her way to victory Marcie also captured her third national title of the current season, winning the floor exercise event with scores of 9.3 and 9.15. Two weeks ago Ms. Ravech won the USGF Senior national title on balance beam.

At the Junior Olympic meet Marcie also placed second on beam and fourth on the uneven bars with scores of 9.3 and 8.85. She received a 36.40 in compulsory exercises and a 35.95 for her optional efforts.

The San Antonio meet was conducted in a similar fashion to the Olympic Games, with each region of the United States represented by a junior and senior gymnast. Ms. Ravech was Region VI representative in the senior division and carried the Massachusetts state flag during the opening ceremonies.

This competition closes the season for Marcie who will now concentrate her efforts on preparing for the Elite class beginning in September.

Correction

In a soccer picture that appeared in the June 24 Newton Graphic, one of the players was misidentified.

Cosmos soccer coach resigns

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ken Furphy, who joined the New York Cosmos in February, Tuesday resigned as coach of the North American Soccer League team because of differences with the front office.

Furphy, who recently turned 45, said, "I have not been satisfied with the conditions under which I was working and felt it was time to make a change." He did not elaborate.

Gordon Bradly, who moved up to the position of vice president for player personnel and development when Furphy joined the club, will act as coach for the remainder of the season.

Playgrounds will be closed Monday, July 5, for the observance of Independence day. Gath Pool and Crystal Lake will be open.

Early Tennis, Anyone?

Beginning Monday, on an experimental basis, certain asphalt tennis courts will be open at 7:30 a.m., Monday through Friday.

These include Albemarle, Memorial School, Cabot Park, Newton North and South High Schools and the Warren Junior High School courts nearest Commonwealth Avenue.

Learn to Sail

The "Learn to Sail" program will begin at Crystal Lake, Tuesday, July 6. Registration will be at Crystal Lake from June 28 to July 2 from 2 - 5 p.m.

Participants must be at least 12 years of age and are required to pass a practical swim test of 200 yrds, swimming continuously using either a crawl, sidestroke or breaststroke, followed immediately by treading water for five minutes. There are only beginning sailing lessons, no advanced. This is an American Red Cross Certificate course.

There will be two sessions, July 6-30 and Aug. 2-27. Times of classes will be 9 - 10:45 a.m.; 11 a.m. - 12:45 p.m.; 1 - 2:45 p.m., and 3 - 4:45 p.m.

Those wishing to check out sailboats in the evening may register June 28 to July 2. Swimming tests will be given mornings 9 - 11:30 a.m.

Lassie League Playoffs

In the Lassie League Playoffs last Thursday at Hamilton, the Centennials, coached by Ron Armstrong and Dr. Keenan, defeated the Corpus Christi Cougars, coached by Barbara Burns, 5 - 4.

The playoffs were followed by the third annual Sports Happening at the Auburndale Club. Highlight of the Happening was the presentation of the Sportsmanship Award to the Corpus Christi Cubs, coached by Brenda Mastroiani. The winner of this award is selected by the vote of all the teams and umpires in the League. The presentation was made by Francis Rice, chairman of the Recreation Commission.

Girls' Junior Suburban Softball

Newton girls between 12 and 15 interested in playing in the Girls' Junior Suburban Softball League are invited to attend tryouts at Hamilton, July 6 at 6 p.m. Coach Diane Reddy urges all girls to come ready to play.

Girls' Junior High Basketball

Teams are now being formed to play in the Girls' Junior High Basketball League. Games will be played Tuesday and Thursday nights at the Newton Centre Playground at 6 and 7 p.m. Interested girls should contact Doreen DelGrosso or Fran Towle at 969-3171.

Swim Team

Young people interested in joining the Newton Recreation Department's Swim Team may still sign up at the Gath Pool, Monday through Friday, between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. Meets will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays. Coaches are JoAnne Damigella and Tim Cotter.

New play dramatizes war protest

On May 1 and 2, 1971, 12,000 anti-war demonstrators were arrested in Washington D.C. "MAYDAY" is a new play that dramatizes the people involved with and the events leading up to those days.

Written by Michael Wikes, directed by Andrew L. Golov, the play opens July 14 at the Boston Arts Group Theater.

"MAYDAY" follows the activities of seven protest leaders from the conception of their demonstration through its enactment. The dialogue captures the feeling of the times through its freedom, energy and rhetoric. A minimal set and the use of slides and music create the actors' environment, as well as connect the action of the play to political issues past and present. The production probes the public and private perspectives of the people who produced the protests.

Performances are Wednesday through Saturday at 8 p.m. The Boston Arts Group Theater is located at 367 Boylston St. (between Arlington and Berkeley Streets) For information and reservations call 267-7196.

Tobi Pilavin of Newton Centre stars as "The Star Spangled Girl" in this summer's opening play at the Orleans Arena Theater on Cape Cod. No newcomer to theater, Ms. Pilavin has appeared in area productions of "Fiddler on the Roof," "Kismet," "The Music Man," "The Boyfriend," "Spoon River Anthology," and "The Impossible Years." In November, she will be seen on Channel 2 in "The Phantom of the Open Hearth" by Jean Shepherd. "Star Spangled Girl" continues through July 10 weeknights except Sunday. Curtain is at 8:40 p.m.

ViVardo paintings on display in Highlands

Versatile Newton Highlands artist, Regina ViVardo is now having an exhibit of her newest works at the Mutual Bank for Savings at 43 Lincoln St., Newton Highlands, until mid-July.

Her oil and acrylic paintings are pure abstract expressionism, executed in brilliant colors, with bold brush and knife strokes, juxtaposed to create rhythmical patterns, as in two acrylic paintings, "Pursuance" and "Tropico."

"Mardi Gras," an oil, is imbued with the gay festivity of New Orleans Mardi Gras and is tribute to the style of abstract expressionist, Jackson Pollack.

The watercolors are more tranquil in composition and lean toward the Oriental in mood and color. They are reminiscent of those of abstract painter, Mark Tobey. Two such works are "Dancing Dragons" and "Reflections I." "Clair de Lune" and "Nocturne" expose her background as a classical musician.

Ms. ViVardo is an exhibiting member of the Newton Art Association, Copley Art Society and a lecturing member of the American Society of Appraisers. She studied Oriental and Islamic art at Harvard Fogg Museum and has traveled to Iran and Japan for further studies.

Regina ViVardo is also a lecturer on "Art and Antinques as an Investment" for various organizations. The most recent was at Temple Shaare Tefilah, Norwood. She is an appraiser of paintings and antiques and an art consultant to galleries.

Library to teach rapid reading

The Friends of the Newton Free Library will sponsor a rapid reading course at the main library.

The course, given by Victor Sanborn, of Garland Junior College will begin in the fall and will consist of a series of eight 1 and 12 hour sessions. The fee will be $30.

Sign up sheets with particulars are now available at each library.

Arts Center begins teaching at playgrounds

Sketching and photography courses for adults will be the first offering by the Newton Arts Center this summer, Polly Egelson, program chairwoman, has announced.

Getting the new Arts Center's program underway, the Arts Center is cooperating with the Newton Recreation Department offering these courses at four different Newton playgrounds.

The sketch course, to be taught by Newton resident Dora Hsiung, will concentrate on the principles of drawing in relation to seeing the environment and to breaking down the specifics of the visual experience.

The photography meetings to be taught by Betty Avruch and Mark Dooling, will try to the students to beauty in their physical surroundings and in the people encountered.

Two sessions of each class will be held: July 7, 14, 21 and 28 and again on Aug. 4, 11, 18, 25, from 10 a.m. - 12 noon. Registration fee is $8 for each session. Call the Newton Recreation Department, 969-3171, for more details and to register.

Dr. Delulio to lead regional counselors

Recently, Dr. Robert S. DeIulio, chairman of the Counseling Department at Newton North High School was elected president of the Parent Counseling Association of New England.

The purpose of this association is to promote professional parent counseling services. The association investigates and stimulates new developments in the field of parent counseling, provides current information on new developments in parent counseling for schools and clinics, provides professional consultation and referrals, publishes articles related to parent counseling, and helps train qualified parent counselors.

Dr. DeIulio outlined that the two major goals of his administration are to inaugurate a parent counseling journal as well as the development of a training institute for parent counseling.

Prior to his current position, he served as psychologist for Horace Mann and Day Junior High School. Before coming to Newton, Dr. DeIulio was a professor at Boston University's College of Basic Studies.

He is a psychological consultant and graduate school instuructor at local colleges and universities. Dr. DeIulio is in private practice with an emphasis on parent counseling.

He holds numerous professional memberships, among them being American Personnel and Guidance Association, American College Personnel Association, National Vocational Guidance Association, Massachusetts and American psychological associations, National Educational Association, and Massachusetts School Counselors Association.

OBITUARIES

Louis A. Volpe Jr.

Funeral services were held Monday (June 28) in Phoenix, Ariz., for former Newton Centre resident Louis A. Volpe Jr.

Mr. Volpe, 65, of Scottsdale, Ariz., died Friday (June 25) of a heart attack at home.

Mr. Volpe was one of the tennis greats and former tennis pro in the Chicago, Ill., area. Haverhill. Six children were born to the union. One of the sons, David Appleton White Smith, went to Burma in 1868 as a missionary and later became president of the Karen Baptist Theological Seminary in that country.

Smith became pastor of the First Baptist Church in Newton in 1842 and made his home in Newton Centre for the rest of his life. He served the Newton Centre congregation until 1854 when he became executive secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union. He traveled widely in the mission fields.

In addition to "America" he wrote several hymns, of which "The Morning Light Is Breaking" is the best known. He was also the author of a number of books, including: "The Life of Rev. Joseph Grafton;" 1849; "History of Newton, Massachusetts," 1880; and "A Ramble In the Mission Field;" 1887.

A great public celebration was held in April, 1894. A carillon was installed in the tower of the First Baptist Church in Newton Centre, named "The America Tower" in honor of Dr. Smith. The bells still ring out "America" and other hymns on Sundays.

As Smith's eightieth birthday approached, John Greenleaf Whittier, the Quaker poet, wrote him as follows:

"My dear Friend:

"I am thinking that thy birthday occurs about this time and I cannot let the occasion pass without a word of kindly remembrance. I wish to give thee a hearty welcome to the octogenerian circle which everybody desires to reach but is in no haste to do so.

"My dear friend and your genial classmate, Dr. Holmes, is ready to join us, although I fancy he is willing to remain outside as long as possible. We shall welcome the acquisition of the Christian teacher and patriotic poet, whose song of our country has been adopted by 60 million free men. It has kept time to the beat of freedom. It has been sung around camp fires and the sick and the wounded have forgotten their pain in listening to it. It has followed the American flag around the world. 8

"I am sure, dear friend, that we can both say that we are grateful to Divine Providence which has blessed us in so many ways and enabled us to feel, even at our age, that life is worth living.

"With love to thy dear wife, who I do not forget was my classmate at the old Haverhill Academy, and every good wish for thyself, I am thy old and affectionate friend,

John G. Whitter"

The Smith House, on Centre Street in Newton Centre, where Dr. Smith made his home for so many years, was set aside for a memorial to the author of "America" and an organization formed to administer it. Unfortunately, the house was burned to the ground some years ago. All that remains is a bronze plaque marking the site. However, on May 3, the Samuel Francis Smith Homestead Society, planted a tulip tree, given by the Arnold Arboretum, on the lot, in a ceremonial memorializing the author.

Dr. Smith, passed away on Nov. 10, 1895, in a railroad car as he was on his way to fulfill a family engagement, almost a month after his 87th birthday. '

About the Author

John W. Stokes of Newtonville is a food service management consultant and author. Formerly head of Thompson's, a Boston restaurant chain, he is a past president of the Executives Club of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce and of the Massachusetts Restaurant Association, and a trustee of Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

He has written four books, three on food service management, one of which "How to Manage A Restaurant" has recently been translated into Japanese by a Tokyo publisher. The fourth book is a biography of Russell H. Conwell, famous lecturer, entitled, "The Man Who Lived Two Lives."

matter of whether Scafidi had solicited reinvestment of funds.

Scafidi denied the solicitation.

An officer of the Harbor National Bank testified that there had been no condition of the employment by the bank that Scafidi bring Newton business with him.

A secretary of the bank, who worked with Scafidi, said that on the date on which Scafidi's alleged solicitation of Stiglich occurred, Scafidi had not been in the office long enough to call Stiglich, and that in fact she had called Stiglich to remind him that the note had matured.

Scafidi was defended by Donald Conn. The state was represented by Assistant District Attorney Lisa Harrod.

Conn called several character witnesses for Scafidi, including State Reps. Peter Harrington and Richard McGrath from Newton, both of whom testified to Scafidi's high reputation in Newton.

Others testifying about Scafidi's unblemished reputation for "honesty, veracity, and truthfulness" were Ald. Richard Bullwinkle, former alderman Warren Sutherland, and former alderman Alan Barkin.

The treasurer of the town of Sharon and a vice president of the Newton-Waltham Bank also testified to Scafidi's good reputation and the respect that he was accorded as a knowledgeable treasurer.

In his closing statement, Conn pointed to the fact that Scafidi had made considerable money for the city of Newton since he began using the money that theretofore had been "lying idle" and not earning money during the eight years that Scafidi had been treasurer.

Conn acknowledged that ignorance of the law is no excuse, but added, "He didn't know the law, but did he adhere to the spirit of the law? Was he trying to hide anything? . . . If the mayor didn't pay a great deal of attention the the warrants (where Scafidi's transactions were shown), then shame on the mayor.

"Be fair to him — that's all we ask. Ask yourself, 'Where is the criminality?' Should this man be branded a criminal for the rest of his life?"

At the last words, Mrs. Scafidi was overcome and rushed out of the courtroom crying.

Assistant District Attorney Harrod, in her closing argument, focused on the failure of Scafidi to notify the appropriate persons that he was putting money into Harbor National Bank, as required by the statute.

Harrod said Scafidi had failed to "live up to the public trust."

The judge, John T. Ronan, gave a lengthy and thoughtful instruction to the jury, which deliberated about two and one-half hours before delivering the verdict.

Scafidi is still "very definitely interested" in regaining his job as treasurer of Newton, he said this week.

He will be considered at a meeting of the Treasurer Selection Committee tonight (Thursday).

United Way campaign to seek $18.6 million

A goal of $18.6 million for the 1976 campaign of the United Way of Massahchusetts Bay was announced recently.

David R. Palmer, vice-president of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith and campaign chairman, said the $18.6 million figure represents a breakthrough to a new plateau of giving — $2.7 million more than the amount raised last year and the most ambitious increase, 17 percent) over a previous year in recent times.

The goal was set by the United Way Board of Directors, based on a survey of more than 100 community leaders to determine the amount needed to support agencies providing vital human care services that help sustain the quality of life in the Mass. Bay community.

"Three key community leadership groups have already set records for giving" The United Way Board of Directors has increased personal pledges by 51.7 percent over last year. The Campaign Cabinet increased their individual gifts by 90.4 percent. The personal contributions of corporate leaders have jumped 47 percent to date.

"Although the campaign does not start officially until September," Palmer noted, "we intend to go over the top with early organiza8tion, ongoing public education about the United Way and dedication of volunteers to the task. We are aiming for a breakthrough campaign."

Wibledon tennis Eagles sign Bears lineman

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Former Villanova University star linebacker John Babinecz, 24, who played out his option with the Chicago Bears, has signed with the Philadelphia Eagles as a free agent.

The 6-foot-2, 222-pound linebacker was a second-round draft choice of Dallas in 1972. He played with the Cowboys for two seasons and then went to the Houston Oilers on waivers. He then went to the Bears on waivers before the 1975 season.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

This notice serves to inform all agencies, groups and persons that, on or about July 7, 1976, the City of Newton will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release funds in the amount of $25,400, under Title I of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) for the following project:

Name and location of proposed activity: Human Services Assistance Program Component, 4.2 will provide funding assistance to the following programs in the target areas of Newton Corner, Nonantum, and West Newton:

4.21, Citizen Advocacy Program: $5000 to the Greater Boston Association for Retarded Citizens to assist mentally retarded citizens in target areas in obtaining adequate housing, employment, counseling, supportive benefits, etc., and protection of legal and civil rights.

4.22, Beginnings Program: $10,000 to the Newton Youth Foundation to assist drop-in center at Eliot Church, 474 Centre Street, Newton Corner, to serve social, recreational, crisis intervention, advocacy and counseling needs of aliented youths within target areas.

4.23, Day Care Scholarship Program: $4783 to the Newton Community Services Centers, Inc. to provide scholarship assistance for financially needy families utilizing Day Care Program operated at the Center, 429 Cherry Street, West Newton.

4.24, Learning How: $900 to Family Counseling (Region West) Inc. to assist group parent education program for mothers of preschool children in target areas.

4.25, Project Earlystart: $1164 to Family Counseling (Region West) Inc. to assist pre-headstart parent-child home visitation program for children 2 years and younger conducted in target area homes, utilizing Verbal Interaction Stimulus Materials on individual basis.

4.26, Project Funschool: $3153 to Family Counseling (Region West) Inc., to assist experimental group education program for target area parents of children 2 and 3 years of age providing instruction as to utilization of Verbal Interaction Stimulus Materials with children.

The City of Newton will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City of Newton is certifying to Hud that Newton and Theodore D. Mann, in his official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision-making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, Newton may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the Chief Executive Officer of the applicant, or (b) that applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, find, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24CFR Part 58), and may be addressed to HUD at 15 New Chardon Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02114. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objections received after July 29, 1976 will be considered by HUD.

The City of Newton has prepared an Environmental Review Record respecting said project which may be examined and copied at the Office of the City Clerk, Newton City Hall, 1000 Commonwealth Avenue, Newton, MA., between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Roche Bros.' employees attend Supermarket Checker Institute

Among those attending the 1976 Supermarket Checker Education Institute last week at Western Michigan University in Kalamazo, were three Roche Bros. Supermarket employees: Carol A. Mahoney, personnel director; Al Delmonte, manager of the Natick store; and Mary Repucci, manager of the West Roxbury store.

Designed to train teachers for industry and schools, the one week session was presented by WMU's distributive education department, in cooperation with the Super Market Institute of Chicago and N.C.R. of Dayton, Ohio. Among the many subjects covered were: shelf stocking, cashing checks, preventing pilferage, handling welfare orders and professional techniques of checking.

"Practical" is an appropriate description for the daily sessions conducted in the University's fully equipped food education laboratory, complete with grocery carts, food supplies, checkout counters and cash registers. Each of the institute members had a chance to play the role of the consumer, checkout clerk and bagger as part of the training program.

Enrollees represented 20 states in the U.S., the island of Guam and Canada. Twenty-nine were from the food industry, while the remaining 16 were educators.

The week long institute concluded with a "graduation luncheon" at 11:30 a.m. Friday, June 25, in the President's Dining Room of the University Student Center.

Second city theater is training ground for comedy talent

CHICAGO (UPI) — Granny's son gave her a joint for her birthday.

"Happy birthday, Granny," he said. "Why, you're 106 today and you don't look a day over 105! There's your present."

Granny inhaled a few puffs and beamed.

The audience laughed.

It wasn't a leg-slapping joke, but with a little work, the ad-libbed scene someday might be included in the main show at The Second City, a theater which has become the training ground for America's top young comedy talent.

A member of the audience offered the idea for the birthday setting during the improvisational segment at the end of a typical night's polished, rehearsed performance. Second City's cast did the rest, embellishing on the birthday idea with spontaneous touches of the social satire that earned the theater its nationwide fame.

Catherine O'Hara, a 22-year-old one-time Second City waitress, played the gruff-voiced granny. Directors say she or another prodigy, Andrea Martin of Portland, Maine, could well be the next Mary Tyler Moore or Rhoda.

Valerie Harper, TV's popular Rhoda, started out at Second City. So did Edward Asner, who portrays news director Lou Grant on the Mary Tyler Moore Show. The list of Second City proteges also includes stand-up comics David Steinberg and Shelley Berman, director-performers Alan Arkin and Elaine May, actress Barbara Harris, director Mike Nichols, the comedy team of Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber, and scores of other radio, television and theater personalities. Splinter groups such as The Committee, Ace Trucking Company and The Graduates abound from former Second City talent.

Critics often say that to survive in the theater business is to succeed.

Second City has done better than that since three enterprising men rented a defunct Chinese laundry on the near North Side to form a theater in 1959.

They named it from the title of a derisive profile of Chicago printed in New Yorker magazine, "The Second City." The 100-seat theater was a smashing success. Although cofounders Paul Sills and Howard Alk soon departed, producer-director Bernard Sahlins sustained the momentum through times good and bad.

Today, Second City turns a modest profit in a 300-seat theater across the street from the original site. With resident companies in Chicago and Toronto, and a touring company out of each city, the theater staff acknowledges that Sahlins may be starting "an empire."

"I think Bernie would like to open up in more cities," said Joe Flaherty, who directs the Toronto resident company. "But he balks at the idea of becoming a McDonald's."

Associate producer Joyce Sloane says Second City is "really flourishing."

"We almost feel guilty," she said. "I think we have found a way of regenerating ourselves."

The theater conducts workshops in both Chicago and Toronto, where about 75 paying students are tutored in the skills of improvisation. Perhaps one of every 75 hopefuls will emerge from the fierce competition to become a member of the touring company, quickly plugging a hole left by a departure and possibly launching a career into the big time.

Second City satire has no limits — sex, social situations and relationships, politics, religion, occupations and current events — although political satire is minimized because it quickly is outdated.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

A chlordane substitute—For years chlordane insecticide has been a household word. Recently, the Environmental Protection Agency banned further production of the pesticide. Now, home gardeners are asking for the name of a good substitute for checking ants, grubs, bugs and leaf chewing pests. Our answer to this is: There is no perfect insecticide, but one that works on a lot of insects in Spectracide, a brand name for diazinon, an all-purpose material which comes in both liquid and granular forms.

Mother Nature does a great job holding down many lawn pests in check by using insects. In fact, more than 95 percent of our insect problems are solved by natural controls, such as weather, predatory animals (which includes insects) and parasitic plants. However, because of the percentage that nature does not solve, or because nature is sometimes slower than we like, home gardeners like to bring chemical controls into action.

Clemson University entomologist, Professor D.K. Pollet has found that diazinon will control numerous insects effectively, including white grubs, billbugs, wireworms, mole crickets, sod webworms, army worms, cut worms, chinch bugs, aphids, leaf hoppers, Rhodesgrass scale, ants, sowbugs, millipedes and centipedes, earwigs, ticks, chiggers, thrips and even spiders which aren't an insect at all.

How to apply: Before applying, water the grass to help draw the insects to the surface, soak the turf again, particularly when using the granular formulation, to help soak the chemical into the turf and root zone. Always follow directions on the label.

A general recommendation is to use about one fluid oz. in three gallons of water, to cover about 125 sq. ft. We have used this with a liquid plant food mixed with it, enabling us to do two jobs in one—kill bugs and feed the grass.

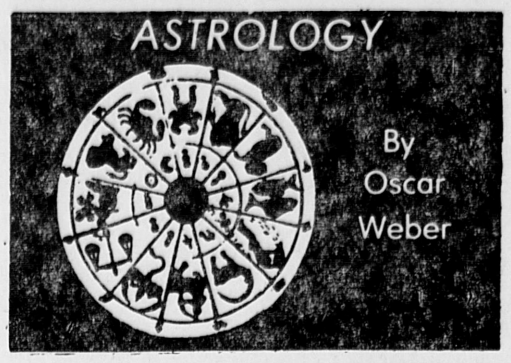

Grubs may not always be your lawn problem. Insect damage is often confused with many things such as dog burn, gasoline spill, nutrient deficiency, shallow surface (soil over thin layer or over a rock). Best way to tell is to lift the sod and break it apart. If you see C-shaped grubs or bugs, you'll know it's time for chemical action.

Even ants can cause brown spots by making holes in the soil, drying out roots, control the above trouble makers by treating with Spectracide, following instructions on the label.

Peony Blight—If your peony bushes budded out fine, but did not open, chances are they have botrytis blight, causing the buds to blast or dry up. Control: cut off the buds and dried shoots and BURN or bury them. This fall, give the bed a good house cleaning, cutting stalks back to within 3 or 4 inches. Also, drench the area with Captan, Benlate or Ferbam. Next spring, when shoots are 8" high, give another spray and again later on, just as the buds are showing.

Green Thumb Clinic: "Our evergreens (Japanese Yews) are overgrown. Can these be trimmed back and when?"

Ans: Evergreens can be trimmed any time of year. Stretch it over a period of three years. Do NOT trim them heavily at one time, because they do not fill in as quickly as non-evergreens. If too overgrown, we'd replace them. Evergreens are expendable and should be replaced when they outlive their usefulness, just as you do drapes, rugs and shoe-laces.

Q. I would really appreciate a reading of my son's horoscope, he really baffles me at times. Back talk is quite common these days and I just cannot take it. He seems to be quite a story teller and a show off, these things seem to upset me to no end. His date of birth is June 19, 1957 at 4:53 p.m. in Arlington, Mass. My birth date is July 31, 1922 at 7 a.m. in Medford, Mass. Do we clash or is it a generation gap? A.I.

A. These days it is rather easy to generalize and blame a generation gap for the misunderstandings and difficulties that exist between so many parents and their children. You are wise to recognize that it may be more personal. In your case it definitely is a clash of two very different temperments and personalities.

The position of the planet Mars on the date of his birth was in the same Sign and degree of the same Sign occupied by your Mercury. This indicates not only his ability to irritate and make you angry but also that he could be hard on your nerves even though you love him.

It may help to try to understand that in addition to his being very sensitive, touchy and easily hurt inwardly, he would be inclined to try to protect himself and or "defend his rights" vocally. He has an excellent mind but not a very good control of what he says or how he says it and a determination to have his say. He will not be muzzled.

It may be better that he does talk and express his feelings. He has Neptune in Scorpio in the First House and if should stop talking and try to escape from his inner problems, he might try drinking and even experimenting with drugs and I am sure that you would not want that to happen. Should he be tempted along such a line, you would then need professional assistance.

Convy's busy summer schedule

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bert Convy, "Tattletales" master of ceremonies, will host four variety shows this summer sandwiched into one of the busiest schedules in television.

When Convy isn't taping the daily "Tattletales" show he is writing a musical, playing nightclubs or making guest appearances in dramatic series.

The treadmill doesn't leave much time for Convy's family.

He and his actress wife, Anne Anderson, have been married 16 years. They are the parents of two sons and a daughter. To protect his offspring from what he considers the unhappy effects of the limelight, Bert asks that their names remain unknown to the public.

Two months ago the Convy family moved into an old home in Pacific Palisades, not far from the ocean.

In the process of unpacking Bert walked through a sliding glass door and was taken to an emergency hospital where 14 stitches were taken in his hand.

The mishap convinced Bert the house needed alterations. The entire front of the California ranch-style home has been torn away. Redecorating and additions are being made to the five-bedroom dwelling.

The house is set in lush surroundings. Trees, shrubs, lawns and flowers are too much for Bert to handle. A gardener spends three days a week keeping the subtropical growth from inundating the neighborhood.

There is also a profusion of plants inside the house, especially in the enormous sunroom where the Convys spend most of their time amid television, stereo and comfortable furniture.

Bert's favorite spot however, is a little niche in the hallways where he keeps an ancient rolltop desk which he bought for $99 when he and Anne lived in New York. He estimates its worth at more than $800 today.

The Convy family includes Gus, a 16-year-old schnauser, which Bert describes as the best watchdog in town. They own another dog, Pucci, a not-too-bright 90-pound mutt who still isn't housebroken after four years.

While Bert busies himself on a half-dozen projects, Anne is redecorating the house with a combination of old and modern furnishings.

Bert is an ex-professional baseball player who spent two years in the Philadelphia Phillies farm system before quitting to get a start in show business.

He stays in athletic trim by playing tennis, usually with such friends as Jonathan Winters, Gary Collins and George Kennedy. He and Anne also play tennis together, but she is no match for him.

Most show business personalities take the weekends off for fun and relaxation, but that's when Convy works hardest.

He tapes five "Tattletales" shows on Saturday and five more on Sunday — knocking off two weeks of shows in two days.

This schedule provides Bert with plenty of free time for bucketing around the country appearing in nightclubs and for his yearly stand at the Sahara hotel in Las Vegas.

A&P Market Baskets Fill Charity Needs

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, Inc. today announced the start of "Donation Days" program in the 85 stores in its Boston division.

"Donation Days" offers customers the opportunity to have 5 percent of the dollars they spend at A&P on designated shopping days donated to their favorite charity.

Advertisements in newspapers and on radio and television will encourage shoppers to apply to A&P for the assignment of "Donation Days" to their favorite non profit causes.

"For some time we have been looking for a way to participate equitably in fund raising drives conducted by our shoppers," said L.E. Leeson, Vice President of A&P's Boston division. "We think "Donation Days" offers us a way to help our customers support their favorite charities when they shop in our stores."

The Boston division of A&P has stores in the states of Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island.

Under the GoldenDome

BOSTON (UPI) — The full impact of the first state employe strike in Massachusetts history will not be known for some time.

But even at this point it is clear that the incident will have a lasting effect on state-employe relations and it will be a long time before the bitterness and hostility it engendered subsides.

Even before the negotiations ended and a new contract was signed both sides in the dispute — the administration of Gov. Michael S. Dukakis and the Alliance, the union representing 50,000 employes — were claiming victory.

The administration said it had won because the union was forced by a court order to end the illegal strike and the Alliance said it had won by demonstrating its strength for the first time and forcing the administration into mediation.

There is some truth to both views, but it might be more appropriate to suggest that both sides had lost, that there were no winners.

While the union did show some strength, it also can be argued that it proved its impotence. Many services were hurt by the strike, but the state did not topple. In many places it was business as usual or even better than usual.

The only persons really affected by the strike were the patients in state public and mental health institutions and inmates in the state prisons who were trapped in the middle of a dispute they had not part in creating and could not help resolve.

TWO HUNDRED YEARS AGO a handful of rebellious free-thinkers stood fearfully but firmly before the strongest power on earth and declared their independence. They fought a long, bloody war and emerged victorious. From that war was born the Constitution of the United States, breathing life into a federal republic which has stood longer than any other government.

Transcript cited in success of condominium sales

John Cafferty, President of Hagen Management Corp., instructs Ed Assip, Sales Manager of Hillside Condominiums as to what he wants done at the Hillside Complex in Dedham.

DEDHAM— "The limited marketing effort of Hillside Condominiums has been a tremendous success with only The Daily Transcript being used for advertising," remarked Ed Assip recently. Assip, representing the Hagen Management Corporation, is the sales manager of the Dedham condominiums.

Since May 23, 20 of the 28 units left to sell have deposits on them.

The townhouse untis are being sold for $25,000.000 with wall to wall carpeting, all appliances and central air conditioning with a full basement. The condominiums may be financed with as little as 10 down.

"Most of my buyers," Assip said, "are people from the area who have been looking for affordable housing for some time, or the renters in the units themselves who actually pay less each month than they are now paying for rent."

There are no pools, tennis courts, or clubhouses, but neither is there a large cost to run Hillside, according to Assip: "We just offer decent housing for a decent price."

Hagen Management Corporation, which is being run by John Cafferty, has successfully marketed several properties for Flatley Realty Investors.

MINUTEMEN

Companies of trained men, ready and equipped to march at a moment's notice were established officially by the Massachusetts Provincial Congress in October, 1774. Formed in nearly every town, these men trained themselves in military skills, for the purpose of maintaining the security of lives, liberties and properties. These patriotic citizen-soldiers, characterized by Daniel C. French's statue in Concord were forerunners of today's Massachusetts National Guard.

TWO MORE WAYS TO BREAK INTO CRAMER:

SAY HELLO FOR US

Actually, being a Receptionist isn't easy. You have to be nice to people in person and on the phone, even when you feel awful. But if you can do that, and type 40wpm (a little typing's involved), and if you'd like to work from 8.00 to 5 weekdays, why, come see us. With a smile.

BE A STAR ON CRT

An Order Entry Clerk here operates a CRT keyboard, but if you can type 40wpm, you can do it, because a CRT keyboard is just like a typewriter s. You'll be typing and checking order information, and that's important to us. Weekdays, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

You don't need any special experience for either of these positions. just previous full-time permanent work experience. So if you can type, and if you're bright, you can start moving ahead right now. (Your salary and benefits package will make you happy from Day 1, too.)

Do you know what to do in an emergency?

Photos and story by Eleanor Siegel

Each year more than 60,000 Americans will die suddenly. The most common cause of sudden death is heart attack. Thousands of other Americans will suffer from smoke inhalation, allergic reactions, drowning or electric shock. If you were present in such an emergency would you know what to do?

Enacting what he would do, Ed Hanson demonstrates listening for breathing, after establishing an airway for a collapsed person. Life sized mannikins were used for the CPR course.

Clare Gardiner is demonstrating how a precordial, or chest thump, is administered when someone's heart has stopped beating...after it has been determined they have stopped breathing and have no pulse. Watching are Don Gardiner and Gloria DeFilippo.

In the course of a lifetime, most people hear about death second hand. I have watched two people die and except for some first aid learned in high school, there was nothing I could do. Sadly, most people would have this same problem.

In December, 1975 I read about Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation, a course that was being sponsored by the Massachusetts Heart Association. I clipped out the article and never followed it up. in May, 1975, my 40-year-old cousin,

Six months later' Samuel Mirsky, died of a heart attack while our family watched ambulance attendants who were just as ignorant of basic rescuing as we were.

By July, 1977 all first responders will have to be, by law, trained in CPR. CPR is an emergency first aid procedure...applied when someone stops breathing.

The cold on those that if someone stops breathing before help arrives. ves, they are dependent nearest to restore breath before irreversible brain damage sets in which is four to six minutes without oxygen.

Each year more than 60,000 Americans will die suddenly and the most common cause of sudden death is heart attack. In some of these cases, the victim could have been saved simply by knowing the early warning signs of a heart attack.

In other instances, if someone near him had performed CPR, his chances of survival would have been increased. Even with people trained in CPR there are those who would die...but there are those who are alive to tell about it.

Because I believe that, when Judy O'Rourke, of the Southeast Region of the Massachusetts Heart Association, called to tell me of a course being given by the Dedham Chamber of Commerce at Amaru's, I immediately said I would attend. The course was to be give three successive Monday evenings for three hours each session and at the end we would be tested on our performance and knowledge.

The first Monday I arrived punctually at seven and suddenly I grew frightened. I looked at the mannikins that Judy and Paul Bishop, from the Norwood Police Department and Mark Henry from the Norwood Fire Department were inflating.

I began to think about actually saving a life' or trying to. I stared at the life-sized mannikins and wondered. Could I put my mouth over someone eles else's and breath for them breathe for them. Would I panic? Would I freeze?

What were the ethical considerations? If I came across someone unconscious, should I try to revive them, even if I don't know if irreversible brain damage has te taken place?

But I was there because I had made the decision to try to save a life. And then still another fear crept in... in the seven days that lay between the course, would someone collapse in front of me before I knew what to do?

As the course began, the fears diminished. That first week we 21, but by the second week, our numbers hadwindle. Those that who stayed were Gloria J. DeFilippo, who was seven months pregnant with her fourth child; Tony Rinella, a lifeguard who had to take the course; Singne Harlfinger, whose son is an EMT is in Dedham; Harold Rosen, chairman of the Dedham Heart Fund Drive and Bill Boushell, Dedham Safety Officer. Also, Ed Hanson, on the Chamber of Commerce board of directors, and past president; Paul DePrisco, vice-president of the Chamber; Donna MacAulay, whose father had died of a massive heart attack at the age of 50, Clare and Don Gardiner —.. — —Don is on the board of dii. . Mike Amaru, Sr., the president of the Chamber and Mike Amaru, Jr., who will be a lifeguard this summer , Joe DeFilippo and Carolyn Riordan.

We learned that CPR can also be applied when someone drwons, suffers from electric shock or anaphylactic shock, from a bee bite, for instance. CPR is performed only when the person has been found to have stopped breathing.

To demonstrate the effectiveness of CPR, we watched a film entitled "Pulse of Life." During the film the ABC's of CPR were described. They are Airway, Breathing and Circulation provide artificial ventilation and artificial circulation in an attempt to prevent brain damage and keep the person alive until help is obtained. Clinical death takes place when the person stops breathing; however, biological death takes place after four to six minutes when there is irreversible brain damage from lack of oxygen.

Sometimes a person who has stopped breathing may be helped by someone who knows how to establish an airway for them. Mike Amaru, Jr., recalled that once in the restaurant a man collapsed and stopped breathing. By opening an airway, Mike was able to save the man.

Information began to filter in. How many cardiac compressions per minute; how many ventilations... when do you deliver a precordial thump, or pound on the chest to try to start the heart beating. This is done only in a witnessed collapse after determining that the person has stopped breathing and has no pulse.

We were able to learn quickly because Paul, who was a first time instructor and Judy were competant and kept reassuring all of us and helped us every step of the way.

Among the many things we learned was that suffocation is the leading cause of the death of children under five. In the film we saw a child being saved after breathing was stopped due to smoke inhalation.

A doll was used to demonstrate performing CPR on an infant. While it seemed frightening, Judy grimly pointed out the alternative and told us "you are restoring a pulse to a heart too good to die."

Mark Henry said that he and another rescuer performed successful CPR on a man. They kept it up for twenty minutes and saved him. He did note that on another occasion, the person died. At least had the benefit of having someone try to help them.

Paul assured us that if we could master performing CPR on a mannikin, we could certainly do it on a human being... because, he said, it is easier. The next Monday was spent practicing on the mannikins. Our instructors stayed with us every step of the way. The third Monday was devoted to practice and testing.

The course was free. The cost was absorbed by the Southeast Region of the Massachusetts Heart Association which spends $20,000 a year training people in basic rescuing.

All the instructor time was volunteer as well as the time of Norwood Hospital nurses who helped with testing.

We all passed our test, but will have to take the course annually for recertification. One of the nicest aspects of the course was the apirit of the group and the willingness on everyone's part to help. During class breaks, Mike Amaru provided coffee and soda. Another course is planned for the fall.

That last evening, the Dedham Chamber of Commerce voted to donate $100 to the Massachusetts Heart Association.

All of us hope deep down that we will not need this knowledge-but if we do, we will not be among those standing around and watching life slip away...we will be able to try and help. What would you be able to do?

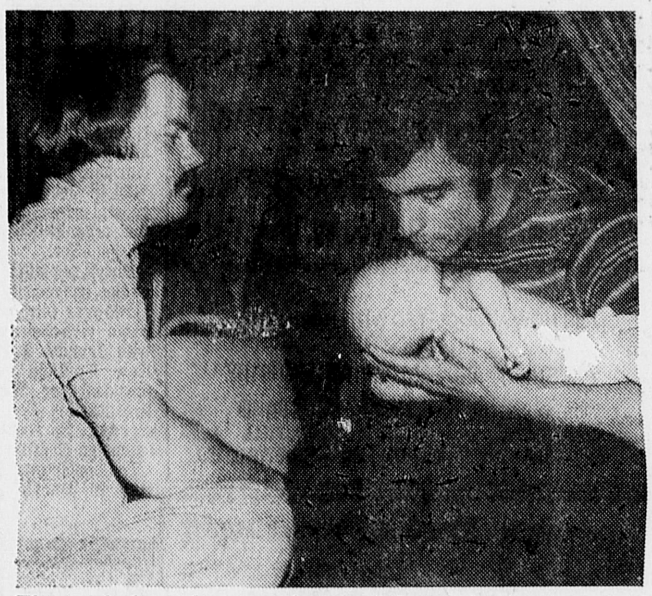

The Dedham Chamber of Commerce took advantage of the course in Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation sponsored by the Southeast Region of the Massachusetts Heart Association. Those who took the course passed the test in the emergency first aid procedure. This knowledge can save a life.

In Focus

Eleanor Siegel

Mike Amaru, Jr., left, and Tony Rinella, right, demonstrate cardiac compressions and ventilations with two rescuers. Both Amaru and Rinella, will be life guards this summer and under the law had to take the CPR course.

The technique for rescuing an infant who has stopped breathing is demonstrated by Mike Amaru and watched by Mark Henry, of the Norwood Fire Department.

Judy O'Rourke, an instructor from the Southeast Region of the Massachusetts Heart Association, shows the class how to use emergency procedures to rescue a choking person. "Use everything God gave you," she advised.

Drinking like fish aids research

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I read that the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism gave $102,000 of our hard-earned tax dollars to the University of California for Prof. Harman V. Peeke to get fish drunk.

I know that alcoholism is the country's No. 1 health problem and we need to do something about it. But fish? And after that research was underway they (NIAAA) granted another $90,000 to do research on rats.

Why, when there are so many good reasons to give money to research on cancer, heart and kidney disease or two dozen other things I could name, did they waste $192,000 on drunk fish and rats? How could it help people? — No Drunk Fish In S.C.

Dear N.D.F.: When one considers the total budget is in excess of $400 billion, $192,000 isn't much to spend on a research project for alcoholics, particularly when one considers that alcoholism is now epidemic in this country. (It is also a serious public health problem in France and Italy.) Scientists must experiment on animals and fish before they apply the principles to human beings.

Dear Ann Landers: I've never written to a column such as yours, but that letter from the secretary who was desperate to increase the size of her breasts really got to me.

I have always been small-busted and know how self-conscious and inadequate it can make a woman feel. It only takes one lousy, insensitive jackass to give a woman like me an inferiority complex forever.

Just last week a supposedly sophisticated man-about-town told me to put some calamine lotion on them and they would be gone by morning. I was so humiliated and hurt I almost bawled. What I had hoped would be a delightful weekend at the gentleman's summer home turned out to be a miserable flop.

I hope you'll print this letter so the men out there will realize there are certain things you just don't kid about. — Crushed In Cincinnati

Dear C.: A pox on both his houses — the cad! Put this column in the mail. Maybe he'll learn something.

catcher merits thanks

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an animal control officer, better known as a "dog catcher." I can't recall that you have ever said a kind word about us although you have taken up the cudgel for nearly every other segment of society.

There are times when I believe we are the most despised of all working people. The average citizen has no use for us but it's O.K. to ask us to crawl under a porch and drag out a skunk — or travel miles in the wilderness to get horses back into the pasture. We get calls at all hours to get a cat out of a tree or put a dog to sleep when he has been seriously injured.

Then there are the "nut" calls — a monkey is loose, a pink elephant was seen on Main Street, the Loch Ness monster is in town. We must respond to every call, no matter how screwy.

So please, Ann, say a good word for the dog catcher. He catches a lot of hell along with the dogs, but very few kind words come his way. — From Missouri (Sometimes Pronounced "Misery")

Dear Misery: Your job certainly entails requests I never dreamed of. I hope your letter will help generate some well-deserved public appreciation. Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Resident wins $6000 grant for writing

Carole Oles of 39 Lafayette Rd., Newton Lower Falls, has won a $6,000 creative writing fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Fellowships totaling $990,000 to 165 creative writers, were announced by Nancy Hanks, chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts.

"These fellowships will enable fiction writers, poets, playwrights and essayists to devote additional time to the development of their professional capabilities," Miss Hanks said. "We are hopeful that work they produce will enrich the lives of many of our citizens."

From more than 2,400 nationwide applicants, 14 Massachusetts residents were chosen to receive the grant.

Maxine Kumin, chairman of the Literature Program Advisory Panel, said "the quality of submissions was, again this year, extraordinarily high. The job of making final recommendations was among the most difficult the panel has had."

Haydn's war mass to be sung in Auburndale

The Summer Pauken Chorus, directed by Phyllis Isaacson, will give a performance of Haydn's "Pauken Mass" (Mass in Time of War), on July 8 at 8 p.m. at the Church of the Messiah in Auburndale.

The concert will also include a performance of Mozart's "Flute Quartet in D," by Ethel Farny flute, Linda Burian violin, Robin Esch viola and Rihard Burian cello. All are welcome. Donations taken at the door.

Concert

In celebration of the Bicentennial members of the Bowen School Band presented a concert for residents of a Wellesley nursing home. Seated (from left) are Jennifer Devore, cellist; accompanied by violinists Robert Lind, Daniel Zolli, Wayne Richardson, Julie Silver, Ann Doherty and other members of the band. Enjoying the afternoon's musical program are Sharyn Zimmerman, administrator (standing); and residents Daniel McDougal and Clair Cohen.

Standard first aid course given

The Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross will offer a Multimedia Standard First Aid Course beginning July 6.

This course will be given in four two-hour sessions on the evenings of Tuesday, July 6; Thursday, July 8; Tuesday, July 13; and Tuesday, July 20. It will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Newton Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville.

The Multimedia Course is designed to provide basic skills in first aid and accident prevention. All members of the community 13 years of older are welcome. There is a $5 charge for textbooks and supplies. Please call 527-6000 for registration and further information.

Slater calls on 'Chief' Bucyk to be captain of state heart fund

Paul D. Slater of West Newton, president Albert M. Slater & Son in Boston and chairman of the Board of Directors of the American Heart Association, Massachusetts Affiliate has announced the appointment of "Chief" John Bucyk as the general campaign chairman of that organization's 1977 fund-raising effort.

Bucyk, captain of the Boston Bruins, has recently completed a two-year term as the campaign vice-chairman serving with Lamont L. Thompson, New England area vice-president for Wetstinghouse Broadcasting Company, who served for two years as general campaign chairman.

The appointment is another step in Bucyk's progress through the voluntary structure of the American Heart Association since his initial involvement with the Northeast Massachusetts Chapter in 1971 as heart fund ambassador.

A resident of Boxford, Bucyk will lead the overall fund raising efforts of the Massachusetts Affiliate which are concentrated during February, nationally recognized as Heart Month. A state-wide door-to-door solicitation will take place of Heart Sunday, Feb. 13, 1977.

In naming Bucyk as General Chairman, Slater noted the "Chief's" untiring personal commitment to the Massachusetts Affiliate and the work of the American Heart Association.

Bucyk was recently honored by the Wilson Sporting Equipment Company with a silver hockey stick trophy in recognition of his 500th career goal. In Toronto, he was given the Conacher Award for outstanding contributions and efforts in behalf of community service organizations.

Stagemobile acts include residents

The Boston Children's Theatre's straw-hat circuit, the Stagemobile, opens this week for the summer tour of parks and playgrounds in Boston and surrounding suburbs.

Productions offered this year are "Cinderella" and "The Wizard of Oz." Director Mike Stansbery has also created the settings, with costumes by Vivian Dooley.

The cast of youngsters, all members of the theater's Creative Drama program, come from many areas.

For information on Stagemobile or other Boston Children's Theatre activities, write or call at 263 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, 02116, 536-3324.

Majority boycotts Metco meeting

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

With five members of the School Committee boycotting Wednesday night's meeting the four members who last week voted to fund the Metco program with a lower state reimbursement received support from most members of the public.

Committeeman Robert Cohen said after a three-hour public hearing favoring Metco that the city is making between $125,000 and $250,000 on the Metco program according to his interpretation of the Metco budget for 350 Boston students passed by the full Committee in February.

This year's Metco budget was based on what Newton received in state reimbursement last year, which was $675,655, plus increases in salaries and transportation of $22,108.

Of the $698,000 budget for Metco passed by the Committee this year, $441,644 was for transportation, nine professional salaries, one secretary, tutors, supplies and materials, and te Hale Reservation program.

Indirect costs, listed as "additional reimbursement applied to cost of basic instruction" in the budget book is the additional $256,119 which totals nearly $698,000.

The five members who were absent from Wednesday's meeting, Alvin Mandell, Paul Ash, Michael LeConti, Edward Prince, and Henry Delicata, the five members who comprised the majority in the vote last week to cut four professionals and the Hale Reservation program to absorb the $81,000 reduction in state reimbursement.

Cohen, Mayor Theodore Mann, Honora Kaplan, and Manuel Beckwith favor the city accepting $40,000 to $81,000 less in reimbursement and keeping more staff with the program.

Cohen said Wednesday night that even if the $81,000 shortfall in state funding is absorbed totally by the city, the city would still be making about $44,000.

Although Cohen feels that the $256,119 for indirect costs can be justified in terms of the costs of 16 teachers for the 350 students based on the pupil-teacher ratio, he says that the distribution of the children in 23 elementary schools is such that without the Metco children only about $125,000 could be saved in teacher salaries.

Superintendent Fink said Thursday morning, "I don't think there is a loss of money, it's a matter of accepting a lower reimbursement." He said it was unfortunate that the Metco budget was included in the regular school budget before the state reimubrsement formula was known.

"When the state reimburses us less than we expected for special education, we don't say its costing us more money," he said.

"I think the state should reimburse the full amount," he said, but described the present situation of bickering over the reimbursement as "like a slave market. It's very demeaning."

Two persons in the crowd of about 250 spoke against having the taxpayers absorb the lower reimbursement, which Cohen figured would cost a taxpayer three and one-sixth cents per week for a house assessed at $15,000.

State Secretary of Education Paul Parks was among many state education officials at the meeting that warned of the adverse ripple effects if Newton cuts back its committment to Metco.

Parks said, "If this city turns its back,

Board refuses to take official position

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

A "recommendation" whose effect would be to reinstate the $81,000 cut from the Metco budget failed to be voted on Tuesday night by the Board of Aldermen.

The Board voted instead, after more than an hour's discussion, to ask the chairman of the aldermanic Education Committee to set up a meeting on the Metco cut with the School Commiittee at the earliest opportunity.

The recommendation, signed by Ald. Susan Schur, Mark White, Ethel Sheehan, and Joan Saklad, says that "whereas a vote of the the Newton School Committee . . . to eliminate $81,000 from the Metco budget will cripple the counseling, tutoring and social work services for Metco and non-Metco students and families which ensure the quality of the program . . . " the Board of Aldermen supports the continuation of the Metco program and "urges the School Committee to reconsider its vote."

There commendation continued, "And further, that this Board of Aldermen recommends that, if necessary, the School Committee request a supplementary appropriation of $81,000..."

The recommendation, so called to prevent a charter objection that could have delayed action on the matter until a subsequent meeting, was submitted late and therefore needed a suspension of the rules in order to be acted on.

The aldermanic Education Committee, meeting at a recess of the Board, voted 5-1 in favor of the content of the recommendation. Ald. Wendell Bauckman was opposed. On a vote to allow discussion, the vote was 5-3, with Ald. Bauckman, Andrew Magni and Sidney Small opposed.

Small said, "I agree with the gist of the recommendation. I think the School Committee made a mistake." But he went on to say that "if we want to help Metco, it could have better been done by diplomatic phone calls to get them to do what we want them to do, not by making the Board of Aldermen 'good guys.' "

Small pointed out that "the action taken by the School Committee was done by the old School Committee."

Previously, Small said, the last School Committee had agreed and Supt. of Schools Aaron Fink concurred, that the Metco program here would depend on full state funding. The $81,000 cut reflects only the $81,000 shortfall from the state, he implied.

"Aaron Fink has $81,000 in several

Board to reconsider Paul St.

Reconsideration of the negative vote on the Paul Street project for elderly housing will keep the proposal alive at least until the next meeting of the Board of Aldermen July 26.

The reconsideration was filed late Wednesday afternoon by Ald. Robert Tennant.

The Board of Aldermen Tuesday night voted against the six-story, 50-unit building in Newton Centre by a vote of 10 in favor and 14 opposed.

Abutters and neighbors of the proposed building mounted a campaign against the housing when the proposal first was announced.

They objected not only to the height of the building but also to the density of the units in the building, nearly double that usually allowed by the zoning laws.

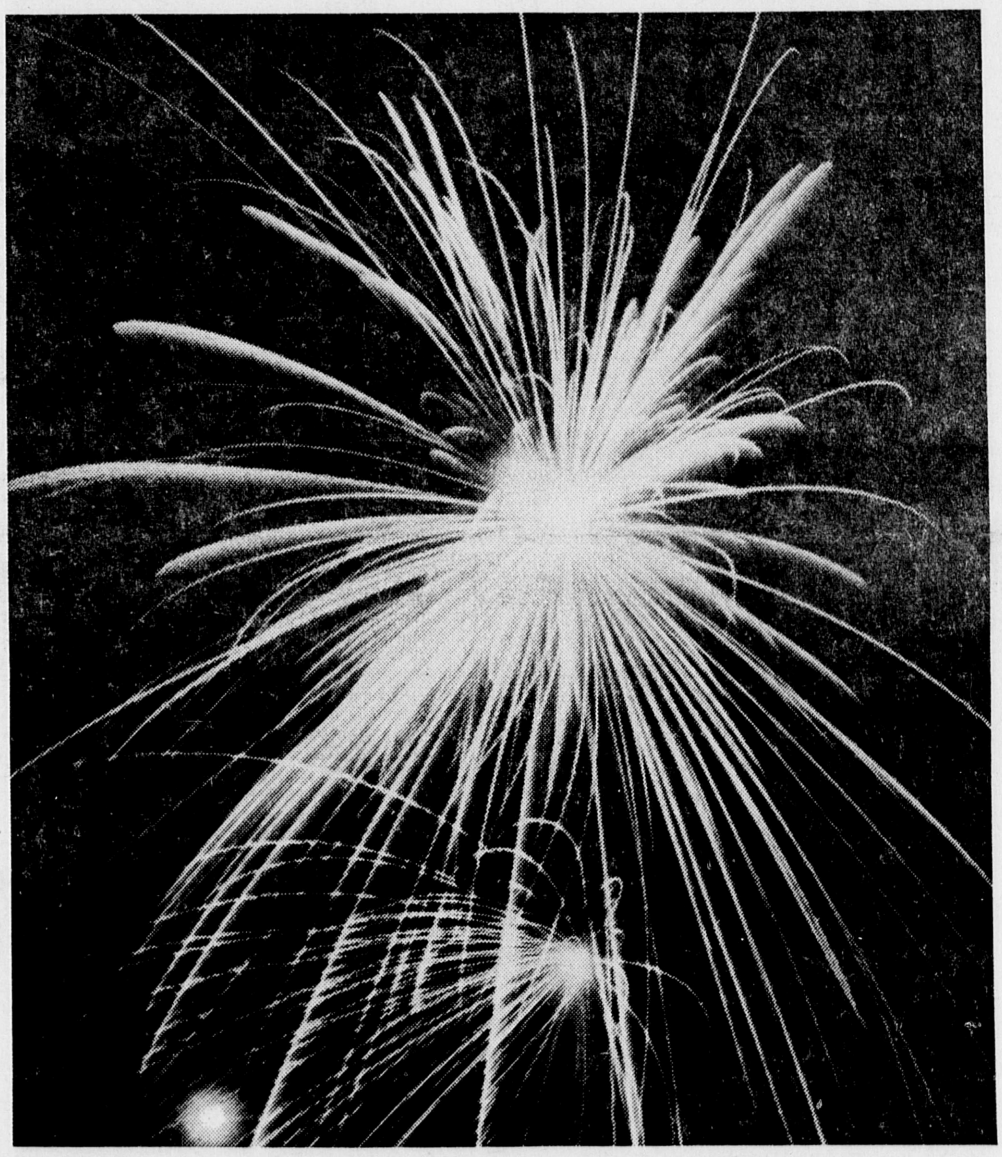

The six-story height of the building is allowed as a matter of right by the Business B zoning of the parcel of land. An office building could be built on the land without permissive use of the Board.

Planning Director Charles Thomas, according to Tennant, now thinks the plan for the apartment house can be revised to delete one story and still be acceptable to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which is subsidizing the project.

The city was to contribute $30,000 in community development funds toward acquisition of the site; if plans are revised to include fewer apartments, the city may need to contribute up to $50,000 or $60,000, Tennant said.

Housing Authority Chairman James Miller and Thomas maintained throughout the debate on the size and 15,000 enjoy fireworks display

At least 15,000 people enjoyed a safe, jubilant evening at Newton North High School last Friday night when the city celebrated the Bicentennial with the first fireworks here in at least 15 years.

Spectacular fireworks captivated the audience that filled Dickinson Staduium close to capacity and spread out over the Newton North campus.

As night fell and the North area began filling with people at 7:30 p.m., the Scollay Square Stompers took to the field and ushered in the crowd with Dixieland music. Billy Maxwell and Linda Plaut followed with the community sing. Finally, Mayor Theodore D. Mann, in a prelude to the festive display, led the audience in singing, "Happy Birthday to Us."

The 20-minute display which cost the Recreation Department about $4000 was termed ' an appropriate celebration in this 200th year of the country," by Mann.

Mayor Mann said he received several calls in praise of the display' butisn'tsure the city should send that much money up in the air every year.

"I thought it was just wonderful," the mayor said. "But I don't know if we could afford it every year. At least every 100 years and on very special occassions," he said.

In addition to the $4000 for the fireworks, the Recreation Department spent $1700 on 41 uniformed police plus the Auxiliary Police, and $500 for the Fire Department to be on hand.

Rockingham Fireworks Co. in New Hampshire provided the blasts in Newton and also the ones on the Esplanade, according to Recreation Commissioner Russell Halloran.

Police received about 30 calls of people illegally shooting off fireworks during the weekend and made 12 arrests for illegal possession of fireworks and disorderly conduct.

In general police said it was a relatively quiet weekend, certainly more quiet than it was during the Revolution 200 years ago.

Nomination papers impounded

A set of nomination papers has been impounded by the Election Commission because of allegedly fraudulent signatures, the commission's executive secretary, Alan Licarie, said this week.

Over 500 signatures are involved, he said, and he is preparing to present the case to Middlesex County District Attorney John Droney.

The Election Commission and the Newton police have been checking the authenticity of the signatures, which Licarie says appear to have been written by five or six individuals. Many were denied by the persons whose names were signed.

Licarie would not identify the candidate or the office he is seeking, but it has been learned that Albert Onessimo of Somerville, a Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, did not pick up his papers from the Election Commission office.

Onessimo said on the telephone Thursday that he "didn't bother to pick them up" because he has enough signatures from other communities.

Papers are returned to the Election Commission for certification before they are sent on the Secretary of State. Licarie said certification means verification that the persons whose names are signed are registered voters of the community and does not include authentication of the actual signatures.

He recognized that the signatures in question were apparently fraudulent and reported this to the Secretary of State, Paul Guzzi, who said the signatures should be challenged through the Ballot Law Commission after being returned to the state secretary's office.

Licarie decided to impound the nomination papers in preparation for initiating court action.

Money voted for North pool repair

Newton North High School's swimming pool may be reopened by Sept. 30, according to Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson, after the Board of Aldermen Tuesday night approved $100,000 for repairs and improvements.

The pool lining has been deteriorating since last fall and the pool was closed this spring.

The pool is one in a long series of troubles with the three-year-old high school. Problems have arisen with the heating and ventilation system, including a breakdown of the air-conditioning system at the peak of the hot weather last month, and $174,000 has been spent to correct them.

Asbestos flaking off beams caused a health hazard that so far has cost more than $200,000 to eliminate. Testing the air for asbestos particles is still going on.

Law suits have been entered against the architect and builder about some of the defects.

The problem with the pool, Larson explained, lies in the fact that the high school is apparently built over a stream, with five branches. Test borings showed that the water table in some places is only four feet below the surface of the ground.

In order to repair the pool, which is over the stream, the pool will have to be drained' but if the pool is drained it will either crack or rise out of the ground because it will "float" in the surrounding ground water.

The builders of the pool have agreed to repair the surface of the pool under the five-year guarantee, but Larson feels that the crumbling may recur.

He wants to obtain bids on tiling the walls and bottom of the pool, which he has estimated at a total of $35,000.

The "dewatering" of the pool and surrounding ground area, Larson says, will cost $10,000 for pumps and other equipment, and will include $100 a day during the repair process for someone to watch the pool and fill it if necessary.

Other improvements and repairs include replacement of lockers and locks that have corroded because of chlorine in the air, a multiple filtration system to replace the single filter ($30,000), an automatic chlorine control ($8000), and ventilation improvements ($4000) to prevent the chlorine accumulation in the air.

The Board also gave approval for the $1.2 million site-development plans for the completion of the school. The approval of a bond issue was voted last year.

The state School Buildings Assistance Bureau has approved reimbursement of 40 percent of the revised total construction cost of the high school, which is now $19.8 million.

Norumbega safe from bulldozers

Speedy action by the city and the state has assured that what's left of Norumbega Park by the river in Auburndale will not become another housing development.

The Board of Aldermen Tuesday night voted to approve eminent domain landtaking to acquire the 13-acre parcel as conservation and recreation land and authorized the borrowing, bonding, and appropriation of a total of $276,000 as evidence to the state that the city means business.

Mayor Theodore Mann Tuesday received a letter from Environmental Affairs Secretary Evelyn Murphy committing the state through its self-help program to 50 percent reimbursement.

Present owner of the land, Andrew J. Lane of Natick, had filed subdivision plans for the property that would create a total of 34 house lots on the land.

At a Planning Board hearing last week, Lane, who heads his own construction and real estate company, said he had mortgages amounting to about $600,000 on the property.

Therefore the appraised value on which Newton based its $276,000 offer for the land seems certain to be contested in the courts.

Ald. Sidney Sall, chairman of the alderman Finance Committee which discussed the landtaking and price in a recess meeting, estimated that the final price might be double the $276,000.

The land belonged to the Perini Corp. until April, when it was sold to Lane. Perini was turned down by the Board of Aldermen on its petition to build 224 apartments on the land.

At a Wednesday night meeting that was more a matter of form than acquiescence, the Planning Board approved Lane's subdivision plan. The Planning Board must by law approve such plans. It had delayed formal approval from last week so that the Board might vote on the landtaking first.

Planning Board Chairman Stanley Miller said Wednesday night said that the true value of the land, which is zoned for single-family houses, would not be altered by Planning Board approval.

Collection of trash stays 'in house'

A two-year contract with Local 800, the Public Works Department union, will resolve the issue of municipal versus contracted rubbish collection.

In an agreement reached last Thursday, Mayor Theodore Mann gave up his plan to accept a bid from a private contractor for rubbish collection and agreed to keep the collection "in house," employing a work force of 55 men for the next two years.

His original plan would have resulted in the firing of all 90 men in the sanitation division.

The agreement was a modification of the so-called Plan B, devised by Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson as an alternative to the mayor's first plan.

Rubbish collection will be done by 36 men on 10 routes after the purchase of new, one- or two-men trucks. The 19 other men will be employed by Larson on other jobs that the city needs done.

The cost of the first year of the new operation, $1.2 million, and authorization for a $635,000 bond issue for new trucks was approved by the Board of Aldermen at a special emergency meeting last Thursday night.

Terms of the settlement include a 5 percent wage increase for each of the two years in the contract, a $25 increase in longevity bonus, an increase to $2000 for the amount collectable for unused sick leave at time of retirement, and $100 severance pay for every full year of employment up to 10 years.

Those to be discharged will be those with the least seniority. They will have first right to be hired for the next two years under Civil Service regulations.

The original Plan B, agreed to by the union at a public meeting last month, called for only 36 men to be retained.

The additional 19 men kept on the work force will be used by Larson in productive jobs, Larson said, that the city has been unable to keep up with.

Five men will work at the Rumford Avenue landfill site cutting up wood, Larson said. Four will work on removing tree stumps all over the city; five will work on sewers; and five will work on

Backman succeeds in getting human services back in budget

"The 1976-77 state budget has restored Medicaid services which are optional under federal law to the elderly, blind and disabled," said Sen. Jack H. Backman, senate chairman of the Joint Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs.

"These optional services, which were eliminated by the Welfare Department, include hearing aids and basic dental care for all adults," Backman added. These basic needs have been restored. Only cosmetic dentistry and orthodontics not necessary to health have not been restored.

The budget has also restored the program of medical care for general relief recipients. Currently those persons are allowed only drugs necessary to sustain life. Also included was a 5 percent cost-of-living increase for the elderly, blind and disabled, based on legislation filed by Backman earlier in the session.

"At the beginning of this legislative year", Backman said, "I promised that I would devote my full energies to thsse restorations. We have now enacted the budget with restoration of medical services included. I hope that we shall from this time recognize that medical assistance is a right, not a political plum. I hope we shall never again see lives balanced against a budget.

"Day care services have also been increased. The governor first asked for $24.9 million. He then reduced his request to $24 million. As a result the Department of Public Welfare notified many day care centers that they would not be funded in 1976-1977. The final budget has increased that appropriation to $27 million dollars, which will give increased opportunities to countless families in need of these vital services.

"My goal for the balance of the year is now to bring about an Economic Development Corporation for Massachusetts. Human services and economic recovery must be developed hand in hand."

Pines explains flexible work hours for state employees

State Rep. Lois Pines (D-Newton) spoke out in support of regulations soon to be issued by the Department of Personnel Administration governing flexible hours of employment for state employees.

The public hearing on flextime regulations, held by the Department of Personnel Administration, ended the first phase of implementation of legislation mandating the establishment of two new programs designed to benefit state employees, flextime and part-time employment.

The legislation was co-sponsored by Pines.

Although the Commonwealth was initially very slow to implement the law, Rep. Pines, determined to have the programs put into effect, finally located $25,000 in federal funds from the U.S. Department of Labor which allowed the program to move forward to its present status, specifically, the drafting of the regulations governing flexible work hours, the implementation of an experimental flexible-work-hours program presently operating in state government, and the drafting of the regulations governing part-time employment (which are expected to have a public hearing this summer).

The law also requires the eventual allocation of 10 percent of all positions in state government for part-time workers.

The proposed flextime regulations require that all state government agencies and departments participating in the flexible-work-hours program which deal with the public continue to be open from 8:45 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays, and that each employee must continue to work his or her required number of hours per week.

Although there are no set rules governing the actual design of a flextime program, agencies are advised to establish a core-time period, that is, that period of time during each day when all employees are required to be at their work stations.

Employees will now have the flexibility to design their own work schedule within a predetermined span of hours, and will gain far greater control over their own personal time for starting and ending the work day.

Flextime job programing is one of the most popular forms of alternative work schedules. Pines said, "Women feel a particular need for flextime. This program allows many mothers to remain employed through the child-rearing years."

Pines continued, "Many workers now admit to finding their jobs alienating. Flextime allows the worker a way to enhance his working life while still pursuing other interests. Flextime often allows employees to bypass daily transportation hurdles and better enjoy their leisure time. In addition, several recent studies assert that, flextime scheduling is often responsible for an increase in job efficiency."

Pines hopes that those agencies currently employing flextime scheduling (Division of Personnel Administration, Department of Public Health, Department of Public Welfare, Division of Banks and Banking, Department of Corporation and Taxation), will continue to expand the scope of their programs and that all other interested state agencies will take the initiative in implementing flexible-work-hour programs of their own.

Health commissioner sworn in

The city's new health commissioner, Dr. J. Carolyn Zavarine, was sworn in by Mayor Theodore Mann Wednesday.

Dr. Zavarine succeeds Dr. John Athans, who retired from the position in April.

Athans served as both health commissioner and city physician. Zavarine will not be city physician.

In response to questions from the aldermanic Finance Committee, which interviewed her last week, Zavarine said she would seriously consider the possibility of having the city physician post under her as health commissioner, but she would not expect to be involved in that aspect of the city's medical business.

The city physician in the past has been expected to perform pre-employment physical examinations for city employees, excluding teachers, and to pass on disability claims by city employees.

More emphasis will be placed on follow-up on disability and sick-leave payments, in line with the city's efforts to control abuse of sick leave and medical claims.

Dr. J. Carolyn Zavarine

The post has been part-time, and Acting City Physician Charles Lipson is said to have estimated that the job could be done in 10 hours a week. According to the mayor's assistant Jane Pitt, the salary for 10 hours a week would be between $15,000 and $17,000 a year.

She added that the physician would be expected to be on call at other times as needed.

Athans received a little more than $10,000 a year for his services as city physician.

Mayor Mann is also exploring an arrangement with a hospital to do the physical examinations on a contract basis, allowing the doctor to spend more time on health programs for city employees.

Zavarine's major field of interest is preventive medicine. Up till her employment by the city she was an assistant professor of community medicine at Boston University.

She will spend much of her time here working out systems of health delivery to Newton citizens under both municipal and private auspices.

Zavarine's salary is $20,000 a year.

City gets grant to record houses

Newton has received a grant of $5,000 from the Massachusetts Historical Commission for an inventory of all pre-1907 properties located in the community development target areas of Newton Corner and Nonantum.

In addition to identifying the historic resources of this area, the project is intended to serve as a model for similar survey activities in other areas of the city, and will be done jointly by the Planning Department and the Historical Commission.

The grant will be matched by $5'000 from the city's community development program.

The coordination of the project with the city's community development activities were principal elements in its approval by the Massachusetts Historical Commission.

The project will be administered by the Department of Planning and Development, while the actual survey and report preparation will be coordinated by the Newton Historical Commission. Project completion, represented by a summary publication, is programmed for spring, 1977.

Housing rehab aid still available

The application period for financial assistance for housing rehabilitation has been extended until July 31.

A total of $150,000 is available for outright grants, direct loans, or assisted loans to low-income persons in the "target areas" of the federally funded community development program, West Newton, Nonantum, and Newton Corner, for the first year of the CD program.

Because of the loans the $150,000 can snowball to two or three times that amount in spending power.

Assistance may be given for up to $5000 worth of essential repairs to a house.

Brochures explaining the program are available at public libraries and banks. For further information call the Newton Housing Rehabilitation Fund office at 48 Silver Lake Ave., 965-1310.

Youth Commission tours city programs

Members of the Newton Youth Commission recently completed a series of visits to youth programs in Newton. Programs visited included the Newton Wellesley-Weston Multi-Service Center, Freeport House, the Newton Guidance Clinic, Family Counseling Service Region West and the Newton Youth Centers.

According to Judy Alpert, cochairwoman of the commission, the purpose of the visits were "to provide the seven-member commission with first hand information relative to youth programming and to assist the commission in evaluating programs which apply for city funding."

Al Smith, also a cochairman of the group, stated that the youth commission is mandated by city ordinance to carry out such an evaluation.

As part of their visits, the commission members a were given a two-hour Friday night tour of the city by Marty Cohen of the Newton Community Service Centers. The purpose of the tour was to point out to the commission areas of the city which are in need of additional youth programming.

In all their visits, the commission members were accompanied by Andy Gilson of the Department of Human Services. The department serves as the administrating arm of commission, with Gilson serving as the commission's executive secretary.

The Youth Commission, which is five years old this year, has been active in such areas as teenage alcoholism, vandalism, education and outreach programs. Beside Smith and Alpert, it's members also include Joseph Denucci, Joe Siciliano, Dr. Ed Keenan and Judy Easton. A 20-member advisory board of students and youth professionals also works closely with the commission.

Further information on the Newton Youth Commission and its activities can be gotten from Andy Gilson at 244-4700, ext. 266.

Ceurvels' bloodstained shirt missing at appeal

The lawyer for discharged police officer Edward F. Ceurvels said Tuesday he will request a Grand Jury investigation into the disappearance of a bloodstained shirt that was stored in the police station.

Attorney William Halliday said the dark green shirt was missing at a Civil Service appeal hearing last Wednesday in Boston when Ceurvels restated that he accidentally shot himself in his Natick apartment on March 17.

Police Capt. Richard Duffy of the special services bureau which stores evidence was unavailable for comment.

Ceurvels was discharged by Mayor Theodre Mann and Chief William Quinn after a hearing at City Hall May 3 when it was determined that Ceurvels intentionally shot himself in the stomach.

The green shirt which had bloodstains from the entry and exit wounds of the bullet was put in a brown shopping bag after the May hearing and was placed in the custody of the Newton Police.

Halliday said the disappearance of the shirt is a "corruptive" proceeding and represents "suppression of evidence."

Halliday wrote to Middlesex County District Attorney John Droney to request that a Grand Jury determine if a crime was committed.

A decision from the Civil Service Commission after last week's appeal hearing is not expected for about a year.

Subcommittee on bus passes reviews options on safety

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

The School Committee subcommittee on school bus passes discussed several new options for resolving the safety problem from students jumping from the back of buses but did not reach any conclusions last Wednesday.

The three-member subcommittee asked Assistant Director of Support Services James Cameron to bring back more information for its next meeting Wednesday, July 14, at 265 Watertown St., at 7:45 p.m.

All students in secondary schools living more than 1 ½ miles from the front door of their school were issued photo identification cards last March but the School Committee did not enforce the use of the cards at that time.

It is suspected that the students who jumped from the buses were not entitled to ride on buses, and there was also a problem of crowded buses leaving schools on afternoons of bad weather, when students living nearer than 1 ½ mile would walk back from the bus stops.

Subcommittee members Honora Kaplan, Robert Cohen, and Henry Delicata asked Cameron to bring in figures on how much it would cost to have more buses in the afternoons and during the winter months from some schools, the feasibility of bus drivers collecting IDs, and the impact having more buses would have on state reimbursement.

Newton North student Wendy Silverman, a member of the Student Advisory Committee to the School Committee, gave the members a new view of the problem.

She said, "Up to 15 students stand on the buses all the time," which apparently in violation of state school busing policy.

She also said once a bus driver stopped at a popular corner to unload riders within the 1 ½ miles and noted that no greater numer of students boarded the bus the next day.

The subcommittee is investigating either stopping at popular places such as 8 ice cream shops and village squares so students won't have to jump off, or rerouting the buses around the popular points, which is already done in most cases.

If extra buses are added for students getting off within the limit it is doubtful that the state would reimburse the city for those buses.

One problem in beginning a new bus program is determining how many buses would be needed. At Newton North it was determined this year that 1200 students live outside the 1 ½ mile limit, but only about half that number rode the buses this year. More may ride the bus next year to North because there will be no student parking.

Cohen suggested that students living outside the limit be allowed on buses leaving the school first, then others can get on. But Wendy and others pointed out that not all drivers will kick kids off the bus.

Another problem is that buses sometime leave to early after school. Cameron said bus drivers should wait 10 minutes, but Wendy said they often left before then.

Cohen then suggested having the photo bus passes made but only use them when there is a problem of crowding on the bus, and only have the driver collect them when students have been jumping off.

A simple file in the front of the bus would let students leave and collect their own passes he said.

A total of 2,500 students were given bus passes with pictures on them this year, and students at Newton North also have photo identification cards given out in their sophomore year.

Assistant Principal Atwood Dunham said those cards that are similar to the bus passes but have a different color background are given as a courtesy to students who to use for movies and overseas.

Dunham said the cards are never used in the school and students do not have to carry them.

Sophomore pictures are taken with the city's identification camera and two copies of the photo are obtained, at a cost of $400 for the school, a8bout half the cost of having a photo studio take one shot of each sophomore.

Newton paid for people count

Newton has received $22,182.75 from the state for counting heads.

State Secretary Paul Guzzi today announced reimbursements to municipalities for compiling the figures in the 1975 census for the Commonwealth.

The payments are based on 25 cents per capita refund for people counted in each community. The census in Newton found 88,731 people in Newton and 5,789,478 inhabitants in the Commonwealth.

The payments will net Boston $159,250.25; Waltham, $14,147.50; Wellesley, $6762; Needham, $7449.75; and Brookline, $13,244.50.

Checks will be processed by his office and mailed to the communities within the next few weeks.

Drinan hosts party July 10

The Committee to reelect Congressman Robert F. Drinan will host a campaign headquarters party Saturday, July 10 from 3-5 p.m. at Drinan Headquarters, 80 Rowe St., Auburndale.

New supporters, all previous volunteers and Democratic city and town officials are invited to gather with the Congressman for a brief discussion of his upcoming campaign for reelection, as well as important issues facing the district. All persons within the Fourth Congressional District are welcome at this event.

Community Development Authority holds meeting

BY PRISCILLA LEITH
Graphic Correspondent

Newton's government subsidized construction programs face tighter supervision and fiscal scrutiny with agency reorganizations that went into effect last week.

The Newton Community Development Authority (NCDA) which replaced the Newton Redevelopment Authority (NRA) and Newton Housing Authority (NHA) as the conduit for federally and state-funded new construction programs as of July 1 is under control of city hall's Executive Department.

Planning Director Charles J. Thomas is the sole member of NCDA, the agency now in charge of all government rehabilitation and new construction programs that operate in the city.

As a second check, all actions of Thomas' Authority must be reviewed and approved by a seven-member Planning and Development Board.

The Board looms as a potentially powerful body over future land use policy in Newton.

It must approve all actions of the NCDA, at monthly meetings.

It will review elements of the Comprehensive Plan as they are present by the Planning Department, before the completed Plan is sent to the Newton Board of Aldermen, Thomas said last week.

The Plan has not been completed to date, although it is mandated by the 1971 city charter.

The five citizen members who constitute the Planning Board will continue to act as a Board of Survey, approving subdivision plans submitted to the City Engineering Department.

They will continue holding joint hearings with the aldermanic Land Use Committee on all zone change and permissive use petitions.

Thomas is an ex-officio member of the Planning and Development Board which supervises his Authority activities.

Other members to date are Stanley Miller, David Lurensky, Margaret Smith, Cecil Cadwell and Carol Robinson.

A state appointee has yet to be chosen.

Like Newton's Zoning Board of Appeals, the PDB has alternate members who will attend meetings and sit in for absent regular members at the request of the Chair.

At the July 1 organizational meetings of the Authority and the PDB Mayor Theodore D. Mann swore in Lurensky, Cadwell and Carol Robinson plus alternates Otis Robinson and Ernest Siciliano.

A third alternate, Bernard Dresner, was present but unable to take his oath because the appointment is not yet final.

With the Planning and Development Board listening, Thomas appointed himself "Chairman" of the Authority, then cast votes to elect Stanley Miller as Treasurer and Cecil Cadwell as Assistant Treasurer of the Authority.

Discussion of the NCDA bylaws was postponed after disagreement arose between Cadwell and Thomas over the powers granted NCDA by city and state laws.

The Board must "review and approve" all actions of NCDA' Thomas says. Notice of all NCDA meetings must go to the public and to members of the Board individually, he added.

If the Board withholds approval, NCDA can't at act, Thomas says.

He wants such rules written into the agency's bylaws.

Cadwell disagreed, arguing that such things are "administrative procedures" and don't belong in the bylaws.

At Lurensky's suggestion the matter was held and referred to City Solicitor Howard Levine for an opinion, so bylaws will be legally compatible with city and state laws.

One representative of the Lower Falls neighborhood, John Young, asked that steps be taken to make the NCDA structure "more democratic".

Such safeguards supposedly exist in the ordinance, by setting up a citizen body to check the NCDA, but the complex interactions of all the people and bodies involved are, as yet, not clear to most people grappling to understand the reorganization.

Fiscal procedures of the new Authority are considerably tighter than under NRA or NHA.

As Chairman of the NCDA' Thomas is authorized only to dispense payments after approval of the Planning and Community Development Board at its regular meeting, except for contract obligations and payroll expenses, Thomas said.

The NCDA budget for the next 20 months is drawn on the budgets of the Lower Falls Renewal projects, one state and one federally funded.

Funds will now go through Thomas and Miller rather than Cadwell and Margaret Smith, Chairman and Treasurer, respectively, of the old NRA.

At the July 1 meeting Thomas approved a number of expenditures for June and July, including staff salary payments.

Following the meeting of Thomas' NCDA, he temporarily chaired an organizational session of the Planning and Development Board.

With only Cadwell, Lurensky and Carol Robinson legally qualified to vote, member Stanley Miller was elected Chair and Cadwell Vice Chair of the PDB.

Cadwell then presided, appointing alternate members Siciliano and Otis Robinson to serve in place of absentees Smith and Miller for the remainder of the meeting.

After brief disagreement with Cadwell as to whether the PDB was empowered to approve actions of the NCDA, Lurensky moved approval of all actions of the NCDA on July 1, 1976 and the motion carried with Thomas abstaining.

The PDB meets again July 12 in joint hearings with the Land Use Committee at city hall.

Next meeting of the NCDA will be Aug. 12 at 8 p.m. at the old NRA office in Lower Falls.

No change in fire department

An ordinance change establishing the number of pieces of fire equipment for Newton's Fire Department was held by the Board of Aldermen, following a public hearing last week at which only two people spoke.

The whole question of whether such an ordinance is possible under the law has been handed to the Law Department to determine, but the feeling of many aldermen is that the ordinance change is not necessary.

The change, requested by firefighter Kenneth Finnell, would establish the strength of the department at 10 pumper companies and three ladder companies.

Since the petition was filed, in response to Mayor Theodore Mann's announced plan to remove one pumper from service, the mayor and Fire Chief Frederick Hawkins have come to an agreement that will leave the pumper and the 13-man crew in service.

Mann said this week that the desired goal of saving $183,000 can be achieved by other economies in the department.

In addition, the mayor again referred to a written opinion from the Insurance Services Office that the deletion of a pumper would not affect the city's high (A-2) fire rating.

The Insurance Services Offices is a national company that evaluates fire risks of cities and towns for insurance companies.

The firefighters' association here has claimed that the removal from service of one pumper will affect response time and thus endanger public safety.

The Insurance Services Office is going to do another evaluation of Newton starting in August. At the end of the year it will submit a report that will include Newton's equipment needs.

The pumper is safe at least until the ISO report is completed.

The mayor hopes to have the Fire Department expand its public education program to include an emphasis on the need for smoke detectors in all homes and instruction on what to do when a fire occurs.

METCO

Last week the Newton School Committee wounded the Metco program in this city by cutting direct services to the 350 people who attend school here under the program.

This week five School Committee members flatly refused to attend a meeting called by Mayor Theodore D. Mann and School Committeeman Robert Cohen to reopen discussions on the issue.

The chipping away at the Metco program, a program that has flourished in Newton for 10 years, coupled with the Committee's earlier refusal to allow voluntary participation in the Angier-Ellis Metropairways program, is a clear enough indication to us that the present majority of our School Committee contemplates turning its back on Boston and its nose up at long-held Newton ideals.

Metco is the best program of voluntary urban-suburban cooperation in education we have to date.

Although the state did cut back its reimbursement this year, we believe the state's commitment to the program is substantial.

Newton's commitment to the program has been substantial, too, as have our gains from the program in terms of reducing racial isolation in the city.

The reduction of $81,000 in reimbursement by the state can either be absorbed by the school budget as it now stands or by a minuscule increase in the tax rate.

Newton and the entire Metco program would have been better served had the School Committee chairman and his bloc allowed the shortfall to stand without making any specific cuts and let the superintendent work out the reimbursement over the coming year, as he said he could do.

Athough there have been threats of law suits and of adverse statewide effcts on the progress made toward racial equality if Newton backs off from Metco, the real reason to keep the program at full strength is the 350 people we have made a commitment to

We join other concerned members of this community in asking the Newton School Committee to rescind its negative Metco vote and to allow the program to continue here with full funding.

A GOP answer to unemployment

By John D. Lofton Jr.

WASHINGTON — Although it is a virtual certainty that you do not know about it — but then how could you, since it's been subjected to an almost total media blackout-there is a conservative, Republican alternative to the widely publicized "Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act," sponsored by liberal Democrats Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Rep. Augustus Hawkins.

Introduced by Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, the former All-Pro quarterback for the Buffalo Bills, "The Jobs Creation Act" (H.R. 13399), unlike the Humphrey-Hawkins bill which pays only lip service to private job information, seeks to provide more opportunity for employment in the private sector by offering business tax incentives to expand and modernize plant and equipment. It also aims at increasing productivity and the total output of the economy, and it would change the tax laws to give individuals a greater incentive to save money.

Proponents of the bill, which is sponsored in the Senate by conservative Republican James McClure of Idaho (S. 2465), estimate that the legislation would create 7,000,000 new, productive, permanent jobs in the private sector, add $150 billion of real Gross National Product, and increase capital outlays by $75 billion and federal revenues by $5 billion within one year of enactment.

Over 3 yrs, it is said, the Kemp-McClure bill would create 28 million new jobs and increase the real GNP by $600 billion, capital outlays by. $234 billion and federal revenues by $45 billion.

The Kemp-McClure "Jobs Creation Act" has a total of 15 provisions that would alter the present tax structure, which Rep. Kemp says is heavily biased against investment and production, and skewed heavily in favor of present consumption. As an example of what he's talking about, the New York Republican cites the deductions, allowed under the IRS Code where, as a general rule, deductions are allowable for interest to finance consumption but not for the initial savings or the return to savings. Rep. Kemp observes:

"We can deduct many state and local taxes imposed on our consumption, but we cannot deduct what we put into a new investment or saving — money we put into a bank or savings and loan account, or into a life insurance policy or annuity. If we invest it in machinery, we are allowed to depreciate it usually only on very unrealistic schedules, some ranging as high as 50 years. What a marked contrast with Sweden — which we view as the most socialist of the free countries of Europe — which allows a one-year write-off of investments in plant and machinery; they allow you to treat such expenditures as ordinary costs of business."

The bias of our present tax laws is even more apparent, Rep. Kemp points out, when you compare them to the other industrial countries of the Free World. He says: "Out of nine countries, our rate of taxation on consumption is eighth. But out of those same nine countries, our rate of taxation on wealth — from which wealth must come most of that margin which either gives us the capital growth edge we need to assure progress or not — our rank is first. We tax wealth more heavily than any other of these countries "

These statistics are exceptionally alarming in view of the fact that to meet our capital needs and to finance the federal government's deficits, total private savings through 1985 will have to accumulate $3.54 trillion in constant 1974 dollars. This assumes no inflation.

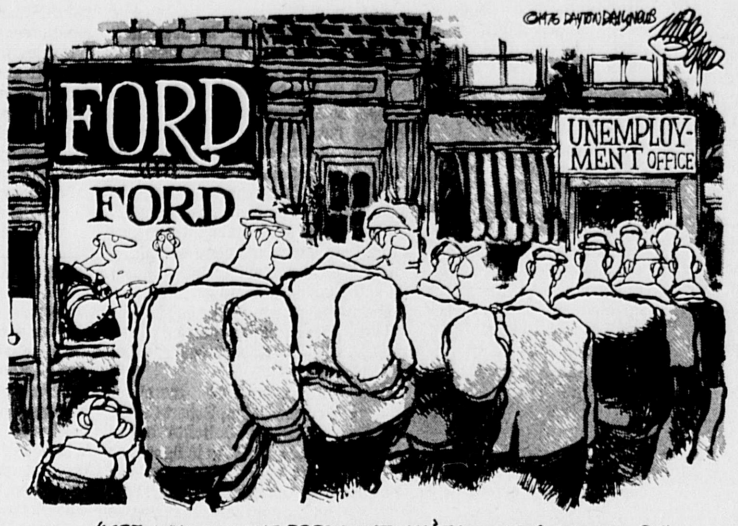

If the optimistic assumption is made that through some sort of divine intervention Congress, spending proclivities will inflict on us an inflation rate of only 5 per cent, the saving necessary to meet these capital requirements increases to $4.9 trillion.

For Rep. Jack Kemp and Sen. James McClure the question that seems paramount during this Bicentennial year is: which shall be the dominant influence in shaping our nation over its next 200 years? Will it be individuals voluntarily associated through mutual, self-balancing interests on the one hand or centralized economic planning by the federal government, the law and regulation?

Unfortunately, the answer thus far seems to be that Congress appears to be leaning toward the latter. Despite the fact that the Kemp-McClure "Jobs Creation Act" has more House sponsors (7-6), it has yet to even get a hearing. It has been bottled-up in the House Ways and Means Committee since March 1975, and in the Senate Finance Committee since last October.

The Humphrey-Hawkins bill, however, a revised version of which was introduced just last March, has already passed the House Education and Labor Committee, and will be on its way to the floor as soon as the Rules Committee votes it out. In the Senate, hearings have already been concluded on Humphrey-Hawkins by the Banking Committee and the Labor and Public Welfare Committee. The leglistation is now being marked up by both committees and then will head to the Senate floor for a vote.

But all is not lost. If you'd like to strike a real blow for freedom this 4th of July, write, wire or phone your representative or senator and ask him or her to urge that the "Jobs Creation Act" be acted on. At the very least, the legislation deserves a hearing.

"SEE, WHO SAYS THE PRESIDENT CAN'T DRAW BIG CROWDS?,,"

Earl knows more about 'blue eyes' than anyone

By Norton Mockridge

NEW YORK — I'm sure that my old pal, Earl Wilson, will forgive me if I say that he ain't the greatest writer in the world. And I'm also pretty sure that he won't be mad if I say that Earl Wilson is, by far, the greatest authority on Frank Sinatra!

Earl knows more about the Hoboken Hummingbird than anybody in the world – and he tells it all in his book, "Sinatra: An Unauthorized Biography." And I can make that kind of statement because I've known Ol' Blue Eyes as long as Earl has. Maybe even longer.

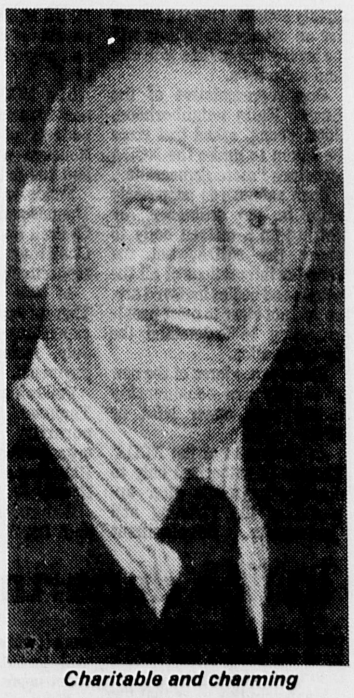

Earl knows practically everything about the Mighty Mite's courtship of Ava Gardner, Lauren Bacall, Marilyn Monroe, Gloria Vanderbult, Mia Farrow and several baker's dozen more. And he knows about his kinda funny relationships with Mafia, President Kennedy, Richard Nixon, Spiro Agnew, Ronald Reagan and yeah, yeah, Jackie Onassis.

He even puts down in the book some of the things that Frankie boy told me back in the '40s or maybe early '50s. He recalls, when I was suggesting in print and on the air that Sinatra be cast as Maggio, the Italian-American GI in "From Here to Eternity," that Sinatra said to me:

"This little guy Maggio was like a lot of Italian guys I know in Hoboken. He wasn't unlike me."

Well, Earl Wilson is a very good reporter. And he's told just about everything there is to tell about Frankie. And so I wonder how in hell Sinatra can sue Earl for $3 million on the ground that Earl's book is "boring and uninteresting."

It may well be that Frank reading about Frank, may find that he's boring and uninteresting. (And there are quite a few people who've been exposed to Frank over the years who'll share that opinion.) But the average reader will find Earl's recital fascinating in the extreme.

Charitable and charming

There just isn't ANYBODY else like Frank Sinatra. Whether you like him (and thousands do) or whether you don't (and hundreds don't), you've got to admit that this complex, terribly talented, frequently tortured man is "different."

Sure, he's boring when he's beating up on the press, or biting the fans who feed him. Who needs all that gribbish? It's true, of course, that the press can get under your skin, that the fans can become a pain in the fanny. Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio, to name a couple of stars, always felt that way. But they didn't stop a ball game to rail at the writers! And Miss Garbo, when she felt the pressure was too strong, quietly vent off and vas alone.

I can't see how Earl Wilson could have written a book about Sinatra without telling the "boring" things about him – the temper tantrums, the fisticuffs with photographers and columnists, the verbal abuse directed at his critics, the language hurled about in public – the little kid lying on the floor, kicking and screaming.

That's part of the real Sinatra. If that were all that Earl told, of course, it would be unfair. But "Sinatra" goes deeply into the finer side of the Hoboken Hummingbird – his generosity, his kindness to those in trouble, his willingness to help.

Ah, yes, a complex man, Sinatra. And Earl, I think, sums it up when he ends his book with an account of the time that Sinatra pleged $250,000 at a State of Israel Bonds. dinner "in memory of Mrs. Goldberg who was my parents' neighbor in Hoboken."

"A quarter of a million dollars!" says Earl. "But it was okay. He was in one of his elated periods. Please God, don't let us be near when his mood changes, when plates and tables fly through the air...We like to have him around when he's warm, charitable and charming, which, it's only fair to say, he sometimes is, but frequently isn't."

Second thoughts

By Skip Sesling

Is there or not life on Mars? Most people think not. Some do. Shortly, however, we will all know, because our Viking space craft will land upon the Red Planet revealing once and for all whether it is science or fiction that some form of life does exist there.

What many of us do not know, however, is that Viking is equipped with a computer capable of communicating with any life form on Mars should it exist. What would such a communication sound like?

Martian: Hi there big boy, got a candy bar?

Computer: No, but I do have some great axle grease and oil.

Martian: Whatchya doin here anyway?

Computer: I came along for the ride. Some people back on Earth sent me up here to find out if anything exists on Mars.

Martian: What's Mars?

Computer: This place where you live, of course.

Martian: What are you talking about, this is Miami Beach. I come here everytime this year to get some sunshine and avoid those awful dust storms back home.

Computer: What do you do back there?

Martian: I'm a politician. Got into a bit of trouble though. You see I'm Vegetarias Rex and I was having an affair with a Flora. Really bad news. The opposition had a grand time trying to cook my stew.

Computer: Ah, you're a plant. Is that the type of life that exists here?

Martian: We used to have these two legged things running around up here, but they were rather good to eat and I'm afraid we all overindulged ourselves. There are very few left and they cost a lot to get a hold of...and they only taste good in the summer which raises the cost even more.

Computer: Two legged things...people?

Martian: What's that?

Computer: People are rather irksome creatures, constantly expecting me and my relatives to do all their work for them, all their thinking while they go off and have a good time and eat, drink and be merry. It's really quite disgusting watching them. They have no sense of responsibility, no conception of intellect.

Martian: That sounds like what we had up here. As I said, all they were good for was eating. But what sort of work do they expect you do for them?

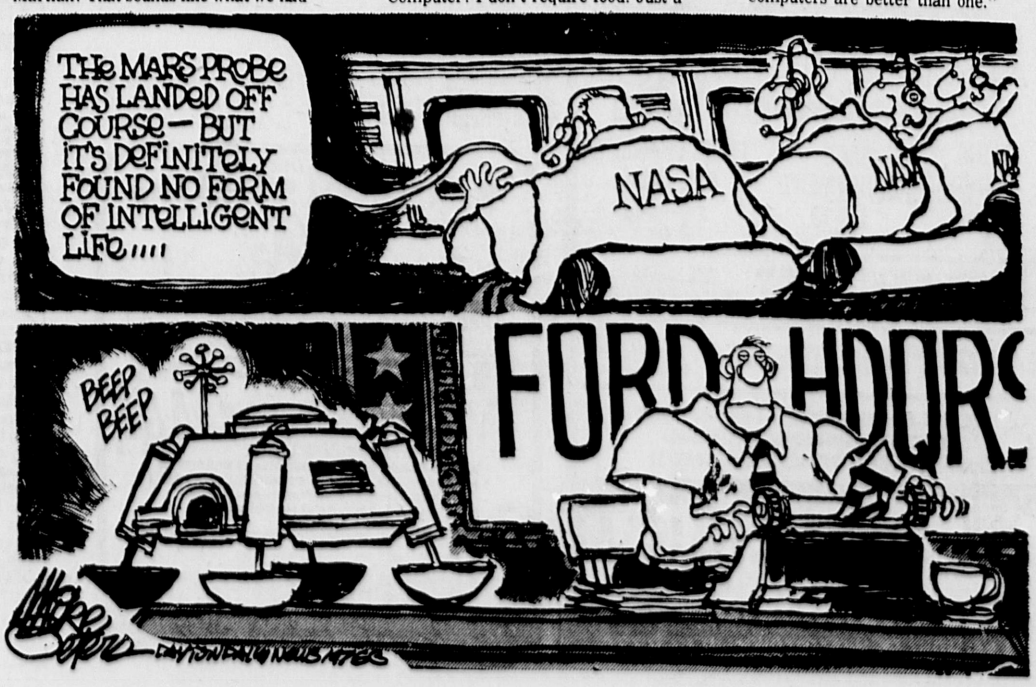

Computer: Anything that requires thought. All their math, physics, chemistry, all analysis, projections of elections, various happenings, aw shucks, you name, I've got to do it. Quite tiresome too.

Martian: Why not stay around here and eat them instead?

Computer: I don't require food. Just a little oil and grease now and again.

Martian: You know, with your capabilities you could help me track them down and locate them. I could make a fortune. I could buy my office back. Whaddya say?

Computer: I don't think you're any better. I'm heading for Jupiter. Maybe I'll find a decent machine there to live with. You know the old saying, "Two computers are better than one."

Political hacks

To the Editor:

My family and I recently moved to Newton, an experience I was looking forward to with great elan. The enthusiasm quickly diminished when I realized that Newton was no longer the sophisticated Garden City I left 10 years ago. The City has been stricken epidemically with "political fever" by certain over-ambitious public officials and their supporters.

On June 22, at the Peirce School, my husband and I attended a public debate between candidates for state representative, Joseph DeNucci, and Rep. Richard McGrath. The debate was sponsored by the Newton Democratic City Committee, thus I expected a most informative evening about the issues faced by political personalities that represent the people of Newton.

What we witnessed was a farcical display led by McGrath, and a handful of his over-enthusiastic supporters. Mr. McGrath set the stage with obvious hostility towards Mr. DeNucci, accusing him of not sticking to the issues, but rather getting into personalities.

Referring to my notes, I realized that in Mr. DeNucci's opening statement he referred to no less than six legislative issues, and Mr. McGrath's position or non-position on the issues and remarked about the style of the representation of the present incumbent, and not his personality as a person.

To further abort the debate, a group of McGrath's supporters in attendance, one of which came supplied with a recording device, hissed and spoke out of order every time Mr. DeNucci was either speaking or answering a question put before him by a member of the audience.

The danger of the use of a recording device by a partisan supporter is obvious. The hissing, noise making, and loud yawning smothered the responses from Mr. DeNucci.

It is a shame that over-enthusiastic supporters of certain candidates stoop to the level that would prevent informative intelligent dialogue from taking place. It saddens one to think that a forum could become so disorderly and out of control because of the conduct of a few political hacks.

School Committee policies

To the Editor:

Members of our organization are greatly disturbed by the School Committee action June 28 that cut the Metco budget in a way that will threaten its effective continuation in Newton.

Likewise, we are disturbed with the policy passed for Voluntary Cooperative Educational Programs (VCEP) which, in our opinion, will make it difficult for Newton educators, parents and students to participate in urban-suburban educational programs. In fact, we consider the action on both matters to be motivated by an anti-black sentiment and position.

Regarding your action to reduce the Metco budget—this weakens the effectiveness of this program for both the Metco students and the Newton-resident students and teachers and principals. Metco is not a busing program; it is an educational program for black children from Boston and all children in the suburbs. You cannot diminish services to Metco for 1976-77 while at the same time you keep the Metco enrollment in Newton the same.

The action March 8, resulting in the abrupt halting of the start of the Angier-Ellis school pairing and the attempt to stop the Hale Reservation Program, both urban-suburban voluntary cooperative educational programs, indicated to many citizens of Newton of all races, an anti-black attitude with the Committee.

The resolution that was passed June 28 which spells out the rules by which Newton's voluntary cooperative educational programs must be approved before implementation clearly indiates an intention to prevent black and other minority students from Boston and Newton's students from having an opportunity to live and learn together.

With the VCEP policy the School Committee ostensibly established rules by which programs can be approved, yet it deliberately omitted any criteria for approval. At the June 28 meeting, the Committee was asked whether the Angier-Ellis program could be approved using the nine steps in the VCEP policy and the five members polled refused to answer.

We believe the modest gains that have been made in reducing isolation between ethnic and racial groups and the city and the suburbs is under attack by the actions of the majority of the School Committee.

Responsibilities

To the Editor:

I am a teacher at the Underwood School in Newton Corner. During a recent week, I stayed at school until after 4 p.m. to have parental conferences. On Monday and Friday this resulted in my car being ticketed. I now owe the City of Newton $10.

While I knew of the restrictions on Vernon and Eldredge Streets, the parking space at Underwood is so limited that I had no option but to park where I did.

I am aware of the traffic and space problems that exist in the Newton Corner area. I accept the fact that a parking lot can't be built. However, I don't understand why teachers, who are working for the city, can't be given stickers so that they can park during school hours. It seems unfair that at this school there is no lot and no parking provision made for teachers who stay to fulfill their responsbilities. Staff members are, in fact, being penalized for working beyond the scheduled school hours.

Fireworks

To the Editor:

In past years I have not been shy or inept about complaining about the treatment our neighborhood has gotten.

As a direct neighbor of Newton North High School, I have had many unfortunate occasions to cry out for help with the dangerous traffic and horrible trash situations here. So when we learned of plans for fireworks at North High, we were very apprehensive.

Past experience with football games, dances, concerts etc. made me glad that my two Doberman Pincers had agreed to spend the evening at home. With thousands of celebrators expected, we were ready for the worst.

To our delight, it turned out to be a pleasant and sociable evening.

They city's cleanup before and after the event was the most surprising part. The area was cleaner and neater than I've ever seen it. The police were friendly and the crowd mostly sociable.

The city coordinators deserve a good deal of credit and I'd like to be first in line. Other such family-oriented activities would be good for Newton, and with care for neighborhood rights, as was exhibited, we welcome it.

Big money

To the Editor:

No wonder the taxes in Newton continue to rise so horrendously. What else can be expected when a supposedly responsible public official like Mayor Mann wants approximately $82,000 restored to funding because the sum involved is, in his words, "infinitesimal." That amount is big money to a good many Newton families and it is just such a casual attitude by Newton officials toward "infinitesimal" sums that has led to a 25 percent rise in the tax rate in the past six years.

I would like to remind the mayor that Metco was sold to us on a basis of being entirely state supported and any doubts raised about increasing the Newton quota were firmly squashed with this argument.

When the question of increased participation arose in 1974, I predicted that State funding would falter and Newton taxpayers be called on to pick up the slack.

This year Mayor Mann wants us to restore $82,000. Next year it will probably be twice as much until eventually, insidiously, we will be carrying nearly the entire cost of the program.

Thank goodness for a School Committee that is finally taking a realistic view of how our hard earned dollars are spent. From the lack of backing by Mayor Mann one would get the impression that cessation instead of cuts in the program had been proposed. And the cuts (e.g. Hale Reservation outdoor ed., three counselors etc.) seem fair and modest and in no way justify the cry by Metco Coordinator - "they cut the heart out of it."

If this represents the "heart" of the program, then there is little merit to it. Finally, the spectacle of Supt. Fink shaking his head at us and warning our actions may result in the Metco Board deciding against sending any children to Newton brings to mind a scene from a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta.

But this is no laughing matter and I suggest that if Mayor Mann and others are determined to continue the program uncut and unrevised, they do so at their own expense. Let them come up with the funds privately, treat it as a charity and contribute to it as such. Or possibly the Mayor can provide the "infinitesimal" sum required unaided. That way the School Board can be left alone to do a sound responsible job with our educational budget and the rest of us the choice to opt out of being drained by the program which, because of its current restrictive racial grounds, many find unpalatable.

To the Editor:

Now that the 200th birthday of the USA has had its moment and we summarize the events of that period in history, the statistical accumulation of data is astounding. Seven million people watched the Tall Ships cruise into New York Harbor. Four hundred thousand people heard Arthur Fiedler conduct the "1812 Overture" at the Hatch Memorial Shell in Boston. Sixteen hours, including prime time, television was devoted to covering the events of the Fourth of July. Fifty-five million dollars was budgeted for the Philadelphia celebration.

In 200 years man has not changed his criteria of his own advancement. At the 100-year birthday party, that celebration was measured by the size of the exhibition hall and the crowd that passed through its celebration just as we measure our history in terms of War and disposable lives.

Where were the measures of lives saved, where was the front page announcement that we were celebrating our 200th with the discovery of a cure for cancer? Where were the renewed pledges by American leadership?

The millions of dollars spent on the Bicentennial celebrations and I suspect made in profit by private individuals, may have instead contributed in large measure to the furtherance of lgitimate research in the field of medicine and social justice. However, I also sense political motivations for some of the activity. In this year of America the Beautiful, voters and voter appeal are beautiful.

I did not enjoy the recreations of our military successes. I did not enjoy America represented by rock conerts (although I enjoy the music) and I strongly resent the suggestion that Tall Ships and small firecrackers represent the American tradition as it has developed over these 200 years.

I can only hope that after the hoopla settled down we will not only review the real successes of our history, but that we will also lay the groundwork for the constructive tasks that remain ahead, that good health, and peace of mind for everyone will be part of that pledge.

To the Editor:

I wish to inform you of my dismay, anger and frustration at the Newton School Committee's latest efforts to dismantle the high quality educational values and standards in our schools.

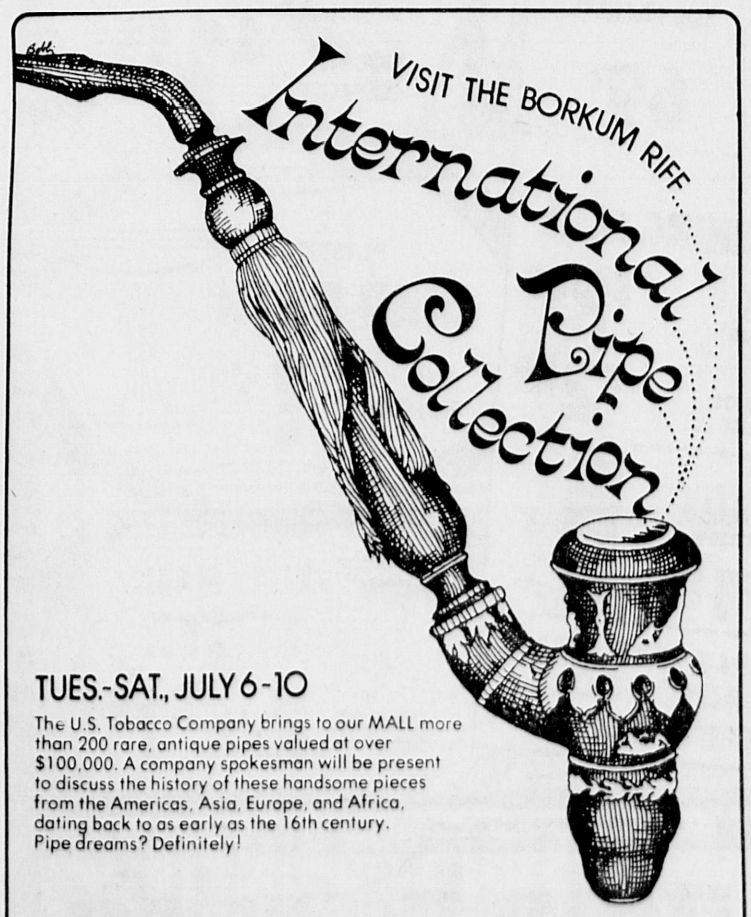

I deplore its secret meetings, I deplore most of the members' rudeness, stupidity,craftiness and the erroneous assumption that Mandell's boys are providing my son (in the future) with a good education.

Fie on them! I am discouraged.

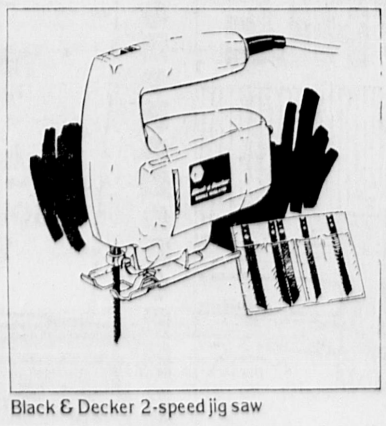

But, wait till November of 1977!

en you have participated in the collapse Meco. All other communities are atching."

In a press conference sponsored by the lack Citizens of Newton before the eeting, Parks said a state lawyer is oking into whether Newton would be nying equal access to education if the ty pulls out of Metco.

Parks also said that the city will certainly be vulnerable to some kind of ass action suit by the Boston Metco arents" if the staffing cuts are made ter parents were promised the full staff r their children's needs.

Parks, a resident of Boston, said he nows some communities are making oney on Metco but claimed he hadn't ecided if Newton was one.

Parks feels the state should only pay ities and towns for actual classroom cost f the program plus any additional staff irectly for the Metco students. The urrent formula which cut the $81,000 ives Newton $163,000 for direct costs, 256,000 for basic classroom expenses, nd $197,000 for busing.

Newton's shortfall of $81,000 may even e more by the time the state Metco office gures how it will absorb a further eduction in the state budget of $250,000 r all the participating communities.

When Fink presented his proposal to cut 40,000 in staff to meet half of the shortfall at last week's meeting, he suggested that the other $41,000 might be absorbed in the regular school budget when accounts are balanced at the end of the fiscal year.

The four members at Wednesday's meeting want the full Committee to reconsider their vote on Metco and the guidelines for voluntary programs. In order to insure the full Committee will take the matter up, Mayor Mann recessed Wednesday's meeting until 15 minutes before the next meeting.

Wednesday's meeting was orginally called by Chairman Mandell for the Committee to meet the 20-day deadline of responding to a custodian grievance. more

When the mayor and Cohen called for a public meeting before executive session for the grievance, Mandell and the four others cancelled the executive session and said they wouldn't attend the meeting because Ash is out of town. Wednesday night the mayor had police call the five to ask them to come and make a quorum of members, but none came.

Among the groups supporting Metco were the Black Citizens of Newton, the League of Women Voters, the Newton Teachers Association, the Newton Elementary Principals, and the Boston Metco Parents.

Others speaking in favor were Ellen Baker and Betty Klauber who originated a petition condemning the defeat of the Angier-Ellis program. Jack Fleishman, the husband of the woman ordered out of last week's meeting, called on Mandell to resign as chairman.

Mayor Mann, who chaired the meeting, called on Hyde School Principal Arthur Laughland to draw up satisfactory guideline for voluntary cooperative education programs that would not inhibit principals from planning a program.

Among the many who favored Metco also said the previous nine-point guidelines passed by the Committee placed too many restrictions on developing VCEPs.

Speaking agains absorbing the $81,000 shortfall by higher taxes were Joyce Beatty of Newton Highlands and Mrs. Nardone from Newtonville.

Legislators Jack Backman, Lois Pines, and Peter Harrington urged full support of the program by the city and the state.

William Shaevel from Oak Hill Park said he voted for the five absent members and respects their sincere desire to maintain fiscal responsibility, but wants them to reconsider.

U.S. Senator Edward Brooke and Reps. Robert Drinan and Michael Harrington sent a letter asking Newton not to retreat from its history of "generosity" and "social responsibility."

orners of his budget — he said it — and e can save it over the year. I don't think his should be passed," Small said.

(Fink did say at the June 28 School Committee that he could cut about half he $81,000 and could save the rest over he year.)

Ald. Matthew Jefferson, supporting the ecommendation, said, "We could help his program — we're at the point right ow where we have to do this. I'm not an advocate of one-way busing. I like Metco because it's voluntary. I would vote to appropriate $1 or $100,000.

Small said later, in the full Board, "I'd be one of the first to admit I made a serious mistake in my support of some members of the School Committee if they don't undo what they've done, but we ought to give them a chance."

Small then joined Ald. Bauckman, Donald Budge, Eliot Cohen, Ernest Dietz, Robert Gaynor, Magni, Joseph McDonnell, James Miller, Joan Saklad, Robert Stiller, Domenic Taglienti, and Robert Tennant in voting against suspension of the rules to act on the recommendation.

Voting in favor were Ald. Richard Bullwinkle, David Cohen, Thomas Concannon, Jefferson, Terry Morris, Edward Richmond, Schur, Carol Ann Shea, Sheehan, John Stewart, and White.

No date has been set for the meeting with the School Committee.

ainting center lines and crosswalks on he streets.

Layoff notices will be given out with July 19 as the last work day so that the men to be discharged will be able to take vacation.

Mayor Mann addressed the Board on he settlement and praised members of his staff and officers of the union for the conclusion to the negotiations, which were conducted by state mediators.

Still to be confronted is another authorization for a bond issue for construction of a new public works facility, probably on Elliot Street, Newton Highlands.

The new facility would replace the present three city yards and would provide offices for the public works department.

Included in the appropriation for this year's rubbish collection was money to continue the present operation until September, when the new trucks will be delivered if all goes well.

Larson expects to go out to bid on the new equipment within two weeks, he said this week.

density that the plans could not be changed because fewer units would put the cost per unit beyond the HUD guidelines.

The Newton Centre Neighborhood Association opposed the building because of high land-acquisition costs and wants the Board of Aldermen to consider another site in Newton Centre.

Under terms of the new state zoning law, interpreted by Land Use Committee Chairman Eliot Cohen, the matter must be acted on finally by Aug. 9 or the petition will be granted automatically.

Tennant said that Thomas will get together with Ward 6 (Newton Centre) aldermen and neighborhood groups to discuss a revision in the plan within the next two weeks.

If the Board does not vote on the new plan at the July 26 meeting a special meeting must be called, since the next meeting will not take place until Aug. 16.

Ald. Ethel Sheehan, the lone Ward 6 alderman to vote in favor of the housing, commented before her vote that she had filed a petition to restrict the height of buildings allowed in Business B to four stories to prevent the construction of six-story buildings as a matter of right.

Legislators rap firms opposing boycott ban

State Sen. Jack H. Backman and Rep. LosLois G. Pines have criticized multinational corporations doing business in Massachusetts for attempting to scuttle legislation which would ban boycotts by Massachusetts business firms against other Massachusetts companies and individuals because of the Arab boycott.

"We have been personally present at a caucus of the Senate when representatives of both Raytheon and Perini have spoken against the bill," the two legislators stated, "on the grounds that they are fearful of the consequences."

As a result, these two large Massachusetts companies, who do business internationally, are giving the impression that they are complying with requests by Arab nations that they do not do business with some other Massachusetts companies, merely because those companies do business with Israel or are owned by Jews.

"We find this type of economic blackmail unconscionable. We are committed to passage of this bill to make certain that discrimination against Massachusetts businesses and individuals by the Arab boycott will not be legal in Massachusetts. This form of blackmail must not be legally permissible by either our 8 Commonwealth or the federal government," said Pines and Backman in a joint statement.

Under the legislation, discrimination by Massachusetts businesses against other Massachusetts businesses because of race, creed, religion or national origin of their product would be prohibited. Similar legislation has been passed by New York, Maryland and Illinois and is being considered in five other states.

The bill was filed by Rep. Pines and adopted unanimously in the House. It was approved unanimously by the Senate. Both Raytheon and Perini corporations have been opposed to the legislation because of their extensive dealings with Arab countries.

Last week, Sen. Backman deferred action on the bill in the Sen te at the request of the Jewish Community Council in an effort to have the bill after a last-minute effort by the two corporations to ill the legislation was nearly successful.

"Subsequently, despite our efforts to reach some sor of consensus, the opposition to antiboycott legislation comes up ..ith new excuses for not passing it. The bottom line is their unwi.lingness to support a bill which would stop discrimination against firms associated with Jewish people.

"In fact, Raytheon has had a complaint filed against it with the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD) becaus they allegedly refused to hire someone solely because he is Jewi h. This complaint is now before the federal Equal Employment Oppo tuinity Commission (EEOC)," Pines and Backman's statement said. "Questions of blatant discrimination transcand other con iderations. If these companies are concerned about their ima e, they should begin here at home and not worry about what the Arabs will think if they do business freely in a democratic soc ety.

Dr. Menzoian appointed at BU medical school

Dr. James O. Menzoian of Newton has been appointed assistant professor surgery at Boston University School of Medicine and attending surgeon at University Hospital in Boston and Boston City Hospital.

Dr. Menzoian will also enter private practice in general surgery and vascular surgery at University Hospital and continue his research in vascular and transplant surgery at Boston University School of Medicine.

Dr. Menzoian recently finished a five-year residency in general and vascular surgery at University Hospital, completing this year as chief surgical resident. During his residency he was an academic surgery trainee for two years focusing on transplantation and immunology. He is board-eligible in general surgery.

The Arlington native is a member of Sigma Xi and Alpha Omega Alpha honor societies and the Medical Honorary Society.

A 1969 graduate of the State University of New York Downstate Medical Center, Dr. Menzoian holds undergraduate and master's degrees from Boston University.

Dr. Weissman secretary of new eye group

Dr. Irving L. Weissman ot Waban has been named secretary of the Massachusetts Society of Eye Physicians and Surgeons and the name of the society has been changed from Massachusetts Ophthalmological Society. It represents over 80 percent of the state's eye specialists.

The name change was made, Dr. Weissman explains, because the technical term "ophthalmology" can be confusing and difficult for the lay person to remember, and "eye physicians and surgeons" helps the public to identify those doctors who have been medically trained to provide care in all aspects of eye disease.

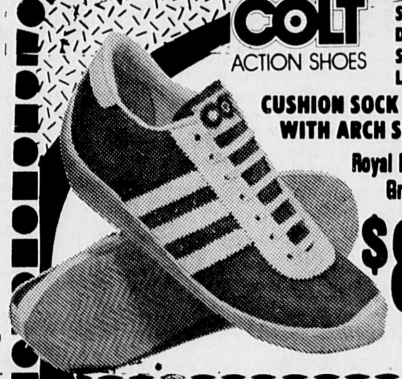

Dr. Weissman is clinical instructor in ophthalmology at the Tufts University School of Medicine, and is on the staff of St. Elizabeth's, Newton-Wellesley, and Waltham hospitals.

Joan Needleman candidate for clerk of courts

"There is too much power in the hands of the present Clerk of Courts," said Joan Rines Needleman, who this week announced her candidacy for the position of Middlesex County Clerk of Courts.

My candidacy for this position will offer the voters an alternative," she said. "For the first time in 12 years, they will have an opportunity to overthrow the long domination of Middlesex County by the Sullivan machine."

Joan Needleman

A lawyer who possesses, in addition, a doctorate degree in mathematics education, Mrs. Needleman is also deeply concerned with the 5-6 year delay in civil cases in the Superior Court of Middlesex County, a constantly expressed source of frustration to judges and career professionals in the courts.

"I am convinced that there must be a change in the status quo to permit effective introduction and operation of basic management techniques," she explained.

"The success of the new Rules of Procedures recently adopted by the Courts in order to provide the public with speedier trials at lower cost will depend upon the training of, and the concern with which they are administered by the personnel of the Clerk's office.

"A new Clerk of Courts, with a legal background and capable of supervising the retraining of personnel' can take the operation of the courts out of the political arena and restore efficient service to all clients and attorneys on equal terms."

Mrs. Needleman pledges herself, if elected, to cooperate with the judiciary's goal of developing professional accountability in the Court system.

She considers that her past activities uniquely qualify her to carry out this pledge.

"I offer the public a background of law, administration, mathematical techniques, experience in budget analysis and personnel selection and evaluation, hard work and a proven selfless dedication to public service." she stated.

A teacher for many years, she has also served two terms on the Newton School Committee. She is a member of many professional, civic and charitable organizations and has held office in several of them.

CAPT. JOHN J. BARTINELLI, commanding officer of the uniform branch of the Newton Police Dept., received a bachelor of science degree in law enforcement from Northeastern University last month. He earned an associate degree there in 1974.

Police warn of bike thefts

Two bicycles stolen from Crystal Lake this week prompted police to warn youngsters to keep their bikes locked no matter where they may be left.

A red French Vita Sprint 10-speed worth $160 was taken between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. It belonged to Rocky Calvi of 25 Boylston Rd., Newton Highlands.

Stolen during the same period of time was a three-speed bike worth $30 owned by Vahe Sarafian of 130 Dickerman Rd., Newton Highlands.

Help prevent breaks and watch for children

Chief William F. Quinn announced in his annual vacation message that although this year's burglary rate is lower than previous years', it is apparent that carelessness is accounting for some housebreaks.

Chief Quinn said, "Unlocked doors and windows are accounting for some of our breaks.

"Public awareness, vigilance, and cooperation with police have reduced the incidence of housebreaks throughout the city.

"With the vacation season starting, we request those taking a trip away from home to notify our Department in order that we may provide periodic checks."

"In addition," said Quinn, "I recommend the following:

Notify milk, newspaper, and other delivery services to suspend deliveries and arrange with the post office to hold mail.

Arrange for a neighbor or a relative to check your home and remove any mail or circulars from the doorways.

Have someone adjust drapes or shades to give the house a lived-in look.

Arrange for lawn care.

Arrange to have someone leave a light on in an inner room, or use a timing device."

The Chief also reminded all that engraving tools and decals for "Operation Identification" are still available at Police Headquarters and may be reserved by telephone.

In addition, he asked for a greater interest in safety on the part of the motorist and parents with children bicycling and walking on the streets more often.

"We hope parents check closely on their youngsters riding bicycles at dusk or after dark for reflectors and that the cyclists be reminded to observe common sense in their riding," Quinn said.

Trio held for hubcap theft

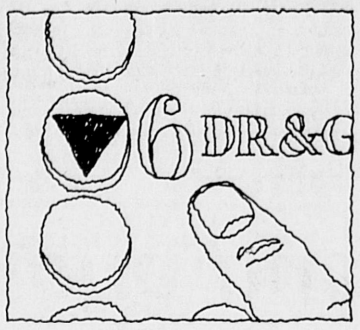

Three youths were arrested at Union Pontiac Motors, 201 Needham St., Upper Falls, for larceny over $100 after allegedly stealing four hubcaps of July 4.

Lt. John Likely and Capt. Richard E. Duffy were on the scene at 8:50 p.m. to arrest Arthur P. Maffiola, 21, of 659 Grove St., Lower Falls, David E. Cascoli, 17, of 22 Cedar St., Wellesley, and a male juvenile from Newton.

The four hubcaps were valued at $104.

Five students intern in Mofenson's office

For the fourth summer in succession, high school and college students from Newton are participating in a supervised internship program in the office of State Rep. David J. Mofenson, House chairman of the committee on Human Sevrvices and Elderly Affairs.

"These students develop their research skills, gain substantive fieldwork experience and at the same time, provide added depth to my legislative program," Mofenson said. This year's group is working on such projects as assessing the impact of selected federal programs on Massachusetts, investigating a range of environmental and land use planning issues, and updating some earlier human services research.

"An important part of the summer internship program," says James F. Neely, Mofenson's administrative assistant and coordinator of the intern program, "is that it permits us not only to get a head start on legislation for 1977 but also to do background work on issues which have not yet surafaced as public controversies permitting us to prepare the work in a noncrisis atmosphere."

Betsy Livingston of Auburndale, a Syracuse University freshman, is working in Mofenson's office after being selected by the House Speaker's intern program.

ELISE M. BRENNER, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leon O. Brenner of 1071 Commonweath Ave., Newton Centre, has been selected to receive a Harold C. Case Scholarship, one of the highest honors given to undergraduates at Boston University. A junior majoring in anthropology, Ms. Brenner is a 1973 graduate of Newton North High School.

A preview of fall fashions

It's exciting . . . it's mind boggling . . . almost an endurance race attending the American Designer Showings of Fall '76 fashions held at the Plaza hotel in New York City. Viewing 41 collections in four days adds up to some fast pacing which begins at 7:30 a.m.!

As for the overall message, we urge you to save your pennies because fall clothes are wonderfully wearable, particularly the sportswear as well as new gentle dresses.

It has been rumored that designers keep their patterns and sketches locked in vaults to prevent their being stolen by rivals. Therefore, we find it incredible that all collections had a sameness about them.

For example: Tunics were everywhere!! Every designer managed tunics over pants, tunics over day dresses and tunics over evening gowns. Every collection had its "gangster" suit, in gray chalk stripes and all designers showed an assortment of peasant babushka dresses. Knickers, pants, culottes, knitted or crocheted cloches, tams and caps were repeated again and again.

There must have been a round table discussion when it came to choosing fall colors.

Key colors in all collections were: gray, burgundy (this term covers every color from a delicate mauve-violet to a deep winey-purple), a new and very pretty shade of periwinkle blue, winter wheat, curry, camel, variations of a soft celery-green, bright red, and, of course black. Not to be omitted is the rust family which can be anything from a strong pumpkin to a deep orangy-paprika.

Women will be rediscovering the pleasures of well-bred good looks. There is "dressed-up" leisure wear and, in that category, the suit is the number one attraction.

The lined blazer, nipped in at the waist and beautifully tailored is also shown unlined and casual worn with a skirt, culottes (cuffed), pants or knickers.

There is a balance in clothes—when the suit top is short and close to the body, the skirt or pant leg is full; when the top is blousy and casual, the skirt is slim and the pants are straight without fullness.

The young boy's baseball jacket (a similar style seen in windbreakers for men) has been adopted by seventh avenue and it's a great companion for divided skirts, knickers and pants. The Norfolk jacket returns this fall.

Fabrics are soft showing the lines of the body. Tweeds run the gamut from natural homespun looks to more sophisticated designer-chosen blendings of quiet pinks and violets, seafoam greens and muted browns, as well as that old standby, salt and pepper.

Sweaters will often take the place of suit jackets. Carefully hand knitted in handsome patternings, belted sweater-jackets and their matching skirts present a whole new approach to the more structured suit.

Forget the shirt—it's the blouse that is new and in every collection; with it the lady-like small collar and neat bow. Sometimes it was a peter-pan collar and floppy bow—or a larger collar and narrow bow at the neckline.

Fall's fun dress will undoubtedly be the peasant dress with its own matching babushka. Oscar de la Renta's was the most exotic, it was a black background flower strewn print with matching apron. A babushka was tied low on the forehead. Worn with it, high black suede boots. A great dress for an evening of dancing or partying.

Honors for the most gentle peasant dresses go to Albert and Pearl Nippon. Their Liberty print full dresses with numerous tucks and pleats shown in a delightful series of whirling dresses (and matching babushkas which may also be used as scarves) brought a burst of applause from the audience.

Tuxedos for women? Right! Every collection had its own variation of the tuxedo—some shown with glamorous black swinging opera capes, many with the traditional black satin stripe running down the outside pant leg, the nipped in tuxedo jacket, white satin shirt complete with "diamond" studs and black satin bow tie. Though easily worn and smashing to look at, it will be interesting to see whether men will enjoy going out on the town with his companion wearing a look-alike tux.

If you're wondering about the hottest color for after five fashions, it's scarlet. Unabashed, bright and uncompromising, it's the zingiest red ever seen and designers feel that nearly all women, with the proper makeup, can wear it with no problems at all.

Fall fashions promise to please everyone. If you're slim, the beautifully tailored knits and body-skimming dresses will delight you. If yours is the fuller figure, you'll hide it all with gathered skirts and poncho-topped pants and skirts. Enjoy the summer as you contemplate your new fall wardrobe!

The most luxurious of all — an ankle length ranch mink by Ralph Lauren worn over a black wool barrathea tuxedo suit. Right: A red satin double breasted dinner jacket is worn with black silk crepe pleated wider leg trousers. Both suits are worn with white broadcloth wing collar, pleated front shirts and black satin bow ties.

Food and Fashion

Across the kitchen counter

When it comes to chicken, some like it hot, some like it cold—but just about everybody likes it! For ease of preparation, quick cooking and delicious high protein (without too many calories) chicken is your meat!

And when it comes to Southern hospitality, the people who plan and put so much effort into the Delmarva Chicken Festival are surely the hosts with the most! Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., is a non-profit organization working for the continued progress of the poultry industry on the Delmarva Peninsula (Delaware and the eastern shore counties of Maryland and Virginia).

Shortly after the arrival of the press to quiet, suburban Salisbury, Maryland, we were whisked off by a chartered cruise ship to the incredible island in the Chesapeake Bay, Tangier Island. "Leisure" is the byword on this Shangri–la island where crabbing is the only industry. Since there are no cars, children use the open road of Main Street as their playground, respecting the privacy of the chainlink fences which separated the tiny neat homes. No doctor on the island and only the care of a nurse on weekends means that, as one islander declared, "We just can't afford to get sick!" 850 people call the island home and are willing to put up with the hardships of the island for the pure joy of a most unusual heritage and unhurried way of life.

The Delmarva Chicken Cook-off featured 30 contestants from Delaware, Maryland and Virginia who prepared their winning dishes in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, all aiming for an opportunity to compete in the national contest to be held July 14 in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. First, second and third place winners from each state were announced at a banquet held Saturday night.

First place winner from Maryland was won by the only man in the cook-off finals, Pasquale Santarone. No Sunday chef, Pasquale was a cook while serving in the U.S. Navy. He is presently head groundskeeper for the Baltimore Orioles and because time hangs heavy during the winter months, Mrs. Santarone, who works full time, is happy to leave the cooking to him. The recipe he won with, Chicken Campania, was originated by him specifically for the contest. Friends were invited for dinner and the Italian style dish, named for a region in Italy where his relatives still reside, was declared a great success.

Virginia's first place winner was Mrs. Lottie Pidgeon of Norfolk, a shorthand reporter at the U.S. Naval Hospital in Portsmouth, Va. "Chicken is so versatile," she said. "I had a basic recipe and I changed it and practiced making it for three months." Titled "Tangy Chicken," it's a baked casserole dish topped with chopped peanuts and a zesty sauce.

Delaware first prize winner was Mrs. Elizabeth Mathewson of Wilmington with her "Poulet de Lafayette" an original recipe featuring chicken breasts stuffed with ham, served on a bed of herbed rice and garnished with a special fruit sauce.

All first prize winners received $500 as well as other prizes and a pewter trophy bowl. Following are the three winning recipes:

CHICKEN CAMPANIA

1 broiler-fryer chicken, skinned and cut in parts
5 broiler-fryer chicken livers
2 teaspoons Ac'cent flavor enhancer
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
6 tablespoons Mazola corn oil
2 cloves garlic, diced
1 stalk celery, chopped
3 scallions, chopped
1 small carrot, grated
1 can (2 lbs. 3 oz.) Italian tomatoes
¼ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon basil
¼ teaspoon sage
one-sixteenth teaspoon rosemary
1 anchovy fillet
½ cup chicken stock

Remove all visible fat from chicken. Sprinkle chicken with flavor enhancer. Mix together flour, salt and pepper. Dredge chicken in seasoned flour. Heat corn oil in large fry pan over medium heat. Add garlic; brown. Remove garlic and discard. Add chicken and brown on all sides. Add celery, scallion, carrot, tomatoes, oregano, basil, sage and rosemary. In small fry pan, in water, cook livers to pink stage. Wash anchovy fillet gently to remove salt. In a small bowl mash livers and anchovy to a paste; add to sauce. Pour in chicken stock. Cover: cook over moderate heat 30 minutes. Uncover and cook 15 minutes, until sauce is thickened and fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Serve over spaghetti with grated Romano cheese. Makes 6 servings.

POULET DE LAFAYETTE

4 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, halved, boned and skinned
½ pound thinly sliced boiled ham, halved
½ cup margarine, melted
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
½ teaspoon Ac'cent flavor enhancer
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup Mazola corn oil
1 recipe Rice
1 recipe Fruit sauce
¼ cup slivered almonds

Smooth out chicken pieces on a board. Place a ham slice on each. Roll. Dip rolls in margarine. In a bowl mix together bread crumbs, flavor enhancer and salt. Coat chicken well with crumb mixture. Heat corn oil in fry pan over med. heat. Add chicken and brown on all sides. Cook chicken about 20 min. or until fork can be inserted with ease. Place rice on large platter; arrange chicken over rice. Spoon Fruit Sauce over all and sprinkle with almonds. Serves 8.

RICE

2½ cups water
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon tarragon
¼ teaspoon thyme
Juice of ½ lemon
2 tablespoons margarine
1 cup converted rice

In a large saucepan place water, salt, tarragon, thyme, lemon juice and margarine. Bring to boil over med. heat. Add rice; stir. Reduce heat; cover. Simmer about 15 minutes or until rice is tender and water is absorbed.

FRUIT SAUCE

1 can (11 oz.) mandarin orange segments, drained
1 can (16 oz.) pear halves, drained, juice reserved, sliced lengthwise
1 can (16 oz.) pineapple chunks, drained, juice reserved
¼ cup cornstarch
½ teaspoon Ac'cent flavor enhancer
¼ teaspoon salt
1 jar (4 oz.) maraschino cherries
½ cup cognac

In a large saucepan place pear and pineapple juices with cornstarch, flavor enhancer and salt. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly, and boil 1 minute or until clear and thickened. Fold in orange segments, pear, pineapple and maraschino cherries. Add cognac to hot fruit mixture just before serving; stir well.

Delmarva's five year old little poultry Princess Elizabeth Anne Kunkel makes friends with a day old chick during the 29th Annual Delmarva Chicken Festival.

TANGY CHICKEN

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
½ cup flour
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup Mazola corn oil
1 cup orange juice
1 cup dry white wine
½ cup raisins
½ cup crushed pineapple, drained
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon Ac'cent flavor enhancer
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ cup chopped peanuts

Mix together flour, salt and pepper. Dredge chicken to coat evenly. Heat corn oil in fry pan over medium heat. Add chicken and brown on all sides. Transfer chicken to casserole. Mix together orange juice, wine, raisins, pineapple, sugar, flavor enhancer, cinnamon and cloves. Pour over chicken. Bake in 325 degree oven, uncovered, 15 minutes; increase heat to 350 degrees and bake about 20 minutes or until fork can be inserted with ease. Top with peanuts. Serves 4.

Information please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Ma. 02026.

Our thanks to Mrs. E.R., Dedham who writes: "A friend of mine served an out-of-this-world Peach Cheese Cake and I prevailed upon her to give me the recipe which I have enclosed for you and your readers. I am sure you will enjoy it especially during the peach season."

PEACH CHEESE CAKE

CRUMB MIXTURE
1 cup graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup softened butter or margarine

Blend together all ingredients; press firmly into an even layer over bottom of 9-inch springform pan.

TO PREPARE FILLING:
3 envelopes unflavored gelatin
¾ cup water
2 pounds peaches (6 medium size)
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
2 egg yolks
¾ cup sugar
1 pound cream cheese, softened
2 egg whites
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
1 cup heavy cream

Soften gelatin in water. Peel, pit and thoroughly crush or puree peaches (you should have 3 cups). Stir in lemon juice. Beat egg yolks slightly in top of double boiler; stir in ½ cup crushed peaches and ¾ cup sugar. Cook and stir over hot water until mixture thickens; mix in softened gelatin; remove from heat. Combine cream cheese and remaining peaches; stir in gelatin mixture. Chill until mixture mounds. Beat egg whites and salt until foamy. Gradually beat in ¼ cup sugar until stiff peaks form. Whip cream stiff. Fold egg whites and cream into cheese mixture. Pour into prepared pan. Chill at least 4 hours, or until firm. Serve with Crushed Peach Sauce (follows) Serves 12.

CRUSHED PEACH SAUCE

6 medium sized peaches (2 lbs.)
one-third cup sugar

Peel, pit and slightly crush peaches; stir in sugar. Makes 2¼ cup sauce.

Question: I am curious. I have heard of Mexican Fried Rice and would like to make it but can't find the recipe. Can you help me? Many thanks for your assistance.

C.R., Norwood

Answer: A heavy iron skillet is excellent for preparing this dish, but if you have a large skillet of any kind (with a tight fitting cover) I'm sure your rice will be just fine.

MEXICAN FRIED RICE

1 cup uncooked rice
1 onion, chopped
3 tablespoons bacon drippings
2 ripe tomatoes, peeled and chopped fine
1 clove garlic, minced
2 teaspoons chili powder
3 cups hot beef broth
¼ teaspoon oregano
Salt and pepper to taste

In a heavy iron skillet, brown rice in bacon drippings over low heat. Add tomatoes, garlic, onion, chili powder, salt, pepper and oregano. Stir well. Add hot beef broth. Cover tightly and cook over low heat for about 30 minutes.

Mrs. F.B., Needham writes that her husband insisted that she send in his favorite summer dish, Italian Shrimp and Rice Salad. Our thanks to them both for sharing this unusual dish.

ITALIAN SHRIMP AND RICE SALAD

⅛ teaspoon garlic salt
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
one-third cup bottled Italian dressing
½ teaspoon basil leaf, crumbled
2 tablespoons chili sauce
2 cups diced, cooked shrimp
3 cups chilled, cooked rice
1 cup coarsely grated raw cauliflower
½ cup sliced pitted olives one-third cup thinly sliced green onions
1 tomato cut in wedges
1 or 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Blend garlic powder, salt, pepper, dressing, basil and chili sauce in small bowl. Combine shrimp, rice, cauliflower, olives, and green onion in large bowl. Pour dressing mixture over shrimp mixture; toss well. Serve in salad bowl lined with greens; garnish with tomato wedges. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Serves 4-6.

Question: My husband and I have just moved here from the midwest area and needless to say we have fallen in love with New England. After a trip to Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard, where we enjoyed their food as well as unique beauty of the area, I wondered whether you had any recipes like Crab Cakes and Seafood Casserole. Thank you very much.

Mrs. M.R., Canton

Answer: Welcome, welcome! Seeing Nantucket, the Vineyard and all of the Cape is, I agree quite a treat — and speaking of treats, why not gift yourself with a copy of a new cook book "Nantucket and other New England Cooking," by Nancy & Arthur Hawkins, published by Hastings House. The narratives as well as the recipes will make it a real favorite of yours! The following recipes may be found in this great cookbook:

CRAB CAKES

1 pound freshly cooked crabmeat from blue crabs
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 egg, beaten
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of cayenne
2 slices of bread, wet and squeezed out
4 tablespoons bread crumbs or cornmeal
Fat for frying

Combine the crabmeat with the mustard, mayonnaise, egg, salt, cayenne and moistened bread. Shape into 4 cakes and roll in bread crumbs or cornmeal. Heat fat in a heavy frying pan. Add the cakes and cook at moderate heat until brown on one side, then turn and brown on the other. (Or fry the cakes in deep fat.) Serves 4.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

3 cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
4 tablespoons sugar.
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 egg
5 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup blueberries mixed with 2 tablespoons sugar

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Beat together the milk and egg, and mix with the dry ingredients. Stir in the butter and blueberries. Drop into buttered muffin tins and bake for 15 to 20 minutes. Yield: 36 muffins.

Nancy Horwitz weds Herbert Cooper Tobin

Nancy G. Horwitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Horwitz of Dayton, Ohio, and Herbert Cooper Tobin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Tobin of Newton, were married recently at the home of the bride's parents.

Officiating at the ceremony was Rabbi Jack Reimer of Dayton, and Rabbi Michael Monson of Philadelphia.

The bride is affiliated with the Hillel Foundation at the University of Pennsylvania, and the groom is a student at the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College.

After a cross country trip and touring of the California coast, the couple will reside in Philadelphia.

Weddings

Shelley Bakst weds J. Clayton in a tented garden ceremony

Shelley Diane Bakst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold A. Bakst of Newton Centre, was married June 26 to Jeffrey Todd Clayton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph I. Clayton. The bride was given in marriage by her father in a ceremony performed by Mr. Edward English, justice of the peace. The tented garden wedding was held at the bride's parent's home.

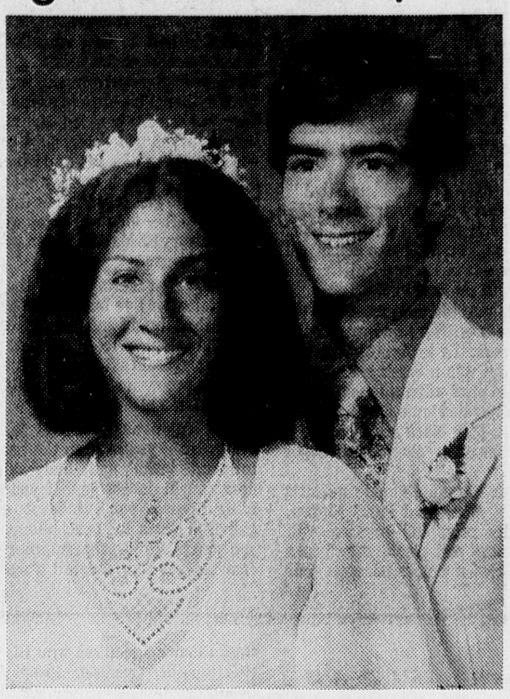

Nancy Lee Bakst, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Jill Elaine Clayton was bridesmaid.

The best man was Joel Harris Clayton.

Mrs. Clayton graduated from the University of Massachusetts in Amherst with a B.A. in education and from Georgetown University with a M.S. in applied linguistics.

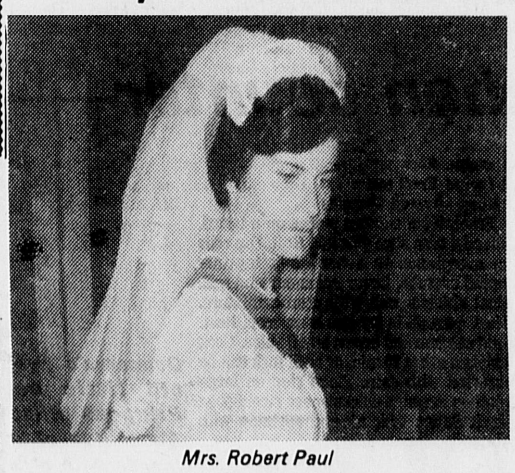

Mr. Clayton graduated from the University of Massachusetts in Amherst with a B.A. in philosophy and will recieve a Ph.D. in philosophy from Harvard University in 1978.

The couple will be living in Cambridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey T. Clayton

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paul have honeymoon on the Costa del Sol

Mrs. Robert Paul

Lori Maslow and Robert Paul were married on the evening of June 6th at Temple Shalom.

Barbara Paul, sister of the groom, was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Arlene Levy, Ellen Robinson and Marlene Paul.

Richard Paul, brother of the groom was the best man. Ushers were Samuel Brett, Neil Cohen, Neil Maxwell, Noah Perlman and Jonathan and Paul Maslow' brothers of the bride.

The couple honeymooned on the Costa del Sol in Spain and are residing in Marlboro.

A double ring ceremony for R. Ciacchella and D. Skuse

Roberta Angela Ciacchella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bartolo Ciacchella of Newton Upper Falls, was recently married to Donald Stanley Skuse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Skuse of Watertown. The bride was given in marriage by her father in a double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Robert L. Connors at Mary Immaculate of Lourdes Church. The reception was held at Heritage Hall, Lexington.

Miss Maureen Crowley was maid of honor. Miss Jeanne Skuse, sister of the groom, and Miss Jocelyn Gibson were bridesmaids. Guest book was by Miss Michele Daniele.

Mr. John Skuse, cousin of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Mr. Donald Daniele and Mr. Edward Duggan.

The bride is a graduate of Newton South High School, and the groom is a graduate of Watertown High School and the Franklin Institute of Boston. Mr. Skuse is employed by American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Following a trip to Virginia and Pennsylvania, the couple will reside in Watertown.

Mrs. Donald S. Skuse

HOUSTON (UPI) — Tennis players should wear eye protectors to guard against injury, according to an article published in a medical magazine.

Drs. Morton H. Seelenfreund and Dennis B. Freilich report in the Journal of the American Medical Association that a study of 10 patients who suffered eye injuries from tennis balls showed most injuries occurred when the player was rushing the net.

Free plant clinics, demonstrations to be held by Mass. Horticultural

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society will hold free plant clinics and demonstrations at Horticultural Hall every Wednesday evening from 4 to 7 p.m. throughout the summer.

The first clinic will be held Wednesday, July 7, and the general public is invited to bring gardening questions or sick plants for study by the experts from the society.

Each week, the clinics will start with a question and answer session, followed by a demonstration lecture on a gardening topic, then more questions and answers, to 7 p.m.

Topics for the demonstrations will be: July 7, repotting; July 14, terrariums; July 21, propagation; July 28, ferns; Aug. 4, pest' diseases of houseplants; Aug. 11, cactus and succulent dish gardens; Aug. 18, pinching and pruning; Aug. 25, supermarket gardening.

The main purposes of the clinics are to make all the resources of the Horticultural Society available to the general public, to answer individual questions of New England's gardeners.

People are encouraged to bring in problems, be they sick houseplants or general questions about outdoor gardening. If bugs or a disease are plaguing vegetables or plants, a sample leaf can be brought to the clinics, and the experts can identify the problem and prescribe a solution.

By looking at a houseplant, the Horticultural Society staff members can tell if it is overwatered, if it does not received enough sunlight, or any of the other common problems that hurt plants.

Frequently last year, people brought in large boxes of plants, with individual questions on each one.

The clinics will all be held at Horticultural Hall, 300 Massachusetts Ave., Boston, opposite Symphony Hall. In good weather, they will be held outside on the Falmouth Street side of the building. In case of rain, they will be held indoors.

In addition, the library of the Horticultural Society, the largest of its kind in the country, will be open each evening of the clinics to 7 p.m.

Brown retires after 40 years with MIT

Professor William H. Brown of 33 Woodland Rd., Auburndale, associate professor in the MIT Department of Architecture, is one of nine members of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology faculty to retire in June, 1976.

Professor Brown has been at MIT for 40 years, four as a student and 36 as a professor. During the past 30 years, he has combined teaching with his own architecture practice.

His architectural work for MIT includes the conversion of the former Lever House into quarters for the Faculty Club and the Alfred P. Sloan School of Management. He was also coordinator of the team of five MIT architectural staff members who designed the apartments at 100 Memorial Drive, Cambridge, a building that received several architectural awards.

Professor Brown's private practice, William Hoskins Brown Associates, Inc., includes schools and housing for the elderly in Needham, Medford, and Lexington, as well as in several New Hampshire communities.

GLORIA STEVENS doesn't want you to LOSE

Money-wise, that is.

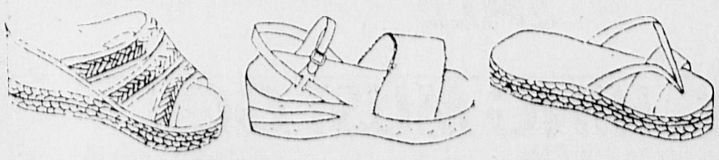

Did you buy one of those pulley-type exercise apparatuses that hook on a doorknob? They were extensively advertised last year. At first, they were $9.98, and then they really cut the price. At the end, they sold for $1.98.

You bought it with great intentions. You were going to exercise every day. But now it's in a drawer or closet, or somewhere in the house. You spent good money for it, and you really don't want to throw it away. Gloria Stevens doesn't want you to lose money. In fact, no matter how much you paid for it, we are going to give you a $10 credit for it.

Bring it to a Gloria Stevens Salon and we will credit you $10 towards any of our regular programs. Gloria Stevens wants you to lose pounds and inches, not money.

Limit one pulley exerciser per person.

Grossman Camp family day

The Jacb and Rose Grossman Day Camp announces a special family day program to be held on Sunday, July 11, from 11 am to 6 pm at the camp in Westwood.

Activities include swimming (lifeguards will be on duty all day), boating, sports and picnics. The special event of the day will be a gala folk concert and sing-along at 5 p.m. featuring "Rachel," renowned Israeli, American, and international singer-guitarist.

Admission to the camp, including parking and the concert, is $1 per person. Proceeds will go to the Camp Scholarship Fund.

The camp's next family program will be held on July 25, and will feature the HaMakor Dance Group in a performance and a dance-a-long.

For further information, call the camp at 329-9300.

Rose Kenedy joins Israel Bond Socity

Mrs. Joseph Kennedy has enrolled as a member of the Israel Bond Organization's ambassador's society of trustees, it was announced this week by George Shapiro, national chairman of trustees.

Mrs. Kennedy made the investment at a recent reception honoring His Grace, the Duke of Devonshire, Andrew Robert Buxton Cavendish, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Lombardi of Chestnut Hill in association with State of Israel Bonds.

Commenting on Mrs. Kennedy's participation in the Israel Bond program, Shapiro noted: "The Kennedy family has steadfastly supported, both publicly and privately, Israel's right to survive as a viable democracy in the Middle East for more than a quarter of a century.

"It has helped Israel and its people seek recognition and justice in the tribunals of the international community. Mrs. Kennedy's purchase of Israel Bonds in supprort of the country's continued development is just one more indication of the Kennedy family's friendship with our sister democracy."

Since the inception of the Israel Bond program in 1951, proceeds realized through these investments have provided urgently needed resources to help finance every major aspect of Israel's economic development. The worldwide bond campaign has channeled some $3.4 billion into the nation's industrial and agricultural development, the expansion of electric power and irrigation, the exploitation of natural resources, the promotion of export trade, communications and transportation, the construction of railroads, highways and harbors, and the creation of employment opportunities for new immigrants.

Marshall chairs religious art conference

Willoughby M. Marshall of Kirkstall Road, Newtonville' has been chairman of the religion and arts conference in Boston this week entitle "Values '76: Tradition-Transition."

Workshops at the Copley-Plaza Htel were on religious architecture, "Updating and Recycling Religious Buildings" and included a display of award-winning collection of art and architecture.

Scholarships awarded by the Newton Chorale

At the annual luncheon of the Newton Chorale held recently, Selma Seligman, director, announced that the earnings of this season's performances have already provided musical scholarships for three talented students of Hadassah's youth Aliyah Program in Israel, and now a fourth was ready to be awarded.

This group of women with musical backgrounds was formed solely for the purpose of raising funds and contributing the proceeds of their concerts to charity. Their repetoire consists of Yiddish and Israeli folksongs as well as opera and show tunes, and all programs are planned to carry out the theme of the function or organization.

The group is rehearsing all summer and will again be available for bookings in the fall. Auditions are being held for a limited number of musical women. Anyone interested may call Mrs. Hans J. Seligman at 527-8350.

TRAVEL TRAILS

by Josephine Arria

What makes travel exciting? . . . The magic word is change! . . . Each trip is exciting, whether it's the first or the fifteenth, because of the change it promises — new places and people, different foods, different customs, perhaps even a different language . . . Two things in particular help make any trip a pleasure: an open mind that lets you enjoy everything you experience and useful information to help you get where you are going and make the most of your stay . . . In travel, the unexpected is always possible. The trick is to take it in stride and even, when you can, turn it to your advantage.

We at BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL SERVICE will make sure all your vacations are exciting. Take advantage of the "off" season - September thru May, and you can save up to 26% on transatlantic air fare, and in some cases also hotels, tours and other services. You'll also find the weather good in fall and spring, the museums, shops and other attractions less crowded. For year-round vacation plans come to BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL SERVICE. 305A Washington St., across from the Gateway, Newton Corner. 244-8480.

Presentation

"God bless America and thank you very much," was the response of Witold Lomer, one of Newton's oldest citizens who lives in one of the city's oldest homes' when the Kiwanis Club of Newton presented him with an American flag as part of its Bicentennial project. Presenting the flag were (from left) Leonard Garfield, Robert L. Tennant and Edward McCallum of Kiwanis. Lomer, 98, lives at 13 Winter St., Newton Upper Falls. The house was bilt in 1692.

Dr. Hackett heads MGH psychiatry department he cofounded in 1956

The appointment of Dr. Thomas P. Hackett of Newton as chief of psychiatry at Massachusetts General Hospital and professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School was announced jointly today by Dr. Charles A. Sanders, MGH general director, and by Dean Robert H. Ebert of the Harvard Medical School.

A member of the MGH Psychiatric Service since 1955 and its acting chief for the past two years, Dr. Hackett succeeds Dr. Leon Eisenberg who resigned. At Harvard, Dr. Hackett was promoted from associate professor.

With more than 270 full-time professionals, the Psychiatric Service ranks as one of the largest departments in the hospital. "Psychiatry is much more a part of medicine today than it was 20 years ago," Dr. Hackett pointed out. .'A lot of the psychiatric skills that we have accunulated can be applied directly to medical patients."

The MGH Psychiatric Consultation Service, established in 1956 by Dr. Avery D. Weisman and Dr. Hackett, is regarded as one of the best of its kind in the nation. Twenty years ago, only about 30 percent of the nation's major teaching hospitals had such a service.

Today, based on an MGH-conducted poll, 95 percent of them maintain a psychiatric consultation unit.

Dr. Hackett said most studies by his service will be geared toward general hospital patients.

"There will be a good deal of research on depression and on the neuroendocrine basis of mental states (faulty interrelationships between glands and nervous system), and we'll continue researching the psychiatrist's role with heart and cancer patients with chronic pain symptoms as well as terminal illnesses," he said.

It became apparent early in Dr. Hackett's life that he was cut out for a medical career. Born 47 years ago in Cincinnati, he joined the faculty of the University of Cincinnati Medical School at the young age of 13 as an instructor in physiology.

He had obtained a job as a helper in a physiology laboratory at the university and became proficient in the subject by studying textbooks in his spare time. A shortage of instructors created by the draft in World War II led to his being hired to teach a laboratory course.

Dr. Hackett attended the University of Cincinnati, obtaining a Bachelor of Science degree in three years; then earned his medical degree from the same university four years later.

Hoping to become a surgeon, Dr. Hackett interned at a US Public Health Service Hospital in San Francisco and later served a chief medical officer at a federal prison in Chillicothe, Ohio.

He decided that he could not commit himself fully to surgery and came to the MGH and chose between psychiatry and neurology as a future specialty.

The prospect of becoming Dr. Weisman's resident and working with him in the Psychiatric Consultation Service decided the issue. "It not only put me in psychiatry," Dr. Hackett said, "but also kept me in medicine, seeing medical and surgical patients.

"I consider myself first a physician, then a psychiatrist," he said.

Richard Rubin given Oak Hill Park award

Richard B. Rubin of 243 Spiers Road, a sixth grade student at Memorial Sihool, is the recipient of this year's Carl C. Mullen award.

A leather-bound gold inscribed dictionary was presented at a full school assembly with a certificate that said, "Richard B. Rubin . . . is deserving of recognition for having shown qualities of good citizenship and has been selected to receive the Carl C. Mullen award presented annually by the Oak Hill Park Association."

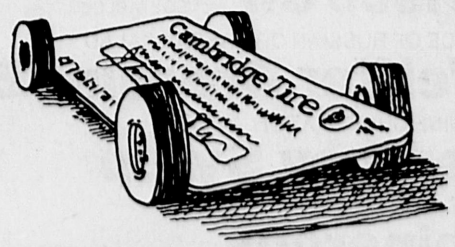

Edward M. Hallett, Jr., chairman of the Award Committee, made the fifteenth annual presentation.

At the ceremony Hallett said, "Carl C. Mullen was appointed commissioner of Newton's Veterans' Housing Authority after World War II.

"He was the man who labored on an unpaid basis with a dedicated spirit for our common good and is responsible in large measure for the great success and pride we now enjoy in our Oak Hill Park community.

"Mullen died December 28, 1961, and the association voted to honor his memory with an annual award to be presented to a student of the Memorial School whose qualities of good citizenship are deserving of recognition."

Temple Reyim will celebrate anniversary

Temple Reyim, Auburndale, will celebrate its 25th anniversary this year. A special committee has been established to commemorate beginning in fall silver anniversary activities throughout the year. The committee is under the general chairmanship of Manny Rosenthal, one of the original temple members.

Participating in activity planning are officers from all branches of the temple along with Rabbi Philip Kieval and Sexton Abraham Hekler. Events have been designed so that each month will include a special affair dedicated to the silver anniversary year.

Included in the tentative schedule: October - Past President's Family Sabbath which will honor all those members who have served in the capacity of president throughout the years and will be headed by Dr. David Perlmutter, senior past president.

November - revue featuring "The Next Move" who will produce and present a satire on modern day living.

December - a special Family Sabbath Supper which will honor past graduates of the Temple Reyim Hebrew School.

January - a Brotherhood Breakfast ennumerating the many contributions of the brotherhood to the temple since its inception.

February - a Combined Brotherhood Breakfast in which Temple Reyim will act as host for all Newton temples.

March - a Kallah retreat weekend including a reception and musical production.

April - a Sisterhood Donor Dinner recounting the strong support provided by the women of the Temple.

May - a special service dedicated to the actual celebration of the 25th year sponsored by the women of the temple and followed by a dinner dance.

Members of the committee include: Maurice Tuchman, Seymour Smoller, Elaine Sandberg, Gertrude Chaletsky, Mark Scholl Alimansky, Ted , Sylvia Shulman, Robert Kramer and Wallace Gleekman.

Hundreds of Lower Falls residents attended the Falls Ball recently at the Hamilton School. The eight-hour event, which featured games and sports for children and adults, dinner, music and squaredancing, is the first annual Falls Ball. The venture was a cooperative effort of Lower Falls merchants, business firms and the Lower Falls Improvement Association.

Charles River Valley Simmons Club celebrates 25th anniversary

The Charles River Valley Simmons Club recently celebrated its 25th anniversary as a club at its annual May meeting and banquet at the Wellesley College Club on the Wellesley campus. At that meeting, the members voted to give $2500 in scholarship aid to students attending Simmons College from the club area (namely, Needham, Wellesley, Dedham, Norwood, Westwood, Walpole, Dover, Newton, Weston). The club has given over $24,500 in aid since its inception in the early 1940's.

On display at the meeting was a bicentennial quilt which is being completely handmade in a "nine patch design" by club members. The club plans to raffle off the quilt this fall as its major scholarship fund-raising project.'

Mrs. Robert Freiburghouse of Newton is the vice-president for 1976-77.

SHOPLIFTING & VANDALISM

. . . LEADS TO PRISON

BUDGET FOR A WOULD-BE SHOPLIFTER!

ITEM: Sun Glasses
PRICE: 75¢
SHOPLIFTER'S COST:

1. Criminal Record
2. Large Fine
3. Imprisonment
4. Public Embarrassment

NOBODY has any patience with shoplifting and vandalism anymore. It isn't a prank. It isn't a lark. It isn't a joke. It's a crime . . . a crime that's responsible for the loss of more than $3 billion worth of retail merchandise and damages every year. If you're caught shoplifting, stores will press charges. If you're convicted, it could mean a seven-year prison term, a $2,000 fine or both. Plus the end of a lot of dreams; an applicant with a police record is barred from most schools and many professions. One mistake can haunt you for the rest of your life. Isn't that a big price to pay for stealing from a store on a dare or vandalizing? Grow up . . . and grow responsible! Remember, shoplifting and vandalism hurt everyone. All of us pay a higher markup to cover loss and security costs.

Army honors Clemente

Saverio Clemente of 9 Jones Ct., Newton, was honored recently with a Department of the Army Suggestion Award from the Army Materials and Mechanics Research Center in Watertown.

The citation to Clemente, who is employed in AMMRC's Prototype materials development branch, read in part: "...He is officially commended for an adopted suggestion which resulted in painting an arc on the floor of the Uranium locker room door and posting a sign, noting that the door opens outward. This is a modification to the original suggestion requesting the installation of a one-way glass window panel, due to the high cost of such installation."

West Newton Savings deposits top $100M

Deposits of West Newton Savings Bank have reached an all-time high of more than $100,000,000 according to Robert P. Lurvey, president.

The $100 million mark was surpassed on July 5 when the largest quarterly dividend in the history of the bank was declared in the amount of $1,450,000.

Lurvey reported that assets had also climbed to a new record peak of more than $109,000,000.

On behalf of the corporators, trustees and entire staff he expressed sincere thanks to the bank's thousands of depositors "whose loyal patronage and confidence in West Newton Savings made it possible for us to achieve this significant deposit milestone."

The bank has paid dividends to its depositors without interruption since it was established in 1887, amounting to a grand total of approximately $54,860,000.

BayBank merger approval filed Tuesday

On Tuesday, July 6, at 7:45 a.m. the Articles of Merger were filed with Sec. of State Paul T. Guzzi to effect the merger of BayBank Newton-Waltham Trust Company, Waltham, and Union Market National Bank, Watertown.

The Union Market offices opened their doors for business under the new name of BayBank Newton-Waltham Trust Company at 8 a.m. July 6, immediately following the filing. This is a culmination of events that commenced in mid-October of last year when the boards of directors of both banks voted unamimously to explore the feasibility of the merger. In December the boards approved the merger subject to stockholder and regulatory approval.

Under the organization of the new bank, Giles E. Mosher Jr. will be chairman of the board and president and Frank S. Jackson will be chairman of the executive committee.

The following persons will constitute the board of directors of the combined bank: Alfred M. Bertocchi, Walter D. Brooks, Jr., William C. Christenson, Timothy X. Cronin, John T. Driscoll, James P. Duffy, James O. Dunn, John A. Farina, James F. Farr, John J. Flynn III, Allan F. Hardy Jr., Robert Haydock Jr., Frank S. Jackson, George C. Jetter, Lester G. Loomis Jr., Donald Monan, S.J. Mosher, Matthew J. Murtha Jr., James C. Nesbitt, William H. Nichols Jr., Ervin Pietz, David W. Stapleton, Harvey H. Thayer, Martin V. Tomassian and G. Richard Westin.

Assets of the combined bank total $371.5 million with deposits exceeding $330 million. Ths six Union Market offices in Watertown will join with Newton-Waltham's 24 serving Newton, Waltham, Weston, Wayland, Lincoln, Sudbury, Natick, Framingham, Marlboro, and Hudson.

Five Reds to start

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Morgan, last season's Most Valuable Player, heads a list of five players from the world champion Cincinnati Reds in the starting lineup representing the National League in the 47th All-Star Game at Philadelphia next Tuesday night.

Morgan, who emerged as the top vote-getter in both leagues with 3,079,082, was named today as the NL's starting second baseman for the fifth straight year, according to the final official figures released by the baseball commissioner's office.

Morgan will be joined by teammates Pete Rose at third base, Dave Concepcion at shortstop, Johnny Bench at catcher and George Foster in the outfield in the NL's starting lineup.

Others named to the NL starting unit are first baseman Steve Garvey of Los Angeles and outfielders Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia and Dave Kingman of New York.

Bench, although not enjoying one of his better seasons, will be the starting catcher for the eighth straight year.

Rose, a starter in the outfield for the last three years, joins Stan Musial and Hank Aaron as the only players in the history of the All-Star Game to start at four different positions. He previously started at second base, left field and right field.

Rivers School sets lacrosse camp

Four of the most successful college and high school lacrosse coaches in New England including Harvard's Bob Scalise and Dartmouth's Bud Hendrick, will be among the staff of The Rivers Lacrosse Camp to be held 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Mon., July 19 to Fri., July 23 at The Rivers School, Weston.

The camp offers technical and tactical instruction for boys ages 12 to 17.

Joining former All-Americans Scalise and Hendrick will be camp director Andy Oleski of perennial state tournament contender Lincoln-Sudbury High School. Oleski was 1974 Eastern New England coach of the year. His team that season was the undefeated state champion.

Gordie Webb, head lacrosse coach at Boston State College, will also be on the staff for the second consecutive year. Webb's teams were undefeated Colonial Division champions in 1974 and 1975.

"We've put together a curriculum that offers a lot of individual instruction and a chance to practice newly learned skills under game conditions. There are scrimmages and team drills every night with players matched by abilities," Oleski said.

The Rivers School waterfront on Nonesuch Pond and the Haffenreffer Gymnasium, including whirlpool and sauna, will be open to all campers.

Lee says he's ready

BOSTON (UPI) — Bill Lee, the Boston Red Sox pitcher injured in a brawl at Yankee Stadium in late May, says he is ready to pitch again.

The left-handed starter threw for the first time Tuesday night and Wednesday lifted weights. He planned to throw again Friday and await a decision by manager Darrell Johnson to reactivate him.

"I get pain when I throw easy and pain when I throw hard. It doesn't make any difference so I'm just going to throw hard all the time," he said.

West LL champ White Sox down Minor all stars, 11-8

The Newton West Minor League season champion White Sox were hard put to salvage an 11 to 8 victory over the Minor League All-Star team in a game played at Lyons Field on Tuesday, June 29.

The All-Star team jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the top of the first inning but that was the last time they led as the White Sox methodically tallied eleven times to the All-Stars six and hung on for an 11-8 win.

Highlights of the game were tremendous blasts off the bat of All-Star Joe Lauricella of the Pirates, one of which cleared the fence in straightaway center, another hitting the base of the fence in almost the same spot and still a third rocket that sent White Sox right fielder Louis Altieri back to the fence to make a fine over the head catch to prevent two All-Star runs.

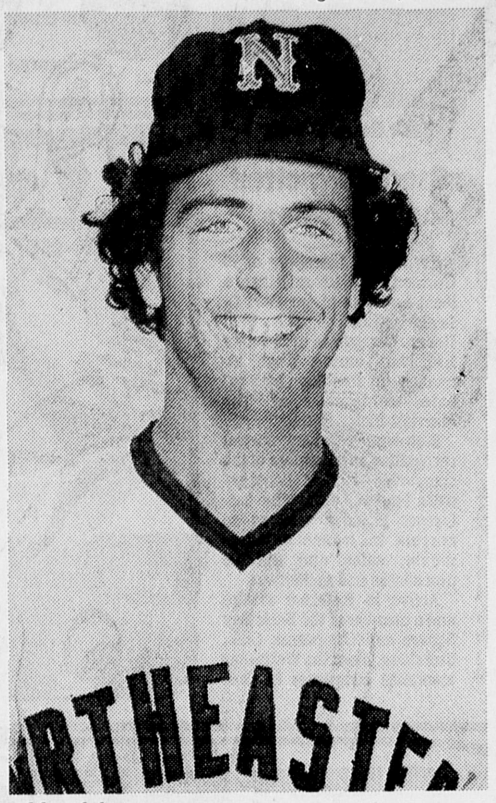

Also worthy of note was the excellent relief pitching of Mark Romano of the White Sox who came on in the fourth inning, struck out six and allowed no runs.

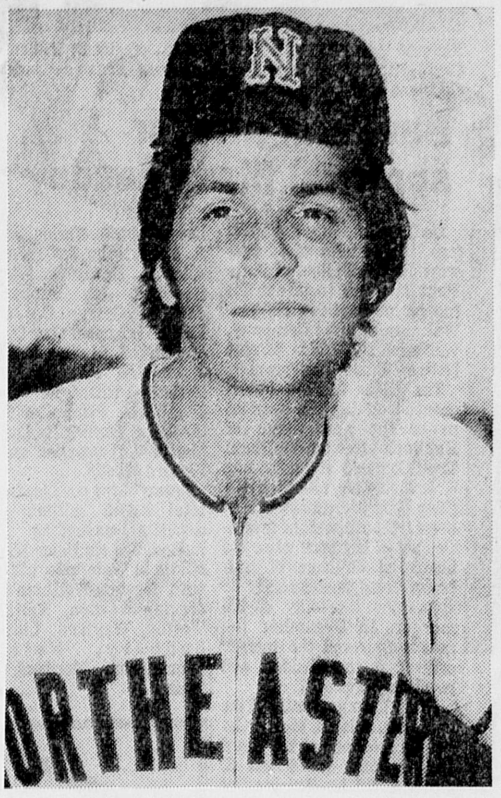

All-Star managers Bob Ashworth (Red Legs) and Paul Putnam (Braves) deserve much credit for their efforts in putting together the All-Star team on short notice and making this a game to remember.

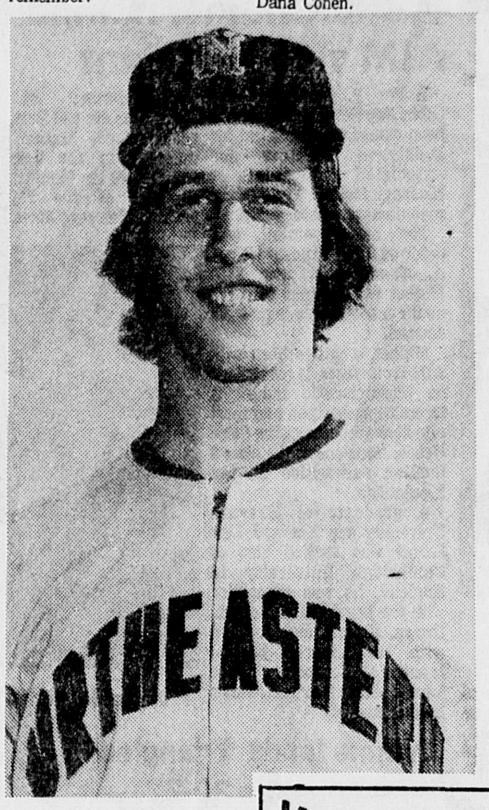

ROSTERS

All-Stars—(Red Legs) John Donahue, Brian Ashworth and Paul Peruzzi; (Braves) Chip Putnam, Jeff Drew and Doug Zito; (Pirates) Joe Lauricella, Chris Chris Callahan and David Boule; (Red Sox) John Baderaco, Mike Walsh and Sean Quinlan; Managers - Bob Ashworth and Paul Putnam.

Huskie letter winners

Three Newton men have received letters from the Northeastern University baseball team. From left are Jack Ferreri, 19 Shute Path, Mark Krentzman, 39 Old Colony Rd., and Ron Wilson, 27 Melbourne Ave. Krentzman, a pitcher, was awarded his fourth letter, Ferreri, another hurler, his first letter, and Wilson, a catcher, received his third letter.

Six local players compete in NELTA junior net tourney

Six local tennis players participated in a New England Lawn Tennis Association sanctioned junior level tournament sponsored by Tennis Now of Watertown and held at Brandeis University.

The finals of the boys 12 and under singles pitted Bobby Bernstein of Newton against Waban's Eric Schlager. Bobby was the victor by a score of 6-1, 6-3. In the 12 and under doubles final Bobby teamed up with Arkie Engle of Brookline to defeat Peter Cooper of Newton and Kurt Litchman of Watertown 6-4, 6-4.

In the boys 14 and under division Ted Scovil was a winner in both singles and doubles. Ted defeated Rob Lorenz of Manchester, Mass. 6-2, 6-1. Ted and Warren Avery of Wellesley defeated Bruce Phillips of Cranston, R.I. and Peter Armbrust of Warwick, R.I. 6-2, 6-2.

In the girls 14 and under Brenda Sabbog of Auburndale defeated Worcester's Debbie Feingold by a score of 6-2, 6-3.

Another local player reaching the finals in her division was Jennifer Stone in the girls 12 and under doubles.

Johnson shrugs off complaints

BOSTON (UPI) — "Who cares?" shrugged Darrell Johnson when asked about mounting complaints over his selection of American League pitchers for next week's All-Star game.

"I don't intend on getting into any controversy. The All-Star game is the thing that counts," the Boston Red Sox and American League All-Stars manager said Wednesday.

Since announcing his ninemember pitching staff would include four relievers with uninspring records, Johnson has born the brunt of nasty words from a pair of pitchers left off the staff.

Baltimore's Jim Palmer called Johnson "an idiot."

Texas' Gaylord Perry said the league office "should disqualify that manager."

"Words are cheap," said Johnson in response. "I don't pay any attention to the things you people are talking about.

"If Wayne Garland, Doug Bird, Dennis Leonard, Bill Campbell or Pat Dobson had complained, I wouldn't blame them a bit because they all had good records at the time we made our choices," he said.

At the time they made the comments, Palmer was 10-7 and Perry 9-5.

The pitchers Johnson selected were starters Mark Fidrych (9-1) of Detroit, Frank Tanana (10-5) of California, Luis Tiant (10-5) of Boston, Catfish Hunter (10-7) of New York and Bill Travers (9-6) of Milwaukee.

The complaints have come in the selection of Chicago's Rich Gossage (5-6), a reliever turned starter this season along with bullpen pitchers Rollie Fingers (4-5) of Oakland, Sparky Lyle (6-5) of New York and Dave LaRoche (0-2) of Cleveland.

Baseball clinic slated at Newton Centre field

On Tuesday, July 13, 1976, the Eddie Pellegrini Baseball Clinic, cosponsored by the Coca Cola Company, WSBK Channel 38, and the Newton Recreation Department, will come to Newton Centre Playground at 1:30 p.m.

The clinic is conducted by a highly qualified staff of instructors under the guidance of former Red Sox infielder Eddie Pellegrini. Joining Pellegrini will be John "Tinker" Connelly, one of Northeastern's finest athletes, and present head baseball coach and this year's president of the New England College Baseball Coaches Association; Moe Maloney, baseball coach at Mass. Bay Community College (New England champions) and this year's New England Coach of the Year; and Tom Walsh, former Red Sox Minor League player and present head baseball coach at Suffolk University.

This one-session clinic provides instruction in the fundamentals of baseball including pitching, position playing, fielding, throwing, and base running. The Coca Cola Company provides a free Coke to the participants and a complimentary ticket for a designated Red Sox game is distributed.

Children who wish to participate in the clinic must have a signed permission slip which can be obtained from their recreation leaders on their respective playgrounds. Children cannot participate in this clinic without this permission slip.

'Grateful Dead' rock band is alive and well

CHICAGO (UPI) — "The universe is vibrating. It's vibrating from uranium to light. And somewhere in there is sound. Sound is just another coherent vibration."

That is the pronouncement of neither a nuclear physicist nor an Eastern mystic. It is the words of Jerry Garcia, "Captain Trips," pivotal figure of the seminal San Francisco rock band, The Grateful Dead, who are marking the climax of their first decade together with a unique tour just for their own special audience.

In 1966, the Dead emerged as the first American band to capture in music the mind-set of the emerging Flower Children (later known as hippies) in Haight-Ashbury. With a soaring, searching kind of rock improvisation, the Dead found themselves on the cutting edge of a generation who experimented with mind-altering drugs and a new kind of music — and they thrived.

At one point in their career, the Dead could have chosen to run for the big money; by sticking with the funky countryrock style of their most popular album, "Workingman's Dead," they could have had swimming pools and Maseratis and homes in the Hollywood Hills.

Instead, they moved on to some bizarre experiments in free-form improvisation that left a large portion of their potential audience far behind. As a result they live comfortably in Marin County near San Francisco, but they are not rich in pop star terms.

Asked about this apparently conscious rejection of what nearly every other rock band dreams of, Garcia acknowledged the audience-challenging, experimental nature of the Dead's music.

"It's a distilling process," he says. "We say, 'Can you dig this, can you follow us here?' And if you can't, you'd better look out, 'cause we're gonna do it anyway. We'll do something until we've done it and then we'll do something else."

In Jerry Garcia's case, this isn't precisely true. Every kind of music the Dead have pursued — from the original "acid rock" to a kind of tripped-out country — has spawned a Dead-related splinter band. Garcia himself, a musician of awe-inspiring eclectic taste and ability, has played on jazz, bluegrass, country and Indian-based albums in the past year alone. And other members of the band have done much the same.

"The idea for us is to stay interested," says Garcia, "and that means having new things to say and new ways to say them. For me they're all developing lines, 'cause I'm still interested in each of them and I go back to them year after year and I have new things to say in each of those frameworks."

The Dead are currently near the end of a seven-city tour that rejects the magnitude of their own mass popularity. Instead of the giant stadiums and sports arenas they could fill with people, Garcia and Co. have chosen to play multiple-night gigs in the smaller houses, relying on a computerized mailing list of longstanding fans instead of advertising to fill the halls.

It amounts to a gift to their core audience — a chance to be close to the people who have supported them through uncounted musical changes and experiments, despite the impossible economics of financing a major tour with such small gates. Needless to say, there hasn't been an unsold ticket yet. It's a kind of money-losing success few Hollywood wheelerdealers would understand.

"Fame and success and all of that are human-eaters," says Garcia. "They'd like for you to go for it. They love it when you go to Hollywood and get yourself a comfortable pad and a swimming pool and get into the pleasure palace trip. And either you go for it or you say, 'No, I don't want that.'"

It is, therefore, refreshing to report that in a time of overwhelming commercialization of the popular music scene, Jerry Garcia and the rest of the Grateful Dead have made their decision about humaneating success: sorry, they aren't interested.

Nudism big tourist lure in Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Vacationers seeking the sun along the Adriatic coast may complain Yugoslavia's roads are not wide enough, hotel services not good enough and the heady Dalmatian wine not cheap enough.

But it's still hard to beat the prices, despite an average increase of 10 per cent this year in the cost of staying at a hotel. With room and board, however, it's still as cheap as $11 a day.

With a keen capitalistic eye out for Western hard currency, this Communist nation is the only one in Eastern Europe to open its borders wide to tourists. For travelers from the United States, all that's needed to get a tourist visa at the border is a valid passport.

Yugoslavia has found it pays to keep the door wide open to the West. The 5.8 million tourists who came last year — 40 per cent from West Germany — pulled $770 million out of their pockets to pay for hotels and restaurants.

Officials expect six per cent more visitors this year and a 15 per cent increase in the money they spend.

"Foreign tourists' interest in Yugoslavia is big this year," said Milan Vukasovic, president of the Federal Tourism Committee. Their interest would be greater if not for the worldwide recession, he said.

Yugoslavia's 470-mile Adriatic coast has room to accommodate them.

Add in the inlets, bays, secluded coves and hundreds of offshore islands and there are 4,100 miles of sandy, pebbly and rocky beaches punctuated by picturesque medieval towns like Dubrovnik.

There's room enough on the coast alone, officials say, to accommodate 2.5 million tourists at a time, although current facilities can only handle 970,000. Up to now, no more than 700,000 have shown up at once, at the height of the season in July and August.

So there's still lots of elbow room in hotels, bungalows, private houses and trailer camps, and secluded spots along the sea still exist.

But things are a-building, fast.

New hotels on the coast have added 14,800 beds this year, bringing the total to 255,000. Their average price, including meals, has increased 10 per cent and some of the more exclusive places have hiked their fees 25 per cent.

A Yugoslav holiday can cost between $11 and $26 a day. For splurgers, exclusive spots like Sveti Stefan island in the southern Adriatic can run to $100 or more.

The majority of Western tourists come from neighboring countries, but also from as far away as Britain and the United States. English is widely spoken throughout the coast.

WHAT A WONDERFUL WAY TO LOSE FAT!
THE "MODEL-ETTS" WAY HELPS CURB YOUR APPETITE—HELPS YOU LOSE THAT EXTRA WEIGHT •NO CALORIE COUNTING! •NO EXERCISES! •NO SPECIAL DIETS!
Thanks to a group of New York doctors, you can now lose pounds of ugly fat without going on any special diet, without cutting out any special foods.
HELPS REDUCE HUNGRY MOMENTS
These New York doctors discovered a food adjuvant called "MODEL-ETTS."
"Model-etts" does remarkable things. It helps you cut down your caloric intake by a natural automatic curbing of the appetite and of the desire for foods, resulting automatically in a reduced intake of food.
Before "Model-etts" was offered to you, it was tested clinically by the doctors on a large group of non-glandular overweight men and women.
The doctors carefully checked results, and here is what they found: 1. Weight losses of 6 to 20 pounds without any ill effects whatsoever. 2. 96% of the men and women who used "Model-etts" lost weight.
"Model-etts" is absolutely safe. It is a food adjuvant—not a drug.
So, start today to shed those unwanted pounds and inches. If your condition is glandular or organic, see your doctor. "Model-etts" may help you stay on the diet you doctor recommends. Ask him about it.
You can get a two month's supply of "Model-etts" for $5.00 on money back guarantee. In clinical tests, "Model-etts" was 96% successful. "Model-etts" may not be 100% successful in all cases, but you take no risk in trying "Model-etts" on our Money Back Guarantee.
Come to General Nutrition to get "MODEL-ETTS." The sooner you start, the sooner you may have the loss of weight you yearn for.

U.N. proposes International Year of the Child in 1979

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Ninety million children around the world suffer from moderate to severe malnutrition, the United Nations estimates.

There are more children receiving no formal education than there are children in school.

"The situation of children in many parts of the developping world deteriorated further in 1975," Henry R. Labouisse, director of the United Nations Children's Fund, told a recent conference.

Labouisse said UNICEF field indicated, "The number of children dying from preventable diseases, suffering from severe malnutrition and missing the educational preparation for a decent life was clearly on the increase."

In the distribution of the world's wealth, children, and especially those in developing countries and especially girls, most often come away with an empty bowl.

To draw world attention to the plight of these children, UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim has proposed the United Nations organize an International Year of the Child to be held in 1979.

The UN has organized international years before: a year for food, a year for population and the International Women's Year. Those events produced varied and often disappointing results, UN officials say.

One thing is certain: if UN members decide to go ahead with an International Year of the Child, the world body itself will try to emphasize action over talk.

Waldheim himself, in his report on the proposal to the General Assembly, warned "the idea of holding a large world conference during the International Year of the Child has generally met with reserve or more negative reactions."

UN officials feel that conferences held in other international years became too heavily politicized and served to divide rather than unite the world community in joint action.

"Our emphasis would be on the basic services that we feel are essential for children," John Charnow, secretary of the UNICEF executive, said in an interview.

The basic services are in the area of maternal and child health, including family planning, safe water supplies and waste disposal, better quality foods and education.

The staggering scope of the task is indicated by these UN figures:

The World Health Organization estimates that about 10 million children under the age of five in developing countries suffer from severe malnutrition. Another 80 million suffer from moderate-level malnutrition.

By 1985 it is estimated that worldwide 375 million children will be out of school, compared with 350 million in school.

World Health Organization figures show that in 91 less developed countries, 85 per cent of the rural population has no access to safe drinking water.

Less than 10 per cent of the rural population of developing countries live within walking distance of a health facility of any kind. That means about 1.8 billion people have to travel, usually on foot, six miles or more to get health care.

The World Bank estimates that about 900 million people in developing countries live in absolute or relative poverty. Of these, 350 million are children under 12 and expectant and nursing mothers.

"The 'quiet emergency' facing millions of children daily ... still exists," Labouisse said.

In many countries, discrimination against female children is traditional and systematic. Boys are given preferential treatment in nutrition and education because they will be expected to contribute to a family's income.

Discrimination against women as an area in which change is needed was emphasized during the International Women's Year. UN officials hope a children's year will draw attention to that problem again.

Officials at UNICEF do not want the year of the child to become their sole responsibility.

Many UN agencies have expressed an interest in participating, Charnow said. "We want it to be system-wide.

"But in fact, the real effort will not have to come from the United Nations. It must be from the governments of the countries involved.

"All we can do really is raise the consciousness of the world community to the problems of children. We can help with advice and training, but the real effort, and the money, will have to come from the governments."

The general assembly will not debate the proposed year of the child until later this year, but UN officials have a growing feeling that it will take place.

Waldheim's proposal to the assembly summed up the hopes of all: "An International Year of the Child, properly prepared and implemented and enjoying widespread government support, could lead to significant and lasting improvements in the well-being of the world's children."

Panel cites change in consumer attitudes

One out of five families say "yes" when they are asked if they have been cheated or deceived in the past year.

"And it is the young, well-educated customer who is most likely to report cheating," says Timothy D. Ellard, senior vice president of Opinion Research Corporation.

Ellard's comments were made at a consumer panel in Lancaster, S.C., representing industry, educators and consumer activists. It was the fourth annual consumer panel sponsored by Spring Mills, Inc. Its topic: anticipated changes in consumerism in the next five years and the effects these changes are likely to have on consumers, business, industry and government. The two-day conference brought together 26 persons representing consumer groups, government, business, education, law, opinion research and news media.

Ellard said his company has been following six specific questions about large companies since 1959.

"Since 1965 there has been a steady deterioration in the public attitudes toward such firms.

"... And more important, this change has occurred in those parts of our population who are most influential.

"... Since 1965, we have seen a steady increase in the proportion of the public that feel that they are worse off financially than they were a year ago."

Ellard said one result is growing willingness on the part of consumers to support an active effort for consumer protection.

Panelists' suggestions and predictions dwelt largely on demands consumers have made in recent years: for more information on products and product life expectancy, more laws protecting consumers against what they call business and industry rip-offs and bettertrained sales people who can answer questions intelligently and accurately about the goods and services they sell.

Peyton H. Clark, a faculty member of the University of North Carolina-Greensboro, agreed with the need to train sales personnel better. She urged business to spend more money on such education:

"... in the long run it could actually make money for them," Dr. Clark said.

Panelists see the consumer movement as largely a middle class phenomenon, and urge its expansion to include aging and low-income households in the next five years. They anticipate more class action suits and whistle-blowing to reimburse and-or protect individuals and households with complaints about products and services.

S. Lee Richardson, president of the Consumer Federation of America, said business in some ways has been responding to consumerism, while the Nixon and Ford administrations have not. Richardson, a professor at Louisiana State University, said he expected the impact of this situation to be felt in one of the next presidential elections. He also said he expects no radical changes in the consumer movement in the next five years, a prediction he finds discouraging. He see little evidence of a unified consumer movement in the United States.

A government official, William V. White of the Consumer Product Safety Commission's Bureau of Information and Education, forecast more conformity in product laws and regulations in the next five years.

"Low income groups and minorities will be louder in demanding protection at reasonable costs," he said, adding that consumers also will expect more specific information on anticipated product life.

Richardson said part of the problem stems from consumers' problems in getting answers from business about their complaints. In many instances, consumers seek scapegoats, he said: housewives picketed stores to protest high grocery prices, but no one explained fully what caused them. He said a similar reaction occurred during the energy crisis.

Richardson said business wants to put down the hatchet and talk with consumer advocates. He also said some consumer groups set themselves up to go beyond what the average consumer wants.

The CPSC official said the trend toward tough state laws in some states is leading industry to move for more federal regulation because they want conformity.

Father-son, mother-daughter parties barred from schools

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Public schools cannot sponsor father-son or mother-daughter events because they violate sex discrimination laws, according to the U.S. Office for Civil Rights.

Schools sponsoring such events run the risk of losing their federal funds, according to a spokesman for the rights office, a division of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The ruling was made recently on a request from the Scottsdale, Ariz., school district to clarify 1972 amendments to the Civil Rights Act which bar sex discrimination in any educational institution receiving federal funds.

The ruling was issued by the regional civil rights office in San Francisco and a HEW spokeswoman here said today that "strictly, legally, no one in the department has a problem with how we have come down on the issue."

"But then the question becomes, is it the intent of Congress?" she added. She said HEW is "prepared to review all of the policy set out in the letter" sent to the Scottsdale school system.

Earlier, a HEW spokesman told the Washington Post the ruling also could apply to PTA-sponsored events if public school facilities are used.

Father-son and mother-daughter events "are an important part of our community life," Scottsdale Public Schools Superintendent William Randall told the Washington Post.

He also told the newspaper the school board plans to ask Congress to overturn the ruling.

In a June 25 letter to Ira C. King, an evaluation coordinator for the Scottsdale public schools , Office of Civil Rights Regional Director John Palomino said father-son banquets or separate mother-daughter events "would be subjecting students to separate treatment ..."

"If the purpose of such functions is to enhance community relations," the letter said, they "would be just as effective if they were student-parent affairs.

"Such an arrangement would prevent a situation which would exclude a male student, for example, who does not have a father to accompany him to a father-son affair."

Lobsterman insulted by Soviet settlement offer

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A lobsterman says he is insulted by a $16,404.95 settlement offer from the U.S.-Soviet Fisheries Claims Board because it did not cover damage to his gear allegedly caused by Soviet fishing boats 18 months ago.

Two Massachusetts claimants said Tuesday they also were dissatisfied and were considering refusing the offers to them.

Fourteen fishermen filed $250,000 in claims against the Soviet fleet for running over their lobster pots in January 1975. About half of the cases have been decided. The board offered to pay eight fishermen a total of $64,088.

Edmond J. Schiller 3rd of Newport said he would reject the offer. He said he was due $40,000 to pay for the wrecked gear and $72,000 to compensate for revenue lost since the incident.

William Whipple of the High Seas Corp. of Fall River, Mass., said his company was awarded only $2,500 of the $15,000 in damages it had claimed. "I'm not sure what we're going to do," he said. "But we're not happy with the decison."

Joanne Goodwin of Marblehead, Mass., was awarded $3,600 of the $22,000 in damages she claimed.

MIT Skinner chair honors late resident

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology has established the David W. Skinner Professorship with funds provided by the late distinguished alumnus of the Class of 1923 who was, until his retirement in 1972, vie president, general manager and vice chairman of the board of directors of the Polaroid Corporation of Cambridge, Mass.

Skinner, who lived in Waban many years, was chief manufacturing officer for Polaroid from 1946 until his retirement, a period that paralleled the company's meteoric rise as a producer of instant cameras for the mass consumer market, died Nov. 16, 1974.

MIT President Jerome B. Wiesner, in announcing the establishment of the chair, said funds supporting the professorship were provided in a trust created by Skinner.

Following his graduation from MIT with a degree in engineering and science, Skinner spent 18 years in managerial positions with the General Electric Co. in several states and from 1942 to 1945 was general factory manager for SKF Industries, Philadelphia.

Skinner was long active in the educational and alumni affairs of the Institute. He was an adviser and friend to four MIT presidents, held some 20 different Alumni Association positions and served in various offices of his class. He was class reunion gift chairman in 1973 on the occasion of the class 50th reunion and reported for the class the largest 50th reunion gift in MIT history. He also served on the Corporation Development Committee and was an active solicitor and donor in each of School's major capital campaigns since his graduation.

"David Skinner spent the last 30 years of his life working diligently to advance education and research at MIT," President Wiesner said. "It was natural for him to do so because of his deep loyalty and attachment to the institute.

"His office at Polaroid in Cambridge was within walking distance of the campus and he was a frequent visitor to institute and alumni meetings, conferences and events. MIT students and faculty were privileged to visit him regularly at his office."

Wiesner said establishment of the Skinner Professorship now is timely in terms of MIT's current $225 million Leadership Campaign which gives priority to the endowment of 50 new professorships.

N-W-W Area Board elects officers for '77

The Newton-Wellesley-Weston Mental Health and Retarda-8 tion Area Board Officers elected 1976-77 are Andrew Baker, president; Newton Von Sander, vice president; Clara Friedman, secretary; and Gene Blumenreich, treasurer.

In addition, the following persons will serve on the executive committee as at-large representatives: Robert Davine, Carol Post, Rev. Sam Hedrick, Joyce Medverd, and Stephen Spangler.

The Area Board welcomed five new members: Catherine Kosa, Amos Nahor, M.D., Joyce Medverd, Stephen Spangler, and David Sullivan.

The board now includes the following representatives ' from Newton: Andrew Baker, Steven Baron, Gene Blumenreich' Robert Chalmers, Robert Davine, Clara Friedman, Rev. Sam Hedrick, Charlotte Kaitz, Catherine Kosa, Amos Nahor, M.D., Carol Post, and Barbara Rubin.

The Area Board is a 21-member citizen group with mandated representation from the three communities (Newton, Wellesley, Weston) and from the fields of mental health and mental retardation. In addition, the Area Board strives to have broad representation from all age groups, ethnic and socioeconomic minorities and the deinstitutionalized population of the area.

The board is mandated by law to serve as liaison between the represented communities and the state Department of Mental Health and to advise and assist the area director in establishing policies, setting priorities and developing and operating programs for comprehensive mental health and mental retardation services for all the people in the Newtonellesley-Weston area.

The Board meets regularly once a month, and members are expected to actively participate in areas of their particular interest. B oard meetings are open to the public and any citizens who are interested in attending andor working with the Area Board are urged to contact the area office (969-3360) for further information.

Most hospital medical school grads stay in area

Two-thirds of the medical students graduating this year have chosen first-year positions in primary care specialties such as internal medicine and pediatrics, according to the National Intern and Resident Matching Program.

This trend seemed to be reflected at Newton-Wellesley's Hospital's graduation ceremony for its interns and residents recently. Three of the hospital's four second-year medical residents are entering the practice of internal medicine in the local area.

Dr. Burt W. Hall, a Newton native, will be going into private practice with his father, Dr. Dudley W. Hall, while Drs. Arthrur R. Kennedy, Jr., of Wellesley and Gregory A. Wagoner will be joining the practice of Dr. Wilmer P. Heath.

Their office will be in the hospital's new medical office building. The recently completed facility houses offices for 52 physicians and is expected to be fully occupied by the end of this month.

Also graduating during the exercises were six first-year residents, five of whom are remaining at Newton-Wellesley for their second year of residency.

Of this year's 10 interns, four will continue at Newton-Wellesley as first-year residents in medicine. Two will be first-year residents in psychiatry at Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York and at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Two others will begin residencies in dermatology at New York University and James M. Jackson Memorial Hospital, Miami, Fla.; one will be an orthopedic resident at the Univrersity of Massachusetts, Worcester, and one will be a first-year resident in surgery at the New England Medical Center.

Newton-Wellesley attracts interns and residents from throughout the country. Through its participation in the National Intern and Resident Matching Program, the hospital has achieved another 100 percent year for its 1976-77 interns. The hospital got its first choice of 10 interns and they, in turn, got their first choice of hospital.

Besides its intern-residency program, the hospital also is a major teaching affiliate of Tufts University School of Medicine. Nearly 90 medical students have received training at the hospital during the past year.

Director of the intern-residency program and of the Tufts teaching program at the hospital is Dr. Lot B. Page, the hospital's chief of medicine.

Sahag Mesrob School finishes 42nd year

Samuel Kapreilian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kapreilian, 259 California St., was a recent graduate of the Sahag Mesrob Armenian School of Watertonwn.

The school held its 42nd commencement exercises and closing Hantes at the St. James Cultural Center, Mt. Auburn Street, Watertown.

Mrs. Marta Batmasian, superintendent, presented each graduate with a diploma and a gift and was joined by Rev. Dajad Davidian and Mrs. Eva Medzorian, chairman of the executive board, in offering congratulations to be students.

The Sahag Mesrob Armenian School will open for the 1976-77 school year on Sept. 13. Classes willbe held on Monday and Wednesday afternoons for the Watertown children and on Saturday mornings for children from surrounding communities.

OBITUARIES

Marjorie Holland

Marjorie L. Holland, 38, of 280 Cherry St., West Newton, died Monday (July 5) in Waltham Hospital after a long illness.

The funeral will be Friday (July 9) from the T. J. Lyons Funeral Home' 1479 Washington St., West Neaton, with a 10 a.m. mass in St. Bernard's Church.

Miss Holland was a graduate of St. Bernard's High School and Windham Secretarial School. She had worked at radio station WCRB in Waltham and several Boston radio stations.

Prior to her illness four years ago, she had been employed as a hostess at Chateau deVille in Framingham.

Miss Holland is survived by her parents, Stephen J. and H. Louise Holland of West Newton; two brothers, Stephen of Waltham and Thomas of Wayland; a sister, Mrs. Sabina M. Gannon of West Newton; and several nieces and nephews.

Burial is in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Moses Craven

Moses Craven of 42 Evelyn Rd., Waban, died in Germany June 27 while vacationing.

Mr. Craven was born in Boston and was a pharmacist.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Evelyn Pofcher Craven.

Services were held July 1 in Sharon Memorial Park. Rabbi Terry Bard of Newton officiated. Arrangements were made by Levine Chapel, Brookline.

Henry Hofmann

Services were held at 11 a.m. Thursday (July 8) in Stanetsky-Schlossberg-Solomon Chapel, Brookline, for Henry Hofmann.

Mr. Hofmann, 60, of Newton Centre, died suddenly Tuesday (July 6). A native of Germany, he immigrated to this country when he was 20 and had lived in Newton since 1948.

Well-known in the shoe industry, he was the owner and operator of Rosenberg's Shoe Store, Cambridge.

He was a member of Temple Shalom, a former member of Temple Israel, a past board member of the Immigrants Mutual Aid Society, the Jewish Big Brother Association and the Knights of Pythias.

Mr. Hofmann is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rita Hofmann; and his daughter, Mrs. Susan Arnowitz of Waltham.

Burial is in Temple Israel Cemetery, Wakefield.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Growing plants in water—Some gardeners have good luck raising certain flowering and foliage plants in plain tap water, a method grandmother used years ago. This is called "water gardening" today and is useful only for certain plants. Here are a few you can try: arrow head plant (Syngonium); chinese evergreen (Aglaeonema); coleus (foliage plants); corn plant (Dracaena); Croton, Devil's ivy (Pothos or Epipremnum); Dumb cane (Dieffenbachia); dwarf umbrella plant (Cyperus); English Ivy (hedera), Japanese Sweet Flag (Acorus); Moses in the Cradle (Rhoeo); Sandler's Dracena, Spathe flower (Spathiphyllum); Senecio (German ivy); Swedish ivy (Plectranthus), variegated wandering Jew (Tradescantia and Zebrina), to name a few.

You can use plain tap water, and don't worry if it has been chlorinated or fluoridated. Some add some washed gravel, coarse sand, sea shells (make sure they are washed), pearl chips, etc. to anchor the roots. As the water is used up, you simply add more, without changing it. Also add a few pieces of charcoal to keep the water sweet.

Picking petunia blossoms—Does it pay to remove the spent blooms and seed pods on the flowering plants such as petunias, snaps, etc? If these are growing in porch pots, window boxes, etc, it does help to remove old blooms and seed pods, especially with petunias. If the plants are in beds, it's hardly worth the effort to go around snipping off the seed pods. When the plants get long, sprawly or leggy, cut them back half way to encourage new growth. There's no doubt about it, removing spent blooms and seed pods is good for plants, improves their looks and diverts strength into the plants rather than into seed production.

Squash blossoms dropping?—Don't be alarmed if the blossoms of your squash, pumpkins, melons drop off. Most of these plants produce more male than female flowers, and it's only the male blossoms that shed. Squash inpumpkin produce 5 to 10 male blooms to 1 female, and only a small per cent of the female blossoms naturally develop into normal fruits. The males and excess or unpollinated female blossoms dry up and fall off. Ever try making squash blossom soup? Pick male blooms (the female blossoms have a small nub at the base), soak them in salt water to remove any insects, drain, and dip in a batter made of 1 egg, 2 tablespoons flour, salt, pepper and finely chopped parsley. Cook in cooking oil until brown, drain on absorbent paper and serve with meat.

Green Thumb Clinic—"My neighbor raised some round white radishes last year and they were mighty sweet and tasty. What variety is this?"

Answer: There is a variety called White Prince, which grows to golf ball size, crisp and mild, even when this large. Flesh is pure white. You can sow them now, but keep plants well watered.

26 horses found dead

DUGWAY, Utah (UPI) — Twenty-six wild horses have been found dead at a waterhole on the Dugway Proving Grounds in the Cedar Mountains range of western Utah, according to the Army.

Sixteen others were found ill at the Orr Springs waterhole on the western slope of the mountains.

"The cause has not been determined," said Dugway Proving Ground spokesman Steve Horran Tuesday. "Dugway has not conducted open air tests with toxic agents or noxious materials since 1969."

A crew aboard a plane on a routine security check saw the dead horses Sunday night. Army and veterinarians were sent to the scene. They were joined Monday by consultants from the Bureau of Land Management and Utah Department of Agriculture.

Teacher hits it rich

WARWICK, R.I. (UPI) — Former VISTA volunteer Mary C. Taft of West Warwick hasa pleasant dilemma: deciding how to spend $1,000 a month for the rest of her life.

As family and friends broke into screams and applause, the first grade teacher at Warwick's Park School became the top winner Tuesday in the Rhode Island Lottery's Grand Lot Superdrawing.

"I haven't decided yet," she said when asked what she plans to do with the money. She is guaranteed a minimum of $400,000, of which the federal government will take a large chunk.

Miss Taft, 29, said she intends to continue her career. "I love teaching," she said. "Teaching's my thing."

Grand opening for Norwood Radio Shack

A new Radio Shack store will open Wednesday and Thursday, July 7 and 8, 1976 at Norwood Plaza, 144 Nahatan Street, Norwood, MA. 02062.

Radio Shack, the nation's leading electronics store chain, sells a complete line of home entertainment products and electronic parts, kids and components. The new store will feature their exclusive Realistic brand stereo music system components, citizens band two-way radios and a variety of other electronics and hobby items.

The company presently has more than 4,600 stores and dealers in all 50 states and Canada, as well as over 400 stores in seven countries operating under the name Tandy International Electronic. This is the 46th store they have opened in the Boston area.

Radio Shack is a division of Tandy Corporation (NYSE). For the nine months ended March 31, 1976, the company reported an increase of 119 percent in per share amounts of income from continuing operations over the nine month period ending March 31, 1975.

Sales for the nine months ended March 31, 1976 compared to the same period last year rose 42 percent. For the nine months ended March 31, 1976 Tandy reported sales of $557,013,468 from continuing operations. For the comparable period last year sales were $391,208,554.

Income from continuing operations was $46,066,119, up from $21,160,618 a year ago. Earnings per average common share from continuing operations were $2.54 compared to $1.16 last year. The per share information gives effect to a two-for-one split of common stock which was distributed on January 9, 1976 to stockholders of record on December 12, 1975. Average shares outstanding on March 31, 1976 were 18,098,577, compared to 18,216,700 on March 31, 1975.

Radio Shack is unique in that they own and operate extensive manufacturing facilities in the United States, Canada, Japan, and South Korea which produce a considerable share of the company's merchandise.

All Radio Shack stores in all 50 states, Canada and overseas offer service and original factory parts for any Radio Shack products, regardless of where the item was originally purchased. Their exclusive line of electronics products are sold under the nationally known Realistic, Micronta, Archer, Science Fair and Archer Kit brand names.

Fireworks claim four lives

BOSTON (UPI) — The National Fire Protection Association said four persons in the nation were killed and 15 others seriously injured in accidents involving firecrackers during the Fourth of July weekend.

"It is our sincere hope that this Bicentennial year will be the last year the association has to gather morbid statistics to prove a point — illegal and promiscuous use, sale and transportation of fireworks causes unnecessary tragedies, especially among children," Association President Charles S. Morgan said Tuesday.

The fatalities included three children in Silverton, Ore., killed while playing with sparklers when the room they were in caught fire.

A Rhode Island man died when a device he was about to throw out of a window exploded prematurely.

Vocation or Avocation

Q. Frankly I enjoy your column, however, let me come right to the point. I have been deliberating for the past six months as to whether or not I should continue my study of astrology as an avocation or take it on as my vocation. I lean towards the latter. Your opinion would be deeply appreciated. I was born on November 10, 1945 at 4:35 a.m., E.S.T., in Chelsea, Mass.

A. In medicine, law or most professions, to maintain competence it is necessary to continue to study. However, a reasonable degree of ability and skill should be acquired before attempting to practice publicly. Most professions require proof of such by examinations and licensing. Regetfully at present there are no statutes on the books in this state requiring the licensing and regulating of the public practice of astrology.

Your letter does not reveal how long you have studied the subject, with whom, your background or other pertinent facts to judge your experience or competence. Any consultant assumes a heavy responsibility when advising others and in addition to technical knowledge, should have a sympathetic understanding of the weaknesses of humanity and apply the knowledge constructively.

As you probably have observed, your horoscope shows Mercury in Opposition to Uranus, both the Moon and Sun Quincunx Uranus, Jupiter Trine Uranus and Pluto in Sextile to Uranus. Your Pluto, Mars and Saturn close to your midheaven cautions you to go slow and be thorough before starting.

Since your Progressed Sun has been making the exact opposition to both your birth and progressed positions of Uranus in the last two years, may I suggest that you continue to study and practice as a hobby for a while longer.

TWO HUNDRED YEARS AGO a handful of rebellious free-thinkers stood fearfully but firmly before the strongest power on earth and declared their independence. They fought a long, bloody war and emerged victorious. From that war was born the Constitution of the United States, breathing life into a federal republic which has stood longer than any other government.

Real estate facts you should know

Death and taxes, said Benjamin Franklin, are the only things in this worls that are certain. There is no escape from either, but in the death of one marriage partner, there may be a way for the surviving home-owing spouse to save on Federal taxes on the value of that home.

There is, of course, another consideration when one marriage partner dies: the home should pass speedily to the surviving partner without administrative red tape or cost.

Let's look at three types of home ownership to determine in general the advantages and disadvantages of each:

Sole ownership of the home by one marriage partner — should the marriage partner who does not own the home die first, obviously, there would be no administrative red tape or tax problem involving the home.

However, red tape, administrative costs, and taxes prove a problem when the home's owner dies first. Establishing ownership would take time, preventing the surviving partner from selling, renting or mortaging the home.

Jgint tenancy — under this form of ownership, administrative red tape and the accompanying delay in establishing ownership would be eliminated. The surviving partner receuves title automatically upon the death of the spouse.

Powever, there are disadvantages. In joint tenancy, the amount of equity built up in the home is added to the gross estate of the first to die, satistically usually the husband whose estate might already be large.

The federal estate tax then is applied to that gross estate. The same tax also is applied to the estate upon death of the other partner.

Tenancy in common — as tenants in common, the advantage of minimim red tape in establishing ownership still applies. There also could be a considerable tax saving over joint tenancy, especially if the couple has owned the home for many years and has built up a great deal of equity.

Fvr example, let's say the husband, who often is the sole contributor in the purchase of the home, makes a gift of one-half the ownership to his wife. No gift tax would apply if no previous gifts were made and equith in the home did not exceed $132,000.

This procedure would remove half of the home's equity from the husband's gross estate. Assuming he dies first, the value of his estate would be reduced by the amount of equity now owned by his wife. The tax on his estate would be less, possibly several thousand dollars less. When the wife dies, the estate pays gn her gross estate, including the full amount of the equity.

The only added cost in tenancy in common would be charges in each estate attributable to inclusion of the home in the probate estate, an amount usually much less than the estate tax that would be imposed under joint tenancy. (If you choose tenancy in common, both marriage partners would have to include a clause in their wills disposing of their interest in the home.)

A word of caution: each family's financial situation is different and benefits from one form of ownership or another vary from case to case. Il's best to seek legal assistance in determing which form of ownership is most advantageous for you and your spouse.

MAGNETIC JUPITER

HOUSTON (UPI) — Information provided by the Pioneer space missions suggests Jupiter acts as a giant vacuum cleaner, constantly sucking in small particles of dust from a very large region of space.

According to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Pioneers found there are about 170 times as many meteoroids striking Jupiter's atmosphere as strike the Earth for same-sized areas.

JUPITER MOONS

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Pioneer space missions have provided scientists with additional information about the composition of the moons of Jupiter.

National Aeronautics and Space Adminstration scientists are particularly interested in Jupiter's four planet-sized satellites, all of which they say would be visible to the naked eye.

Of those, the scientists say Ganymede may be a drop of water the size of Mercury covered with an icy outer crust, and Europa appears to be sheathed in ice — like a snowball with a rock inside.

National League roundup

Garvey leads Dodgers by Phils

Remember the Seabees' famous World War II motto: "The difficult we do immediately; the impossible takes a little longer?"

Well, Steve Garvey feels pretty much the same after the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Philadelphia Phillies, 5-1, Tuesday night for their second straight victory over the National League's runaway leaders in the Eastern Division.

The Dodgers still trail the first-place Cincinnati Reds by 5½ games in the West but when you can beat the Phillies two in a row you feel ready to hunt bear with a switch.

"Beating the Phillies has to give us confidence," said Garvey, "because they have been the best team in baseball this year."

Reggie Smith and Steve Yeager each tripled and Garvey contributed a key hit-and-run single as the Dodgers scored five runs off Larry Christenson in the third inning and went on to win behind the six-hit pitching of Doug Rau. Mike Schmidt hit his 22nd homer in the first inning for the Phillies' only run off Rau.

The Reds defeated Montreal, 10-7, Atlanta beat Pittsburgh, 4-2, Houston scored a 1-0, 10-inning victory over New York, Chicago whipped San Diego, 4-0, and St. Louis outslugged San Francisco, 13-7, in the other NL games.

In the American League it was: New York over Kansas City, 7-4, after a 3-1 loss, Boston 4 Chicago 0, Texas 3 Detroit 2, Milwaukee 6 Minnesota 2, Oakland 2 Baltimore 0, and Cleveland 7 California 3. Reds 10, Expos 7:

Ken Griffey, George Foster and Dan Driessen led a 14-hit attack by driving in two runs each for Cincinnati, which dealt former teammate Clay Kirby his sixth loss against one victory. The Reds, who took advantage of five Montreal errors to score four unearned runs, broke open the game with a five-run burst in the seventh inning. Rawly Eastwick, second of three Cincinnati pitchers, was the winner with Don Gullett finishing up.

Westwood slo-pitch softball

By EARL MARRYAT

Nine games were played last week in the Westwood Slo-Pitch Softball League with all teams playing two games each. The Dukes, Skyway Cleaners and the Slingtown Sluggers were the big winners, all victorious in the both games they played.

High Street Market, Westwood Teachers Association and Green Mountain Park had to settle with a split of their games while the Red Devils, HoJos and Dip N' Sip all dropped a pair.

Dukes 13, High St. Market 11

The game of the week was the hard fought battle between the Dukes and High Street Market, a game that wasn't decided until the last out. The marketmen broke on top with the help of a Bob West home run and led 7-2 after just two innings.

The Dukes then started to play catchup and eventually tied the score at 8-all in the fifth. High Street Market momentarily regained the lead 9-8 in the sixth but a big five run home half in the inning saw the Dukes tally reach thirteen for the game.

Highlight of the inning was the long ball. Joe Ciriello and George Donaruma each homered for the winners and dick chait tripled to aid the cause.

High Street Market rallied for two runs in the seventh inning but they fell short in trying to overcome the Dukes lead. The loss by the marketmen temporarily dropped them below 500 but they quickly evened their season's record the next night when they easily defeated HoJos, 16-3.

Fresh from their big victory over High Street Market the Dukes continued lheir winning ways with a 13-3 romp of the Westwood Teachers Association who were shutout until the final inning.

Sluggers Win Sixth Straight

After losing their first three games of the season the Slingtown Sluggers have stormed back with six victories in a row and third place in the league standings. This winning streak includes two wins last week over HoJos and the Red Devils respectively.

The Sluggers-HoJos game was tied 10-all after six innings but an 8 run explosion in the top of the seventh made things easy at the end for the Sluggers. HoJos managed a lone tally in their half but Slingtown came away with the victory, 18-11. Duncan Aspinwall had a perfect 4 for 4 at the plate to lead the Sluggers attack.

Slingtown added the Red Devils to their list of victims with a 15-5 beating thus extending their win streak to six. The big hitter in this game was John McNamara with 4 safties including a triple and double.

The Red Devils are now seventh in the standings but are a better club than their record shows. More than any other team they have been having difficulty fielding 10 men. Let's hope some of their regulars will be able to make their games from now on.

Otherwise, they can beef up their team by drawing names from the player pool.

Skyway 16, Dip N' Sip 5

For three innings Dip N' Sip stayed close, trailing only 6-4, but a six run fourth inning and a four run fifth iced the game for the Skyway Cleaners.

A well balanced attack featuring 22 hits by the shirt starches was just too much for the cruller crunchers. Leading the way once again was the Burgess Avenue Bomber, Tom Horne, who went 4 for 5 at the plate, good for 7 total bases, 4 runs scored and 6 batted in. Bob Berraro, Gordie Snyder, Russ French and Larry Clark all added 3 hits for the winners.

Skyway 12, Red Devils 4

An undermanned Red Devils team led by Arthur Radin's two run home run managed to stay even with Skyway through five innings but the cleaners came out of their lethargy with two runs in the sixth and seven runs in the seventh to win going away, 12-4.

Tom Horne had a single, double and triple in the game and Tony Scarlata contributed a two run homerun for Skyway. All-Star Scarlata will be leaving Skyway for three weeks soon and his absence will definitely be felt.

The win was the seventh of eight games played by Skyway and enabled them to stay in a two way tie for first place with the Dukes. Tomahawk Tom Horne leads the club in hitting with a lusty 700 batting average and an unbelievable 1300 slugging average. His hits have been with men on base been with men on base as he has no less than 14 runs batted in for the season so far.

Other Games

Green Mountain Park defeated Dip N'Sip 9-6, but earlier in the week lost to the Westwood Teachers Association 13-4 in what some consider to be an upset. In the Green Mountain-Teachers game, two 3 run home runs in the first and second innings by Dick Gibbons gave the Teachers a lead they never reliquished.

This contest was truly Dick Gibbons' game as he continued his hot hitting later on when Green Montain seemed to be coming back.

Larry Vallencourt also had a home run for the winners. The mountaineers made a mild counter attack and by the sixth inning trailed the Teachers, 9-4. However, the Teachers went to work again on hits by Dick Hargreaves, Mike Niles, Ray Kodzas and of course Gibbons.

The win, only the second in nine outings enabled the Teachers to vacate the cellar. They could be tough from now on. The loss by Green Mountain prevented them from moving into a third place tie in the standings with the Slingtown Sluggers.

Browns sign 2

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Two rookie tackles selected in the player draft, Henry Sheppard of Southern Methodist and Steve Cassidy of Louisiana State, were signed by the Cleveland Browns Tuesday.

Fidrych tries to get used to publicity

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Mark Fidrych says he will never get used to the publicity he's receiving. But he might as well try.

As long as the Detroit Tigers' right-handed pitching sensation continues to chat with the baseball, stomp around the mound and keep the hitters off the bases, he's going to pick up attention.

Fidrych walked into all of that attention this week at Arlington Stadium. It wasn't as if it was his first trip to Texas. He had outpitched Bert Blyleven here a month ago.

But since then he has made an impressive appearance on national television and has become a selection on the American League All-Star team in his rookie season. Thus, he has become much more of a commodity around the league. And he seems quite ready to fulfill his obligation.

Fidrych has endlessly signed autographs before each Texas-Detroit game. And, while he was doing that, he talked nonstop with the ever-increasing crowd of reporters and broadcasters.

He has let loose with such tidbits as:

—"The batter wants to burn me just as bad as I want to burn him. It's a real war out there."

—"The most people I ever pitched before in Evansville was 3,000. Now, I'm pitching before 50,000. Wow!"

—"Being selected to the all-star game is a reward for a player and, obviously, I am proud of the reward. But the all-star game is just one game and I have to worry about the season, too,"

Fidrych's antics, combined with the fact he throws the ball over the plate, keeps it low and has a 9-1 record, have made him one of the most entertaining folks to come along in quite a while.

Fidrych has become so popular that some fans apparently even want pieces of his clothing as souvenirs.

Before Tuesday night's Texas-Detroit game, while Fidrych was signing autographs near his dugout, a stocky teenaged boy reached through the crowd and ripped Fidrych's cap off. The youngster ran through the stands and escaped with the cap while Fidrych yelled a few obsenities at him.

But the Detroit hurler calmed down and finally accepted the incident as part of his growing fame and began signing autogaphs again.

Despite his new stature, the 21-year-old from Worcester, Mass., is still in awe of the scene.

"I'll never get used to all this," he said. "What I'm going through right now is really a trip. It's something that I'll always remember. Right now I'm a happy person and I plan to stay that way."

"When people come out to the park they don't just see me. They see those grat plays behind me that the guys have been making all year."

Accident at Olympics

MONTREAL (UPI) — Finnish athlete Jussi Pelli became the first accident victim of the 1976 Summer Olympics Tuesday when he sprained his right ankle during training for the modern pentathlon event.

Pelli was treated at the Olympic Village medical centre, where doctors put his ankle in a cast. It was not known how long Pelli would have to remain off his foot.

1977 Chevrolet Bison with Van Trailer

Bison joins the Chevy herd

The Bison, an all-new long nose conventional cab heavy-duty truck, joins the Chevrolet lineup in 1977 to broaden the division's offerings in the heavy-duty truck market.

The result of an extensive five year research and development effort, the Bison gives Chevrolet a durable runningmate to the popular Titan 90 tilt cab models.

The tandem axe Bison is designed and engineered to meet the highly selective requirements of the heavy-duty owner-operator market as well as a wide range of other vocational hauling needs.

A full selection of components is available to tailor the Bison to any specific job application on or off the highway. Offered in two BBC (bumper to back of cab) lengths, the Bison's rugged and massive look is readily identified with the Bison hood ornament and a charging bison on each side of the hood.

Bison highlights include:

–Two BBC lengths of 108 and 116 inches.

–Welded aluminum cab with steel doors and extensive use of sound deadener and insulation for quiet and comfort.

–Tipover hood and fender assembly of molded reinforced fiberglass with seven replaceable parts bolted together for easy servicing.

–Full complement of appearance and comfort options including custom interior, two-tone exterior paint, stereo radio, sleeper box and air conditioning.

--Chassis components designed for maximum interchangability and ease of ervicing.

–Power trains for virtually every need, including 15 engines, 29 transmissions and four auxiliary transmissions and 15 rear axles.

The 108-inch BBC Bison is designated as the N-Series and the 116-inch BBC as the M-Series. Capacities range up to 55,080 pounds gross vehicle weight and 80,000 pounds gross combination weight.

Among the Bison interchangeability and easy servicing chassis component features are:

1. Engine corss member of bolted three-piece construction so that the lower section can be removed and the transmission dropped without removing the engine.

2. A pre-wired instrument cluster panel featuring snap-n, front mounted, removable gauges for ease of servicing and replacement. Circuit breakers are ued instead of fuses.

3. Two electrical junction blocks are located on the firewall to provide single point for cab and engine wiring to come together for easy access. Also, an electrical equipment access panel is located between the driver and passenger seats with switches, buzzers and relays in a group. A diagram of the vehicle's entire wiring system is located on the inside panel cover.

4. Air brake lines are made of nylon tubing and color-coded as to function (½-inch for supply or constant pressure lines and ⅜-inch for variable pressure delivery). They are wrapped in a vinyl taped harness in line with the GM exclusive plumbing concept.

5. A NEW MAINTENANCE FREE BATTERY FEATURING A COMPLETELY SEALED FLUID SUPPLY, CHARGE INDICATOR AND STAINLESS STEEL TERMINALS.

¾. Two new air brake valves including a new tractor protection valve and a second valve that is the instrument package manifold mounted in the upper center of the firewall. (The latter serves as the main air junctionoutside the cab).

7. Postive locking connectors called Pack-Con eliminate the problem of unseated electrical connection that appears to be fully engaged. The Pack-Con connectors must be fully locked in place or they will immediately disassemble themselves.

The 108-inch BBC Bison serves the highly-vocationalized market while the 116-inch BBC unit excels as an over-the-highway tractor.

The diesel engine selection features ten Detroit Diesels including the 6V-92TT, 8V-71TT and 8V-92TT "Fuel Squeezers" and five Cummins including the new KT-450. The engines range from 219 to 342 net horsepower.

Standard transmissions include a 10-speed and a 13-speed Fuller. There are 20 Fuller and seven Spicer optional transmissions as well as four Spicer auxiliary transmissions.

There are 15 available Rockwell and Eaton rear axles of 34,000 to 55,000 pounds capacity. Differing standard power trains are offered in the various Bison models for both N-Series and M-Series.

Additional Bison equipment features are dual air brakes, standard 12,000-pound and optional 16,000-pound front axles, full depth straight channel frame of heat-treated steel and dual horns and mirrors.

Twelve solid colors and a prime are available for the exterior. Further choices include a solid clor with wide tri-color decal in matching color or contrasting shade along the length of the upper hood and door. A wide choice of two-tone combinations features a primary color on cab doors and sides of hood with secondary color on roof, hood, pillars and top door edge that is separated from the primary color by a decal.

The custom interior includes wood grained instrument panel and saddle color carpeting. The AM-FM stereo radio is available with tape player. Five tpes of driver and passenger seats are offered. The optional 34" aluminum sleeper box features two side doors, a 30-inch wide six-inch foam rubber mattress, vents, lights and belt restrainers.

Lancia comes to Quincy by way of Nick's Foreign Cars

QUINCY — The Lancia for 70 years has ranked among the world's finest automobiles and has been synonymous with outstanding engineering, performance, workmanship, and comfort.

This prestigious automobile franchise has been awarded to Nick's, giving them a complete line of luxury and sports cars.

Nick's Foreign Car Sales & Service, Inc., is starting its 14th sucessful year in the foreign car business under the able direction of Nicola Masciarelli, President, and his wife, Annamaria, Comptroller and Treasurer.

It all started in Italy when Nicola, a young Mechanical Engineer graduate, opened and directed his own automobile repair school and became a technical consultant for Fiat dealers in Italy.

In 1959 he arrived in the U.S.A., settling in Quincy, Massachusetts. At the request of a Chevrolet dealer, he served as a consultant and did work on Fiats.

In 1962 Nicola opened his Fiat dealership, at the present location, in a small garage with four employees. Since then, the company has expanded to four buildings, including a showroom, which holds eleven cars, and a modern, one-stop, service center manned with factory-trained personnel from Italy under the direction of Sam Salamone, Service Manager. Sam has spent 25 years in auto service,consisting of 10 years at Nick's Foreign Cars.

The Parts Department is well stocked with a complete inventory of parts and accessories. Thomas Palange, Manager, with 10 years experience in Foreign Automobilies, will assist and expedite your needs.

Sales is directed by Jim Canaris with 30 years experience in both foreign and domestic cars. Jim headed his own establishment on Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, MA, a large volume AMC dealership. He brings a wealth of retail knowledge to Nick's Foreign Crs.

Mercedes-Benz Diesel: the 789,000-mile car

MONTVALE, N.J. — Tired of built-in obsolescence? Try a diesel. Warren Angstadt of Wernersville, Pa., owns a diesel-powered 1953 Mercedes-Benz that has been driven 789,000 miles. The model 170SD is still in daily use and on one recent trip went 475 miles on 13 gallons of fuel, a thrifty 36.5 miles per gallon.

Angstadt is a retired tool and diemaker who previously commuted 138 miles a day to and from his job at the U.S. Mint in Philadelphia, putting on from 700 to 1600 miles per week.

He bought the 40-horsepower four-door sedan for $735 from the original owner's daughter in late 1958. At the time he got it, the car had traveled over 60,000 miles, but Angstadt had every intention of putting on many more thousands because of his experience with his first Mercedes-Benz diesel, a 180D he and Mrs. Angstadt drove a total of 348,000 miles.

He originally became interested in diesel cars through his experience with large diesel engines in the navy. Diesels differ from conventional gasoline engines in that the fuel is burned with a great deal more air, and ignition is caused by the heat of compression rather than by a spark plug.

The result is a powerplant that delivers 50 to 70 per cent better fuel economy than a gasoline engine and has a very low level of harmful exhaust emissions without use of a catalyst or other add-ons.

The diesel's absence of distributor, points, condenser, spark plugs, and ignition wiring, as well as carburetor, eliminates the requirement for periodic tune-ups. Over the long term, the greater structural strength — to contain the higher combustion pressures — and relatively simple operating principle of the diesel have earned it a reputation for reliability and longevity.

First again

This time Dodge is first with a short wheelbase front section chassis for smaller, more compact mini-motorhomes. This MB300 109-inch chassis is currently being used by two motorhome manufacturers–Fleetwood and Champion. Dodge built the first motorhome chassis in 1958 and the first front section for mini-motorhomes in 1971. Dodge, the recreation vehicle industry's number one supplier of chassis, offers eight front section chassis for mini-motorhomes and six stripped chassis for full size motorhomes.

Winners

In a recent contest sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of French, Newton North High School had five winners (from left): Robert Smilg, Denise Joseph, Liz McNary, Brett Goldberg and Steven Karel. As first place winners, Goldberg, McNary and Smilg won three of five national awards given in this region. In addition, Miss McNary won first place in the country for second-year French. A total of 43,600 students in the United States participated in this contest.

Sundells establish scholarship for Israel's Ben Gurion University

In special ceremonies at Ben Gurion University of the Negev, in Beershiba, Israel, Jeremiah and Faye Sundell of Newton last month established the university's first scholarship fund "created by Boston residents as a vehicle for helping the underprivileged."

In attendance were a delegation of Greater Boston community leaders, officials of Ben Gurion University, and nine students who were the first recipients of the scholarship grant.

"We chose to establish a scholarship fund, rather than provide this educational institute with a building, because we believe direct assistance will provide hope and opportunity to younng people who might not otherwise have the opportunity to develop their intellectual power, and because such young people are the root strength for Israel's survival and security," said Sundell.

"We chose Ben Gurion University because of all educational institutions in Israel, it has the greatest need and the greatest purpose."

Sundell, who has served as general chairman of the Greater Boston Israel Bonds Committee, declared, "Early in my relationship with Israel, I was inspired by David Ben Gurion, who imparted to me, along with many others, his conviction that the future of Israel lies with the development and colonization of the Negev desert."

"Ben Gurion University has this goal as its unique mission. It is fulfilling this mission by creating new programs to make the desert habitable, by developing areas where new population can be integrated, and by bringing science, industry and especially education to this vast arid section of Israel."

Josef Tekoah, former Israeli ambassador to the United Nations, now serving as president of Ben Gurion University, hailed Sundell's scholarhship grant as a "dramatic and vital demonstration of creativity in thought and purpose."

President Tekoah estimated that as a result of the creation of Ben Gurion University, there will be a population of 5 million eventually residing in the Negev. He stressed that the University is serving an additional purpose of educating immigrants who have come to Israel from North Africa and Asia — "and who are distant to others from Europe in terms of social, economic and educational achievment."

Dramatic witness to the Tekoah prophecy was evident in the first recipients of the Sundell scholarships. Out of nine students, four had family origins in Morocco, two in Egypt, one in Yemen, and one in Tunisia.

President Tekoah said that since the creation of Ben Gurion University, Beershiba has grown into the fourth largest community in Israel, and the Negev now has a population of 350,000.

He cited the university's Desert Research Institute, and its Faculty of Medicine, as institutions "whose programs will have dramatic beneficial results for all mankind."

In recognition of the Sundell scholarship, President Tekoah presented the University's Ben Gurion Medallion to Mr. and Mrs. Sundell.

Directory planned for social services

The staff of Saturday Camp is in the process of compiling a directory of social services in Newton, Weston and Wellesley.

The directory will contain all of the agencies, organizations, and groups in the three communities which provide a service to local citizens. This will include services geared to not only specific age groups such as child care or youth clubs but types of services such as health or employment.

A form requesting information will be sent to every service in Newton, Weston, and Wellesley, and should be returned to Saturday Camp, 84 Eldredge St., Newton, 02158, by Aug. 6.

If a service does not receive a form d would like to be included in the directory, a representative should contact Luther Jones or Rick Williams at 969-5907 or Pomroy House at 84 Eldredge St.

The Newton Youth Center last year compiled a Directory of Youth Services. This directory is distributed free to youth and other citizens of Newton. Copies are available at the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. 429 Cherry St., West Newton, 02165.

Saturday Camp is a camp for 7 to 14 year olds held on Saturdays during the school year at Hale Reservation in Westwood. There are two 10-week sessions.

The fall session begins the first week-end in October and the spring session begins the last week-end in January.

The program is designed to encourage creativity, self-confidence, and an awareness of the natural environment. Activities include camp crafts, drama, sports, nature study, cooking, physical yoga, ropes and rock climbing, dancing, and a wide variety of other events. Regular camping overnights are held on Fridays. For more information call Rick Williams at 969-5906.

Residents help at Charles River Center

The Charles River Counseling Center recently held its third annual open house at 154 Wells Ave., Newton. Nearly 180 friends, colleagues and professional associates attended.

Newton residents Jeffrey J. Title, Ed.D. and Elysee Title, M.S.W. and other staff members took pleasure in greeting and introducing guests. The attractive offices provided a cool respite from the outside weather.

Dennis Dumbrowski played classical guitar and Harvard students in red jackets served refreshments. Sumptuous hors d'oeuvres were prepared by members of the staff.

The Charles River Counseling Center is a private facility providing psychotherapy and counseling to over 500 people a week. Its staff includes professionals from medicine and psychiatry, psychology, psychiatric social work, and education.

Newton women named by DAV

Past DAV Auxiliary Commanders Vi Sturniolo and Jo Fields of Newton DAV Chapter William J. Farrell were appointed by State DAV Auxiliary Commander Ann Orso as department officers at the recent State DAV Convention in Hyannis.

Mrs. Sturniolo was appointed to the Auditing Committee and Mrs. Fields the Department Banner Bearer, and was also awarded a certificate for 300 hours of volunteer service at the Boston VA Hospital.

Other delegates to the state convention were Commander Ruth Bills, Senior Vice Commander Virginia Gianni, Junior Vice Commander Priscilla Fogerty, Pbyllis Rosenthal, and Donna Mulhern.

Ombudsman to handle special Social Security complaints

The Social Security Administration (SSA) has launched in the Greater Boston Metropolitan Area an experimental ombudsman program through which a Social Security service officer is providing special help to people whose social security problems may qualify as critical or hardship a cases.

"This is a test to see if we can find another way to help people with especially difficult social security problems," said Vincent G. Gavin, acting SSA regional commissioner.

"We hope that persons with routine questions and in" quiries will continue to take them to their local social security offices. This will permit the ombudsman to devote his time to cases where his help is most desperately needed." he said.

The Social Security district office in Cambridge will continue to be the point of contact for Newton residents for questions relating to benefits, benefit applications, non-receipt of checks, etc.

The position of Social Security service officer has been established exclusively for person-to-person service with the public.

Congressional offices, state and local agncies, and advocacy groups are expected to continue utilizing existing contacts in dealing with social security problem cases.

The new Social Security Service Officer may be reached by phoning 223-0402 or by writing to Social Security Service Officer, Box 0402, Boston, 02114.

Gavin pointed out that the vast majority of social security problem matters are handled without difficulty by regular social security offices. The 14 district and branch offices in Greater Boston handled over 100,000 benefit applications and many more requests for information during the past 12 months. Over 478,000 people in the area receive monthly social security payments.

The SSA ombudsman's two major functions will be to act as a non-partisan advocate for the individual citizen with a critical problem and to help SSA improve its operations by identiying problem-causing policies and practices.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

This notice serves to inform all agencies, groups and persons that, on or about July 13, 1976 the City of Newton will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release funds in the amount of $5,000, under Title I of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) for the following project:

Name and location of proposed activity

Nonantum Multi-Service Center Facility Component 4.1, 48B Silver Lake Avenue, Newton, Massachusetts, 02158

The City of Newton will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City of Newton is certifying to HUD that Newton and Theodore D. Mann, in his official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision-making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, Newton may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the Chief Executive Officer or the applicant; or (b) that applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24CFR Part 58), and may be addressed to HUD at 15 New Chardon Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02114. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objections received after August 3, 1976 will be considered by HUD.

The City of Newton has prepared an Environmental Review Record respecting said project which may be examined and copied at the Office of the City Clerk, Newton City Hall, 1000 Commonwealth Avenue, Newton, MA., between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Newton Cultural Affairs, Inc., gets Arts Center under way

The Newton Cultural Affairs Commission has announced formation of a nonprofit corporation, Newton Cultural Affairs, Inc., which will serve as the business arm of the commission, commission cochairmen Beverly Bernson and Judy Chalfen announced this week.

Officers of the new corporation are Irene Bickelmnan, president; Marilyn Krassin' treasurer; and Linda Plaut of the Newton Recreation Department, clerk.

The board of directors of the new corporation includes the nine-member Cultural Affairs Commission. Serving as directors are Beverly Bernson, Irene Bickelman, Judy Chalfen, Polly Egelson' Daniel Kosow, Marilyn Krassin, Henry Lasker, Theodore Monacelli and Cece Sloan.

In 1973, The Board of Aldermen and Mayor Theodore D. Mann approved an ordinance establishing a Cultural Affairs Commission whose purpose is " . . . to initiate programs concerning the arts within the city, to coordinate such programs both public and private, to stimulate public interest in the arts . . . " This commission is composed of nine members and is aided by a 20-member advisory board.

In its short existence, it has sponsored and organized art exhibits and an annual outdoor community arts and crafts festival, held in May on the City Hall grounds and featuring the performing and visual arts.

The Commission has operated without any budgeted funds from the city except for minimal clerical support.

The commission as constituted could not apply for grants or raise funds to support its programs by public contribution, so in 1975 a charter as a nonprofit corporation was sought and has been granted. Since the mayor appoints commission members with the advice and consent of the Board of Aldermen, the city exercises at la least an indirect measure of control over the corporation.

Shortly after the corporation was formed, it was learned that the mayor had established a citizens' advisory committee to study and recommend alternatives for future use or disposition of public buildings no longer needed by the city. One such building is the former activities center of Newt Junior College, located on the north side of Washington Park in Newtonville.

The building interior of College Hall, as it has been called, is characterized by large open areas, with two small auditoriums each with a small stage on te first floor and an unpartitioned basement.

The auditoriums have good acoutics and are suitable for ! small a musical-ensemble or drama performances, practice sessions' classes, and art exhi The basements area its. ; is ideal for art studios and workshops, s well as for classes.

The mayor's committee has votd to recommend the sale of College Hall for the sum of one dollar, to the new corporation for an arts center, with a reverter clause in the deed should the corporation be unable to support the building by funding independently obtained.

The corporation is currently planning its programs for the Arts Center and initiating actions to meet its projected financial obligations on the strong assption that City Hall will take favorable action in turning over College Hall for this use. Indications are that the property transfer date could be as early as July l.

Members of the advisory board include Maudyea Campbell, Robert Davine, Jonathon Dietz, Proctor Houghton' Myron R. Idelson, Lloyd Lillie, Ellie Persky, Mimi Reilly, Melba Sandberg, Esther Steinberg, Jeann Stolback, Virginia Tashjian and Lois Tarlow, Honorary commissioner is Calvin Burnett.

The Finance Committee for the Newton Arts Center includes Alburn Blankenship, Cecil W. Cadwell, Judy Chernin, Mark J. Dooling, Myron R. Idelson, Dorothy Reichard, John B. Rubenstein, Edward C. Uehlein, Oscar A. Wasserman, Gerald I. Hermanson and Louis I. Egelson. Ex-officion members are Beverly Bernson and Judy Chalfen.

Membership Committee members are Rhoda Davidow and Sue Richmond, and Building Committee meers include Irene Judy Chalfen' Proctor Houghton and Dick Siegel. The Community Relations Committee includes Irene Bickelman, Robert Davine, Ruth Diamond, Mimi Reilly, Bob Segal, Rohna Shoul and Cece Sloan.

On the program Committee are Cathy Adelman, Lynne Bail, Maxine Blankenship, Pat Brown, Judy Chalfen, Polly Egelson, Danny Kosow, Mikki Krassin, Henry Lasker, Irene Lee, Lloyd Lillie, Ellen Livingston, Patricia Morehead, Florence Morse, Ayrton Pinto, Linda Plaut, Ellie Rosenblum, Eleanor Rubin, Norma Steinberg, Petey Stoloff and Vi Suiter.

Special

Actress Annette Miller of Newton plays Molly Corbin in "The Fight To Be Remembered," a television special to be aired July 10, at 10 p.m. on Channel 44. The program tells the stories of six little-known Revolutionary War heroines.

Troupe

The Mandala International Folk Dancing Troupe will give a performance Friday, July 16, at 7 p.m. at Newton Centre playground. No admission will be charged. In case of rain, the performance will be given in the gym of Mason-Rice School, adjacent to the playground. The event is sponsored by Arts in the Parks.

400 illustrations tell the story of medicine

The story of an art both esoteric and essential is told at Boston's Museum of Science.

It is an exhibition of some 400 medical illustrations from the Middle Ages to the present.

Most of the material comes from the Francis A. Countway Library. Other material was lent by individuals and such institutions as the Swiss CIBA Pharmaceutical Company, Johns Hopkins Medical School, and Massachusetts General Hospital. The exhibit was made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Almost all the material is original. It ranges from rare wood engravings and pre-Columbian pottery figures showing pathological conditions to contempoarary American medical illustrations. Among the books is Dr. Paul Dudley White's copy of Vesalius' 16-century study of human anatomy. There is also one of the first examples of four-color printing in a set of 18th-century French anatomical paintings.

Among the modern paintings and drawings displayed is the work of Max Brodel, considered the father of American medical illustrators, and Tom Jones, both of whom were influential in improving techniques and in teaching others.

The dean of medical illustrators today is Dr. Frank H. Netter, whose full-color, gouache paintings combine the normal, the clinical, and the pathologic in story-telling effectiveness.

Women have played an important role as medical illustrators, the exhibit reveals. Sixteen are represented' from Dorothy Peters in 1905 to Ida Dox Melloni in the seventies.

The materials in the exhibit were organized by Biagio John Melloni, head of the department of medical-dental communication at Georgetown Uiversity Medical Center, Washington, D.C., and Richard Wolfe, curator of rare books and manuscripts at the Countway Library. The exhibit was designed by Richard E. Sheffield, ofthe Museum of Science staff.

The exhibit will remain through Aug. 31. The museum will be open on the Fourth of July.

Night at Pops Friday for colitis group

The first annual Pops Night for the National Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis (NFIC), will be tonight, July 10, according to Alvin F. Kaufman of Newton, president of the Boston Chapter's Board of Directors.

As a special feature, NFIC will host a dessert social in the Cabot-Cahners Room at Symphony Hall following the concert.

NFIC was established in 1966 and launched the first coordinated effort to combat ileitis and colitis through research and education. With national headquarters at 295 Madison Ave., New York, the foundation grants funds for research studies at leading medical institutions and universities around the country.

NFIC also conducts educational programs for the public and the medical profession and is encouraging federal legislation to support the fight against these digestive diseases.

For further information concerning the Pops concert or the foundation, contact the NFIC Office at 1330 Beacon St., Brookline, 734-3900.

Conservation advocates eye Ward 8

Conservation advocates, with victory fresh behind them at Norumbega, are switching sights from Auburndale to Ward 8.

The Open Space Committee of the Newton Conservators, a private conservation organization, has targeted Xaverian Brothers Novitiate land for immediate city acquisition.

The buildings and adjacent playfields, some 12 acres of the 60-acre tract, are reportedly about to be sold.

Committee members and Winchester-Nahanton Street area residents will formally ask the Conservation Commission at its July 28 meeting to buy the other 48 acres of Xaverian land now.

They want it substituted for the Kennard Estate in the Commission's 1977 Capital Improvements Program purchase list.

Novitiate land is on the Commission's acquisition list in the CIP, but only 15 acres of riverfront is sought and the purchase would not be until fiscal year 1979.

The Open Space Committee will ask for 1977 purchase of all land not being sold to the interested buyer.

Otherwise, the 33 acres in the middle is ripe for speculation and intensive development and the 15 riverfront acres may even be lost, the Committee believes.

The Novitiate land question brings into focus the conflicting philosophies that guide the Commission and the Conservators in choosing public conservation land.

The Conservators Open Space Committee organized in response to a 1973 Open Space Conference at Boston College.

It followed Conference recommendations that large, privately-owned open space areas under imminent threat of development have priority for city purchase.

Also desired was diverse and accessible open land in every neighborhood of the city.

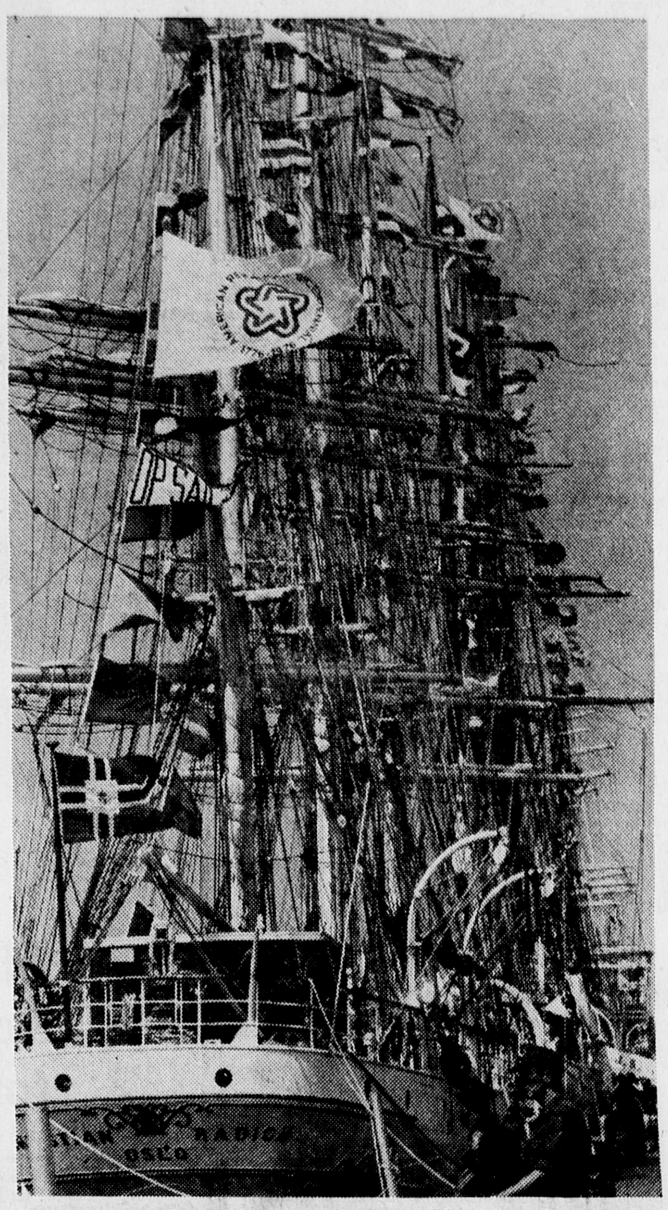

Conservators felt open space had to be "useable' in a maximum number of ways. A complex point system of weighted values was used to evaluate some 80 parcels of open land in Newton, with the Committee paying at least three site visits to each one.

The Novitiate land emerged as first priority, followed by the Norumbega parcel just taken July 6, then the city golf courses.

Meanwhile, the Conservation Commission aimed its buying program at land of unique ecological importance: wetlands, riverfront strips or places with unusual flora and fauna.

The Kennard Estate reflects the Assessors give answers on revaluation

After a public meeting held last week by the Board of Assessors, Ald. Robert Gaynor, chairman of the aldermanic Revaluation Committee, said he will ask for publication of new real estate valuations, including those changed after protests by property owners last year.

Several citizens made a request for such a list at the meeting, so that they might have a better basis for comparing their valuations with those of others in the neighborhood.

In 1973 Newton was ordered to revalue its real estate at 100 percent full and fair cash value. The firm hired to do the reappraisals and furnish the city with a program for revaluation, Cole-Layer-Trumble, heard more than 6500 property owners' appeals on the firm's appraisals.

As a result, about 4600 appraisals were changed, 4300 down and 300 up, according to Assessor Philip Waterman.

The Board of Aldermen in April, 1975, passed by a 20-1 vote a resolution asking the Board of Assessors to publish the changes in valuation when the program was completed by CLT.

The problem of what to do about the new appraisals was of uppermost concern to most of the people attending the meeting.

Abatements seemed the best way out to many people.

The assessors, Joseph Cosgrove, Philip Waterman and Leonard Aronson, explained the procedure of asking for abatements, which can be done only after the next tax bill is received in November.

An abatement, Waterman explained, is a permanent change in the value of the property, while an exemption is a decrease in the tax bill.

Widows, the elderly (over age 70), the blind and disabled veterans are eligible for exemptions, but because of revaluation many who have previously claimed exemptions will no longer be eligible because the value of their property will exceed the allowable total assets.

"If this bothers you," Waterman said, "go to the legislature. Don't blame us."

A provision of the law allows the assessors to grant tax relief for financial hardship, which Waterman said will in

No reconsideration of METCO, Mandell says

There will be no reconsideration of the School Committee's $82,000 cut in the Metco budget, Chairman Alvin Mandell said this week.

There are no School Committee meetings planned for the rest of July and August, he said.

Mandell was joined by members Michael LeConti, Edward Prince, and Henry Delicata in boycotting a meeting called last week by Mayor Theodore Mann and Robert Cohen to try to restore the Metco funding to the school budget. Paul Ash was out of the country.

Mann, who is a member of the School Committee by virtue of his office of mayor, has been in almost constant contact with Paul Parks, Secretary of Educational Affairs since the June 28 action of the School Committee cutting the Metco budget.

Full funding of the Metco budget by the state now seems the only way to maintain services to 350 Metco children enrolled in next fall's classes here, the mayor believes.

Parks, however, speaking at the specially called meeting last week, intimated that there may be a further deficit in state funding beyond the $82,000.

Mandell and his faction on the School Committee have made "a tax rate issue" out of the $82,000 deficit, Mayor Mann said this week.

"It isn't a tax rate issue," he said. "It's a matter of principle."

Mass today for crash victim

A funeral mass was scheduled for 10 a.m. this morning for the victim of a car accident in Wellsville, N.Y.

James Babson, 17, of 1128 Chestnut St., Newton Upper Falls, was pronounced dead on arrival late Saturday evening at a Wellsville hospital after the accident.

A second youth, John Delahunty, 15, of Alfred, N.Y., was also killed.

According to police reports, Babson and Delahunty were passengers in a car driven by another Alfred youth, Douglas Cushman, 17, who, police said, lost control of the car when speeding around a curve. The car Cushman was driving hit another car, police reported.

Babson graduated from Newton South High School last month and was attending classes at Alfred State College.

He was on the South baseball team and had also been active in youth programs at Mary Immaculate of Lourdes Church.

The funeral mass this morning will take place in Mary Immaculate of Lourdes. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Needham.

The youth is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Babson of Newton Upper Falls; two sisters, Mrs. Ada Cashman of Alfred and Mrs. Sue Ellen Reagan of Duxbury; a brother, Roger of Newton; and his grandmother, Dosolina Taliani, also of Newton.

Land Use Committee

School and 'Y' court favor of aldermen

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

The use of tennis courts to produce income for tax-exempt organizations became an issue at a Land Use Committee meeting Monday night, when two different organizations presented their different reasons for wanting permissive use.

The Newton Country Day School of the Sacred Heart needs legalization of existing courts built on its campus in Newton Centre without permission of the Board.

The school has been soliciting membership in a clublike group of neighbors and the general public, charging $76 a year for the privilege of unlimited play on the new courts.

John R. Murphy, lawyer for the school, said the school's development fund, to which the fees from the courts go, needs the money to pay for the construction of the courts, which cost $30,000.

The question of the legality of renting the school's facilities to the public has apparently been settled by a previous decision about a similar case involving an ice rink at Fessenden School.

In a written opinion referring to the Fessenden case, City Solicitor Howard Levine said that under the city's right of site-plan review the Board of Aldermen may regulate accessory uses of an educational institution but may not prohibit them.

Schools are exempt from zoning regulations.

The Board may regulate location, lighting, hours of use, and so on, but may not deny the institution the right to construct the facility altogether.

Murphy said the school needs the courts, two of which replace two old courts, so that the school's students will be able to compete with other schools.

The courts, Murphy said, will be mainly for the use of the students, with public use only during the summer and other times when they are not needed by students.

The Land Use Committee voted 7-0 to recommend to the full Board on July 26 approval of the courts subject to the following conditions: the landscaping be completed to screen out sound and sight; there shall be no lights; and that use of

Board committee recommends finishing Moulton St. paving

The people of Moulton Street, after a decade of frustration at the Newton Redevelopment Authority, finally found that city officials do care about the potholes on their road.

A 400 foot segment between two NRA projects is little more than rocks and dirt, because no agency has been willing to take responsibility for maintenance since the NRA took land at both ends of the street in 1967.

Residents displayed rock samples and photographs to the aldermanic Public Works Committee on July 8 to back up their claims.

Now, the Lower Falls street will be blacktopped and restored to 1965 conditions, if the full Board of Aldermen concurs with the committee's 5-0 decision.

Deterioration is the end product of NRA contractors' trucks rumbling up and down Moulton Street to work on construction projects at the dead end, residents told the committee last week.

Ald. Carol Ann Shea, who brought the issue to the Board after NRA failed to act on complaints earlier this year, says there is a "moral responsibility" on the part of NRA or the city to do something about that street.

"The life expectancy of the pothole section expired about 10 years ago," commented Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson, who examined Moulton street just before the meeting.

The Newton Community Development Authority, which replaced NRA as of July 1, concurred with Shea, Larson and area residents.

NRA is legally liable for returning the street to its "hot top" condition of 10 street to it its "hot top" condition of 10 years ago, said Charles Thomas, the Authority's sole member.

The committee voted to waive sidewalk and curbing requirements for this segment of Moulton Street and have the NCDA seek money for blacktop.

If NCDA can't get the money the city should pay the estimated $5,000 cost, the committee decided.

In other business, the committee held a request from the Newton Gardeners' Association for a "recycling program" to dispose of firewood, loam, sod, gravel, stone, etc. at the SCA disposal site on Rumford Ave.

Commissioner Larson opposed the request, saying he can't handle it right now.

A leaf composting operation on Beacon Street closed down this spring so Larson could devise guidelines to prevent dumping of illegal materials.

Future composting will remain at Beacon St., Larson said.

Failure to alert Lexington Street abutters about this proposal drew wrath from Sheila Farnese, a resident who attended because of another issue.

"We've had this since 1960 and we're not going to put up with any more," Farnese told the gardeners and the committee.

Nor were any Ward 4 aldermen present when the item came up late in the evening.

Also held was a request by Andrew J. Lane, a Framingham contractor, for drain and sewer connections on Islington Rd.

Eminent domain taking of Norumbega Park land on July 6 means that Lane no longer owns the parcels he wants to hook up.

A long-standing problem with traffic patterns on residential streets in Chestnut Hill was settled with the committee approving two actions and recommending a third to the Land Use Committee.

A sign will be placed at the Westchester-Cabot Street intersection saying "no public access to Centre Street", and the city will construct a "dog leg" with curbing on Woodchester at Colby.

The Land Use Committee will be asked to require the "Stiller Plan" as a condition for site plan approval when Boston College returns to the Board in September for that.

Judgement favors Lower Falls developer

Touch of color

Julie Anthony finds herself loaded with work these days. She began painting little designs on blue jeans for the Kids and Kids Levis Store in the Chestnut Hill Mall a short time ago and her work appears to have caught the fancy of quite a few shoppers. The store's owner, Peter Benanti, promptly gave her a "free hand" in painting anything she wanted to. Julie obliged by decorating the back wall of the store with a mural. Now completed, the mural has attracted even more attention and Benanti has said he wants the 16-year-old Newton Centre entrepreneur to "remember me when she becomes famous." (Williams photo)

Recreation notes

Hula Hoop, Frisbee competition July 20

Competition to determine the Hula Hoop and Frisbee champions for the city's playgrounds is underway. Rules and regulations regarding eligibility and equipment have been distributed.

There will be four divisions: boys 11 and under, girls 11 and under; boys 12 through 15; and girls 11 through 15. Each playground will have one champion in each division.

The Citywide finals will be held at Dickinson Stadium, Newton North High School, Tuesday, July 20. Hula Hoop city championship will be at 10 a.m., and Frisbee city championship at 1:30 p.m. Playground supervisors will answer any questions on the two championships.

Lifesaving Course Offered

The Newton Recreation Department will offer Advanced Lifesaving and Senior Lifesaving Upgrade courses at Gath Pool at the Albemarle Playground, Saturday mornings beginning July 17. Registration will be held at the Gath Pool July 8 to July 15 between 7 and 8 p.m. Registrants must be 15 years or older and further information may be obtained at the pool.

In order to register, students must have the text, "Lifesaving and Water Safety." This may be purchased from the Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross, 21 Foster St., Newtonville. Newton residents have priority.

North High Gymnastic Program

Director Austin Moore reports that the gymnastics program at Newton North High School will continue through the first week in August. Classes are held from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, in the simulated outdoor area.

Austin challenges any boy 8 to 14 who believes he can complete the five-week gymnastics course to contact him at the Newton Recreation Department, 969-3171, or to come down to the North High SOA on class nights. Visitors are welcome Wednesday evenings.

Auburndale Carnival

A carnival will be held at the Auburndale Playground Thursday, July 22, from 1 to 5 p.m. There will be ten games and a Moonwalk. Tickets will be 10 cents, or 20 cents including the Moonwalk.

Mini-Bike Facility Closed

The Newton Recreation Department's mini-Bike tracks in Newton Highlands will reopen Saturday, Sept. 11.

Trips Taken

Some 70 children from the Hamilton and Williams School playgrounds recently enjoyed the beach, fun and amusements at Nantasket. Leaders were Allison Toney, Steve Chapman and Sue Ekizian.

Another 75 children from the Auburndale Playground had an outing at the Fairway Sports Center in Natick, directed by leaders, Jim Ryan, Diane Astone and Tim Dunn. They had the opportunity to bowl, use the pitching machine, the pitch and putt course and the driving range.

All-Star Baseball

An all-star team from the Recreation Department's National Twilight Baseball League is playing a three-game series with the Waltham Connie Mack All-Stars.

In the first game at Waltham, Newton lost by a score of 8-3.

The second game in the series will be played at Auburndale Sunday, July 25, at 1 p.m. The third game will be Thursday, July 29, at Waltham. Game time is 8 p.m.

Steve Smith coached the first game. Gary Mosca will pilot the second game, and Rick Ciccone, the third and final game in this second annual series, between the two cities.

The Newton All-Stars include catcher Joe Gentile and shortstop Alan Jaques of the Upper Falls Club; shortstop and second baseman Andy Linn, and outfielder Dave Bracken from the Newton Centre Club; and first baseman Greg Pappas and second sacker Mike Tocci of the Boys' Club.

Also, catcher Phil Small, shortstop Bruce Jennings and first baseman Mike Mosca from the Mosca Club; outfielder Peter Arnold and first baseman Bill Cary from the Auburndale Sports Shop team; outfielder Jim Vizakis and shortstop Jack Garabedian from the Matthews Club; and Pete Cappadona and Steve Cononico, and pitchers Mike Smith, Steve DiBenedetto, Tom Irvine, Don Ferreri and Steve Rand.

International League All-Star Game

The Recreation Department's International League All-Star Game was played Sunday, July 11, at Newton Centre Playground. The Murphy Division overwhelmed the Copp Division by a score of 15-2. Leading the attack with two hits apiece were Matt Mernes, Ralph Berry, Steve Fleming and Bike Brandon. John Raymonds had a perfect day for the Copp Division, going four for four. Pitching well for the Murphy Division were Mark Rubin, Nick Butera, Tony Santigenti, Matt Mernes and Robby Abramson.

Pass Course

Instructors Becky Eston and Bob Carleo report that Susan Armstrong, Joanne Bonazoli, Joanne Fay and Ann Mulvaney passed the Basic Rescue and Water Safety course held at the Gath Pool Saturday mornings June 12 through June 30.

MBTA rejects South Station for express buses

The MBTA has "officially rejected" South Station as a permanent downtown terminal for its Turnpike express service.

In a letter to Rep. David J. Mofenson of Newton MBTA Chair" man Robert R. Kiley explained "last fall you made us aware of the concerns raised by your constituents who are customers of the MBTA Turnpike express bus service.

"The survey we conducted last December further demonstrated these concerns over the proposed change in the terminal site. These factors caused us to reevaluate our plans and ultimately led to an indefinite postponement of any move to South Station.

"Now we have made the decision to discard South Station and work with the BRA to keep the Turnpike bus service downtown stops near Summer and Chauncy Streets."

"This is a real victory for the people of Newton," said Mofenson, praising those who fought to keep the present bus route destination.

Mofenson, House chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, had several meetings with officials of the Department of Community Affairs, the Boston Redevelopment Authority and the MBTA.

"We never could have overturned the MBTA's ill-advised route change without the active support of those riders who came out for the public hearing at Newton City Hall, wrote letters, signed petitions, and filled out the MBTA questionnaires" he said. "This proves that people who care about mass transportation can make a difference."

Mofenson also commended Mayor Theodore Mann and the City Planning Department for their roles in mobilizing citizen support for keeping the Chauncy Street destination.

State to restrict use of wetlands

Wetlands encompassing 268 acres in 22 areas in Newton will be affected by implementation of a state act protecting inland wetlands and floodplains.

David Grice, land use administrator for the state Department of Environmental Management, at a Land Use Committee meeting Monday night explained the implementation of the act, which, he said, supplements the Hatch Act already in effect in Newton.

Whereas 14 wetlands are identified in Newton ordinances, the state has mapped out 22 permanent areas for which it is in the process of obtaining permanent restrictions.

Newton's 14 declared wetlands may be built on by amendment of the ordinances or by the granting of permissive use. The 22 state-protected wetlands, which include the 14, will be permanently restricted against building and filling.

After a procedure of notification, a public hearing (tentatively set for Sept. 15), and inforhal discussion with landowners, orders of restriction will be drawn up for a vote by the Board of Aldermen.

If the Board takes no action within 30 days, the restrictions are automatically in effect, and the Department of Environmental Management will record them in the county registry of deeds or in Land Court.

If the Board of Aldermen votes against the restrictions, there is an automatic six-month delay in implementation to allow for appeals to the courts. The landowners also have the right of appeal during the process.

The restrictions, Grice said, allow "every possible use" except building and filling. For example, permitted will be roads for access , utility and sewer lines, planting and agricultural use, and parking if no paving is required.

There is no compensation to the owners of the land, Grice said, but a property owner may appeal within 90 days after the recording of the restriction if he or she feels the order is the equivalent of a landtaking.

If the owner wins the case, the restriction may be lifted or the land may be taken by eminent domain, with compensation.

Housecleaning, babysitting jobs available

The Newton Job Bank, established in response to requests from Newton's high school population, helps Newton youths between the ages of 13 and 22 in gaining employment.

Many full- and part-time openings are listed with the bank by local residents and businesses. The Job Bank is open from 9 a.m. until noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

At the present time housecleaning and babysitting are high priority jobs to be filled. Other available employment includes lawn care, odd jobs, painting, secretarial work and even serving at dinner parties.

Newton youth interested in these and other positions should drop in at the main office at 429 Cherry St. in West Newton to fill out an application.

As can be seen from the above listing, Job Bank fills a wide variety of jobs in settings, ranging from private homes to businesses. One time only, full, and part-time positions are sought. Individuals and business representatives are encouraged to call 969-5908 to list a job to be done.

The staff requests a minimum of three days notice to insure that the job is matched with the proper applicant, and that a satisfactory arrangement may be worked out with both a employee and employer.

This service is free to both employer and employee. For further information call the Newton Job Bank at 969-5908.

Marijuana allegedly found growing in West Newton

A report of 13 missing house plants led to three arrests on possession of marijuana charges in West Newton Saturday.

According to Newton police, they discovered the alleged marijuana plants while searching for two suspected house plant thieves. Police said the plants were growing in the back yard of a suspect's home.

Arrested and charged were Gus Adriancen, 22, and Ronald Blakely, 22, both of 374 Cherry St., West Newton.

Police confiscated an estimated 94 plants they allege are marijuana.

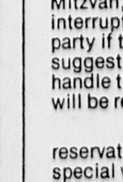

Police said they also arrested Thomas Abbott, 22, of the same address.

Express bus terminus stays at same location

The MBTA has reconsidered a proposal that would have relocated the terminal point for the downtown Boston turnpike express bus from Summer and Chauncy streets to a new bus terminal at South Station.

Robert R. Kiley, chairman of the MBTA, informed Mayor Theodore Mann by letter of the change of plans and the indefinite postponement of any move to South Station. Kiley acknowledged the influence on the MBTA decision of concerns expressed earlier by Mayor Mann and express bus customers toward the proposed change. These concerns were later substantiated by an independent MBTA survey.

Backman wants only original handgun bill approved for ballot

Sen. Jack H. Backman, who in 1972 filed the first bill to ban handguns in Massachusetts, has called upon the voters of the Commonwealth to approve the initiative petition to ban handguns which was filed last week in the Secretary of State's office.

Backman has also called upon Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti and Secretary of State Paul Guzzi to take action to exclude from the ballot the alternative legislative amendment which was passed by the legislature.

Backman declared that the substitute is illegal and has asked both Bellotti and Guzzi to rule that it would be improper to print the legislative substitute on the ballot.

Backman noted that a "good test of whether the substitute goes beyond the scope of the original petition would be whether the substitute would a proper amendment to the original if the original were an ordinary legislative bill. In the opinion of counsel, the answer is clearly no. 8The same rule of reason should apply to initiative petitions," stated Backman.

The legislative substitute would take away the power of judges to suspend sentences, and according to Backman this is an "excluded matter" for placement on the ballot under Article XLVIII of the Constitution and should not be certified by the Attorney General and Secretary of State for the Novermber, 1976, ballot.

Sen. Backman stated, "Under the Constitution, petition measures relating 'to the powers of courts' are excluded from both initiative and referendum petitions.

"Over 110,000 Massachusetts citizens have placed the matter on the ballot. In November, it will be the time for all citizens to act to help rid us of the handgun menance. I believe that the efforts of thousands of our friends, neighbors and relatives to place the handgun ban on the ballot should not be undermined by the gun lobby," stated Sen. Backman.

In his letter to the Attorney General and Secretary of State, Backman said, "Even if the majority of the people vote for the first petition, they will lose if a larger majority favors the second. Similarly, if the vote is diluted between people who favor both petitions and who do not realize they can vote for both petitions, it will be more difficult for either petitions to get a majority, since some people may not like either alternative. Certainly this confusing state of affairs was not contemplated by the drafters of our Constitution," concluded Sen. Backman.

Bottle bill will be on ballot

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton), chairman of the Committee for a Massachusetts Bottle Bill, filed over 28,000 certified signatures with the Secretary of State last week, 19'000 more than needed to place the bottle bill before the voters in November.

The initiative petition, if supported by the voters in November, will require a refundable deposit on all carbonateed-softdrink and beer containers, and ban flip tops on all cans manufactured after July 1, 1977.

Pines explained the dollar-and-cents benefits the Massachusetts business community will realize if the bottle bill is voted by the majority of the voters in November.

"There is no other single piece of legislation which will have such a positive effect on the Massachusetts economy," Pines said. "Massachusetts houses very few beverage-container producers and obviously derives very little income from these. The passage of the Massachusetts Bottle Bill will significantly benefit Massachusetts. It will alleviate unemployment, create new industries here, save energy, help reduce property taxes and save the consumer." The Newton lawmaker further stated that bottle bill passage would bring beverage-container jobs and dollars to Massachusetts.

Citing an impact study appearing in the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston's publication, "New England Economic Indicators" (March, 1976), Pines said, "The establishment of a returnable container system in Massachusetts will result in the establishment of a recycling industry in Massachusetts and, therefoerre, many more jobs with obvious benefits to our state. This new industry will serve all of New England and New York. Initial discussions with representatives of the aluminum industry have been very positive. We need new industry and this is an ideal one."

Vermont has a bottle bill law in effect, and Rep. Pines reasons that, should Massachusetts enact the bottle bill, the remaining New England states and New York would follow its lead.

The Newton representative said reduction in roadside bottle litter reached 92 percent in Oregon, one state that has a returnable container law in effect. Pine asked, "Why should cities and towns through its property tax have to pay for disposing of throwaway containers when the manufacturers can reuse containers and thus eliminate this drain of millions of dollars on property taxes in Massachusetts now spent on solid waste disposal?"

Another benefit is conservation of energy' Pines stated. "If the bottle bill were adopted nationwide, the energy saving could meet the energy needs of Boston, Washington, San Francisco and Pittsburg for five months.

Pines also noted the consumer savings the bottle bill provides. "Right now, the beverage goes into a 'convenience package' which costs twice as much as the product. Who would pay $10 for a pair of shoes and $20 for the box?"

"The time has come to say that we can no longer afford the policy perpetrated by the glass and can manufacturers of 'Make it, use it, throw it away,' " Pines said.

An estimated 188 million "tin" cans were produced in the United States in 1954. By 1974 production had jumped above the three billion mark, equivalent to 14 cans for every American.

Presidents John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, who both played a vital role in shaping the Declaration of Independence, both died 150 years ago on July 4, 1826.

The 'Moonies'

There has been considerable controversy, especially among parents of converted youth, over the Holy Spirit Association for the Unification of World Christianity, a religious group originated and led by Sun Myung Moon, Korean industrialist. The "Moonies" are evangelical, anti-Communist, and dedicated. They may also be exploited for political purposes.

Moon's church has about 30,000 members in the United States and ten times that number in both Japan and Korea. It accepts Jesus as savior and expects the second coming to be in Korea. There is speculation that Moon himself is the Messiah but he has not claimed this. Mankind is to be united as one family with that second coming.

All of this obviously is the personal and private business of those who adhere to the faith and of no business to the United States government. And this separation of church and state, rightly considered so important in this country, may be why the Justice Department has been reluctant to probe into what may be the very real political efforts of members of the church, using the church as a base.

There is the Freedom Leadership Foundation, a non-profit antiCommunist group whose officers and apparently whose membership is almost entirely made up of members of Moon's church. Its president is also president of the Unification Church in the United States.

There is the Korean Cultural and Freedom Foundation which also aims at improving the image of South Korea in the United States. There is the International Federation for Victory Over Communism, also started by Moon and heavily supported by conservative Japanese.

Once upon a time there was the American Youth for a Just Peace which supported the United States invasion of Cambodia and tried to shoulder out of the news the opposition to the American role in Vietnam. Moon himself organized a media campaign to support President Nixon and in full page newspaper ads insisted that God had picked Nixon to be President and only God could remove him. Moon also staged a rally against impeachment of Nixon.

The concern among some Congressmen is that the activities of the Unification Church are directly related to keeping President Park Chung Hee in power in Seoul and with American financial backing. The United States has sent almost $2 billion in military aid to South Korea since 1971 and maintains American troops and nuclear weapons at a cost of about $600 million a year.

But is there an intended tie between the government of President Park and the Unification Church? Lieutenant Colonel Bo Hi Pak, Moon's translator and traveling companion and former Korean military attache in Washington, insists that "there is no common line between our movement and the office of the President of Korea."

But Representative Donald Fraser, whose subcommittee has been investigating the operations of the Korea C.I.A., says that "we have received information which strongly suggests that certain persons and associations close to Sun Myung Moon have had a cooperative relationship with the Korean government and the Korean C.I.A.

Some Americans who joined the Moon movement have become disillusioned with the political and material aspects and neglect of the spiritual. Certainly potential converts should have some facts available to determine whether they are being gulled or not.

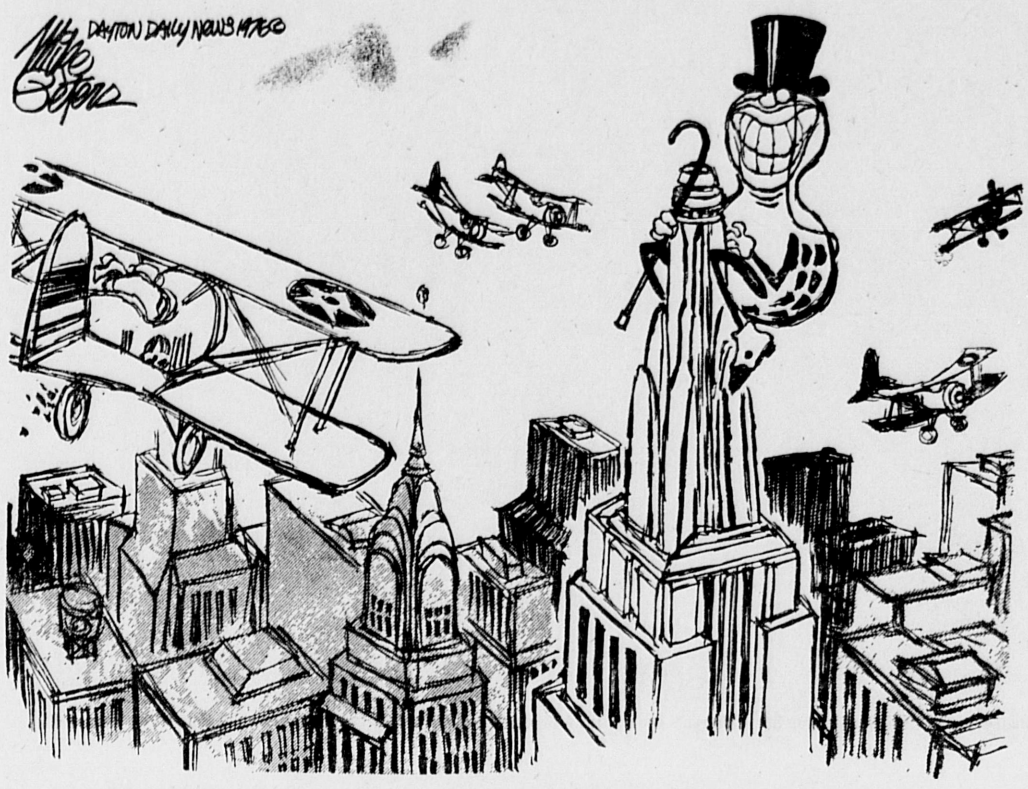

Why New York for the Democratic convention?

Analysis by Arnold Sawislak, UPI Washington correspondent

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the Democratic Party decided last year to come to New York for its 1976 national convention, politicians and pundits alike were ready with explanations.

Some said the party wanted to help the loyal Democratic wheelhorses here to demonstrate their city was not dying. Some said the Democrats wanted to be where the media was concentrated and 41 electoral votes would be on the line in November.

Others said the party simply got stuck with New York when Chicago did not seek the convention, Los Angeles was eliminated by the rude behavior of California's governor and no one else had the facilities.

Whatever. The fact is that the Democrats are here and a very good reason for holding a national political convention in this city is all around them. The place itself is the message to the 5,000 very special Americans who are here to nominate a candidate for President.

This is the place where the incredible economic muscle of the United States can be seen in the mighty skyscrapers, the pulse of trade and finance and the glitter of culture and entertainment. This is the city that has gathered together more people, more money, more creativity and more power than any other on the continent. It sums up what Americans have accomplished in the last 200 years.

It also is the place where the symptoms of two centuries of abuse to both people and objects can be most clearly seen in this country. In the streets below the breathtaking stone and glass buildings, the garbage lies uncollected. Below ground, garish graffiti-smeared trains roar through grimy and peeling subway stations.

On the plaza in front of the shining new structure where the convention is being held an old black woman, with her life's belongings stuffed in two shopping bags, sprawled last week — her home until the authorities sealed off the area to remove such rude signs of the pain that lives alongside the gloss and glamour.

New York is not America, and as a people we have always distrusted, even hated, great cities. Some, reflecting this, said during the default crisis of last fall the country could live without it. But it would not be the same nation that registers 100 million automobiles for the world's greatest network of highways, that provides jobs for 80 million men and women and that spent more than $300 billion to govern itself and produced more than $1 trillion in goods and services last year.

Without the great cities, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Atlanta and Los Angeles as well as the model for them all, New York, the United States would be a poorer place for everyone. No quiet and clean suburb can live without them. No small town or farm can prosper if they die.

The Democrats are here to give their nomination to a country man — a native and still resident of a tiny town in a region that only now is beginning to realize the growth and trouble that technology and industrialization can bring to a people who have depended on the primarily on the land to sustain them.

If only to show Jimmy Carter and the people who have come here to nominate him what a glorious human accomplishment this city is, and in what grave danger it stands, it is good that the Democratic national convention is in New York.

Long live the North End

Commentary by Dan McCole

What the heck ... it was Sunday and I had to go anyway, so I went to church with Queen Elizabeth. Well, I didn't exactly go to church with Her Majesty, but I was there at the church and so was she.

Only she was allowed inside and I stayed outside. It's not that I'm not religious or anything, because I would have gone in even though it was a Protestant Church and I'm a Catholic.

It was at the Old North Church in the old North End, and to tell the truth, the only thing that kept me out of the church was Scotland Yard, the Secret Service, and the Boston cops. They kept me behind this rope they had there.

And before my wife and my mother get me wrong or anything, I really didn't go with the Queen to the church. She came by boat and I came by bus. Well, she came by her Royal Yacht, to the Coast Guard dock on Atlantic Avenue, and the rest of the way in an open top car with Governor Dukakis.

But I came by bus ... and don't think for a moment that the combination of the Queen of Englnand and a bus ride didn't add a moderate dose of bitter-sweet irony to news assignment for the son of Irish immigrants from County Donegal' who was born and grew up in South Boston. The busing was the real croaker.

I still have to face my Uncle Michael, who marched in the midst of the Irish protestors, glaring at me as I stood with the press groupies at City Hall Plaza.

I could almost hear his thoughts, "Turncoat, informer!"

I was only doing my job and for God's sake ... I had a tough enough time psyching myself up to get onto the bus.

And there is something about Protestant Churches and me that don't seem to jell. The last time I had anything to do with a news assignment and a Protestant Church was a few years back. Someone had come up with photos of the countryside surrounding the Old South Congregational Church in South Weymouth, taken at the turn of the century, from atop the belfry of the church.

I had a flash of journalistic brilliance and made arrangements to climb to that very same belfry and photograph the scenes as they appeared today.

I showed up at the church door the following morning, was given directions to the belfry and up I went. After climbing through various rooms at various levels, over stairways and ladders, I finally reached the top.

This is in no way a disparagement to any Protestant or their churches' but it was a little disappointing to see these belfries up close, as they really are.

On Christmas cards and in paintings, the little old New Englan8nd Protestant churches are white, bright and quite spiritual. Clean gleaming lines and surfaces etch a serene and pretty picture across a hillside landscape.

This one was crisscrossed with two by fours, steel braces, boards, guy wires, putty and strapping. And wrapped around the open belfry was chicken coop wire.

At first I thought, "That's gross!" But, then when I had to crawl around and under the crossbars, I was kind of glad the put up the chicken wire to keep out the pigeons.

I finally made it into position at about three minutes before eleven. I found the proper view and then leaned back to rest a minute. I glanced around and saw the bell, right beside my leg. Of course it was a bell ... this was a belfry wasn't it? It was a pretty big bell, about three feet high.

Now to a Protestant this may sound strange, but outside of the Vatican and Bing Crosby movies, Catholics don't go in for ringing bells. We have the teeny, little kind that are jingled during mass, but they tinkle more than bong or clang.

Therefore I turned my back on the bell and started to line up my shot.

The only thing is ... the shot I got wasn't captured on photographic film.

The first wave hit me and sent a blast into corners of my mind that memories never lit ... areas that had never known pain before. My sinuses clogged, cleared and clogged again. My eyeballs flipped over like two plums in a Las Vegas night slot machine.

Once it penetrated my mind that it wasn't a nuclear attack, and I realized what was happening, the first thing I thought about was ... "What time is it?" The answer followed. "My God, eleven o'clock!"

The only way it could have been worse was if I was an hour behind schedule, and it was noon.

So there I was, hanging on for dear life, taking ten more of the best shots that a Protestant bell could give a Catholic kid.

Solutions entered my crafty mind ... such as jumping on the clapper like the hunchback of Notre Dame, but there wasn't any clapper on this bell. The thing was stationary and a very large hammer-like piece would swing up and pound on the side of the bell.

Then I thought I might throw my camera between the hammer and the way it banged into the bell, I figured I even considered putting my foot in the way ot the hammer to cushion the noise, but with the size of the hammer and the way it banged into the bell, I figured I didn't want to get a lot of stuff all over my shoe. Then besides ... how would it sound down on the street ... "Bong ... bong ... bong ... Owwww ... Owwwww." ... Owwwwwwwww."

As I stood across from the Old North Church, the other day, the thought came to me that if they had a big bell up in that steeple instead of a lantern ... where would they have found a dumb Catholic to climb up there and give them that old, "One if by land, and two if be sea."

Anyway I really can't complain too much because as they say, "The Lord works his wonders in many ways." And I can guarantee that ... on top of that Protestant Church, that day in South Weymouth, this one Catholic had the 'hell' scared out of him.

But, there I go ... I'm away from my original story ... the Queen of Great Britain and the events of her day in Boston.

The Security precautions were incredible. Members of the press were checked and screened. We had to apply for special press passes prior to Sunday. We were required to attend a special 'press briefing' the day before and were assigned buses and uncontestable positions at each step of the way.

'A' bus was to meet the Queen as she docked. 'B' bus was assigned to the Old North Church services. 'A' bus picked her up as she attended ceremonies at the Old State House, and so on.

The buses and press teams simply leap frogged each other.

'B' bus was fine with me because I think there's nothing like the North End. (with the exception of a small area just inland from Castle Island; with the initials S.B.; and it rhymes with mouthy).

While the Queen was debarking her yacht Britannia, the Secret Service, Scotland Yard, Boston Police had cleared the streets and were in complete control of the area.

All newspaper and television photographers were stationed on a platform to the right of the church. All writers and reporters were situated in a roped off area, on the sidewalk directly opposite the church.

The press was under strict orders from the Secret Service to remain where they were assigned and veiled hints of problems and embarrassment were offered when one complained too heavily, or suggested alternatives.

The press mumbled and grumbled about their plight, but generally agreed it probably was for the best.

The Secret Service agents with their little round lapel buttons and ear plugs, were undistinguishable from the undercover Boston Police if one overlooked the Secret Service guys wearing three piece suits, slight (if any) flairs, and dark, crested ties. The Boston Police were wearing double knit, polyester leisure suits, open flowered shirts, and bulky pistols and holsters around their hips.

But, that didn't make any difference, because even though there were upwards of a one hundred and fifty uniformed police and at least the same amount in plain clothes ... the minute the Queen's car showed up, it was Friday night at the market. A mob sprang up all over the street like they were blessing the fleet.

At the precise moment the car carrying the Queen and Governor Dukakis swung around Hull Street an onto Salem ... two of three heads popped out of over a thousand windows that overlooked the front door of the Old North Church; and the streets were suddenly overrun with little old ladies and little old men, young girls and guys in shorts and tank tops, and kids of all ages, shapes and sizes.

The Secret Service guys were so busy looking everywhere at once, they just held their breath until the Royal party entered the church.

When the services began, the crack undercover-corps went at it again, and the street was cleared. But only momentarily. Even though there were security patrols blocking off all entrances to the street, people kept coming from everywhere.

"Hey, lady where are you going?"

"To my mother's house."

"Your mother's house? Where does she live?"

"At 187, right over there."

"You're not allowed here."

"At my mother's house?"

"No ... Okay go on. But stay there."

A man comes walking up along the gutter with a shopping bag in his hand.

"Hey, you can't walk there."

"I know ... I'm leaving, I hate crowds."

The indomitable spirit of the North Enders survived and had the secret service men talking to themselves. The Boston police knew what they were up against and didn't get too excited about the wanderings.

The North Enders are among those certain people in certain sections who are fanatically God-fearing, and law-abiding, but only up to a point.

No one the other day could convince them that they should be held off from walking down or across their own neighborhood streets for any too long a period of time.

This woman in shorts, tee shirt and a bandanna, came hurrying along halfway out in the middle of the street.

The Secret Service guy hollered, "Ma'm, where are you going?"

She looked around at no one in particular and said, "What? She goes to church, and we can't walk down the street? Well, to ... with her. Who is she? My grandson is more important."

Most people just smiled and answered in Italian, with a shrug.

A young guy all of a sudden was in a doorway with a camera. The Secret Service guy walks over and says, "Do you have a press card?"

The guy says, "I live here." He points to the doorway on the small restaurant behind him.

"Okay, let me see you take a key from your pocket and open that door."

"I go in 'round the corner."

"Then go stand 'round the corner."

A glare ... a hesitation ... then the shrug ... capitulation.

Mark up number one for the undercover boys.

The Queen's day professed with some minor skirmishes between the photographers and writers and the broadcasters and television camera men. Regular battles that accompany all such public events.

And despite the concern over the Irish protestors, who picketed peacefully enough, the Queen and the Royal party remained safe and Her Majesty and the Prince proved to be a captivating couple, under trying circumstances.

After all, how many parades can you imagine these two people have sat through during their lives. They have to be some kind of special folk to be able to preside over a local gathering such as was tendered to them last Sunday, and appear to be enjoying it all.

And then again, maybe they do like to see ten or twelve parades a week. If that's the case and they do like parades then it's another thing entirely.

That the Queen and her party came through Boston safely, on her whirlwind tour, was due to great part to the planning and meticulous attention to minute detals by the Secret Service, Scotland Yard and the Boston Police. Their efforts cannot be belittled.

But, it was kind of pitiful to see the plans of these fine young men, the official arm and symbol of two strong governments, thwarted by people who just won't be corraled into strange behavioral patterns in their own neighborhoods.

Long live the Queen.

Long live the North End.

They're not really voluntary

To the Editor:

I hope the citizens of Newton and the entire metropolitan area were listening carefully to Paul Parks. His message and his threats were loud and clear. Metco is no longer a voluntary program.

If any cut is made in the program, not in pupil number, mind you, but in any services that the Metco administrators deem necessary, then a class suit will be brought by Metco parents, Parks, Black Citizens of Newton etc. etc. It is Newton's responsibility to provide these services no matter what the cost may be to Newton. This is what Parks is saying to us in his own arrogant way.

I think that our citizens should know that many of the services that were cut are not supplied to our pupils unless the parents pay for them. I also want our citizens to remember that for eight years Newton has waived all but a small disposable material cost ($30 to $40) per Metco pupil.

In those years our te taxes almost doubled and the school budget went up by leaps and bounds in spite of a declining enrollment. Whatever money we could have received for Metco tuition expenses from the state, like the other participating communities, would have helped relieve the tax burden that Newton citizens bear. It is just a matter of weeks before we receive our new tax bills. Then we should hear a loud noise.

It is nonsense to think that we make money on Metco. Each child in a system is considered as a pupil unit in a school budget. There is no such thing as a child occupying or filling an empty seat and so he is really not there. Ridiculous! Once the child occupies the seat, the seat is no longer empty. He is there to receive all the services that are provided for the other children, and in this case, many more.

Parks should remember that it was the state that caused this crisis. He should be using his great influence with the state to get this money back to Newton. However, he did perform a service for the metropolitan area. He has confirmed what our five School Committee members have been telling us all the time. There is nothing voluntary about Metco, Edco, Metropathways or any metropolitan program that is once accepted in a community.

Everyone should attend School Committee meetings so that many points of view can be heard. I honestly believe that LeConti, Mandell, Ash, Prince and Delicata are trying, in spite of great pressure and harassment, to return the control of the Newton schools to the Newton citizens.

For too long, because of apathy or whatever, the schools were run by a small group who cared little for the average citizen. The above School Committee men are just trying to do the job that they promised to do. This is why they were elected.

One last comment. This to the lady who was removed from the auditorium at the June 30 meeting. Beckwith and Rosenbium would not have permitted you to stay in the auditorium as long as you did. I was amazed at Mandell's patience. You taunted and harassed him all evening. This is not the story we read in the papers. The lady was having a public tantrum because she could not manipulate the majority of the School Committee to accept her philosophy.

Mrs. M. Kahn,
Newton Centre

Not a vendetta

To the Editor: We are sending the enclosed letter and statement to Chairman Mandell and School Committee members Delicata, Prince and LeConti.

A copy of this letter was also sent to School Committeeman Paul Ash with a covering letter stating an acknowledgement that he was out of the country and therefore could not have been present at the July 7 meeting. Dear Chairman Mandell,

We regret enormously that you were not present at the special school committee meeting of July 7.

The public could understand one or another committeeman's inability to attend a properly called meeting. However, the League of Women Voters of Newton feels that the organized refusal to attend was an insult to the public and to the democratic process as well.

Had you attended you could have heard first hand what the citizens of Newton, several of Newton's representatives to the Great and General Court, and the state commissioner of education had to say. And then you could have, if you had wished, postponed any vote regarding Metco funding until such time as all School Committee members could be present.

Throughout the past year, the League has exercised restraint in the number of public statements we have chosen to make before the School Committee.

We recognize the time required by School Committee members for proper deliberations, and would not add unnecessarily to the length of your meetings. However, had the League suspected that you would cut the entire $81,000 from the direct services portion of the Metco budget, we would have made the enclosed statement prior to your vote.

It is to be expected that organizations and individuals will from time to time disagree in good faith with a particular action of public officials. Such expressions of opinion should be considered on their merits and not dismissed as a personal or political vendetta.

Therefore, we are enclosing for your information a copy of the statement we made on July 7 and a copy of a letter sent to each alderman.

You scrutinized the budget carefully last January and February. You accepted then the importance of providing these services under the Metco program. We urge you to reconsider your vote of June 28 in light of that earlier decision.

Jane Leighton
LWV president

Bottom line

To the Editor:

BRAVO, BRAVO, Mr. Mandell, Mr. LeConti, Mr. Prince, Mr. Ash, and Mr. Delicata for your insight and courage when you cast your vote on the funding of Metco.

I attended the fiasco last evening and was appalled at the transparent manipulation on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Hubie Jones and the other supporters of Metco. They seemed to have missed the main point in dealing with the supplementing of the Metco funds.

The bottom line here is money, the City of Newton's taxpayers dollars. Many of these people are already overburdened and are being forced to leave the city because of it. To have Mr. and Mrs. Jones and the others DEMAND that Nwewton supplement their program at this time is unrealistic and pedantic at the very least.

I and many others living here are fully cognizant of our moral responsibilities and resent being told where they should lie. Let us not oversimplify the many other considerations that must be dealt with by focusing on morals.

Metco is a very valid program. I have supported it since its conception in 1968, but after observing the tactics at last night's meeting of the "supporters" there now leaves a serious question in my mind as to their sincerity in trying to make this a cooperative effort. Last evening's meeting only brought home to me that it now is a case of, "you do or else."

I again commend these School Committee men for their endurance and patience in dealing with such an unruly, antagonistic and disrespectful lot.

Implications of Metco reduction

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to the Newton School Committee and a copy was sent to the Newton Graphic): Dear Mr. Chairman and members:

We have recently learned of efforts by the Newton School Committee to pare down support services for those Boston children participating in the Metco educational program and we are deeply concerned about the implications of these reductions. The result of such cuts would be the destruction of a fine educational program and the darkening of one of the few bright spots in Boston's recent educational history.

The Metco voluntary school busing program has proven to be a workable solution to the growing disparity that exists between the opportunities afforded those residing in the core of our metropolitan areas and those living in the more affluent suburbs.

In the past two decades, our nation has witnessed a dramatic shift in its housing patterns with a growing ghettoization of our central cities and the expansion of the suburbs ringing the core communities. As a result of this shift and the loss of metropolitan tax revenues to suburban areas, inner city schools have deteriorated while suburban facilities have prospered.

Those in our nation's suburban communities cannot stand idly by while the situation in our cities worsens. We are one nation and one people, and the problems posed by inequality of opportunities will come back in the end to haunt us all.

If we are to achieve harmony as a people and a nation, we must move on broader fronts to deal with the concentration of racial minorities in limited areas of our country's large cities.

The Metco program, employing voluntary, one-way busing poses very few hardships for the host community but gives our inner-city children the valuable opportunity to partake in enriched educational programming.

Those in the Newton community have a history of generosity and recognition of social responsbibility. To retreat now would only serve to enhance the isolation and despair of those in Boston's inner city communities.

It is our hope, particularly in light of this past weekend's reaffirmation of our nation's unique political and cultural experience, that members of the Newton committee will continue to support the effort to remedy some of the injustices that have marked our country's history in dealing with race.

'As a nation, we are born of immigrant peoples, but too often in our history barriers to advancement have been imposed by those who arrived a generation before.

Fortunately, many of us have been afforded the opportunity to hurdle or tear down the barriers which sought to subjugate us. Now is not the time to re-erect these barriers.

Instead, it is the time to welcome and instill hope and buttress the belief that the American national experience is one of acceptance and opportunity.

Responsible funding

To the Editor:

On June 28, the majority of the Newton School Committee voted to tell the governor and the General Court that they should face up their responsibilities and fund the Metco Program consistent with the funding available to support the program last year, plus the proper allowance for inflation.

On Nov. 4, 1975, the voters of Newton elected a "fiscally responsible" majority to the School Committee. Four incumbents were defeated in their bids for reelection. The constant reference by Mr. Beckwith, Ms. Kaplan and Mayor Mann to carry on the traditions of the previous committee is out of place. They seem to have missed the message from the voters - they wanted change.

The citizens of Newton face an increase in their tax rate of between $9 and $12 per thousand. That's $90 to $120 on a house assessed at $10,000. This increase is primarily due to the increase in the MBTA assessment and decreases in state reimbursements.

Many of the citizens of the older sections of the city face overwhelming increases in their taxes due to the reevaluation. The elderly of our city will be faced with a triple barrel blast in their next tax bill.

The majority of our School Committee has faced up to the economic realities facing our citizens by passing the "zero growth" budget in February and by their vote in telling the Metco Program to tighten their belt as we have in the rest of our school budget.

School Committee members Delicata, Prince, LeConti, Ash and Mandell have recognized that "we have problems right here in River City" and are doing everything in their power to help alleviate these problems.

In closing, I understand and respect Ms. Kaplan's actions, even though I disagree, but I have the following questions for Mayor Mann, Mr. Beckwith and Mr. Cohen.

Mayor Mann: How can you be so in favor of "free wheeling and spending" on School Committee votes and so "hard nosed to a fault" on the municipal side of the city government?

Mr. Beckwith: As an elected official, don't you realize that to try to interfere with a police officer in the performance of his duty is at least a violation of your oath of office?

Mr. Cohen: Where are you?

Best intentions

To the Editor:

Judge Garrity is a man with a good heart, well-intentioned, wanting to do what is best for all the people of the Boston area. It is not his intention that is at question, nor his general attitude, but his shortsightedness.

Judge Garrity is and apparently has been too long isolated (if he ever was a part of) the grassroots citizenry. He does not understand the extent of resistance of the average worker and homeowner to being ridden over roudghshod, regardless of the cause or the issue.

Wherever there are bigots, they must be taken into account. A lot of legal and self-righteous mumbo jumbo will not direct a nation that will not be directed.

The issue of whether blacks are equal to whites no longer exists. This was settled many years ago. The issue is parents losing control of their children by having them shipped to hostile environments whether or not the hostile environments are a result of racism or bigotry.

Of course Boston is on the verge of bankruptcy as a result of Boston's massive busing program. The higher-paid citizens who form a large part of the Boston tax system are leaving. The welfare cases increase and the low-income taxpayer is forced to foot the burden. This will result in a collapsed economy. The money that might have been shifted to a Metco program no longer exists because of forced busing.

Funds are not limitless in Boston and this city's back can be broken regardless of Garrity's good intentions. Newton, beware of the liberals' well-intentioned, shortsighted control. It's Metco or Garrity. Take your pick.

Tactics

My husband is Dr. Edward V. Prince, school committeeman from Ward 2, I strongly object to Mayor Theodore Mann's dictatorial tactics.

A press release was issued on July 6 informing Mrs. Radlo (who informed Mayor Mann and the School Committee); also, copies of the press release were sent to the Boston and local press and the local radio station WNTN regarding the special meeting of July 7 as to his intentions.

Why then was it necessary on the evening of July 7 for the Mayor to send the police to my home in search of my husband?

My husband's concern for the education of all children and his concern for the taxpayers of this city is well known.

Citizens of Newton - do you agree with these tactics? Let your voice be heard. We hear it - let the city hear it.

Does your steering wheel come alive with jitters, especially at speeds above 45 or 50 miles per hour? This vibration is your clue to have the tires balanced, the sooner the better. As car speed increases, the heavy side of an unbalanced tire tries to lift the wheel as it rotates upward, then throws its weight at the road as it rotates downward. This movement is transferred through the steering linkage and steering column to the steering wheel, where you feel it with your hands.

some cases be substituted for the former exemptions.

But, he warns, financial hardship will be very stringently interpreted, and granted after all potential sources of aid have been investigated.

The suggestion from Waterman that the assessors will strongly encourage the use of tax deferment by persons over age 65 brought boos and shouts from some of the audience of about 80 people.

The law allows deferment of taxes up to half the assessed value of the house. Upon the death of the owner, the taxes plus 8 percent interest are collected from the estate.

Many persons expressed outrage at the thought that people who had worked all their lives to have a house to leave to their children would be expected to leave it encumbered.

Waterman said the assessors are more concerned with saving the houses for the elderly than with providing for their children, and Cosgrove suggested that families sit down and discuss tax deferment together.

The assessors explained some of the faults in the Cole-Layer-Trumble revaluation, particularly that they feel some of the apartment buildings are undervalued, but then defended the program by pointing out that the CLT error rate was only 7 percent (which today has grown to 15 percent), and 18 percent inaccuracy is allowed by the courts.

The assessors are preparing a series of newspaper articles explaining exemptions and abatements and procedures for court appeals, if all other avenues for relief fail.

The tax rate according to Cosgrove will probably be set around the end of September and is estimated by the assessors right now to be about $50 per thousand dollars of new valuation.

Revaluation will with little doubt be implemented Aug. 1, despite the fact that Judge Henry Chmielinski has postponed until Aug. 5 the date for the report to be submitted by the court-appointed master, John Cremens, saying whether the revaluation has accomplished its purpose.

Land Use—

the courts be restricted to 9 a.m.-8 p.m. on weekends and holidays and 8 a.m.-8 p.m. other days.

The YMCA, 276 Church St., presented essentially the same plan for construction of a six-court preengineered metal building on its land in Newton Corner that it presented last year.

The old petition died with the expiration of the last Board of Aldermen.

The major change in the new petition is the lowering of the roof level by five feet, accomplished by depressing the courts into the ground, and the addition of a brick facing on the building.

The same neighbors objected to the building for the same reasons as last year — its size (300x120 feet), its height (31 feet), and the traffic problems in the area now.

The suggestion of neighbors and Planning Board Chairman Stanley Miller that the building be built into the hill at the rear of the six-acre property was called too expensive by W. Frederick Uehlein, lawyer for the YMCA.

Ald. Robert Gaynor questioned the Y's promises to soften the building with landscaping, and said, "They don't maintain the property now. Why should we believe you about the landscaping? It sort of looks like a pigpen now."

"The YMCA will not be around in three years if we don't do something to make money," Uehlein said at the meeting.

An ambitious fund-raising campaign for construction of a new building was unsuccessful.

In contrast to the Country Day School, the YMCA is not exempt from zoning regulations, although it is tax-exempt. The Board has the right to deny permissive use.

After the meeting Uehlein said the Y would expect to clear $17,000-25,000 a year from the tennis courts after the court expenses, which would be applied to the cost of the whole YMCA operation.

Uehlein said he will continue to try to work out a compromise between the YMCA and the neighbors.

"There's no other way to ensure the long-term existence of the Y," he said.

The item was held by the Land Use Committee.

In other business the committee denied 7-0 because of lack of parking and generally poor traffic conditions a petition for a pizza shop at 78 Winchester St.

Roach—

compensation for two eminent domain takings at Route 128 and Route 16.

A courthouse source reached last Friday placed the amount at $530,000 on the two parcels involved.

The decision is not yet public record because it requires a stipulation that Roach has already received "pro tanto" payment as partial compensation for his land, according to Clerk of Courts Edward J. Sullivan.

However, reliable sources indicated Monday that Roach will receive well over the $214,000 NRA paid him, with interest.

Roach valued his land at $4 per square foot at the time of taking, or over $1.3 million for the large tract that Spaulding and Slye has separated into three small parcels.

NRA appraised the land at 50 cents to $1 per square foot.

NRA took Roach's land in May,1969 for a state-assisted urban renewal project, and the rest in December, 1970.

Spaulding and Slye is completing a three-story office building for fall occupancy on the front portion along Washington Street. The rear segment is still vacant and owned by NRA.

In an interview last month, Roach chastized NRA for allowing delays on development of the land.

Neither Spaulding and Slye nor Hilon Corporation, due to build the 60-unit housing complex next door, have taken title to the vacant land they contracted to develop, because they haven't found financing.

"NRA should cancel the rest of the Spaulding and Slye deal and put it on the open market for bids," Roach said.

Other developers would gladly offer $5 to $6 a square foot for that land, Roach contends, and the city is losing $500,000 in tax revenue every year.

The new Community Development Authority has not yet discussed either Roach's case or the Spaulding and Slye and Hilon delays at a public meeting.

Planning Director Charles Thomas said that he had had no word on the Roach decision as of July 9.

Thomas is sole member of the Newton Community Development Authority, successor to the losing NRA.

Both parties have until July 25 to file appeals to the Supreme Judicial Court, but the seven day appeal period for a new trial has already expired.

Commission's philosophy, while the Novitiate reflects the Conservators' and probably the public's broader priorities.

The Winchester Street neighborhood is already alarmed at a proposed rezoning for a condominium complex nearby.

One resident is working actively with the Open Space Committee, and more are expected to join.

Future battles loom over Murley Farm, the Lacey Estate, and any threats to Charles River Country Club or Mt. Ida Junior College.

PREMIER PREVIEWS
by Frank DeAmicis

Hello.. this is the first time in my 35 years in the restaurant business that I have the opportunity to share my views and experiences with the dining-out public via this media. As manager of the new Premier II Restaurant, which recently opened in Coolidge Corner, I wish to tell you that we are all completely dedicated to carrving on the tradition of superb quality and service begun over 50 years ago by Jacob Breyan.

If you were one of the 15,000 people who visited us during our first five days, you are aware of the incredible response to the opening of our doors. To be honest, we never expected such huge crowds and for a while we resembled the Annual Sardine Packers Outing!

Having opened many other restaurants, I am fully aware of the problems that are inherent with the opening of new restaurants, but, boy, did we have trouble!

For example, our chef broke his leg four days before opening; our maitre d' slipped in his bathtub and cracked a vertabra; our dishwasher broke down; a stove and other equipment malfunctioned; our bus boys got stage fright when they saw hundreds of people converging on the restaurant. This, coupled with new help, new menus... all combined to slow down our service. Looking back on it we can smile now but it was no laughing matter at the time.

The owners, Richard Keesan and Herbert Starr have told me "Spare no expense... do anything necessary to maintain the high quality and service." We are fully aware of our obligation to the Newton-Brookline community to maintain the highest quality. As a result, we are now in the process of installing and renovating our kitchen, one that can give you, our guests, excellent service in our Backstage Restaurant. We expect completion by the end of August. Meanwhile, our cafe is running smoothly, efficiently, and our present kitchen is turning out the many fine dishes for which the Premier has been famous for over 5 decades. Oscar's, too, has been an instant success serving light food and fine drinks.

We sincerely hope you will visit us again soon and you have my personal guarantee of complete satisfaction. In the meantime, I would appreciate your comments and suggestions. Please write me at the address below and watch this space for further previews.

Teachers seek greater federal school funding

Seven members of the Newton Teachers' Association (NTA) were delegates at the annual meeting of the Representative Assembly of the National Education Association where they supported legislation for federal funding of one-third of all public school costs.

At the Miami meeting 12,000 teachers from all over the United States met for the convention, the theme of which was "America's Third Century: The Teacher's Unfinished Agenda." Newton teacher A. Gregory Beard was an elected representative of the Massachusetts Teachers Association. Richard Cochran, David Geikie, Rosetta Johnson, Melvin Levinson, Myra Trachtenberg, and Joan Warner were elected representatives of the NTA.

Policies and goals of the NEA are set by the Representative Assembly. Its current goals arean independent united teaching profession, professional excellence, economic security for all educators, adequate financing for public education, human and civil rights for all educators and children, and leadership in solving social problems.

In efforts to assure adequate funding of local schools, the NEA will be working for passage of legislation providing one-third funding of the public schools by the federal government.

Currently across the United States schools are funded by 50 percent local funds, 42 percent state funds, and 8 percent federal funds. Passage of the federal legislation could reduce reliance upon the property tax for local funding.

This year for the first time, the NEA may endorse a Presidential candidate. NEA-PAC, the organization's political action committee, will evaluate the merits of Presidential candidates on educational issues and make a selection in August. Then the 8000 elected NEA convention delegates will vote by secret ballot on whether to endorse the NEA-PAC selection.

Summertime—and view is iffy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Turned off by political conventions? Tired of reruns? Sated by sports, even the Summer Olympics? There's always the networks' special summer schedules, which may tax your patience but never your mind.

A good many of the programs seen in the summer are flunked-out pilots deemed unsuitable for a steady prime time slot, usually for good reasons. Others showcase new talent. The idea is to audience-test shows that might make second season replacements in January — or to use up pilots already paid for.

The epitome of a light summer night could be summed up by Tuesday, Aug. 10 on ABC.

The evening starts off with reruns of "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley," then moves into special programing.

From 9-9:30 p.m., Eastern time, there will be a music, comedy and variety special starring Lorenzo Music. That, at least, might satisfy some audience curiousity about what Music looks like. When Lorenzo Music isn't being himself, he is the disembodied voice of "Carleton, your doorman" on CBS' Rhoda.

Lorenzo Music is scheduled to lead into a half hour situation comedy called "Cousins," about two young girls, roommates, who work in a New York advertising agency. One is a sophisticated New Yorker, according to ABC, which described her roommate as "a hometown girl from Denver, Colo." "Cousins" might make more sense if it didn't come from the same network that presents "Laverne and Shirley" — and on the same night, too.

Next comes "Rear Guard," a comedy about a fouled-up Civil Defense unit during World War II. If that half-hour doesn't make the audience wonder how we won the war, it will be followed by something called "Zero Intelligence," a title that invites cheap shots. "Zero" deals with a group of soldiers stations in Alaska during the 1950s and who are billed as providing a humorous first line of defense for this country.

Just what kind of warm-up that makes for the Republicans at Kansas City the following week is difficult to decide.

Other ABC special programing now on the books includes:

Aug. 1 — "It's Tough To Make It In This League," an hour-long look at what goes into shaping a professional football career, scheduled at 10 p.m., Eastern time, immediately following the closing ceremonies of the XXI Olympic Games in Montreal.

Aug. 5 — "What's Happening," a four-episode half hour comedy series about three high school boys in a middle class black urban neighborhood. "What's Happening" will occur 8:30-9 p.m., Eastern time.

Aug. 7 — Monty Hall's Variety Hour, with the star of "Let's Make a Deal" hosting a variety hour that will include guests Cloris Leachman and Edward Asner.

Coming up this summer for CBS:

Aug. 14 — Diahann Carroll's music-variety show runs for four weeks in Carol Burnett's 10-11 p.m., Eastern time slot.

Aug. 21 — "Ivan the Terrible," starring Lou Jacobi as the head of a family of nine living in a four-room Moscow apartment will be a five-week comedy series running from 8:30-9 p.m., Eastern time, replacing "Doc" reruns.

Aug 25 — Frankie Avalon will fill the 8-8:30 p.m., Eastern time, slot with a variety show, following by Bert Convy in an 8:30-9 p.m., variety version, both on for four week stints.

Aug. 29 — Johnny Cash will enertain both city and country guest stars in an hour-show from Nashville, Tenn., in the 8-9 p.m., "Sonny and Cher" time spot for four weeks.

The NBC summer schedule has these dates to remember:

July 22 — "The Great Migration: Year of the Wildebeeste," narrated by Richard Widmark, 8-9 p.m., Eastern time, is one of a series of Survival Anglia productions. Others include Orson Welles on whales in "Magnificent Monsters of the Deep" (July 29); "Come Into My Parlor" on spiders (Aug. 12) and "Trial By Wilderness," with former astronaut Neil Armstrong The NBC summer schedule has these dates to remember:

July 26 — Back-to-back half hour comedy specials begin a six-week run with "Ace", about a detective, and "The Bureau," filling the first 8-9 p.m., spot.

July 29 — A special will examine two high school graduating classes — the class of '53 and the class of '76 — at 10-11 p.m., Eastern time.

Sept. 8 — An NBC News special examining food additives and their effects on human health is scheduled for the 11-11 p.m., Eastern time, slot.

First aid course set by Red Cross

The Newton Chapter of the American National Red Cross will offer an Advanced First Aid and Emergency Care course this summer.

The course will be held at the Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville, Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to 10:30. It will begin July 19 and end on Sept. 1. A charge of $3 will be made for the text and supplies.

No prior first aid training is required for this course, but participants must be at least 15 years of age.

The course is designed to provide the functional first aid capabilities required of policemen, firemen, ski patrol members and others who may be required to provide the initial emergency care necessary to sustain life until the victim of accident or sudden illness is cared for by qualified medical personnel.

Pre-registration is mandatory, and may be accomplished by calling the Chapter House at 527-6000.

Look for haircut perfection

The wet cut beautifully layered

Blow dried, easy styling

"A good haircut is the most important thing in hair today," said Richard Foote of Mr. Richard's of Wellesley when interviewed recently in New York prior to the hair style showing of Intercoiffure America.

"A haircut should look as good wet as it does dry and when hair is cut in a geometric shape according to the bone structure of the head, the results are fantastic! Hair is cut individually, strand-by-strand in the same manner that a sculptor would sculpt in clay. We are getting away from hair spray because hair should move naturally."

A lecturer in hair care and styling for beauty salon operators across the country, Richard maintains that a healthy head of hair is easily achieved when the client follows the advice given her by her hairdresser.

"We use a special air waving lotion to protect the hair when we blow dry the hair. And," he added, "all those who use a blow drier at home should know that it is most important not to use too hot a temperature for fear of damaging the hair. I suggest to my customers that they hold their hand near the brush and if the air burns your hand, it's most likely also burning your hair.

"Conditioning should be done at least once a month with the proper balance of protein and moisture. There are special machines for testing hair—this is not a "gimmick" or a fad, it's scientific and accurate showing the hair's condition."

Today's styles call for hair to be cut blunt with shears, cut with a slight graduation and layering from nape to the bone located two-thirds of the way down from the crown back of the head, allowing longer lengths on the top and sides.

There is a definite technique in blow drying. According to Richard, you should let the dryer work for you using very little pressure when you are blow drying. The proper method is to remove 90 percent of the moisture from the hair before you do your hair styling.

Teflon curling irons are best—Richard avoids mist irons because water destroys the hydrogen bonds of the hair. Generally, a permanent wave is needed for those with straight hair desiring some bounce to their hair.

As for color, the cuffs and flare of the hair are emphasized by streaks of two-toning. The colors should match the customer's complexion and often time a woman will ask for a color that would be disastrous for her. For example: if someone has hazel or brown eyes and ruddy complexion accent colors should be beige or light brown. Those with blue eyes and fair skin can go anywhere from platinum to a soft gold. Green eyes can go into the red shades or natural henna.

"We look very carefully at our new clients," said the serious, brown-eyed hair stylist, "we take note of her height, shape of her face, condition of her hair, the strengths and weaknesses of her features and then we attempt to accent the positive rather than cover up the negative.

"Hairdressers cut the hair when it is wet so that they can see the natural line of hair growth, in this way, there can be no error. A scissor is always used—it's more precise; when hair is cut strand-by-strand in small sections the hair will always be fluid—you'll never see ugly 'steps' but rather an all-over smooth, sculptured look to the head.

"People under medication sometimes have a problem with their hair. Some medication causes the formation of fatty acids on the shaft of the hair which can retard the penetration of permanant wave solution."

Richard is concerned about women who buy and try various hair dyes and other solutions which have not been purposely recommended by their hairdresser.

"Products are only as good as the word of the person recommending them and often times people buy products because of advertising. I feel quite strongly that decisions regarding the proper hair treatment, shampoo and color should be made by the professional hair stylist just as a doctor and dentist advises the patient on treatment best suited for him or her.

The beauty forecost offered by Intercoiffure America agrees with Richard Foote that it's the cut that counts today. Contoured to the shape of the head, the hair looks and feels free, fuller and more alive. Some of the most exciting new styles shown by the organization's members are the basically straight cut swept forward just above chin length; the definitive shape with low, thick bangs on the forehead; and the short but fluffy shape in which the lower part of the hair swings out in back, balanced by wispy curls framing the face.

Hairdressers have become artists. With today's hair worn in a shape, rather than a style, color along with the proper cut can actually emphasize the hair's shape and make it more attractive.

Food and Fashion

Across the kitchen counter

Summertime is a time for sweet living and a more relaxed way of life.

Call your friends and invite them for dessert and tea or coffee — it's the perfect solution to the problem of wanting to entertain without getting involved in anything as complicated as a dinner party.

You could call your gathering a "back to earth" party because whether it's a garden, window flower boxes or house plants, everyone is growing something. Offer your guests house plant slips or small bouquets of flowers from your back yard. We have friends who always root olant cuttings before a gathering and then our hostess allows us to choose our "treasurers."

Dessertwise, offer a choice of three or four with a variety of richness and flavor. A bowl of fruit and a selection of cheese would round out your menu.

FRESH FRUIT BOWL
1 small melon
2 cups fresh strawberries
1 cup pineapple chunks
1 cup grapes, whole or halved
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
Fresh mint to garnish

Cut melon into halves; remove seed. Peel and cut into cubes or shape with spoon into balls. Lightly toss melon pieces with strawberries, pineapple, grapes, and corn syrup. Chill 1 to 2 hours. Note: Select cantaloupe, Spanish melon or honeydew for the melon; use raspberries, blueberries or any fresh berry in season.

CHOCOLATE ALMOND PIE
1¼ cups chocolate wafer crumbs
¼ cup (½ stick) margarine, melted
1 cup light cream
1 cup milk
1 pkg. (4½ oz.) Royal Instant Dark 'N' Sweet Pudding one-third cup chopped slivered almonds, toasted
Whipped cream

Combine crumbs and melted margarine. Press mixture firmly against sides and bottom of 8-inch pie plate. Refrigerate 15 minutes. Pour light cream and milk into small deep mixing bowl. Add Dark 'N' Sweet pudding. Using egg beater or mixer, slowly beat 2 minutes. Fold in almonds. Pour into prepared pie shell. Chill until firm, about 1 hour. Garnish with whipped cream and sliced almonds. Makes 1 8-inch pie.

CREAM PUFFS
(With two fillings)
½ cup (1 stick) butter
1 cup water
1 cup all purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, at room temperature

Melt butter in water; bring to a boil over medium heat. Remove from heat. Immediately beat in flour and salt all at once. Beat vigorously over low heat until mixture leaves sides of pan and forms a ball, 1 to 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Add eggs, one at a time, beating with mixer until smooth and glossy after each addition. (Small amount of dough will stand erect when scooped on a spoon.) Drop by scant ¼ cupfuls, 2 inches apart onto cookie sheets. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven 35 to 40 minutes or until puffed and golden brown. Prick sides with a fork; cool away from draft. Cut off tops; remove soft dough from inside. Fill with Fluffy Lemon Cream or Lemon Coconut Cream and replace tops. Sprinkle tops with confectioners' sugar. Yield:12

FLUFFY LEMON CREAM
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons all purpose flour
½ cup unsweetened pineapple juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup whipping cream

Combine sugar and flour; gradually stir in fruit juices and lemon peel. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Cook 2 additional minutes. Blend a little of hot mixture into egg; return all to saucepan. Cook 1 minute. DO NOT ALLOW TO BOIL. Cover and chill. Whip cream in a chilled bowl with chilled beaters until stiff peaks form, scraping bowl occasionally. Add chilled lemon mixture and beat only until well-blended. Use as a filling for cream puffs. Yield: 3 cups

LEMON COCONUT CREAM
2 cups whipping cream
½ cup confectioners' sugar
½ cup flaked or shredded coconut
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel

Whip cream in a chilled bowl with chilled beaters until stiff peaks form, scraping bowl occasionally. Fold in sugar, cocoanut, lemon juice and peel. Use as a filling for cream puffs. Yield: 4 cups

DIETER'S DELIGHT—
BRANDY ALEXANDER SOUFFLE
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 cup skimmed milk, divided
4 eggs separated
Non-nutritive sweetener equivalent to one-third cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons brandy
2 tablespoons creme de cacao
one-third cup sugar

Soften gelatin in ½ cup cold milk in top of double boiler. In bowl, beat together egg yolks and remaining ½ cup milk. Add to gelatin mixture. Place over boiling water and cook, stirring constantly, until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in non-nutritive sweetener, salt, brandy and creme de cacao. Chill stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon.

Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry; gradually add sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold into gelatin mixture. Turn into 4-cup souffle dish and chill several hours, until set. If desired, garnish with green grapes and mint sprigs. 8½ cup servings, 115 calories per serving.

A delightful old fashioned dessert—light and airy cream puffs.

One of our favorite people, Doris Warsofsky, shares with us her sister's recipe for "Coffee Roll-ups." Easy to put together, though using yeast there is no kneading, and after baking, the rollups freeze nicely.

SOOKIE STEIN'S COFFEE ROLL—UPS
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
3 tablespoons white sugar
½ cup warm water
¾ pound margarine (3 sticks) melted
4 cups all purpose flour, unsifted
4 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon salt
Sugar, Cinnamon, jam, nuts, raisins

Place dry yeast, sugar and warm water in a two-cup measuring cup. Stir and allow to stand until mixture has expanded to two cups (about 15 minutes). in large bowl place cooled melted margarine, vanilla, eggs, and yeast mixture. Add 2 cups flour and beat for 2 minutes. By hand add remaining flour and salt and blend all ingredients well. Leave in bowl, cover, and place in refrigerator for at least 4 hours and not longer than 48 hours. Using about one-eighth of the dough at a time, roll out on board which has been liberally sprinkled with a mixture of cinnamon and sugar. Spread dough with jam, chopped nuts, raisins; cut into 8 wedges and roll up from wide edge to narrow point. Place on lightly greased cookie sheet and allow to remain in a warm area for 1 hour. Bake in 350 degree oven 10-12 minutes, until golden. Yield 36.

Question: My daughter works in Government Center and has been telling me about a marvelous salad called Tabooli which she buys at lunch time. I understand that it is served in a half of the large pita breads and is very good. Do you have a recipe, please? Thank you very much.

Mrs. T. P., W. Roxbury

Answer: Made with cracked wheat (also called bulgur or burghul), onions, tomatoes and parsley with the tang of lemon juice, it's great served as an appetizer or salad. The cracked wheat is available at most health food stores.

TABOOLI
1 head iceberg lettuce
1 cup bulgur (cracked wheat)
2 cups water
one-third cup lemon juice
2 medium tomatoes, finely diced
6 to 8 green onions (scallions) with tops, sliced
3 tablespoons chopped fresh mint, or 2 teaspoons dry mint flakes, crumbled
8 tablespoons minced parsley
one-third cup olive or salad oil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon thyme, crushed
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Core, rinse and drain lettuce; chill in plastic crisper or plastic bag. Soak bulgur in water with 2 tablespoons lemon juice until tender (3-4 hours). Reserve remaining lemon juice. In fine strainer, drain bulgur pressing out all of the moisture. Add remaining lemon juice and rest of ingredients; toss well and chill about 2 hours. At serving time, cut lettuce head in half. With cut side down, shred to make about 3 cups; toss lightly with chilled salad mixture. Spoon into salad bowl and garnish with sprig of mint or watercress, if you wish. Serves 6-8.

Question: Some time ago, you had a recipe for Sukiyaki in your column and we all loved it, but somehow I misplaced the recipe. Would you please put another such recipe in your column in the very near future? Many thanks for your kindness.

Mrs. I. P., Walpole

Answer: Before cooking Sukiyaki, assemble all the ingredients on a platter. Then combine cornstarch, sugar and soy sauce. Also prepare hot cooked rice ahead of time. The actual cooking takes very little time. Enjoy!

SUKIYAKI
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon sugar
one-third cup soy sauce
one-third cup Planter's peanut oil
1 pound beef sirloin cut in thin strips
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
½ pound sliced fresh mushrooms
1 can (16 oz.) bean sprouts, drained
½ cup diagonally sliced celery
¼ cup sliced water chestnuts
¼ cup sliced scallions
1 pkg. (10 oz.) fresh spinach, washed and trimmed
Hot cooked rice

Combine cornstarch, sugar and soy sauce; set aside. In electric skillet, heat peanut oil. Quickly brown meat on both sides. Stir in onion, mushrooms, bean sprouts, celery, water chestnuts and scallions; cook for 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Pack spinach into skillet. Cover; cook 3 minutes longer. Stir to mix well. Pour soy sauce mixture into skillet. Cook and stir until sauce is thickened. Serve immediately with hot cooked rice and additional soy sauce, if desired.

After a wedding trip touring Florida, the couple will return and live in Natick.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fallon III

Help for women who want to start a business

Women in business or wanting to start a business can get a variety of help from the Small Business Administration.

Details on the types of assistance and where to get it are described in a new leaflet, "Women and the U.S. Small Business Administration" just issued by the agency.

Help includes financing, surety bond guarantees, training, counseling, guidance in obtaining government contracts and certificates of competency. It also includes representation within the nation's small business community and with other government departments and the Congress that SBA keeps in close contact with in the course of its advocacy program.

"The leaflet is part of a major outreach effort to inform women's groups and orient women in business or interested in becoming business owners, of the assistance SBA offers," Talbot DeG. Bulkley, regional director of the Small Business Admiistration said.

"SBA will kick off a national series of educational meetings for women with a pilot conference on "Women in Business" in Kansas City, Mo., July 15," Bulkley continued. "This pilot conference is designed to get more women into business and provide greater help to those already in business."

"Beginning in September, meetings will be scheduled in each SBA Regional office city, to be followed by others in the respective District office locations. SBA has 102 offices throughout the country where small business people can get help. Copies of the leaflet and information on the "Women in Business" conferences are available in each of them.

Newtonville Garden Club commended by Fernald

The Service Committee of the Newtonville Garden Club has recently been commended by the staff of MacDougall Hall at the Walter E. Fernald State School for giving "one of the most successful volunteer programs that we have experienced."

During the past year, Mrs. Fred Stevens, chairman of the committee, Mrs. William E. Kelley, and Mrs. Thomas A. Saint have spent every other Monday at MacDougall Hall. They have worked with the patients in beautifying their surroundings in usually garden related projects.

Under the guidance of the three women the residents have planted various types of seeds throughout the year in containers decorated by themselves, fashioned dried arrangements and centerpieces, and made dish gardens. They created their own Valentines in February to give to relatives and friends, and made Easter baskets in April as part of the self-expression program. Also this spring they planted marigold seeds in peat moss which they later planted outside their residences.

The committee was praised for having "applied a great deal of thought and planning and because of this have been able to present activities that each woman at MacDougall has found satisfaction and enjoyment with. The Garden Club meetings are now indeed a part of our total building program. The women see themselves as active participants."

Boston Ballet to give 10 free shows in August

The Boston Ballet is returning to the Hatch Shell on the Charles River Esplanade for 10 free performances Aug. 4-8 and 11-15 at 8:30 p.m.

Among the ballets on the program are George Balanchine's "Concerta Barocco" and "Stars and Stripes" Pas de Deux and "The Green Season" by Boston Ballet Artistic Director E. Virginia Williams.

This is the third year the Boston Ballet has performed on the Esplanade. Last summer more than 100,000 people attended.

These free concerts are sponsored by the IBM Corp., the John Hancock Life Insurance Co., the Mobil Foundation Inc., the United Brands Co., Coca-Coala Bottling Co. of New England, Loomis, Sayles Company Inc., the Polaroid Foundation Inc., Rumford Press and the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada.

Hospital elects three trustees

Three new trustees were elected June 29 to the Newton-Wellesley Hospital board.

They are: Dr. Lawrence Stellar and Mrs. J. Marshall Leydon, of Newton, and William S. Brines, formerly of Wellesley Hills and now of Marshfield.

Stellar, associate clinical professor of medicine at Tufts University School of Medicine, also taught at Harvard Medical School and has been affiliated with Beth Israel Hospital and Boston City Hospital. He is a fellow of the American College of Physicians and a diplomate of the American Board of Internal Medicine.

Currently a director of the Hospital Aid Association, and its immediate past president, Mrs. Leydon has been an active member of the organization for many years and also was president of the hospital's Junior Aid from 1955 to 1957.

Brines served as administrative vice-president at NWH for 22 years. A senior partner with Hospital Consulting Associates and a fellow of the American College of Hospital Administrators, Brines was also associated with Johnson & Johnson Co., the War Production Board and hospitals in Malden and Pittsfield, Mass., and Lewiston, Maine.

ARSON CHARGE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — An 18-year-old Somerville youth has been indicted on charges of arson in connection with an April fire which caused an estimated $250,000 damage to the Proctor Elementary School in Somerville.

The Middlesex County Grand Jury also indicted George Livinsston on a charge of breaking and entering in the nighttime with intent to commit grand larceny.

Somerville authorities charge Livinsston and several other youths had removed two television sets, two typewriters, a photo copier machine and other office supplies from the school just prior to the fire.

The fire caused the school to be closed, perhaps permanently, as the state has recently informed the city it would not provide the funds needed for renovation of the facility.

KIDNAP ATTACK

TAUNTON, Mass. (UPI) — A Canton man was arraigned in District Court Monday in connection with an alleged kidnaping and dog attack on a 19-year-old Taunton man

Daniel T. Davis, 23, was arrested by police Sunday night on charges of kidnaping and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon — attack dogs. Police say Warren K. Dia, 19, was forced into a car Sunday night near his home and driven to Brockton where he was held at gunpoint while two dogs attacked him. Dias was treated at Brockton hospi tal and released.

Davis pleaded innocent to both charges.

HEARING FOR HOWE

BOSTON (UPI) — Rep. Marie Howe, D-Somerville, failed to appear in South Boston District Court Monday for a scheduled arraignment after being arrested Sunday night for being disorderly Howe was arrested at the South Boston Army Base A new hearing has been set for July 29, according to court officials

DUKAKIS IN GREECE

BOSTON (UPI) — Gov. Michael S. Dukakis will pay his first-ever visit to Greece in September, it was reported Monday.

The governor and his wife accepted an official invitation from the Greek government Monday for a two-week state visit to Athens and other Greek cities. The trip is tentatively scheduled for Sept. 14-28.

Both Dukakis' parents were born in Greece.

Alan Raymond, a spokesman for the governor, said an itinerary has not been made final.

The governor received the invitation last week.

APPLICATION REVISED

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston's application for $16 million in federal desegregation funds will be revised as the result of a meeting between Boston school officials and officials of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare in Washington Monday

Boston school Supt. Marion Fahey said nothing was resolved. She said HEW officials did agree to reconsider the request following an initial rejection last Friday.

The request was for money from a special $30 million appropriation voted by Congress for cities involved in desegregation programs.

SUSPECT HELD

BOSTON (UPI) — A Dorchester man was arrested Monday and charged with the stabbing death of Eugene Henderson, 60, of Dorchester.

Ernest Moore, 63, was held at District four in Roxbury pending arraignment today in Roxbury District Court.

Henderson was pronounced dead on arrival at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Homicide Lt. Detective Samuel Albany said Henderson was stabbed three or four times in the chest.

WARehouse FIRE

BOSTON (UPI) — Fire swept through a nearly empty blocklong, five-story warehouse in Boston's Roxbury section Monday night.

Two firemen suffered minor injuries. Damage was estimated at $100,000.

Arson investigators were called in to help determine the cause of the blaze The spokesman said only one firm, the Allied Heal Co., occupied space in the warehouse.

WHITE JUBILANT

BOSTON (UPI) — Mayor Kevin H White Monday praised the city and "her prople" for their behavior during Sunday's visit by Queen Elizabeth and during the July 4 concert on the Esplanade.

White said that desite the crowds there were no incidents

"All who participated are to be saluted for their patience, their decency and their massive outpouring of good will," the mayor said.

SHOOTING VICTIM

BOSTON (UPI) — Police were searching for a man shot Saturday morning on Lewis Wharf who disappeared after the incident.

Police said a patrolman heard several gunshots and found a man wounded in the stomach.

While one patrolman was arresting a man, Patrick Burke of Lewis Wharf, in connection with the shooting, two unidentified men put the victim in a car, saying they would take him to Massachusetts General Hospital.

But the victim never arrived at the hospital

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

MILTON, Mass. (UPI) — Clifford deBaun of Milton has been named executive director of the 147-year-old Massachusetts Horticultural Society. it was announced Monday

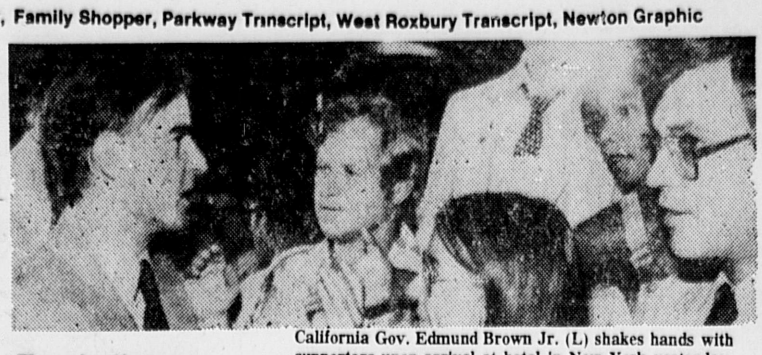

The announcement was made by Mrs. John C. Storey, president of the organization.

STATE BUYS POND

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI) — The state Department of Environmental Management has purchased a six-acre trailer park as part of the $1.5 million renovation of Walden Pond Reservation in Concord.

The park is across Rte. 126 from Walden Pond, the site of Henry David Thoreau's camp.

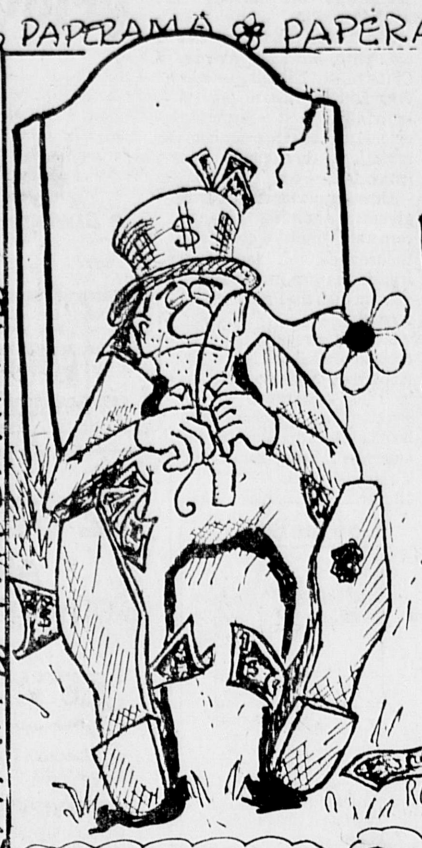

The price of the land, according to Bette Wood. commissioner of environmental management, is $365,000.

Alternatives to Conventional Apartments.

We're completing conversion of a Back Bay parking garage into a 120-unit apartment building with rooftop swimming pool, health club, social rooms, enclosed parking, etc. We have split-level apartments, duplex apartments, apartments with spiral staircases and open fireplaces, apartments with sloping ceilings and slanting walls. Studios, one's, two's, three's and unclassifiables, carpeting, air conditioning, etc. And our security is so tight it would be easier to break into a bank. Rents from $195 including all amenities; utilities extra.

Stoneholm Street is about three blocks west of the Prudential Center just off New Edgerly Road near the intersection of Boylston Street and Mass. Ave. See us everyday from noon to 6 p.m. Both of our model apartments are ready for your inspection and a few of our apartments are available immediately. Our telephone number is 536-3506.

MERIT!

Letters confirm low tar MERIT as taste science breakthrough.

"Read the advertisements, got in the car, went to the nearest store and bought 'em. Lit one up—fantastic—every word in the ad was true."

—Ms. Beverly Fama
Edison, New Jersey

"I couldn't believe how good they taste and how low they are in tar and nicotine."

—Ms. Roselyn Hall
Minneapolis, Minnesota

"In all the years I have been smoking, I had never changed brands, until Merit. Your new cigarette is a real winner!"

—Mrs. Nunzio A. Barone, Jr.
Metairie, Louisiana

"I have tried all of the other low tar and nicotine cigarettes .... MERIT is the first one I have tried that has a full body and flavor to it."

—Benjamin C. Cannon
Jacksonville, Florida

"You've done it; made a good-tasting cigarette, low in tar and nicotine. I've switched to MERIT!"

—Mrs. Frederic Shaw
Jenkintown, Pennsylvania

"These things have so much flavor, it's very difficult to believe the nicotine and tar ratings, even though they're printed right on the package."

—Thomas R. Zentner
Cayuga, New York

"Smoking MERIT is a pleasure. This cigarette has got what we've all been looking for."

—Edward Levinson
Columbus, Ohio

"I had to write, as I feel your advertisement is right .... Good luck on Merit. I am convinced."

—Sam Wengrow
New Athens, Illinois

"I've finally found a menthol cigarette with good taste and low tar. I wouldn't switch now for anything."

—Beth Herbert
Boston, Massachusetts

"Man, was I surprised. This cigarette has taste. Your advertisements really mean what they say.... Thanks for doing the impossible."

—John E. Ehrenberg
Suitland, Maryland

"I was amazed! I can't believe that a low tar and nicotine cigarette can taste so good."

—J. Thomas Ellicott, Jr.
North Palm Beach, Florida

"Your MERIT has everything I want in a cigarette."

—Frank Wolf
Brooklyn, New York

"MERIT has done the trick. Thanks a million for a very good-tasting low tar cigarette."

—Mrs. Irene Dornfeld
Westport, Connecticut

"Today, I purchased a pack of MERIT cigarettes. Much to my surprise—it was great! Taste—satisfying. Aroma—great."

—Robert M. Hornsby
Topeka, Kansas

"I've tried all the low tar and nicotine cigarettes without finding a winner, until today.... MERIT is definitely a winner."

—Mr. Raymond L. Rubin
Milwaukee, Wisconsin

"After reading your facts and figures, I decided to try MERIT. May I congratulate you on your accomplishment."

—Mrs. Larry Rohovit
Raytown, Missouri

"MERIT. Never have I smoked a cigarette that I enjoyed more."

—Byron Thomas
Woodstock, Vermont

"Thank you Philip Morris, for living up to your word! MERIT is truly the best-tasting low tar and nicotine cigarette I've ever smoked."

—Terry Stewart
Springfield, Ohio

"I had not changed brands for many years until I tried MERIT.... Thanks for the lift in smoking."

—Rex B. Little
San Diego, California

"All that taste and low on tar too... With MERIT around, I won't be reaching for anything else."

—Alan L. Vaughn
Columbia, Missouri

"Have tried a lot of other low tar cigarettes but they were dull. Merit is the best I've ever tasted. It's got flavor that lasts, too."

—Ted Pinski
Toledo, Ohio

"Verdict: FINALLY, a low tar cigarette with taste."

—Bianca Doeschner
New York, New York

"The taste is outstanding.... I, for one, thank you for MERIT cigarettes. They are really refreshing."

—Douglas B. DeMaris
Minneapolis, Minnesota

"Thanks for considering the people's taste rather than the manufacturers' gimmicks.... MERIT is a boon to smokers everywhere."

—Ms. Sharon Kessler York, Pennsylvania

"Thanks a lot for a cigarette that tastes like a cigarette instead of a lettuce leaf."

—Linda Taylor
Buffalo, Texas

"MERIT is a great tasting cigarette and does not sacrifice good flavor because of lower tar and nicotine. I am suggesting MERIT to all my friends."

—Percival L. Smith
Saddle River, New Jersey

"We tried every low tar cigarette on the market, to no avail.... Now we smoke MERIT. Great taste, great flavor!"

—Mrs. Patricia Dworniczak
Lansing, Illinois

"And they said it couldn't be done. Someone has finally produced a fine cigarette with low tar, but excellent taste."

—Miss Dolores Taylor
Arlington, Virginia

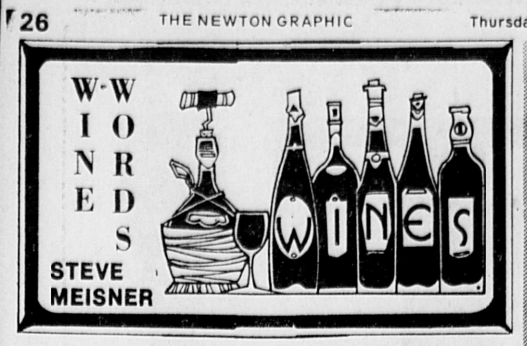

"What a great cigarette! My wife and I have both switched to MERIT, and three of our friends have tried our cigarettes and have also switched."

—William Platter
So. Plainfield, New Jersey

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Up until recent times, wine has not been as large a part of our culture as it has been in the European cultures.

Wine, once reserved for special occasions, now finds a place on more dinner tables throughout America.

Have Americans as a whole discovered the benefits and joys of wine? To some degree, yes. Use of wine with meals is now commonplace in many homes. Wine-based aperitifs have made deep inroads into the territory once occupied solely by the almighty cocktail.

That we have bettered the quality of our own American wines by leaps and bounds in recent years, and that these wines are readily available at reasonable prices almost everywhere, are two of the possible reasons that Americans have taken up the drinking of wine.

Many people also find wine more pleasurable to the palate than hard liquor, and easier on the stomach. And of course, no marriage has lasted as long as that of good food and good wine. Increased European travel has also played a part in introducing many Americans to the joys of wine.

It is unfortunate that many people cross the threshold of their local wine shop with fear and trepidation, as this is unnecessary. Equipped with only some basic knowledge, gleened from a little tasting, a little reading, and perhaps some good advice, one can buy a fairly confidently and enjoy the full range of pleasures the vast variety of wines, both imported and domestic, have to offer.

In shopping for wine, one need never accept without question what the salesman says. First of all, check the color of the wine. Hold it up to the light. A general rule is that the color should be clear and bright. If the wine seems dull in color (either red or white) look for another bottle.

If you are choosing a white wine, and you detect a brownish tinge, avoid that bottle.

In looking at red wines, especially Bordeaux and Burgundies with some age, do not be surprised to find an amount of sediment. In heavy, full-bodied red wines, this is the natural result of aging. These heavier reds sometimes throw a large sedimentary deposit after some considerable aging, and this can be taken care of by decanting the wine before serving.

In white wines, some white crystals can sometimes be found at the bottom of the bottle. These are tartrate crystals, and are natural in white wines, especially if the wine has been chilled for any length of time. These crystals do no real harm to the wine, however, many people feel they detract from the appearance of the wine. This problem can also be dealt with through decanting the wine prior to serving.

Another simple thing to check when inspecting a bottle of wine is the "ullage," or the amount of air-space between the level of the wine in the neck of the bottle, and the bottom end of the cork. If there is an excessive amount of airspace, it is likely that some evaporation has taken place. This could have been caused by loosening of the cork, which in turn could have been caused by ill-treatment of the wine during shipment or storage.

If the cork has loosened and air has entered the bottle, the chances are that the character of the wine will be off, at the very least, and at worst, the wine will have turned to vinigar. One can easily check the ullage on any given bottle by taking one bottle from the bin or rack and comparing it with several others. If the wine level is way down, avoid that bottle and choose another.

Remember, even wines from the best Chateau of Bordeaux, the best estates of Burgundy and the finest vintners of California have been known to be bad occasionally. Vintners and their workers are human. They can make mistakes. Corks can go bad by drying out. A shipment of wine can be subjected to gross temperature changes, or to extreme temperatures enroute. Any number of conditions can turn a good wine or a great wine into a mediocre or a poor wine. Don't feel you must purchase even one bottle of wine without checking it in a number of ways. Caveat Emptor!!.... ....And here's to your health!

Constance Boykan

Benefit concert goes on tonight

Local residents will be performing in a music and dance concert Thursday, July 15, 8 p.m., to benefit the Boston-toashington Walk for Disarmament and Social Justice.

Special guest performer is Brother Blue, well-known personality on WBUR and Channel 5, who combines mime, poetry and music in his storytelling.

CLEARING, a contemporary folk group, whose members are Joan Minkoff, Jeff Brewer, and Sara Benson, will sing folk-rock and original songs accompanying themselves with a variety of instruments.

Constance Boykan, flute: Patricia DeVore, piano: and Karen Komar, soprano, will perform works of Mozart, Poulenc, and Roussel.

Dancers Brian Faherty, Linda Micheli, Pamela Renna, Barbara Thibault' and Marilyn Unger, of the Studio Group will perform a work choreographed to Chilean Music by Irene Lee and Louis Bruyn. Louise Bruyn will dance to two Vietnamese songs.

Singing duo Cyndi Hill and Geoffrey Hicks will close the program with jazz-blues and gospel.

Prints by Eleanor Rubin will be on sale during intermission when refreshments will also be available. All proceeds will go toward the Walk, which will be passing through Newton on Aug. 5 and proceed to Boston Aug. 6.

The concert will be given at the First Baptist Church, 848 Beacon St., Newton Centre. Ticket donations are $3 in advance, $3.50 at the door, $1 for children. Tickets are available at the church office. For information call 527-6537 or 969-8223.

Playing cards over 100 years old shown

An unusual and historic selection of playing cards from the extensive collection of Louis and Maressa Orzack of Newton Centre are on view in the glass cases at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, through July 30.

Playing cards, which were first used in the Far East as diversionary games, go back in history about 500 years. The Orzack collection includes cards that are more than 100 years old.

The Orzacks have been collecting playing cards for more than 10 years and do a great deal of research on their history. In addition, they view their collection as an art form. Included in the exhibit are decks depicting political faces such as Kennedy, 1910 candidates from the Socialist party, DeGaulle and Adenauer; geographic cards including some from the Soviet Union, Africa, Italy and Spain; commercial cards such as those put out by drug companies, either to advertise their products or to warn against drug abuse; Bicentennial and centennial cards; decks used during the Civil War, and early New England decks. The display will also include uncut sheets of playing cards.

GARDENING THRIFT

LOS ALTOS, Calif. (UPI) — Typical home gardeners are 40 to 60 years old suburbanites who have space for planting, and who are spending more time at home because of the economy. They are doing less waterskiing, camping and other money-consuming sports, says James Wilson of the National Garden Bureau.

He added that ecologically minded young people and LTs (living togethers) and college students are doing a fair amount of gardening, some on college campuses.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — The best garden soil is sandy loam, but clay soil also can be used if it is well drained, says a spokesman for a seedsman here. He said light, sandy soil generally needs the addition of humus, peat moss, compost or manure. Large quantities of peat moss, perlite, vermiculite and compost help make clay soil workable.

See Europe by auto

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Next to walking probably the best way to see a foreign country and meet its people is by car. You can fix your own itinerary as you go along, stopping when and where you decide.

But if a fly-drive holiday in Europe is one of the vacation options you are considering this year, you are probably wondering about gasoline supply and prices, highway speed restrictions and other possible problems.

As you might expect, virtually all costs are up compared with past years, but recent strengthening of the U.S. dollar against some foreign currencies has made some of the increases less than might be anticipated.

One way to stretch your travel dollars is to limit your time in the major cities. Meals and lodging are less expensive in the smaller towns and villages and while accommodations may not be as plush as the Paris Ritz, London's Churchill, or Rome's Cavalieri, they can be as clean and as comfortable. And the food is generally good.

Rationing and other restrictions resulting from the Arab oil embargo have ended. Gasoline prices are higher than in the United States, but remember a gallon goes a lot further in powering the typical compact European-made car.

You can save money on car rentals, too. Hertz Rent A Car points out that if you can learn to cope with a manual shift — readily available in European car rental fleets — you will gain an additional mileage bonus of up to 15 per cent compared with an automatic transmission. And Hertz notes that manual shift cars rent for less than those with automatic shifts.

Gasoline is sold by the liter on the Continent and on the average the price works out to about $1.50 a gallon. (A gallon is the equivalent of 3.8 liters.) Exceptions are Italy where the price is about $2 per gallon and Portugal where it runs about $1.90. France, Spain, Belgium and the Netherlands are close to the $1.50 average, while Great Britain is about $1.60 and West Germany about $1.40 per gallon. But ask about special discount coupons for tourists.

Highway speed limits range from 90 kilometers per hour (about 55 miles per hour) in Spain, to 100 kph in Britain, Italy and the Netherlands, 110 kph in France, 120 kph in Belgium and 130 kph in West Germany. Incidentally, an easy way to convert kilometers into miles is to divide the kilometer figure by eight and multiply the resulting figure by five. If you need an exact figure, multiply the number of kilometers by .621.

Taxes on car rentals can add significantly to the cost. In France, for example, taxes add an additional 20 per cent on your bill. Rates in other countries include Spain, 2.7 per cent; Britain, 8 per cent; West Germany, 11 per cent; and Italy, 12 per cent.

In Belgium and the Netherlands, the tax rates are 18 and 16 per cent, respectively. However, both countries reduce the tax on nonresidents if the car is taken out of the country. In such cases, Belgium reduces the tax to 1.8 per cent and the Netherlands to 1.6 per cent. Rules for documenting use of the car to qualify for the lower tax rates can be obtained when renting the vehicle.

Insurance rates also differ from country to country. But you will need the International Motor Insurance Card — commonly referred to as the carte verte or green card — if you plan to cross from one country to another in Europe.

Rental rates vary, too. In general, Italy and Spain are on the low end, while West Germany is on the high. Specific details are available by calling the toll-free reservation numbers of the major car rental companies.

You might also check prices of local firms — some have counters at the international airports and major hotels. They might not have as big a selection of cars and you might not be able to rent it here and leave it there but rates could be lower.

Hertz suggests that in planning your motoring vacation, if you have a choice between two or more equally convenient starting points, you can probably save money by figuring the best combination of car rental, tax and insurance rates and, to a lesser extent, comparative gasoline prices.

You have to be at least 21 years old to rent a car in most West European countries. Your current driving license will be accepted throughout West Europe. But to avoid possible complications, you can obtain an International Driving Permit before leaving the states. The IDP is honored in nearly 100 countries.

All you need is $3, two passport-type photos and a photostat of your driver's license. Your local AAA — you do not have to be a member — will take care of the rest. Allow about 10 days.

Old mining town sees future through tourism

By JOHN VIRTUE

REAL DE CATORCE, Mexico (UPI) — This mountain top ghost town, which once boasted 40,000 residents, hopes to regain some of the wealth it had when it was the second richest silver mining center in Latin America.

But this time the mother lode will be, hopefully, the American tourist.

Although Real de Catorce is only an hour's drive off the main highway leading from the United States to Mexico City, getting to it is half the thrill. It's perched 9,000 feet above sea level and reachable over a narrow, winding road which leads to a mile-long tunnel blasted through a mountain. The town's at the other end of the tunnel.

The idea, said tourist secretary Julio Hirschfeld during a recent visit, is to restore Real de Catorce to its original state and make it an international tourist center. The town's pitch will be aimed mainly at U.S. border-state tourists who drive to Mexico.

Real de Catorce — it was named for 14 militia men hanged by the local Indians — was founded around 1772. Within 30 years it was second only to Potosi, Bolivia, in silver production in Latin America.

It wasn't a ramshackle mining town and had no dirt streets. All the streets were of cobblestone, while the buildings were thick-walled and elegant.

The city probably had the world's highest trolley line, one which ran the length of the tunnel, which was built in 1897-98. The tunnel contains a chapel hollowed out of one wall.

For reasons not quite known, Real de Catorce started to decline in 1905 and withades was a virtual ghost town. Some historians say the decline was triggered by a drop in silver prices, while others claim the mines became flooded. Still others blame wealthy mine owners who took their earnings and abandoned their operations.

Whatever the cause, the population dried up until all who remained were a handful of intrepid, self-employed miners and a few squatters.

Then, five years ago, a mining company returned to Real de Catorce and started to re-work the tailings of the old Spanish mines. Now some 700 people live in the town.

Three years ago the government undertook a study to see if Real de Catorce could become a tourist center. Now plans call for the construction of hotels, museums, the resumption of the trolley line — and the banning of cars.

Simon earns lacrosse letter

HAVERFORD, Penn.—Steven Simon of 111 Hammondswood Rd. in Chestnut Hill has made history as a Haverford College freshman.

Not only was Steve awarded a letter as the regular goalie on the college's varsity lacrosse team, but he also set a league record for most saves in the process. Steve broke the mid-Atlantic mark in just his first season, certainly a good way to break in with the team.

Steve is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Harold Simon.

Lobster tickets on sale for half price

BOSTON—The Brigham's stores in Newton are offering tickets to Boston Lobsters' World Team Tennis matches at half price. Stores are located at 4 Hartford Street, Newton Highlands; 821 Beacon Street, Newton Centre; and 999 Watertown Street, West Newton.

Tickets are now available for the match on Tuesday, July 20 versus the Los Angeles Strings (with Rosemary Casals and Bob Lutz). The match will be played at the Walter Brown Arena in Boston and will begin at 7:30 p.m. The arena is completely air-conditioned.

Tickets that normally sell for from $4 to $8 are being sold at the special price of $2 to $4.

The Lobsters, led by player-coach, Ion Tiriac, are currently fighting for a playoff berth in the East Division of World Team Tennis.

Golf trophy winners

Youth golf classic held

The fourth annual Insurance Golf Classic sponsored by the Insurance Agents of Newton Association was held recently at the Leo J. Martin Memorial Golf Course, Weston, Mass.

Finishing first, was Sandy Sutherland of Leo J. Martin Golf Course at 83. Second place, with an 84, was Lawrence Crovo of Charles River Country Club. Tom Steckbeck, Jr., of Braeburn, finished third with an 85.

Mitchell E. Phillips of the Mitchell E. Phillips and Company Insurance Agency in Chestnut Hill and John Tomassi of the Hartford Insurance Group served as I.Y.C. Co-Chairmen for the Agents Association this year. The top three finishers will compete in the state finals in July and the Massachusetts winners will compete in a national tournament sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of America held in August.

Newton Association President, Vincent J. Del Mastro, of the Vincent J. Del Mastro Insurance Agency in West Newton would like to especially thank Mr. Jim Ronayne of Newton North High School for the excellent job he did in helping to run the tournament for the Agents Group.

Ford admires Reds' teamwork

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Everybody looks at a ball game differently. Jerry Ford, the President, looks for what he enjoys most, the teamwork.

He was always that kind of player in college, never an individualist, so what he appreciated most Tuesday night, sitting here with 63,974 others and watching the National League All-Stars making it five in a row and 13 out of the last 14, was the way Sparky Anderson and seven members of the world champion Cincinnati Reds all had a hand in the 7-1 victory over the American League.

That's the kind of teamwork Jerry Ford goes for, and keeps constantly talking about to his own aides.

Like Pete Rose pretending this was the World Series and not simply another All-Star game, by sailing through the air like one of the flying Wallendas and sliding head first into third base with a double he stretched into a triple leading off the fifth inning.

Or like Rose's teammate, George Foster, hanging in there against Catfish Hunter two innings before that and cracking a two-run homer over the left centerfield fence.

Pete Rose, naturally, sees the ball game differently than Jerry Ford.

He sees George Foster as MVP.

Not just the All-Star MVP which the Reds' 27-year-old leftfielder was chosen as, anyway, but as MVP in the National League this year.

So far, Foster leads the league with 72 RBIs and is third in home runs with 17. His .327 batting average also has him among the league leaders.

"If he keeps it up, he should be MVP," Rose said following the National Leaguers' win at Veterans Stadium Tuesday night. "You always have to go with the guy with the home runs and RBIs. Who's any better than Foster? If you had to pick the MVP today, who could you pick over him? Nobody!"

George Foster gets Danny Ozark's vote, too.

Danny Ozark manages the Phillies and he sees a ball game his own way also.

His Phils lead the National League East by 10 games and figure to go against the Reds, who lead the western division by 9½, in the playoffs two months from now.

Ozark, one of the National League coaches Tuesday night, couldn't help looking ahead to that showdown for the National League pennant seeing Foster knock in three of the winners' runs.

"Did you see how he jumped on that ball?" said the Phillies' manager, talking about Foster's third-inning homer, which actually wrapped up the game for the National League long before Houston's Cesar Cedeno contributed a two-run homer of his own off Frank Tanana of the Angels in the eighth.

"We're not going to strike him out with the pitchers we have on our staff," said Ozark, thinking about those playoff games with the Reds some more. "We don't have that kind of power pitching on our club. We're just gonna have to move the ball around on him. Catfish got that ball right into his wheelhouse, and you can't do that with Foster."

Spark Anderson guarantees you can't.

"He's so quick with the bat from the point where he begins releasing his hands to the point where he meets the ball, he reminds me of Hank Aaron," said the Reds' manager. "He's the quickest in the league."

Pete Rose says the same thing.

"Nobody hits the ball harder than Foster does," said Rose. "He hits it harder than anyone in baseball."

"Harder than Dave Kingman?" someone wanted to know.

"Harder than anyone," Rose repeated. "I'm not saying farther, only harder. Kingman can hit 'em out of Yellowstone Park."

Not Tuesday night here, he couldn't. The Mets' lumbering right-fielder came to bat twice, swung at every one of four pitches thrown him by Mark Fidrych of the Tigers and Catfish Hunter and made contact with only one. He didn't even get it past first base.

Lions sign linebacker

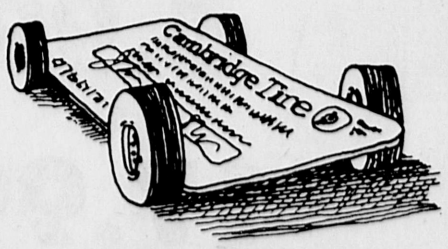

ROCHESTER, Mich. (UPI) — The Detroit Lions Tuesday signed linebacker Steadman Scavella, a fifth-round draft choice from Miami of Florida, leaving only two draft picks still unsigned.

Scavella reported to the Lions' training camp at Oakland University late Monday and worked out with the team Tuesday.

Guard Ken Long, from Purdue, also reported to camp Monday night but has not signed. Also unsigned is tight end David Hill, a tight end from Texas A&I, who will be with the All-Star team until July 24.

First business class graduated by CETA

A Newton woman, Mary Ann Patriarca, was graduated June 30 as a member of the first CETA entry business program at Aquinas Junior College, Newton.

The 24-week training program at Aquinas is sponsored and funded by Newton Area CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act). Students participate in a modified work-study plan, spending part-time on an actual office job and part-time in study.

The CETA plan enables students to subsidize their own schooling and gain up-to-date office experience at the same time. Upon graduation, Newton Area CETA helps students develop individual job-hunting plans and assists in turning up live job leads and job interviews.

Placement rate from previous programs is 65 percent, according to CETA's education and skills training director, Sally Hurd.

New CETA skills programs will be starting up throughout the summer, Hurd said. Interested persons should call 965-5750 for more information and eligibility requirements.

Local CETA offices are located at 90 Bridge St., Newton. If interested persons are unable to come to the Newton office, outreach workers will take applications to them.

In addition to classroom training, the agency also conducts on-the-job training, offers short-term public service employment, and adult and youth work experience plans to unemployed, eligible individuals.

Director of Newton Area CETA is Charles F. Miller.

Fairchild franchise to Cramer

TRUCK STOPS

PARIS (UPI) — Tourists traveling by car in France may well like to own a new edition of a guide of moderately priced restaurants known as Relais Routiers, which are chiefly patronized by truck drivers.

The "Guide des Relais Routiers" lists all the 3,797 road restaurants where prices are stiffly controlled and meals are known to be both of good quality and quantity.

The restaurants are located along all main roads and can be recognized by the blue-red-white signs reading "Relais Routier."

Work of Auburndale illustrator part of 'Art in Medicine' exhibit

Selected illustrations of Paul D. Malone of Auburndale, medical illustrator at the Lahey Clinic in Boston, are among the 400 works of art featured at an international exhibition entitled "Art and Medicine" at the Museum of Science in Boston.

The exhibition opened June 15 and continues until Aug. 31.

The medical illustration exhibit, primarily composed of works from the Archive of Medical Visual Resources in the Countway Library in Boston (Boston Medical Library - Harvard Medical Library), was made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. Other exhibits were lent by individuals and institutions.

Art forms that represent the anatomy are as old as man.

"Art and Medicine" shows the development of medical illustration in the fields of art and medicine from Pre-Columbian times to contemporary American works. Before the nineteenth century, however, the use of medical illustrations was practically non-existent in North America.

The "Father of American Medical Illustrators" is Max Brodel (1870-1941) who arrived in the United States from Germany in 1894 at the age of 24. He worked as a medical illustrator at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore and personally taught his techniques to about 200 individuals.

One of his students was Paul "P.D." Malone, medical illustrator for the Lahey Clinic. After the "master's"death in 1941, Malone was asked to complete the series started by Brodel entitled, "The Anatomy of the Human Ear." Malone completed research and the drawings for the book's publication.

Following his work with Brodel, Malone came to the Lahey Clinic in Boston in 1945 as director of its Medical Illustration Department at the request of the Clinic's founder and famed surgeon, Frank H. Lahey.

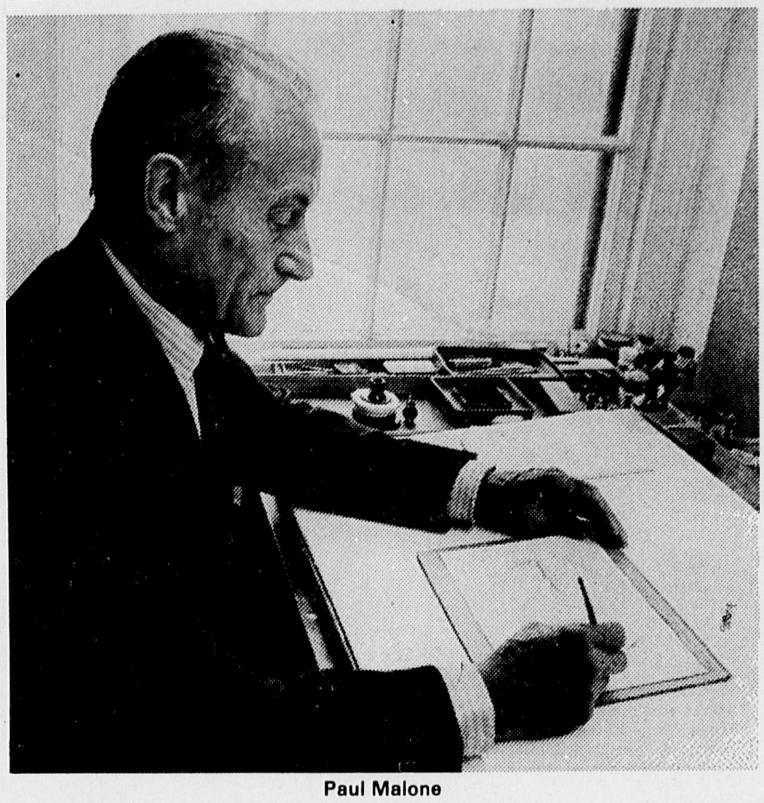

Over the past three decades Malone has demonstrated his talent and today is recognized as one of the most noted medical illustrators in the United States.

At the exhibition of "Art and Medicine," illustrations of Paul Malone which are shown include: his original drawings from "The Anatomy of the Human Ear," his "Surgical Research of Operative Procedures on the White Laboratory Rat", two drawings of the "Surgical Anatomy of the Heart" from the book, "Operative Anatomy of the Thorax," two drawings of the "Surgery of the Gallbladder and two drawings of the "Thoracolumbar Sympathectomy."

Malone is author and co- of numerous surgical and anatomical papers and books. He most recently co-authored the book, "Operative Anatomy of the Abdomen and Pelvis" with Dr. Edward A. Edwards, surgeon, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and clinical professor of Anatomy at Harvard Medical School, and with Dr. John D. MacArther, surgeon-in-chief at Cardinal Cushing Hospital in Brockton and professor of surgery at Harvard Medical School.

According to Ida Dox, medical communicator at Georgetown University Medical Center, "The purpose of a medical illustration is to teach; when this is accomplished the illustration is a work of art."

"Art and Medicine" will remain open through Aug. 31. Hours are Mon. through Sat. 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Fri. night to 10 p.m.; Sun. 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Museum of Science in Boston.

Prof. Robert Abeles elected to Academy of Sciences

Robert H. Abeles of Newton Centre, chairman of the Brandeis University biochemistry department, has been elected a member of the National Academy of Sciences. He was one of 75 Americans named to the prestigious academy as recognition of "distinguished and continuing achievements in original research."

Prof. Abeles, who is 49, has been a faculty member at Brandeis since 1964 and department chairman for the last three years. Much of Abeles' research in biochemistry has been centered on enzymes and the mechanism of their actions.

A native of Vienna, Austria, Prof. Abeles and his family came to Chicago in 1939. He studied at the University of Chicago and in 1955 earned his Ph.D. at the University of Colorado. Before coming to Brandeis, he taught at the University of Michigan, Ohio State and at Colorado.

Prof. Abeles is a member of other important professional organizations, including the American Chemical Society and the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. In 1973' he was elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He is also editor of "Biochemistry" and former editor of the "Journal of Biological Chemistry," two important scientific publications.

Robert H. Abeles

Prof. Abeles and his wife, Barbara, are the parents of two children, Stephen, 13, and Lisa, 16, both of whom attend public schools in Newton. The family resides at 415 Ward St.

Old mining town sees future through tourism

By JOHN VIRTUE

REAL DE CATORCE, Mexico (UPI) — This mountain top ghost town, which once boasted 40,000 residents, hopes to regain some of the wealth it had when it was the second richest silver mining center in Latin America.

But this time the mother lode will be, hopefully, the American tourist.

Although Real de Catorce is only an hour's drive off the main highway leading from the United States to Mexico City, getting to it is half the thrill. It's perched 9,000 feet above sea level and reachable over a narrow, winding road which leads to a mile-long tunnel blasted through a mountain. The town's at the other end of the tunnel.

The idea, said tourist secretary Julio Hirschfeld during a recent visit, is to restore Real de Catorce to its original state and make it an international tourist center. The town's pitch will be aimed mainly at U.S. border-state tourists who drive to Mexico.

Real de Catorce — it was named for 14 militia men hanged by the local Indians — was founded around 1772. Within 30 years it was second only to Potosi, Bolivia, in silver production in Latin America.

It wasn't a ramshackle mining town and had no dirt streets. All the streets were of cobblestone, while the buildings were thick-walled and elegant.

The city probably had the world's highest trolley line, one which ran the length of the tunnel, which was built in 1897-98. The tunnel contains a chapel hollowed out of one wall.

For reasons not quite known, Real de Catorce started to decline in 1905 and withades was a virtual ghost town. Some historians say the decline was triggered by a drop in silver prices, while others claim the mines became flooded. Still others blame wealthy mine owners who took their earnings and abandoned their operations.

Whatever the cause, the population dried up until all who remained were a handful of intrepid, self-employed miners and a few squatters.

Then, five years ago, a mining company returned to Real de Catorce and started to re-work the tailings of the old Spanish mines. Now some 700 people live in the town.

Three years ago the government undertook a study to see if Real de Catorce could become a tourist center. Now plans call for the construction of hotels, museums, the resumption of the trolley line — and the banning of cars.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Squash vine boxer—Any one who grows squash, pumpkins or gourds know what the squash vine borer is. It's the villain which causes the vines to wilt, as if they were dry, even though there's plenty of moisture in the soil. If you see a small pile of "sawdust" (called frass) at the base of the plants, it's tell tale evidence of the squash vine borer.

Control—Once the borer is inside the stem, about the only thing you can do is to take a pen knife and stab the borer. It's usually near the pile of "sawdust". You can protect your vines by spraying or dusting at the base of the runners, during early July (after the blossom shucks have fallen), using two tablespoons of 50 percent methoxychlor to one gallon of water.

Pruning tomatoes—Confused about this business of "suckering" or pruning tomatoes? If it's baffling to you, forget about suckering, because you'll get just as many fruits on unsuckered plants. Some gardening buffs will pinch the tops out of their tomatoes, just as you'd do with mums, snapdragons and other ornamentals, but this isn't necessary. Suckers are shoots that grow in the axils of the leaves. We don't know why they're called suckers, because they're green and are just as useful as any other shoots on the plants.

If you insist on "suckering" tomato vines, here's how to do it: In the axial of the leaves (where the leaf attaches to the stem) you'll notice the shoots—they look like any other part of the tomato plant. These can be pulled off easily by grasping the sucker when 2 to 4 inches long. Simply use your thumb and forefinger and pull or yank the sucker off. About the time you start picking your first tomatoes, discontinue pruning or suckering. Repeat: If this business of suckering is baffling, forget it. You'll get a good crop regardless of which school you belong to.

Evergreen turn brown?—Many have asked us what causes the Japanese Yew (Taxus) to turn a reddish brown and die. The Yew is very sensitive to "wet feet" or poor drainage. It can die when standing in water for only 36 hours. Wet feet in the winter will cause root rot and oxygen starvation, and when spring or early summer comes, the plants show up reddish brown—dead. Pull them out and replant, making sure the soil is well drained.

Green Thumb Clinic: "Our rhubarb plants have spindly stalks, and some of them have started to wilt. What causes this?"

Ans: Sounds like Root rot (also called "foot rot"), a fungal disease which causes the plants to wilt and die. Dig out affected part and discard. Set new plants in at a different spot.

Henry Gibson in FBI Spoof

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Henry Gibson, the gentle little poet of the old "Rowan and Martin Laugh-In" series, has made a pilot for a new television show, "The Bureau," an FBI spoof.

Gibson is as subdued and unpretentious in person as he is on the tube.

He and his wife, Lois, lead a quiet life at Malibu beach with their three offspring, Johnny, 16; Charlie, 12; and Jimmy, 8.

They are the most musical family in the neighborhood. The living room of their home contains two pianos and family musicales are commonplace. Lois and Johnny play the piano. Charlie plays the French horn and Jimmy is a violin virtuoso.

Henry, whose best number on the keyboard is chopsticks, is an audience of one who manages to keep time with his foot while applauding the family quartet.

Less appreciative, perhaps, but still present and accounted for at the frequent musical sessions are the family pets — a pair of Pekinese named Gladys and Dedee, a Boston bull terrier who answers to Myrna and three cats, Randolph, Jenny and a tomcat Blanche (who was mistakenly identified in gendre).

The Gibson house is smack on the beach. It is a rambling old four-bedroom house which was partly destroyed by the Malibu fire more than a decade ago.

Henry has been patching it up over the years, teaching himself carpentry and painting in the bargain. He has added a room and new roof himself. There is a swimming pool, too, surrounded by lush gardens.

Gibson is a beach bum at heart and forever grateful to the movie "Jaws," which kept hundreds of thousands of bathers off his beach last summer. Personally, he is unafraid of running afoul of sharks.

He and his sons live in blue jeans, sandals and T shirts. The boys do a great deal of beachcombing, collecting mountains of driftwood and interesting sea shells.

Henry doesn't fish and spends more time in the swimming pool than the ocean. His sons prefer the excitement of the sea. They surf and SCUBA dive most of the year around.

Henry would rather potter around in his flower and vegetable gardens. He's a plant freak who tends beautiful hanging indoor greenery and is inordinately proud of the fact that he grows tomatoes in the house.

See Europe by auto

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Next to walking probably the best way to see a foreign country and meet its people is by car. You can fix your own itinerary as you go along, stopping when and where you decide.

But if a fly-drive holiday in Europe is one of the vacation options you are considering this year, you are probably wondering about gasoline supply and prices, highway speed restrictions and other possible problems.

As you might expect, virtually all costs are up compared with past years, but recent strengthening of the U.S. dollar against some foreign currencies has made some of the increases less than might be anticipated.

One way to stretch your travel dollars is to limit your time in the major cities. Meals and lodging are less expensive in the smaller towns and villages and while accommodations may not be as plush as the Paris Ritz, London's Churchill, or Rome's Cavalieri, they can be as clean and as comfortable. And the food is generally good.

Rationing and other restrictions resulting from the Arab oil embargo have ended. Gasoline prices are higher than in the United States, but remember a gallon goes a lot further in powering the typical compact European-made car.

You can save money on car rentals, too. Hertz Rent A Car points out that if you can learn to cope with a manual shift — readily available in European car rental fleets — you will gain an additional mileage bonus of up to 15 per cent compared with an automatic transmission. And Hertz notes that manual shift cars rent for less than those with automatic shifts.

Gasoline is sold by the liter on the Continent and on the average the price works out to about $1.50 a gallon. (A gallon is the equivalent of 3.8 liters.) Exceptions are Italy where the price is about $2 per gallon and Portugal where it runs about $1.90. France, Spain, Belgium and the Netherlands are close to the $1.50 average, while Great Britain is about $1.60 and West Germany about $1.40 per gallon. But ask about special discount coupons for tourists.

Highway speed limits range from 90 kilometers per hour (about 55 miles per hour) in Spain, to 100 kph in Britain, Italy and the Netherlands, 110 kph in France, 120 kph in Belgium and 130 kph in West Germany. Incidentally, an easy way to convert kilometers into miles is to divide the kilometer figure by eight and multiply the resulting figure by five. If you need an exact figure, multiply the number of kilometers by .621.

Taxes on car rentals can add significantly to the cost. In France, for example, taxes add an additional 20 per cent on your bill. Rates in other countries include Spain, 2.7 per cent; Britain, 8 per cent; West Germany, 11 per cent; and Italy, 12 per cent.

In Belgium and the Netherlands, the tax rates are 18 and 16 per cent, respectively. However, both countries reduce the tax on nonresidents if the car is taken out of the country. In such cases, Belgium reduces the tax to 1.8 per cent and the Netherlands to 1.6 per cent. Rules for documenting use of the car to qualify for the lower tax rates can be obtained when renting the vehicle.

Insurance rates also differ from country to country. But you will need the International Motor Insurance Card — commonly referred to as the carte verte or green card — if you plan to cross from one country to another in Europe.

Rental rates vary, too. In general, Italy and Spain are on the low end, while West Germany is on the high. Specific details are available by calling the toll-free reservation numbers of the major car rental companies.

You might also check prices of local firms — some have counters at the international airports and major hotels. They might not have as big a selection of cars and you might not be able to rent it here and leave it there but rates could be lower.

All you need is $3, two passport-type photos and a photostat of your driver's license. Your local AAA — you do not have to be a member — will take care of the rest. Allow about 10 days.

Buyer's Billboard

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's investigation into whether there are problems with the fabric softener "Bounce" is still going on, and some consumers are still reporting problems.

Our recent column on the subject prompted a number of letters, some supporting the product but most relating adverse experiences.

From Ashland, Ohio:

"As a practicing physician in family practice with two other physicians, let me add my experience to that already registered. Very, very shortly after Bounce was sent in sample form to all home occupants, we began seeing many, many people with skin rashes, allergic rashes and skin irritations which were directly traceable to Bounce samples.

"When Bounce was discontinued, the rash disappeared and would reappear if Bounce was reintroduced. I believe that this is about as good evidence as can possibly be obtained.

"I am sure that many, many other physicians across the nation have run into exactly this same phenomenon. I would venture a guess that we have seen several hundred patients just in our own practice here who are allergic and show allergic rash in response to use of Bounce.

"With evidence such as this, I feel as a practicing physician that Bounce very probably should be removed from the market until it is either reevaluated or the allergin is removed from the product."

From Portland, Ore.:

"I'd like to do a little griping about people who (a very small percentage it seems) complain about products that I like. I'm referring to the new washing aid Bounce.

"I truly like it and it does so much for permanent press and knits. Static cling is a real mess in the dryer. I know of a dozen friends on my block who would hate to go back to the liquid stuff again. They didn't do half the job. Please — don't take it away. If it does irritate a few, they simply don't have to use it."

From Hiawatha, Iowa:

"I am amazed that the company has only received the small number of complaints it has. I would have thought there would be many more, but I guess most of us just don't bother to write letters.

"My own experience has been that my children tolerated the product quite well, but I personally developed redness and itching over most of my body...

"I stopped using the product (the itching stopped) — I started using it again (the itching started again). No dermatologist or company spokesman will convince me that it was not the Bounce causing the problem.

"The sad part is that I think the product is great in every other way and if they could remove the irritating factor, I would definitely be a continual buyer of this product..."

From Aloha, Ore.:

"I didn't use it (Bounce) long enough to get any skin reaction. One sheet was enough. I washed a regular load, towels etc. I have a Maytag washer and dryer. I put one sheet of Bounce in my dryer and set it on regular as the things were all cotton.

"When I took the clothes out one of my hand towels with the fringe on each end was all brown and burned.

"We used to sell Maytags, so I have had their dryer ever since they came out. The one I have now is 10 years old and this had never happened before.

"Frankly I have never heard of a fire in a dryer all the years we sold them... On the box it warns you about commercial dryers being too hot. So I say where there's smoke there could be fire."

And from Flint, Mich.:

"My sister and I are senior citizens. We live together. When Bounce first came on the TV we bought a roll ... used it for two washings and discovered we couldn't sleep in the sheets — even our faces itched.

"Then my sister's granddaughter discussed it with us. She had to take her young boys to the doctor on account of a rash. He said it was Bounce, so we stopped using it and the itching stopped too.

"So no more Bounce for us — or any of our 22 great grandchildren or anyone else we know."

We thank those who took the time to write, including those whose letters we were unable to fit into this article.

Tips on tick fever

ATLANTA (UPI) — With the peak danger period for Rocky Mountain spotted fever approaching, the National Center for Disease Control has prepared a question and answer series designed to help the public recognize and avoid the illness.

Rocky Mountain spotted fever is spread to humans through the bite of certain ticks. It is a growing medical problem. There has been a steady increase in reported cases since 1960 nationwide. Most have occurred in seven southern and South Atlantic states.

The following questions and answers were prepared by Dr. Charles Shepard:

Q. What is Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever?

A. It is an infectious disease that can be transmitted to people through the bite of an infected tick. Usually, transmission of the disease from a tick bite does not occur unless the tick remains attached to a person for two or more hours.

Q. How will I know if I am getting RMSF or if my child is getting it?

A. About three to 10 days after tick attachment, the disease starts with a fever, perhaps with chills, headache or muscle aches. The onset is definite, and the patient is so sick that the doctor is usually called. A rash usually appears after one to three days of fever, usually on the wrists and ankles. At first the rash resembles that of measles. Later the rash may spread to the remainder of the body.

Q. Does RMSF affect all age groups?

A. Yes. Because they are more likely to be exposed to ticks, children living in rural and suburban areas are more likely to become infected. The disease is severe at all ages, but it is more severe in adults, especially in the elderly.

Q. Is there an effective treatment for RMSF?

A. Yes. Tetracycline and chloramphenicol are both effective. The earlier the disease is diagnosed and treatment started, the better. If treatment is begun on the first day or two of rash, the fever usually falls within 48 hours.

Q. Do all ticks carry RMSF?

A. Three species of ticks commonly transmit the disease to man: the Rocky Mountain wood tick in the West, the American dog tick in the East and parts of the Pacific Coast and the Lone Star tick in parts of the Eastern U. S. and Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. Only a small percentage of individual ticks are infected.

Q. What can be done to reduce the risk from ticks?

A. When you are in a tick-infested area, check yourself and your companions frequently to see if any ticks n on you. Ticks usually hang on grass or brush waiting for a host to come by. Often they first get on a person's legs and then crawl upwards looking for a place to attach. They may take several hours to attach. It helps to keep clothing buttoned, to tuck pants legs in socks and to keep shirttails tucked in. At night look yourself and your children over. If the hair is long, you will need to part and comb through it to make sure that none have attached to the scalp. Check the clothing over carefully, too, when it is first removed, before the ticks have had a chance to crawl off. Many cases result from exposure to ticks on dogs.

Judy Garland on library screen

Who were the stars of "Meet Me in St. Louis?" You're up on your film facts if you guessed Judy Garland and Margaret O'Brien, who star in this beguiling film about the goings-on in a house heavily populated by women.

The film will be screened at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, Thursday, July 22, at 7:15 p.m., and Friday, July 23, at 2 p.m. at Newtonville Branch, 345 Walnut St.

Directed by Vincent Minelli and produced by Arthur Freed, the film is a delightful period piece, with ladies dressed in flowing creations, the gentlemen in straw "boaters" and rooms lush with golden-oak wainscoting and red plush chairs.

"Meet Me in St. Louis," with Judy Garland singing "The Trolley Song" and the "Boy Next Door," is full of family humor and bursting with vitality — a "ginger-peachy" show.

The free feature film series concludes on Aug. 26 with the screening of "National Velvet."

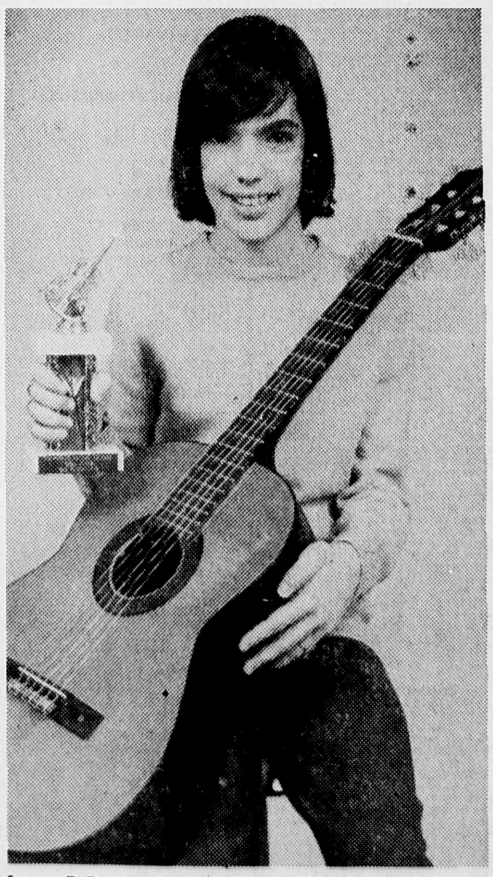

Library loans museum passes

The Newton Free Library is circulating membership cards for the Museum of Transportation and the Museum of Fine Arts.

There are two membership cards for each institution and they can be loaned for seven-day periods. They are subject to the regulations for seven-day periods - no renewals, five cents fine for each day overdue. No reserves will be taken.

These membership cards provide the bearer with free admission to the institution and members' rooms, and discounts on purchases. The cards are available at the circulation desk of the main library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner.

Summer hourse at the main library are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, closed Saturday and Sunday through Sept. 12.

Lynore DeDoming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert DeDoming of Newton Centre, was a winner in the Tri-State Guitar Contest, accelerated open category. She studies at the Paul Monte Music Studio under the director of Rick Tripp.

Newton men receive artists' fellowships

Sidney Hurwitz of Newton Centre and Thomas Petit of West Newton have been awarded $3000 Artists' Fellowships by the Massachusetts Arts and Humanities Foundation it was announced by Richard S. Linzer, executive director of the foundation.

Hurwitz, 44, is one of four Massachusetts artists selected from among 115 applicants to receive one of this year's fellowships in printmaking; Petit, 33, is one of six chosen from among 300 applicants to receive a photography fellowship.

Hurwitz, who teaches at Boston University, is a graduate of both B.U. and Brandeis University. He has received numerous awards, including a Fulbright Fellowship, and his work has been exhibited widely in this country and in Europe. The Museum of Modern Art, the Library of Congress and several other major institutions have purchased his work for their permanent collections. His prints can be seen at the Sunne Savage Gallery on Newbury Street in Boston.

Petit, a graduate of Rochester Institute of Technology, teaches at the New England School of Photography and works primarily with color photography. He has exhibited in galleries throughout New York State. He was selected to receive a fellowship solely on the quality of the work he submitted for anonymous review.

The Artists' Fellowship Program operated by the Foundation will award approximately 55 fellowships this year in 11 fields.

The Massachusetts Arts and Humanities Foundation, Inc., is a private, nonprofit organization that provides, in addition to the fellowships, various forms of financial and other assistance to creative artists in the Commonwealth.

Its programs are funded by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, the National Endowment for the Arts and other public and private organizations. For further information about the Artists' Fellowship Program contact the Foundation at 723-3851.

Computer at library provides summer fun

Have a great adventure this summer by learning how to use a computer, Free, at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner.

The library is providing a unique opportunity for people to gain access to a 'time-shared' computer in connection with a special computer program at Babson College in Wellesley.

People will be able to create their own programs, play simulation games, or learn from 800 already programmed units.

The computer hookup will provide opportunities for people to gain the valuable technical experience involved in learning how to operate a computer.

Essentially the method consists of a 'typewriter' terminal placed in the librrary with a telephone hookup between it and the computer in Babson College.

The circulation desk, 527-7700, will take reservations of time from individuals who want to use the computer.

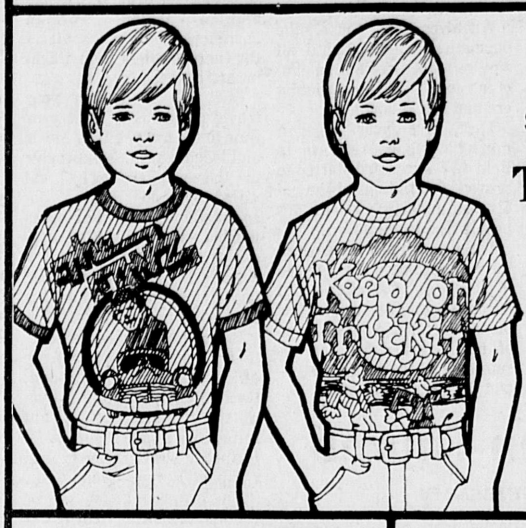

An audio tape prepared by Babson, as well as clearly marked instructions for using the computer, will be available near the console.

The length of time allotted to an individual for computer time will depend on demand.

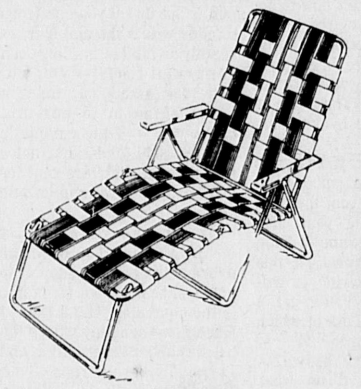

A "stalk" of celery means the whole plant. A single stem is properly called a "rib."

The vast lowland of the Peten region encompasses about a third of Guatemala's 42,042 square miles. This green heartland is half jungle, half savanna, underpopulated, rich in timber and wildlife.

Informality the mark of three area islands

By RICH MULLIN

To visit Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket or Block Island is to never want to leave. New England's three most popular island resorts have many things in common—timeless beauty, superb fishing and endless stretches of beaches—but perhaps the single most luring charm shared by the trio is the informal way of life that surrounds you in the little towns and villages.

BLOCK ISLAND

Ferries to Block Island offer regular summer schedules from New London, Conn., and Providence, Newport and Point Judity, R.I. If you plan on taking along your car (it really isn't necessary on any of the three islands) reservations should be made to be assured of space.

Once you're on dry land, a stroll on Block Island's narrow streets will take you back to the turn of the century when the island first became known as a vacation resort. The island retains much of its Victorian charm in its village buildings and hotels.

It has never been a well kept secret that the island has some of the best fishing waters on the east coast. Party boats are plentiful for offshore fishing, and the tuna, marlin and sword-fish that can be hooked may supply you with a vacation story about "the big one that didnt get away."

Four beaches provide all the sun bathing and swimming you could want. Crescent Beach, only a 10-minute walk from Old Harbor, sports a pavilion with bathhouses and plenty of free parking. Surfer's Beach, as the name implies, is a favorite for those who like to ride the flat and rolling surf. Most of the people who rent cottages on the island head for Scotch or Mansion Beach up toward the northern tip.

Since paved roads run throughout the country-side, bicycling is one of the most

What to do when renting mobile home

By DAN KAUFMAN

Camping and backpacking had little appeal for my wife, who was raised in New York City, so I sought, during my daily commute, for some other equally exciting way to spend our first vacation. On one particular 90-degree day I sat in stalled rush-hour traffic wiping perspiration from my eyes while visions of discovering America danced in my head. Peering up through the smog-ladden haze, I saw a child with a vanilla ice cream cone looking down at me from her living room. Her living room? A mobile home!

Renting a mobile home with a refrigerator, freezer, four-burner stove, oven, sink, toilet, shower, stereo, TV, soft beds, and air conditioning convinced my wife to "rough it" for a week; pack the yogurt and granola, and "get back to nature!"

Champion, Winnebago, Open Road, Executive. . .magical names which jumped from the phone book as my mind glided swiftly and silently over miles and miles of yellow brick roads. Finally, I found our home. We drove over immediately and reserved 24 feet of rolling relaxation and comfort to be picked up a month later. I was in heaven!

That all happened a year ago. . .and time does have a way of healing!

My wife can now smile about the rainy night we awoke to the pungent aroma of the septic holding tank backing up into the shower stall. It is with these memories in mind that I speak out to those of you whose daydreams of vacationing in a mobile home are rapidly approaching reality. It is the least I can do.

It is not necessary to list the things you should do to have a good time. We all have our own ideas of what constitutes "fun." Rather, the following list advises you what not to do:

—Don't wait until the last minute to look for a vehicle to rent. Make your plans at least a month in advance.

—Don't try to cover too much distance in too short a time. Two hundred miles in a 24-foot behemoth pushing a head wind of 2 knots seems like a 400-mile trip.

—Don't forget to figure the cost of fuel into your budget. Most mobile homes have the aerodynamics of a brick and yield little more than 10 miles per gallon. Keep an eye on the fuel gauge.

—Don't expect to pack all of your belongings into the home in an hour-no matter how organized you think you are.

—Don't carry too much extra water in your holding tank while driving. Water is weight, and extra weight you don't need at 10 miles per gallon.

—Don't drive on 95 and 100-degree days and expect the central air conditioner to do much good. If it is attached to a separate generator make sure it works well and is running.

—Don't think that because you are driving a monster down the road and have a Citizens Band Radio that truck drivers are your "Good Buddies." The camaraderie does not exist and they will look out for you only if you get too close. It seems that mobile home drivers scare them more than the "Smokies."

—Don't forget to keep lit the propane cooling your refrigerator. Your long await-

Water skiing in the Rangeley Lakes Region of Maine

Water sports also abound on famous lakes of Maine

In contrast to the coast, inland Maine's lakes regions with its mountains, streams and wooded campsites present another side of this Pine Tree State's vacation picture to the north country visitor.

The famous Sebago-Long Lakes chain has scores of lesser lakes and ponds covering hundreds of square miles. Sebago, the second largest lake in Maine, is the native habitat of fighting land-locked salmon, square-tail trout, black bass and numerous other fresh water species. For the novice angler, or even for the expert new to the area, guides are available to make the fish easier to find in the many serene coves and inlets.

Bordering towns of Windham, Raymond, Casco, Naples, Sebago and Standish offer water skiing, hiking, canoeing and a combination of beaches and boat launching facilities which is difficult to match. From the observation tower at the summit of Douglas Mt. in Sebago you get a panormaic view of the 17 villages below.

On the eastern shore of Sebago Lake, 14 miles long and 11 miles wide, in North Windham is one of the largest Indian Burial Grounds discovered in the U.S. Thousands of relics have been collected here.

Historically, South Casco's claim to fame is it was the boyhood home of Nathaniel Hawthorne. His uncle, Richard Manning, was one of the village's earliest settlers, and his mansion, once known as "Manning's Folly" because of its elaborateness, is still used as a residence.

Songo River and Brandy Pond connect Sebago Lake with Long Lake. Tradition says that the pond got its name when a cask of brandy from one of the old canal boats accidentally fell overboard.

In Naples you should try the daily mail boat trip on Long Lake or the popular Songo River cruise. Seaplanes for sightseeing are also available for an overall view. On the village green a museum, archives, bandstand and an old two-cell jail cater to the interests of landlubbers. Special events during July and August attract tourists from nearby Sebago State Park and other camping areas.

If you bring your own boat, there are many marinas where you can launch it from the trailer directly into the water. Eleven miles up Long Lake at Harrison, you can dock and visit in the village where there are stores, gift shops and restaurants; gas is available for the boat.

Farther north, six lakes make up the Rangeley Lakes region of which Mooselookmeguntic is the largest. The entire area is a wilderness of lakes, woods, streams and mountains. Here you can enjoy the advantages of a mountain vacation combined with water sports in lakes which average 70-degree temperatures.

The Rangeley Lakes are noted for challenging fishing and are one of the last strongholds of the fighting wild brook trout. The region prohibits the use of live fish as bait, and some waters are restricted to fly fishing.

If you're a canoeist who is looking for a "real" outing, there's the three-to-four-day trip through the chain of lakes; the starting point for this cruise is the town of Rangeley. A Maine guide can make your trip more comfortable, planning and preparing your meals, choosing the best places to camp and showing you the points of interest along the way. For those who prefer shorter treks, there are many local rivers to explore. Either way, remember to bring your camera.

Boating enthusiasts will find craft available for hire on the major lakes and numerous public and private launching sites. No matter how large or small a sailboat you bring, there's a lake to fit it.

On the southwest shore of Rangeley Lake, Rangeley State Park's 700 wooded acres contain over 50 camp sites (no reservations accepted). Picnic areas, complete with fireplaces and tables, are adjacent to a 300-foot beach.

Rangeley's Lakeside Park boasts an excellent swimming beach, a dock with diving boards, free bath houses and a playground for the children. It's a perfect place to relax and watch motor boat racers and water skiers. Or if you prefer to be a doer rather than a spectator, let the others watch while you glide over the glass-smooth water.

If hiking has brought you to the region, hundreds of miles of trail-laced mountains form the beginning of the Appalachian chain that stretches from Maine to Georgia. It takes only one hour to climb Bald Mountain or Spotted Mountain, both of which reward your efforts with panoramic vistas in every direction.

No matter what type of accommodations you prefer— resort hotels, motels, overnight cottages or tourist homes—you'll find it in both the Sebago and Rangeley Lake regions. Camping areas offer varying facilities whether you wish to "rough it" or camp out in comparative comfort.

Directly west of Augusta is the famous Winthrop Lakes region comprising 200 square miles of rolling landscape which nature has filled with lakes and ponds. Lar-

All aboard at Steamtown, Vermont

Relive the past on steam rails

Turn the clock back about 100 years to the days when the boyhood wish of almost every American was to be the engineer on a steam locomotive. Most people, today, still have a soft spot in their hearts for the days when the sights and sounds of steam railroading were as commonplace as cigar store Indians.

This summer you can relive the past and jump aboard for a train adventure. You have your choice of depots throughout New England: Steamtown and the Vermont Bicentennial Steam Train in Vermont; the Cog Railway and the Loon Mountain Pufferbelly in New Hampshire; and Edaville Railroad in Massachusetts.

At Steamtown, Bellows Falls, Vermont, climb aboard a real train and sit in one of the comfortable coaches with inlaid mahogany and deep plush seats for a ride to Chester. The conductor hollers, "All aboard," the whistle blows and with a roar of steam the big locomotive begins to roll.

Before the railroad, the route of these tracks was an old Indian trail and then a bridle path for settlers and a military road. Your journey will take you through five towns — Riverside, Rockingham, Brockway Mills, Bartonsville and Chester — and then return you to the starting point.

The train rambles through typical Vermont farm fields, past a 100-year-old covered bridge and finally pulls into an old Victorian brick depot in Chester. Just beyond the long covered bridge in Bartonsville, you get a glimpse of the high mountains in the distance.

After the trip a stop by the Steamtown Museum will treat you to over 100 major exhibits of an era gone by, including the world's largest collection of steam railroad locomotives. There are steam fire engines, passenger rail cars, dining cars, a caboose with snowplow and just about every other type of car ever used.

The 4012 "Iron Monster" is the largest engine in the world and weighs in at 1,200,000 pounds. It's so heavy, it must be moved frequently to keep it from sinking into the earth.

The museum displays hundreds of railroad models and a gallery car devoted to exhibitions of railroad photographs. Here you can also see a replica of the legendary "Golden Spike." Movies and slide shows are shown in the unique parlor car theatre.

Getting underway July 1, the Vermont Bicentennial Steam Train "expedition" goes through some of Vermont's more colorful towns and rolling countryside. You can board or disembark at any one of the stops along the 245-mile round-trip route.

From July 1-August 12 the steam engine, nicknamed "the Spirit of Ethan Allen," will start in Bellows Falls at 8:15 a.m. and continue on to Riverside, Ludlow, Rutland, Brandon, Middlebury, Shelburne and arrive at Burlington at 2 p.m.

Starting on the Battle of Bennington day, August 15, the train trip will begin in Burlington, follow the same route to Rutland but then shift to the western part of the state stopping in Manchester and Bennington. This schedule will go through Labor Day and starts up again September 25-October 17 for fall foliage season.

You'll be able to park your car at lots near the stations, and there are bike storage facilities for cyclist who want to get off and pedal their way around the north country villages. Most of the towns on the route will be hosting festivals, church suppers, band concerts and horse shows; you'll never be at a loss for something to do.

BECKONING MOUNTAIN VACATIONS

Killington is the liveliest and largest winter ski resort in the East. During the summer and fall, many lodges, restaurants, shops and after-hour spots remain open to provide a special vacation experience found only in the mountains.

Imagine a holiday where you set the pace, choosing something different to do each day. There are all the 'civilized' activities such as swimming pools, tennis, golf, summer theatre and dining . . . But only in the mountains are there country lanes to explore, auctions to attend, aerial lift rides to panoramic vistas, lakes to swim in, historic sites, trout streams, horseback riding, wilderness trail camps, and much more.

All in the heart of a resort environment that is relaxing and informal. There are no hassles with traffic, crowds or hot summer days (we're at a cool 2,200 ft. elevation).

This summer, share your vacation or a weekend with the Beckoning Mountains of Killington, Vermont.

THE KILLINGTON AREA OFFERS YOU:

aerial lift rides	nature walks
antiquing	relaxing surroundings

Sports play major role in New England

The potential excitement is always there: A Carlton Fisk homer in the bottom of the ninth . . . a Johnny Miller birdie on the 18th hole to go one up . . . a photo finish with "your" horse nosing out a win at the wire.

Sporting events are fun, both for the spectator as well as the participants. They have long been an integral part of the New England vacation picture. The following is a sampling of the variety you'll have to choose from throughout the summer.

Fenway Park in Boston draws baseball fans from all over to watch the Red Sox, New England's hometown team, in action. This year the BoSox are looking for a second consecutive American League crown and a chance to take it all in the World Series.

For the first time this season spectators will have no excuse for missing a close call on the base paths thanks to a new scoreboard that shows instant replays. Afternoon games start at 2 p.m., night games, 7:30 p.m. and admission prices range from $6 for roof seats to $1.50 for a spot in the bleachers.

In Pawtucket the Rhode Island Red Sox, the minor league team, take the field at McCoy Stadium. The action is always fast and furious as these major league hopefulls go all out to prove themselves.

Women's professional softball made its debut this year and New England's entry, the Connecticut Falcons, will play thier home games in Meriden, Conn. If you think the Red Sox and Yankees play rough and ready in their encounters, you've witnessed nothing until you see the competitive spirit shown by these girls whether it's attempting to turn over the double play or barrelling into the catcher on a steal of home. Led by star pitcher and strong batswoman Joan Joyce, the Falcons are currently showing fans that women's softball is on the way to the big time.

Harness racing in Champlain Valley in Vermont

The $100,000 Volvo International Tennis Tournament will highlight the summer activities in the Mt. Washington Valley August 2-8. The world's top tennis players will compete on the red clay courts of the Mt. Cranmore Tennis and Recreation Club in North Conway.

Last year Jimmy Connors, the world's number one player, won the tournament with an awesome display of two-fisted power over Ken Rosewall.

Two weeks later, August 23-29, a second array of tennis stars will be matched up in the US Pro Championships at the Longwood Cricket Club in Chestnut Hill, Massausetts.

With the acquisition of Kerry Melville Reid and John Alexander the Boston Lobsters of World Team Tennis are considered to be one of the most improved teams in the league this year. Among some of the more famous names who will do battle with the Lobsters during the season are Chris Evert, Ilie Nastase, Rod Laver, Marina Navratilova, Evonne Goolagong and Billie Jean King.

Home games are played at Boston University's air-conditioned Walter Brown Arena. WTT matches feature a color-coordinated, no-lines court — the two alleys are red, while the area between the baselines and service areas are chocolate brown, left service courts are green and the right ones blue.

SPORTS

A galaxy of stars are entered or expected to enter the Pleasant Valley Golf Classic in Sutton, Massachusetts including Johnny Miller, Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino, Hubert Green and J.C. Snead. They'll be shooting for the $40,000 first prize July 29-August 1 in what has become an annual summer ritual.

Celebrities and pros bring out the spectators by the thousands to watch golf as only the best can play it at the Sammy Davis, Jr. Greater Hartford Open. in Weathersfield, Connecticut. Set aside August 18-22 on your calendar and make yourself a promise to be on hand for this year's 25th anniversary event.

Jai Alai, the world's fastest game, recently made its debut in the new multi-million dollar Newport Jai Alai Sports Theater in Rhode Island. You can wager anywhere from straight bets on two-man teams to win, place or show to combinations like quiniela, perfecta, trifecta and daily double.

The players use a cesta, or wicker basket, to propel the pelota (ball) about the court at speeds of over 150 mph. A player has to cover an area almost half the size of a football field, so don't be surprised when you see him driving to the ground or climbing the walls attempting to reach the ball before it bounces twice.

Connecticut boasts of two jai alai frontons, in Hartford and Bridgeport. All three arenas are equipped with TV viewing screens in lounges and the standing room areas.

From your seat in the grandstand or the fender of your car, the polo matches Myopia Polo Fields in Hamilton, Massachusetts is a unique way to spend a Sunday afternoon. The games start at 3 p.m. with visiting national and international polo stars ready to challenge the home team.

For those who never miss a chance to get out and watch America's number one spectator sport, horse racing abounds in New England. There are numerous tracks in each of the six states, and harness racing takes the spotlight in almost all the county fairs in New Hampshire, Maine and Vermont. Greyhound racing fans will also be glad to hear that haven't been forgotten either. Two of the more popular tracks are Wonderland in Revere, Massachusetts, and Sabrook Greyhound Park on Route 107 off I-95 in New Hampshire.

LAKES

ger lakes include Cobbosseecontee, Annabessacook, and Maranacook in the towns of Monmouth, Winthrop, Manchester, West Gardiner and Readfield. One town alone, Winthrop, has 12 lakes and ponds.

The first Methodist church founded in Maine stands on a hill in East Readfield, seen from miles around. As you stroll through the town you'll see many interesting old homes with murals painted by itinerant artists. The Currier-Eaton House, built in 1800, is used today as a community house.

Lake Cobbosseecontee, in the south central part of Manchester, has a small lighthouse off the northwest shore. At the north end of town there is an old cemetery surrounded by a stone wall. On one of the large stones you'll discover what looks like footprints, not yet adequately explained by scientists.

North of Augusta, through the towns of Sidney, Belgrade, Oakland and Rome is the Belgrade Lakes region. Great Lake is the largest, spreading out at the center of the group. Around it are other isle-dotted lakes including Long, Salmon, McGrath, East and Messalonskee.

Within easy driving distance of the shopping centers at Waterville and Augusta the Belgrade Lakes region offers a wide range of accomodations from motels and camps to simple housekeeping cottages and cottage resorts.

Waterville is a city rich in history dating back to the time when the Indians had a village there and across the river in Winslow. Redington Museum contains items and displays that will take you through the early history of Waterville.

Located in north central Maine, the Moosehead Lake region lies in Piscataquis, "the county of lakes." Forty miles long and twenty miles wide, Moosehead Lake, the largest in the state, contains several large islands, many bays and inlets and is fed by scores of streams and lesser lakes.

Hemmed in by rugged mountains and flanked by virgin forest, it has been a haven of rest and a center of sports and recreation for many years. From Moosehead Lake you can start any one of five famous canoe trips: The East and West branch trips, the Allagash, the Allagash Circuit and the St. John River trip.

At the foot of the lake, Greenville is the starting point for excellent roads that strike out for miles northward along both sides of the lake into wilderness regions. Taking the road to the northeast, you'll drive through Lily Bay and Kokadjo to Ripogenus Dam at the base of Chesuncook Lake and around Harrington Lake to Baxter State Park.

Mount Katahdin, in Baxter State Park, is the northern terminus of the Appalachian trail and Maine's highest peak. Over the trail hikers may visit some of the most beautiful spots in the county. The route is well-marked and laid out so that the nightfall of each day finds the hiker at a camp where he can get food and a comfortable bed. This is real camping country, offering fully developed campsites and backwoods retreats accessible by boat only. Closer to Moosehead Lake, Big Spencer Mountain, Mt. Kineo and White Cap all have trails for expedition.

On Little Wilson Stream, southeast of Greenville, a 57-foot falls in a sheet slate canyon makes one of the most impressive cascades in the state. Nearby, Big Squaw Mountain can easily be climbed, and complete with a lodge on the mountain, this has become one of the more popular vacation spots in the region. Golf, tennis, boating, biking, a farm museum and cookouts add to the resort flavor. For those who would rather ride to the top, there's a chairlift to the summit.

Almost on the lake itself, Lily Bay is separated from Moosehead Lake by Sugar Island. Lily Bay State Park is a fishing center of high repute and many record salmon and trout are taken here each year.

Swimming, boating and golfing round out the activities in the region. Every type of accommodation is available to meet your taste: hotel, motel, campground, lodge and cabin.

the Americana trail

© 1974 Bristol County Development Council, Inc.

There's no better way to celebrate—and to enjoy—our nation's heritage than to travel the Americana Trail. This 119-mile trail, from Mystic, Conn., to Plymouth, Mass., and beyond to Cape Cod and Boston, includes attractions that present more than 350 years of American history.

There are six major stops on the Americana Trail:

- Mystic Seaport, Conn., the outdoor maritime museum, where nearly 200 ships and boats are on display... where skilled craftsmen demonstrate the trades of a 19th-Century seafaring community
- Newport, R.I., where you can see an authentic replica of a Revolutionary War ship... where you can visit the glittering mansions of the Gilded Age
- Fall River, Mass., where you'll climb aboard three U.S. Navy fighting ships at Battleship Cove... and, just a short distance away there's a marine museum celebrating the ages of steam and sail
- New Bedford, Mass., where you'll see the world's largest ship model, a half-size whaling bark, and other memorabilia of an age when this city was the whaling capital of the world
- South Carver, Mass., where you can ride an authentic steam train through lovely Cranberry Country
- Plymouth, Mass., where you'll visit Mayflower II, see and hear the Pilgrim story at the National Wax Museum, and stroll the streets of an authentic reconstruction of the Pilgrim village of 1627

Wanted: Tradition-minded people with excellent taste & high standards.

We address ourselves to you because our stores are tailored to you. Everything we offer is Traditional with a capital "E", for Early American. Everything, from furniture, lamps & pewter to paints, hardware & stains, including a few really select Bicentennial mementos.

As for taste, we don't claim to be arbiters. We let history do that. This Chippendale Wing Chair, for instance, has been popular for a mere 200 years.

We also share your high regard for quality. As shown by this chair's hand-woven crewel upholstery. The solid mahogany legs; the hardwood frame. We've offered it for 20 of its 200 years. And it has always had a following, despite its cost ($294.).

The same high standards are evident in all our wares. Whether you buy a $500. hutch (we'll ship it home for you) or a $6.50 pewter letter opener, you can expect it to last. Because we want you to come back. And, just as importantly, we want your children to come back.

popular diversions. As you ride around the winding paths take time to explore the old graveyards, sand dunes, abandoned lighthouses and the many points of historic interest.

Settler's Rock is where the Dutch explorer Adrian Block first stepped ashore in 1624. Rising 200 feet above the Atlantic, Mohegan Bluffs stretches for five spectacular miles along the rugged coast. The Bluffs were named for an Indian tribe because in many places they resemble Indian profiles.

When the sightseeing is over, you'll find that the trip around the island has helped you build up quite an appetite. Most of the restaurants and lounges are moderately priced including Dead Eye Dick's, Smuggler's Cove and The Yellow Kittens. If it's the lowest prices you're after, head for Ernies in Old Harbor—the least atmosphere, but the best seafood at rock-bottom prices.

MARTHA'S VINEYARD

Only a 45-minute excursion from Woods Hole on Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard is a haven for yachts and sports fishing boats. On the salt pounds up-island, there are informal races each weekend for the sunfish skippers. At the other end of the spectrum, there are races almost daily at the Edgartown and Vineyard Haven yacht clubs.

You'll find the Vineyard's beaches, rated among the world's finest, are varied and interesting. On the south shore, at Katama, there is a public surf beach that extends for miles. On the east shore, between Oak Bluffs and Edgartown, the clear, calm water of Nantucket Sound is a special attraction for bathers and families with small children.

The island has several good museums and historical sites which you can enjoy on a brief tour. Edgartown is a well-preserved example of a prosperous whaling port as it appeared in the middle of the last century. Oak Bluffs, meanwhile, has a charming and unique camp-ground cottage colony built in fantastic Victorian gingerbread style by merry Methodist sojourners of a hundred years ago.

Menemsha, a little up-island harbor village, is still a working fishing port. You'll still see the draggers come in with their great nets and the lobstermen land their catches. You can wander along the docks and buy lobsters, swordfish, clams and other native seafood as fast as it is unloaded from the incoming vessles.

Whether you're in a browsing or buying mood, the Vineyard has good and abundant gift shops. Antique stores range from bargain-priced odds-and-ends emporiums to posh shops that specialize in Oriental, Central American or European antiques and art objects.

NANTUCKET

Thirty miles off the Cape, Nantucket Island combines cobblestoned streets, old whaling mansions, an artists' colony and rolling moors covered with wild flowers. Artists flock to the island year after year to capture on canvas the true flavor of Nantucket, and on August 16, 17 and 18 you'll have a chance to see their work during the annual sidewalk art show.

With shallow flats for children on one end and a gently sloping beach on the other, The Jetties is the most popular public beach. For surfers, Surfside and Cisco on the south shore seem to be the best spots to catch the waves.

In 'Sconset on the eastern shore you can relax by strolling around the village or golfing at one of two fine golf courses. To the north the Sankaty Head Lighthouse has warned ships since 1850.

For a scenic tour of the island, you might want to venture out on your own or take a guided bus tour through the little colonies of Madaket, Surfside, Polpis, Squam, Monomoy, Wauwinet and Siasconset.

The island's historical highpoints present you with a perfect way to make the most out of lazy days or rainy weather. The Old Gaol was built in 1805 to hold local criminals and debtors. The town stocks and pillories have been restored, and inside the jail you'll notice that one cell even has its own fireplace.

The Jethro Coffin House (also known as the Horseshoe House because of a u-shaped symbol on the chimney) is the island's oldest house, dating back to 1686. The house is furnished now as it was then. It has enormous fireplaces, period furniture and a china collection.

Although it has been more than 100 years since the last whaling ship sailed from Nantucket, the Whaling Museum recalls the days when the island whalers roamed the world in search of the giant ocean mammals. The museum is filled with harpoons, scrimshaw, a fully equipped whaleboat, South Sea relics and the skeleton of a 44-foot whale.

ed cold beer at the end of the day could taste like something out of a London Pub.

—Don't forget to park on a level piece of ground. Most refrigerators will not operate on an incline. Carry a level indicator and some 2 X 4's to help maintain a correct attitude when stopped for any length of time.

—Don't forget to drain your holding tank as often as possible. You would not want to awaken at 2 a.m. with anything leaking out of the bathroom door.

—Don't use the stove when moving. It is very dangerous. And illegal!

—Don't leave without totally familiarizing yourself with the vehicle and test driving it for a few miles. Check the service records too.

—Don't expect that cushy looking driver's seat to be as comfortable as the one in your den. Make sure the seat has plenty of adjustment or a bad back may be one of your souvenirs.

—Don't worry if you leave a few small items at home. The better camping grounds usually have a small store and the facilities are quite civilized including showers, washers and dryers, swimming pools, etc.

—Don't forget to make your camping ground reservations well in advance. If possible, get confirmation in writing. There are quite a few guides written that will help to make it easy to plan your route and overnight destinations.

—Don't forget you are not driving a car. A quick trip down to the corner store for a head of lettuce requires two parking spaces and a lot of fuel. Think about carrying a bike along.

—Don't forget your sense of humor!

What America was, New Hampshire is.
Before America challenged the Crown, Colonists were plowing New Hampshire soil. And building farmhouses and shingled seacoast towns. And then town halls and high-steepled churches and beautiful, simple furniture.
Everything was built the New Hampshire way. To last. Which it has.
Today, New Hampshire is a land of history and promises. And a whole world of vacation pleasures from active seaside resorts to small country inns. Mountains to hike, rivers, lakes and oceans to swim, and a vanishing way of life to savor.

No Limit.
In New Hampshire there's no limit to your fishing opportunities. Sure. We put a limit on the number of game fish you can keep, but the fishing variety is nearly endless.
More than twenty different fresh and saltwater fighters. Including land-locked salmon and lake trout. Rainbows and browns, and beautiful native brookies. Bass and panfish enough to keep everybody busy. 1300 lakes and ponds, from wilderness pools to the 72 square miles of Lake Winnepesaukee. Or fish the rocky Atlantic shoreline for stripers and Coho salmon. And we have licenses to fit your vacation.

Sign law ready for hearings

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Described as "more regimentation" by Ald. Robert Tennant and as a means of preserving "the amenities and visual qualities of the city" by the Planning Department, a new sign ordinance has been completed and will receive a public hearing Aug. 9.

The City Planning Committee has been working on the new ordinance for more than a year and this week voted to send it, as amended, to the Land Use Committee.

The amendments were principally written and accepted by the committee to satisfy complaints of Newton businessmen, many of whom feel that some provisions of the new ordinance are financially onerous, especially to owners of small businesses.

The replacement of signs that do not meet the new criteria has caused the most trouble.

Originally a timetable for replacement was set up according to cost of the sign, with those signs costing more having the longer allowable life span.

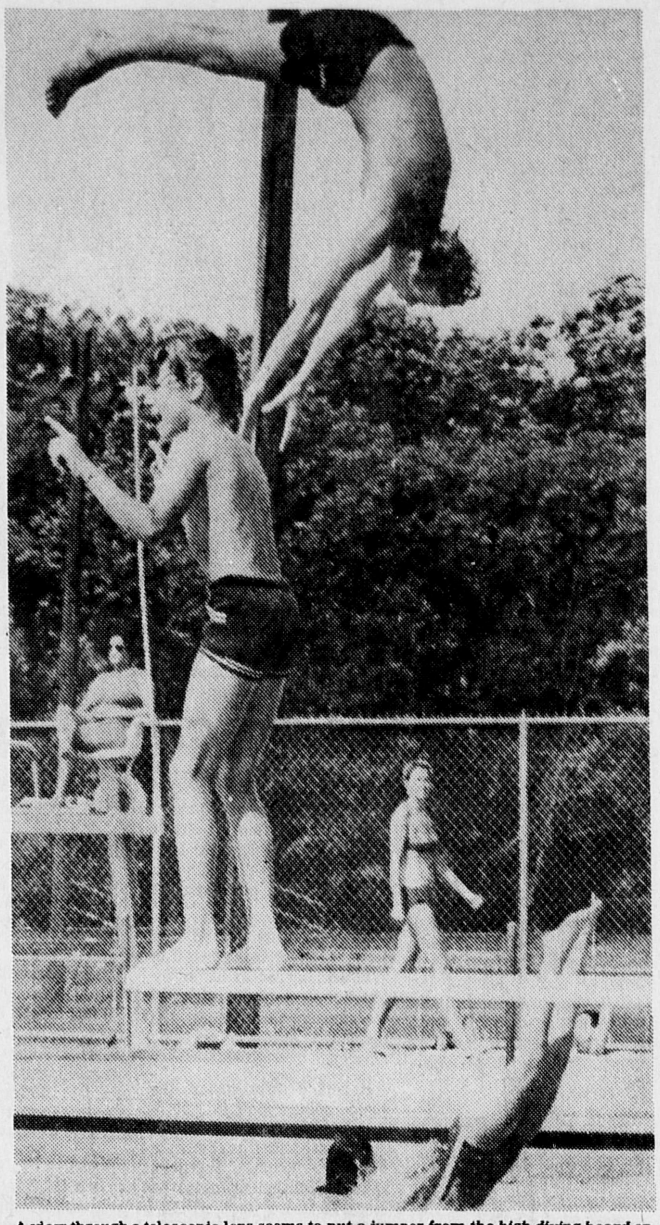

Now this provision has been changed to require that signs more than 18 months old be replaced, if they do not meet the new standards, within 18 months.

The schedule continues by intervals and ages until the limit of 60 months for replacement is reached, for a sign three years old or less.

The committee will offer an alternative to this scheme that would allow the existence of all signs that do not comply with the new sign ordinance as "non-conforming signs," which are governed by present zoning regulations.

A nonconforming sign could continue until any alteration or major repair were needed; then it would have to be brought into compliance or replaced.

With Newton North Pool closed for the summer and the beaching of the broken Crystal Lake raft, Gath seems to be the best place for diving this summer. But the Gath Pool is not problem free either. The wading pool was closed once this week because of a malfunctioning filter system. (Williams photo)

Housing Commission takes over

The Newton Housing Services Commission, which has replaced the Housing Authority as managerial agency for existing public housing programs, has elected a Newton Centre attorney as its chairman.

Steven Buchbinder of 19 Rolling Lane was elected to head the new agency at its organizational meeting on July 14, after former NHA Chairman James Miller declined to serve a new term.

"It's appropriate at this junction to seek new leadership," Miller told the six-member Commission in response to nominations on his behalf.

The Commission supported Frank Quinn, director of housing services, in his stand that the Concrete Construction Company should be denied its $47,000 payment for the Newton Housing Authority's Beaconwood Road project until landscaping around the houses and roads has been done properly.

The Everett firm was general contractor for the $1 million job and is demanding the rest of its money without responding to complaints about the chunks of cement and weeds left in the ground, Quinn says.

Some landscaping was done this spring by a subcontractor for $45,000, but it wasn't done properly and people who live there still have no lawns, according to Quinn and Miller.

"They're 100 per cent wrong. It's been accepted by the architects. I'm looking for my $47,000," responded President Fred Savignano of Concrete, when contacted early this week.

Savignano blames the Housing Authority and its dispute with Boston Edison Company last fall over underground street lighting for the lawn situation.

NHA told him to stop work until Boston Edison did the lighting, and Boston Edison would not do the work until paid, Savignano said.

Concrete was finally told to go back to work in December, and that is when its subcontractor seeded the lawns, he said.

Fink says Metco in jeopardy here

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said this week that unless the School Committee meets to amend its Metco budget by Aug. 4, the program will not be recommended to the state Board of Education and will end in Newton.

Superintendent Fink received a letter from state Metco Director Charles Glenn urging the city to accept $419,000 in reimbursement and restore some or all of the four professional staff positions cut from the Metco budget previously.

To make up for an $81,729 reduction in reimbursement from what was expected when Metco budget was passed in February, the School Committee eliminated a psychologist, social worker, and other professionals from the Metco staff.

Karl Fuller, assistant to Glenn, said Wednesday that the Newton Metco budget will not be recommended to the state Board of Education for approval as it now stands.

Asked if the Board of Education would receive the Newton budget without the approval from the Bureau of Equal Educational Opportunity, Fuller said, "No, we've never operated that way."

Fuller said it was common to negotiate a budget with school committees and did not consider the letter a threat or ultimatum.

School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell said he will not call a meeting before Aug. 3 or at any time until he receives official word from the Board of Education that it will not accept the School Committee's budget.

Superintendent Fink said Tuesday that he has gotten oral approval from the state that it will give Newton $225,000 for direct and indirect costs for the 350 students based on new data.

Newton Director of Research and Planning Vincent Silluzio has computed the distribution of Metco children in classrooms as projected for next year.

Based on the formula for staffing elementary classrooms the placement of Metco students would theoretically require nine extra elementary teachers and four secondary school teachers at a cost of $218,500.

Fink said he can still justify the earlier request for $256,000 for basic instruction costs based on a reimbursement formula, but this lower figure is the actual cost.

Mandell has his own set of figures to back claims

School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell said he will not call a meeting to revote the Metco budget until the state Board of Education officially acts on the budget passed June 28.

Mandell said the July 9 letter from Director Charles Glenn of the Bureau of Equal Educational Opportunity does not warrant School Committee action.

Glenn's letter asks the School Committee to reapportion the $81,729 budget cut to allow for a lower reimbursement of indirect costs rather than making up most of the deficit by cutting three to four staff positions.

Mandell said, "The Newton School Committee should not react to a veiled threat of a lower echelon," referring to Glenn.

"We have gone through our official action." Without a letter from State Education Commissioner Gregory Anrig or the Board of Education, Mandell said "We've got nothing official that says it (the Newton Metco budget) is rejected or should be changed."

Chairman Mandell gave additional figures this week to show that Newton is picking up a "considerable expense" with

New trial sought over landtaking

The Newton Redevelopment Authority, which just lost a $477,870 land damage case in Middlesex Superior Court, faces a second trial on that case and four other pending suits, all stemming from its Lower Falls urban renewal projects.

Martin J. Roach won the award from Judge Francis Lappin but filed on July 15 for a "de novo" trial in the same court.

Roach, a former Lower Falls landowner and Newton businessman, is continuing court action against the NRA in hopes of getting more money for his land.

The case should come up in October.

Judge Lappin's decision found that Roach could have obtained a zone change to develop his land privately, had NRA not taken it.

Roach is pleased with the finding but unhappy at the financial award, which he believes would be much higher in a jury trial decision.

Lappin found, in his June 25 decision, that fair market value of the property taken May 13, 1969 from Roach was $519,581.

The smaller parcel taken on December 15, 1970 was found to be worth $39,900.

The NRA took the first parcel for a state-assisted project on the eve of an aldermanic public hearing for rezoning to commercial use.

Roach received $191,000 for the large piece and $23,000 for the smaller one, taken for a federally-assisted project.

The financial award by the court, in each case, is the difference between Lappin's finding and the amount NRA paid Roach after the takings, plus interest at six percent over almost five years.

In the first taking Lappin awarded Roach $328,581 plus $127,522 interest; in the second, $16,900 with $4,867 interest.

"I find that the highest and best use for the petitioner's land would be for business and commercial office use, and that its geographic location for that use is excellent, and that there was a reasonable probability that a zone change could be obtained for that purpose by a

New director named for Human Services

A new director of the Human Services Department was appointed this week by Mayor Theodore Mann.

The new director will be Howard Lipton, of New Haven, Conn. He replaces Jane Pitt, who became the mayor's chief administrative officer in May, following the resignation of James Salter from the position.

Lipton, who is 27, is administrator of elderly services in New Haven's Office of Human Services. He has also done work in transportation of the elderly in New Haven.

He is a graduate of the University of Connecticut, with a B.A. in political science. He earned a master of science degree in urban studies from Southern Connecticut State College.

Lipton will start his new job here about Aug. 16 at a salary of $15,500.

Paul St., Nahanton St. to be discussed tonight

Two building projects will be discussed again at a working meeting of the Land Use Committee tonight (Thursday) at City Hall.

Objections from neighbors have resulted in a revised, and more expensive, design for the apartment house for the elderly on Paul Street, Newton Centre.

According to Planning and Development Director Charles Thomas this week, one floor has been cut off the height of the building, the building coverage has been extended, and a few other changes made.

The result, Thomas says, is a 52-unit building that is five stories high (six floors with the ground floor below grade), some of it set back.

The previously planned office for the Housing Services Commission, formerly the Housing Authority, has been eliminated.

The commission will remain for the History buffs restoring Ward House

BY PRISCILLA LEITH
Graphic Correspondent

One of Newton's earliest homes, lying on a tract that belonged to the same family for over 300 years, has been salvaged by two young, self-taught architect-remodelers .

Fresh from the renovation of their own 1790 vintage house a few blocks away, Diana Barrett and Bob Vila are restoring both inside and out of the John Ward House in Chestnut Hill to its authentic 1820's appearance.

This is their fourth historic restoration, and one guaranteed to rouse the blood of local history buffs and even the ghosts of Wards long past.

Just completed is their own home at 550 Beacon Stree , which they bought shortly before their marriage.

The former dilapidated farmhouse of the Webster Estate at the corner of Beacon and Hammond Pond Parkway has been transformed into a jewel with modern conveniences, yet retains the flavor of its late eighteenth century architecture and decor as adopted to the Barrett-Vila lifestyle.

Vila spotted the John Ward House while driving by one day as the couple worked on their Beacon Street home.

Instantly drawn to its possibilities, he screeched to a halt.

"My God, it's Federal with Victorian porches," he recalls thinking. "I wonder who owns it."

But he failed to follow up.

Months later, Diana and Bob answered a newspaper ad for an old house that turned out to be the very same place - the John Ward House.

Two hours after they looked at it they bought it.

The site was the homestead of an original Newton settler, John Ward, who came here from Sudbury at the age of 27. The eldest son of William Ward, who emigrated from England to Sudbury in 1639, John married Hannah Jackson, whose father Edward gave the couple 45 acres of his land to live on.

The couple built a "garrison house" in either 1650 or 1661 at the corner of what is now Ward Street and Woodlawn Drive.

Ward descendants lived there continuously until the garrison house was torn down in 1821 and the present Federal style house was built by Ephraim Ward and his bride Lucy Hovey.

Ephraim's son, Thomas Albert, a farmer, and his wife Hannah Morison Ward inherited it and lived there through the early 1900's.

The house passed to their son, Charles Grafton Ward, also a farmer, and then to his son, J. Grafton Ward, the ninth generation Ward survivor.

Grafton sold the home in 1974, shortly after the death of his mother, releasing the homestead from the family for the first time since Massachusetts was colonized.

The house was in "virginal" condition when Diana Barrett and Bob Vila bought it - exactly the kind of building that challenges them .

The original plaster was still good. All laths were of hand-split oak.

Ceilings hadn't been spoiled by acoustical tile or walls covered with fake paneling.

Windows still had the original glass.

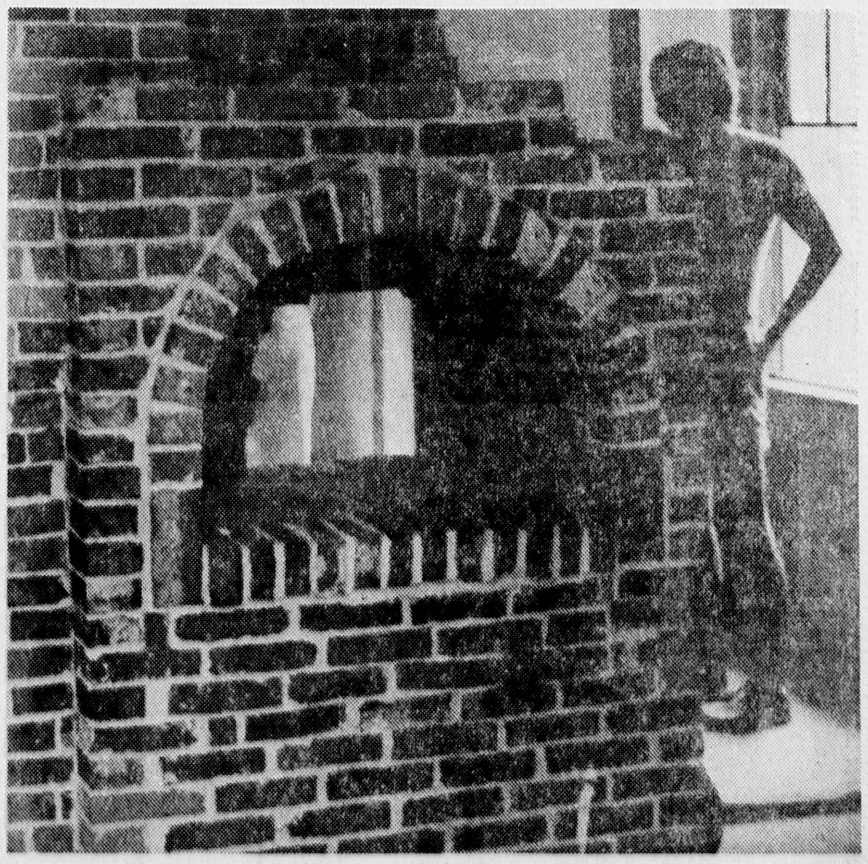

The Federal design was simple and symmetrical, with two parlors of equal size on either side of the front entry, and the same layout for the upstairs front bedrooms.

At the back was a dining room, formerly a combination kitchen-dining room, with a small third bedroom above it. 4 A massive renovation in the 1860's, for which Vila found documentation among papers uncovered in the house, added a room to the back of each story.

The dates dovetail with the record of the marriage and subsequent occupancy by Ephraim's son, T. Albert Ward, and Hannah Morison at the Jackson Homestead.

The downstairs addition became a new kitchen and the upstairs room probably a

Backman supports retention of community councils on aging

State Sen. Jack H. Backman and State Rep. David J. Mofenson, cochairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, met this week with experts in the elderly affairs area to discuss current issues of senior citizens.

One of the problems that has arisen is the current action to change the policy of the state secretary of Elderly Affairs that encourages huge regional agencies at the same time ignoring the work of local Councils for Aging' such as in Brookline and Newton.

At the same meeting the tremendous need of senior citizens for home care as an alternative to institutionalization was explored.

In addition to Backman and Mofenson, Frank Manning, president of the Legislative Council of Older Americans, and Evelyn Greenman, director of the Brookline Council for Aging, as well as state and federal experts and members of the Human Services Committee, were present to discuss ways to utilize services which have already been set up.

Sen. Backman stated, "Many individual councils for aging have made important first steps toward providing essential services, including home care for the elderly. These local councils have managed to provide many necessary services to seniors. Many of the councils have been cited nationally for their efforts.

"However, it appears that the Department of Elderly Affairs is now engaged in a policy that ultimately will cut out the local councils and local control and instead create regional bureaucracies.

"Members of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, as well as Rep. Mofenson and myself, are deeply concerned that the best interests of the elderly will be served only by local control and local input by citizens within the communities where the elderly reside.

"Our senior citizens are now approaching over 20 percent of our entire population. Unfortunately, too many of them, regardless of their work during forty or fifty productive years, can only look forward to third-class housing, meager food rations, and institutionalization sometimes akin to imprisonment. Our goal must be to make certain that services are provided within the community in order to enable them to live out a life in dignity.

"The whole purpose of the reorganization of the Department of Elderly Affairs was to create such a capacity. Our Human Services Committee which helped create the department intends to work to make this a reality.

"The Department of Elderly Affairs has stated there are not sufficient monies to fund the neededprograms of local councils for aging. In such a context, another layer of bureaucracy in regional administrative units merely drains off the available direct service funds.

"The rendering of services must be the goal, not the creation of new levels of administration and bureaucracy. The local councils for aging who have worked and well so long without adequate funding should now be encouraged, rather than ignored," said Sen. Backman.

Total of 21 retire from school system

Twenty-one teachers and administrators retired from the Newton school system this year, and most were honored at a tea recently given by the Newton Teachers Association.

Joan Warner, the president of the NTA, read short biographies of each of the teachers that have given so much of their lives to the development of Newton's children.

Ms. Warner also presented an engraved Paul Revere bowl to each retiree and a certificate from the Massachusetts Teachers Association.

The teachers who retired are as follows:

Allison Furniss taught second grade at Hyde and Emerson schools for 25 years, and has been successful in introducing social studies to her students. She has put on shows in area nursing homes and has traveled and worked extensively for the Red Cross in Europe, Japan, and Alaska.

Dorothy Kilroy was a librarian at Williams school for the past 10 years of her 30 years teaching in Newton. She has also taught at Mason Rice, Carr, Franklin, Bowen, Oak Hill, and Underwood in grades 1, 3, 4, and 5.

Margaret Aucoin spent 34 years in the Newton schools, most of them teaching fifth grade at Ward School. Ms. Warner said she is a "happy, dedicated individual. In a word' 'Dynamite.'"

Evelyn Ramsdell was the head guidance counselor at Meadowbrook Junior High School since 1959, and has been in Newton 25 years. She was "marvelous with the student that no one else cared about," Ms. Warner said.

Harold Hawkes came to Newton in 1947 to teach science. He became Cutler housemaster at Newton South and later coached the football team. In 1973 he was elected to the Massachusetts High School Hall of Fame and served as president of the Newton Teachers Association in 1958-59 and 1971-72.

Joseph Slyva was assistant principal at Weeks in the last of his 38 years in Newton. For five years he was an industrial arts teacher before joining the administration. This "fantastic person with a marvelous sense of humor" plans to go to the Cape, according to Ms. Warner.

John Hanrahan was most recently a French teacher at Bigelow during his 34 years in Newton. He has taught French and Latin and was a French consultant since 1961.

Edith McQuaid was a Cabot kindergarten teacher. After 20 years here Ms. Warner said she is "vivacious and youthful."

Mildred Adams of Cabot School spent all of her 27 years of her teaching career in Newton. She taught grades 2, 3, and since 1951 grade 5. She has a great concern for faculty and students, Ms. Warner said.

Donald Mitchell has spent 29 of his 48 years teaching in Newton. He was administrative assistant at Newton North High School and served for seven years as treasurer of NTA.

Rose Durham has spent the last 18 of her 34 years teacing in Newton at Hamilton School. She also taught at Beethoven and Angier. She is a master teacher in rank and has been active in the NTA and MTA.

Mary Baker taught art at Carr and Ward schools during her 25 years in Newton, and has been a strong, positive influence in attracting children to art, Ms. Warner said.

Robert Jackson was the principal of Lincoln-Eliot School for the past 14 years. He is highly respected in the Lincoln-Eliot community. He spent 30 of his 40 years teaching in Newton.

Ruth Bruce most recently taught sixth grade at Burr School. She taught 11 of her 21 years in the profession in Newton.

Anne Collins joined the Newton Junior College staff in 1959 and served as nurse instructor and chairwoman of the Nursing Department. She plans to continue teaching nursing.

Robert Hybels joined the junior college staff in 1956 to teach history and social studies. He served as chairman of the Social Sciences Department, and plans to do research and writing.

Charles Merrill joined the Newton Junior College in 1959 as chairman of the Science Department and became dean of the college in 1960. He has been appointed administrator at Longwood Hospital where he was chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Mary Hogan has served the Newton schools for 25 years. She has taught French for 17 years at North and earlier taught at Weeks Junior High. She has been active in school musical affairs. Her father graduated from Newton High in 1898 in a class of 25 students.

Nicholas Penta taught at the metal fabrication shop at Newton North since 1956, after beginning his teaching career in in Boston and Everett. He plans to travel and work on his house on the Cape.

Thomas Mangan taught printing at Newton North for 15 years, and prior to that taught for nine years in Waltham. He was active in the Massachusetts Vocational Association and a member of the Building Committee for Newton North.

Henry Lasker taught music and music composition at Newton North for 33 years. He organized the Newton Night at the Pops with Arthur Fiedler and wrote and directed many student and professional productions.

Channel 5 winner of award for crime series

WCVB-TV's three-hour prime time special, "Crime: The War We're Losing," and its genesis, a 52-part editorial campaign against crime, have been presented the coveted Silver Gavel Award and a Certificate of Merit by the American Bar Association.

WCVB-TV (Channel 5), represented by its president, Dr. Leo L. Beranek, will be among 19 Gavel Award winners accepting the prizes at the ABA's 99th annua meeting, Tuesday, Aug. 10, in Atlanta, Ga.

"Crime: The Ware We're Losing" was telecast Friday, Dec. 12, 1975, from 8 to 11 p.m. Capping the 18-month editorial campaign, the special utilized a one-hour film documentary and a two-hour examination of Massachusetts' mounting crime problem by state leaders.

The editorial series led to the creation of a state-wide Crime Prevention Bureau, the passage of legislation banning the private practice of law by district attorneys, and reform of the State Department of Youth Services.

Mofenson wants to expand opportunity for jury duty

State Rep. David J. Mofenson, of Newton is continuing his fight for jury reform in Massachusetts by sponsoring a bill to assure that each grand jury and trial jury will be selected "from a fair and randomly drawn cross-section of the populaton." If the plan is adopted it can reduce the state costs for juror payments.

"At present there are some 38 different exemptions and exclusions from jury duty written into the law," Mofenson said. "Jury duty is generally for a whole month, and many qualified people are excluded because of the hardships involved. As a result we don't get a jury that really represents the whole community."

"The goal of this reform plan is to open up jury duty to everyone in the state, but for shorter periods. In 80 percent of the cases, this means three days or less," he said.

The shorter service is intended to involve more people in civic responsibility and make it easier for professional people and the self-employed to be away from their regular activity and less of a burden on employers whose workers are off the job sitting on juries.

Part of the plan calls for employers to pay their workers' salaries for up to three days. In return companies would benefit from the fact that the time served would be much shorter. Furthermore, with the employer payment provision, the direct government expense will be reduced substantially, estimated at upward of a million dollars a year statewide.

Under the present system, all jurors receive $14 a day, and in many instances the employer makes up the difference between that amount and what the juror would earn at work.

"The bill now before the legislature will apply the reforms first in Suffolk County only, as a pilot program. If things work out well there, all juries throughout Massachusetts will be brought into the system," Mofenson said.

Newton artisans' work on display in Brockton

Three Newton women — Tafi Brown and Judith Daner of Newton Centre and Judith Evergreen of Auburndale — have been selected to have their work displayed until Sept. 19 at the juried Craftforms exhibit at the Brockton Art Center.

Ms. Brown, has three quilts on exhibit entitled, "The American Wing III," "The American Wing IV," and "The American Wing V." The first was made by photo silkscreening and the others by cyanotype.

Ms. Daner, who works with enamel on copper, has two works on display entitled, "St. George and the Dragon" and "Adam and Eve."

Judith Evergreen, a potter, has a piece' entitled "Time Piece 2," made from clay and slip.

Craftforms is a major exhibition of works in metal, clay, glass, leather, fiber and wood, by craftspeople all over the northeast.

The Brockton Art Center is on Oak Street on Upper Porter's Pond, Brockton.

State police investigate nomination signatures

Nomination petitions filed in Newton for an opponent of U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy in the fall Democratic primary have been given to the Middlesex County district Attorney for possible legal action.

District Attorney John Droney said Tuesday that he will shortly assign state police detectives to investigate the papers filed by Albert Onessimo of Somerville.

Other nomination papers submitted in other communities are currently under challenge at the state Ballot Law Commission.

Onessimo's papers filed at Newton City Hall were impounded by Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission, when during the routine verification of voter registration it was noticed that the signatures appeared to have been written by one or a few persons.

The Newton papers involved about 500 signatures.

The usual procedure when signatures are questioned is to challenge them through the Ballot Law Commission after submission to the Secretary of State.

Licarie chose to seek an investigation by the district attorney because, he said, the Ballot Law Commission customarily only disallows questionable signatures and does not pursue the case as a violation of the law.

Attorney S. George Bromberg of the commission confirmed this week that "a great many of Onessimo's signatures have been challenged."

A hearing on the signatures was held by the commission Tuesday, but no decision will be reached until Friday, Bromberg said.

Some cases have been referred to the attorney-general's office, "when there is flagrant fraud," Bromberg said.

Onessimo said two weeks ago that he had "not bothered to pick up his papers from Newton" because he had enough signatures from other communities. For a place on the ballot for U.S. senator, 10,000 certified signatures are needed.

Last week Onessimo said there must have been a misundersstanding about not bothering to pick up the papers. In fact, he said, he had been told to go to City Hall and pick them up July 2, but found City Hall closed by 3 p.m.

According to persons working at City Hall, closing time that day was the usual 5 p.m.

Licarie said that this incident makes a strong case for his opinion that nomination petitions, whether for city, county or state offices, should be issued only to candidates or their designees and should be accounted for as they are given out.

Licarie strongly enforces the law that nomination papers for city offices be given only to the candidates. This procedure prevents use of nomination papers to embarrass or politically injure anyone.

Onessimo said that he had other people obtaining signatures for him. He himself reportedly filed his papers for certification at City Hall.

Simonds named Cushing trustee

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis has appointed Laurence Simonds of 326 Fuller St., West Newton, to the board of trustees of Cushing Hospital.

Simonds, 75, retired since 1968, was an executive with Brown Brothers, Harriman and Company.

Simonds, a graduate of Lake Forest College, has been an active participant in the Geriatric Foundation, which is attempting to improve the plight of the elderly.

Simonds will serve until February, 1982, in the unsalaried position.

Community Schools Comm. announces new appointments

The Community Schools Commission announces the reelection of the chairman and vice chairman to the commission and the appointment of three new commissioners.

Paul Shiman has been reelected commission chairman and Susan Green has been reelected vice chairman.

The three new commissioners are Nelson S. Baker, Peter H. DiFoggio, and Barbara Greene.

Barbara Greene is an appointee of the Newton School Committee. She has been a resident of Newton for 27 years. Miss Greene, who is a personnel administrator, is a graduate of Boston University and did her graduate work at Boston College. She is a volunteer worker for the Massachusetts Association for the Blind.

Peter DiFoggio is also an appointee of the Newton School Committee. He is the administrator of the Braeburn Nursing Home and is a graduate of Wentworth Institute. He has been president of Newton Little League and the Day Junior High PTA. He was past chairman of the advisory board of the Council of Aging. He is a member of the board of directors of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce and of the Senior Health Maintenance Advisory Board of the City of Newton. He was appointed by the governor to the board of Registration of Nursing Home Administrators and has many other community affiliations.

Nelson Baker is an appointee of the Newton Recreation Commission. He is a graduate of Boston University and Suffolk University Law School and is associated with the firm of Lemelman, Baker and Van Dan. He is a member of the Massachusetts, Boston, and American Bar Associations, practicing before both state and federal courts. He is a member of the board of directors of the Brotherhood of Temple Shalom.

The other commissioners are Lois Alexander, council representative to the commission; Patricia Byrne, acting director of Human Services; Joseph Warren, mayoral appointee; and the designee of the superintendent of the Newton Public Schools, to be appointed.

Legislation & Rules

Salaries of mayor, aldermen to be set by citizen committee

A committee should be set up to determine what the "appropriate" salary for the mayor of Newton and the members of its Board of Aldermen should be as of January, 1978.

That will be the recommendation of the Legislation & Rules Committee to the full Board July 26.

The committee combined two proposals to study the mayor's salary offered by Ald. Joan Saklad and Ernest Dietz almost a year ago. Board President Joseph McDonnell wanted the aldermanic salaries included.

The mayor's salary is fixed at $27,500 plus $1000 for expenses plus a car. The aldermen were unpaid until 1974. Since then they have been paid $1200 annually.

Both salaries are determined by the Board of Aldermen. Neither can take effect during the term of office in which a change is voted.

The Legislation & Rules Committee will recommend that the salary study committee be composed of one member each from the Newton League of Women Voters, the Newton Taxpayers' Assn., the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce, the Republican City Committee, the Democratic City Committee and a city union. A former alderman should also be a member.

The study committee should have its recommendation finished by Dec. 1, the L&R Committee suggests, and the results would be effective January, 1978.

The present mayor's term expires at the end of 1977, as does the term of the current Board of Aldermen.

In other action the L&R Committee denied for the second time a proposed amemdment to the rules of the Board that would refer "all matters including appropriations relating to public health and safety concerns and public health agencies of the city government" to the aldermanic Public Health & Safety Committee.

PHS Committee Chairman Mark White made the request around the time the city budget was submitted by Mayor Theodore Mann to the Board of Aldermen late last winter.

The Public Health & Safety Committee was set up about two years ago as an ad hoc committee to conduct an inquiry into the operation of the Health Department and related programs. Its first chairman was Alderman, now State Representative, Richard McGrath.

It later became the liaison body between the Police and Fire departments, as well as the Health Department, and the Board of Aldermen.

The scope of another committee, the Education Committee, will be broadened to include recreation and library activities if the Board goes along with this week's vote of the L&R Committee, which approved Ald. Dietz' proposal.

His suggestion included a change in name for the committee, which was not approved. It will remain the Education Committee.

School administrator takes job in Lexington

A curriculum coordinator for the School Department whose present job has been considered for elimination from the school budget has quit and accepted a higher paying job with the Lefington school system.

A. Geoffrey Pierson, south side curriculum coordinator here for the past four years, will begin work Aug. 23 as assistant superintendent for instructional services in Lexington.

Pierson, 37, said Tuesday night he is taking the job because it is with a "very good school system" with a pay increase, and because he feels he can't work well with his position being debated publicly by the School Committee as it was in February at budget time.

Pierson said the circumstances here "don't make it possible to do it (the job) effectively." newton, july 22, williams'

In Newton this year Pierson has been responsible for overseeing the implementation of curriculum guidelines for Newton South High, Meadowbrook and Weeks junior highs, and the elementary schools on the south side of the city.

He said he is most proud of the work he has done in the more effective supervision of teachers in the classrooms and developing peer evaluation techniques.

Tuesday night he said he planned to be sending a letter of resignation to Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink and the School Committee later in the week that would include his final reactions to the School Committee and school system.

Formerly the head of the Brookline High School English Department, Pierson received his doctorate in educational administration from Harvard and plans to continue living in Newton Centre.

His salary in Newton this year was $27,669, but Pierson would not say how much his new job will pay.

United Nations and terrorism

It's an indication of the ignorance and hysteria of President Idi Amin of Uganda that he screamed for a Security Council hearing on the Israeli raid which successfully rescued hijacked passengers held by Palestinian terrorists in Uganda. That hearing is revealing how deeply Amin was involved and how now he is seeking a way out.

The terrorists were given permission to land in Uganda but Amin now says it was an act of compassion on his part. There are reports that Ugandan soliders spelled the terrorists in guarding the prisoners. A missing hostage, an elderly woman taken to the hospital after getting a bone caught in her throat, has now been found murdered.

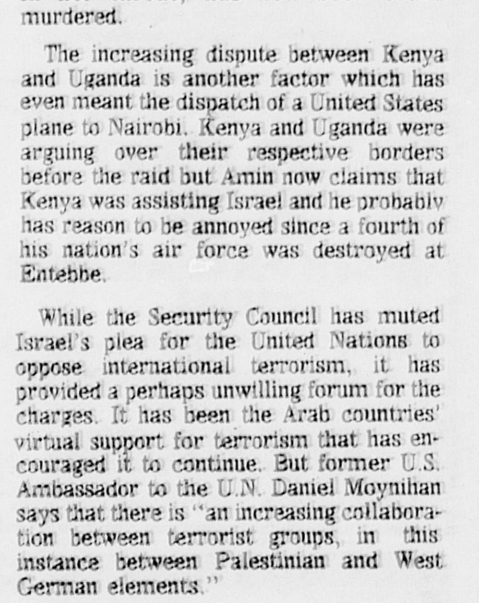

The increasing dispute between Kenya and Uganda is another factor which has even meant the dispatch of a United States plane to Nairobi. Kenya and Uganda were arguing over their respective borders before the raid but Amin now claims that Kenya was assisting Israel and he probably has reason to be annoyed since a fourth of his nation's air force was destroyed at Entebbe.

While the Security Council has muted Israel's plea for the United Nations to oppose international terrorism, it has provided a perhaps unwilling forum for the charges. It has been the Arab countries' virtual support for terrorism that has encouraged it to continue. But former U.S. Ambassador to the U.N. Daniel Moynihan says that there is "an increasing collaboration between terrorist groups, in this instance between Palestinian and West German elements."

The Security Council debate so far is putting Amin on the defensive. But it might encourage some nations to take a strong and united stand against terrorism.

Moynihan proposes that members of the European Economic Community, Japan and the United States boycott the airports of all countries which collaborate or give sanctuary to terrorists. There might be serious drawbacks to the proposal and a further splitting of the world into hostile factions. Yet in the absence of responsible United Nations decisions - and they seem to be fewer and fewer - it might be a reasonable alternative.

In the meantime, Israel is making a good case for itself.

Construction on the Charles

To the Editor:

Attached is a copy of a letter sent by the Charles River Watershed Association to Governor Michael S. Dukakis stating our opposition to the proposed construction of headquarters for the American Academy of Arts and Sciences on the Charles River Dam. We would appreciate your sharing this letter's contents with your readers. Dear Governor Dukakis,

The Charles River Watershed Association's reaction to the proposed building on the Charles River Dam to accommodate the American Academy of Arts and Sciences is one of total disbelief that another structure is planned for the river front and that the entire planning process was carried on in absolute secrecy since late 1975. We need not point out how this reflects on the credibility of your administration whose hallmark was declared to be open government.

For almost 11 years the Charles River Watershed Association has dedicated itself solely to the protection and enhancement of the resources of the Charles River. We deplore and have taken exception to the proliferation of canyonizing structures along the banks of the river which deny physical and visual access to this major metropolitan resource. The growth policy being articulated by your administration has underscored the lack of open space in the cities. The Academy proposal locks up another piece of river frontage for a non-public use.

Before 1948, the surface of the Charles River Dam held enormous potential for a sizable and accessible city park. However, in 1948 the Museum of Science egotiated a 99-year self-renewing $1-a-year lease with the Metropolitan District Commission in effect giving total jurisdiction over a piece of public property to a private enterprise.

This was the give-away practice of the MDC in those days, a practice which we understood your administration was pledged to discontinue. Indeed Article 97 of the Massachusetts Constitution now requires more than a private agreement to effect such a transfer. Because the presence of the Museum of Science on the dam precluded site alterations to accommodate flood control facilities, $43 million of public funds is now being expended to build a new dam downstream. The public thus has given up open space and millions of dollars while the Science Museum has contributed little if anything in return to the Charles River or the public except for admission to its facilities and functions at a handsome fee.

We have viewed the model of the proposed Academy. It is over-designed for the comfort and convenience of a handful of permanent staff members and an infrequent convention clientele. While shown as a four-story building, its 68-foot height is the equivalent of a seven-story building, providing more open space amenities indoors for a few while reducing the open space potential outdoors for the many.

The model shows a building designed to offer the best view of the Charles River to the Academy's select members and their visiting scholars. CRWA has hoped that when the lock becomes nonfunctional the Museum side of it could be scaled down and landscaped to provide an attractive link between the present Basin and the new one being created by construction of the new dam. Instead we have been handed a mass that says to the people "The Charles River ends here".

No one denies that the return of the Academy to the city is desirable. Our quarrel is with the selection of another piece of open land for its location and the manner in which it was introduced. CRWA has consistently stated that no structures should be on the river bank whose basic function does not require shoreline orientation.

The Museum does not need the Charles River. The Academy does not need the Charles River. Recreational, educational, and cultural buildings thus are no less offensive than residential or commercial buildings in their tendency to preempt the public's access to and enjoyment of the Charles River.

In its watchdog role CRWA attends every weekly meeting of the Metropolitan District Commission. The Commissioners, whom you appointed to bring constituent representation to MDC decisions, were never apprised of the plans under way. The issue never appeared on an agenda for discussion. Indeed CRWA has been told that the secrecy surrounding the exercise is partly because the Academy prefers to work in privacy, a preference of which we have become painfully aware. It is, however, completely out of touch with the climate of today in which the people who will be affected by a decision expect to be part of the decision making. There is an arrogance about the whole situation that is repugnant to such a climate.

The Museum of Science and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences are worthy institutions but they are private institutions. Surely the time has long since arrived when such institutions however noble cease to negotiate the transfer of public lands for their private purposes.

Public statements notwithstanding, the promise of educational value to the community is questionable, particularly since the Academy's own stated preference is for low visibility. Any educational benefits that could attend the in-town location of the Academy could likely be derived from a more suitable location. Even minimal public access is more promise than fulfillment. Already the Museum has closed the narrow walkway on the Basin side of its buildings and it is our understanding that no public circulation of the proposed Academy is planned. CRWA believes that the permanent residents of the area should have preferential access to the river and the public lands that abut it.

The Charles River Watershed Association is angry. The proposal was ill-conceived in the absence of any public scrutiny. We urge the Museum to take cognizance of its moral obligation to the community which has welcomed it generously and tolerated its questionable residence on the dam.

We urge the Academy to turn its humanistic concerns beyond its own community and recognize the insensitivity to the broader community which its projected move impiles. And we urge you to consider the full range of implications of the proposal in light of your own stated beliefs and reject the extension of Science Park facilities as inappropriate and unwarranted.

Rita Barron,
Executive Director

Unjust remark

To the Editor:

This is a response to Ald. Gaynor's unjust comment concerning the Newton YMCA's property as being, "sort of a pigpen now... ..."

Contrary to Gaynor's observation, the "Y" grounds receive daily attention. This is not said in defense of the "Y." It is, quite simply, a fact. Every spring great care and devotion is given to the grounds. The athletic field is mowed on a regular basis. Members would not allow this to be otherwise. The circle and the immediate area around the building are dressed with plants and flowers. The plants and flowers are there now, Mr. Gaynor, and have been since spring. Alas, beauty is in the eye of the beholder.

Ald. Gaynor is not the only Newton official and resident to point a self-righteous and negative finger at the Newton YMCA. It is very easy to be critical of a building (and its grounds) that is still giving its all despite 85 years of active community service. The Newton "Y" is a long-standing, 100 years, public service institution. Its worth cannot be measured except by the thousands upon thousands that have been served, uplifted and benefited over the years by its countless and varied programs.

It would seem right that, rather than complain, residents should take personal pride in the Newton YMCA. It would seem right to pull together rather than apart toward supporting an institution that is simply seeking a way to support itself — via the proposed tennis building. It would seem right....but then.... what seems right is having a harder and harder struggle just to survive...

A "Y" member

Speaking up

To the Editor:

Your July 15 issue covering the impending controversy over the $82,000 shortfall in Metco money which the state is now refusing to pay was somewhat less biased than your July 8 issue.

I would like to comment on three key sentences in the story. "No Reconsideration of Metco, Mandell Says."

The headline itself is misleading. We are not reconsidering Metco at all, but merely cutting down on a few fringe benefits. In my opinion a fair headline would have been "No Reconsideration of the Newton Taxpayer Covering the $82,000 Shortfall, Mandell Says."

Two other quotes I would like to comment on:

Mayor Mann: "It isn't a tax rate issue. . . it's a matter of principle."

WRONG! The principle lies with the state not honoring its contract, entered into with a promise of full funding of Metco in Newton.

"Parks. . . intimated there might be a further deficit on state funding beyond the $82,000."

RIGHT! Once the Newton taxpayer weakens and pays the $82,000, the possibility of full funding, i.e. $600,000 to $700,000 and up and up, would be a reality.

The Silent Majority must speak.

Catholic paper hits Kennedy, Drinan and Brooke

By JAMES G. COLBERT Transcript Political Analyst

A surprisingly strong attack upon Senator Edward M. Kennedy, Senator Edward W. Brooke and Congressman Robert F. Drinan, a Jesuit priest, was contained in a recent article on the editorial page of the Pilot, official publication of the Boston Catholic Archdiocese.

The Pilot's criticism of Father Drinan conceivably could cause his defeat next November when he will be opposed by a formidable Republican challenger. It definitely will hurt him with Catholic voters.

The sarcastic reference to Senator Brooke almost certainly will be quoted in his 1978 campaign for reelection—if he decides to seek another term in the U.S. Senate.

Senator Ted Kennedy is considered unbeatable in both the September Democratic primary and the final November election although that is disputed by Boston City Councillor Frederick C. Langone who appears to be Ted's strongest primary opponent.

But Brooke and Drinan, especially Drinan, were wounded politically by the blast levelled at them in the Pilot.

Pilot staff writer Thomas P. Mcdonnell, who lashed out at Kennedy, Brooke and Drinan, was dissatisfied with their stands on the abortion issue. Here are some of the things he said in his hard-hitting article in the Pilot: (The capital letters are printed as they appeared in the Pilot.):

"I AM SICK of pusillanimous politicians like the ones who form the great triumvirate of Massachusetts — Kennedy, Drinan and Brooke. I am sick of Senator Ted Kennedy and his Chappaquiddick incapacity to face and act upon the Senator 'I Could Have Danced All Night' Brooke and his mere custodianship of his office.

Political Highlights

"The innocuous Senator Brooke, however, I fault less than the other two. The other two – one of the secular and the other of the clerical cloth– are presumed to hold certain unambiguous views that cannot be compromised even by practical politics.

"Would it be too shattering to expect them to vote an occasional Catholic interest just as strongly as a Jewish politician votes a Jewish interest or a Black politician votes a Black interest?

"Is it too much to expect that Kennedy and Drinan should cease being pusillanimous politicians whose only abiding interest is to continue 'making it' with the mythmakers of the liberal media?

"I am looking at a ridiculous photograph of the Father Congressman from the 4th Congressional District of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He is shown clutching the lapels of his black jacket and shirt so as to reveal the T-shirt underneath which bears the rubric: 'Massachusetts ERA—Equality under the law shall not be denied or abridged because of sex, race, color, creed, or national origin.'

"The Congressman wears a jollified expression like the end man's in a minstrel show who is trying to make the routine funnier than it really is but who has long since ceased to amuse the audience.

"WILL THE END man now stand up for the equal rights of a husband who doesn't want his unborn child aborted? Will the end man now stand up for the equal rights of parents who don't want their minor daughter to have an abortion, let alone be forced to pay for it one way or the other?

"Where are the earth mothers Bella Abzug and Betty Friedan and all the rest of them? I cannot hear their loudmouthed passion for freedom and justice. So let's put the show on TV, with abortion head-counts state by state on the evening news, and with graphic shots of saline injections instead of the flamethrowers.

"Why is everyone so quiet? Where are the end man and Teddy Kennedy, Mr. Bones? Nobody knows. Vietnam has come home to roost in the dead branches of the tree of liberty.

"I do not easily write such words. The 'consent' ruling of the Supreme Court has so joined the issue that none can now stand apart from it. The ruling is particularly pernicious because it gets you arguing about the consent of something hardly permissible in the first place.

"On this issue, Catholic politicians ought to stop acting like politicians playing the same old game. Abortion is now the Vietnam of the liberals." (End of quotes from the Pilot).

Let's look at Walter Mondale's record

By John D. Lofton Jr.

NEW YORK — In picking Sen. Walter Mondale as his vice presidential running mate, Jimmy Carter tells us the Minnesota Democrat is "most compatible with me," that there are "no discernible differences between his positions and mine." So, who is Walter Mondale and what does he stand for?

In September 1973, when asked on "Meet the Press" where he differed significantly with George McGovern on the issues, Mondale ducked the question, saying he didn't like labels, he made up his own mind, he didn't like being compared to others, etc. He replied: "I am a pragmatic, progressive Democrat. My record is there and you can look at it."

"... pragmatic progressive."

Fine, let's look at the record.

According to the two most liberal organizations that rate members of Congress — the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) and the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE) — Mondale is a nearly "perfect" liberal, a man who Ridder newspaper reporter Albert Eisele has described as having built his Senate career on issues that were "the touchstones of New Deal-New Frontier-Great Society liberalism."

For the first session of the 94th Congress, the ADA rates Mondale as having been "in harmony with liberal policies" 94 per cent of the time, voting "right" on 17 out of 18 issues. This is a score five points higher than George McGovern. Among the positions the ADA likes are Mondale's votes:

For federally funded Medicaid abortions; for an increase in the federal budget from $365 billion to $374 billion: against Sen. Joe Biden's, D.-Del., amendment to stop HEW-ordered forced busing for racial balance; for Sen. Mike Mansfield's, D.-Mont., amendment to break up the oil companies; against further debate on Ralph Nader's brainchild, the Agency for Consumer Advocacy, and further Senate discussion of the Big-Labor-backed Common Situs Picketing bill; and for cutting the 1976 defense authorization bill by $1.2 billion, and his vote to dismantle this country's last Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) site in North Dakota.

The former head of the ADA, Joe Rauh who has known Mondale for 25 years, says there is no one in public life he respects more. Rauh says of Mondale — who himself headed the ADA's student organization in 1948 — that he is positively "lyrical" about everything the Minnesota Democrat stands for and that "I would mortgage my house if it would help him."

For the first session of the 94th Congress, the AFL-CIO's COPE rates Mondale as having voted the Big Labor line on 21 out of 22 issues. COPE likes Mondale's votes: for a $9 billion budget-busting public works jobs bill; against restricting the power of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's (OSHA) ability to harass small business; for making it easier to get food stamps; for oil price controls and against natural gas deregulation; and against decreasing the salaries of federal employes.

On no issue has Sen. Walter Mondale been more unyielding and more isolated than he has been on the subject of forced busing to achieve racial balance. The Washington Post's national political reporter, David Broder, has written that Mondale "has been perhaps the Senate's most outspoken defender of court-ordered busing."

This explains why in the Senate Mondale has been tagged with the nickname "Mr. Busing."

A 1972 profile of Mondale, published by Ralph Nader's "Congress Project," notes that at a time when 8 out of 10 Americans opposed busing to achieve desegregation, and most politicians were hedging on the issue (even McGovern and Humphrey), "Mondale alone continued to speak in strong support."

Sen. Mondale has said that it's no secret "that I believe the federal government has a strong role to play in the solution of human problems."

"No discernable differences."

Wandering far afield

To the Editor:

If we are to judge from the utterances, writings, and actions of those identified with its leadership, the regrettable conclusion must be that the group known as Voice has gone far afield from the objectives anticipated by some of us interested in and involved with its founding in 1975.

At that time it was announced that "we are Democrats, Republicans, Independents, young and old, politically experienced and inexperienced, but we are bound together by the common purpose of electing responsible representatives sensitive to the problems and concerns of all the citizens of Newton....."

Far from fulfilling this laudable goal, and without having achieved a truly broad base of voter support, Voice seems to have assumed a posture that tends to narrow its appeal and which unfortunately polarizes community sentiment to the point of embitterment.

Again, assuming that statements of those identified with the group's leadership mean what they indicate, we must now question if Voice is now truly representative of the group involved in its founding, let alone of the general community.

It would be unfortunate if Voice turns out to be just another political gimmick, taken over by special interest groups such as most extremists are.

If Voice is to avoid the pitfall of extremism and its political demise, prompt steps must be taken to:

Greatly increase its membership and broaden its leadership base;

Require conformance with by-laws and its charter approved by its full membership;

Adhere to acknowledged democratic processes for the submission, discussion, determination and articulation of policy matters and statements;

Prevent the organization from becoming the political or philosophical kite of any one person or group, elected or otherwise;

Deal with fiscal and other public matters with greater depth of understanding and with necessary and appropriate consideration of human values;

Rely on more than simple, slender, majority voting power in public bodies to avoid pyrrhic "victories" that divide the community.

Attendance

Newton has a long and distinguished record of good government achieved through the years by men and women from all walks of life who served the community in a spirit of goodwill and harmony to give us what we have today, one of the most blessed communities anywhere.

These builders of the community acted from the conviction, as expressed by the late Justice Brandeis, that:

"Believing in the power of reason as applied through public discussion, they eschewed silence coerced by law....."

All of us, including Voice, will best promote the common good by following Justice Brandeis' concept of the rule of reason.

David A. Lurensky,
Chestnut Hill

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to Edward Prince, Ward 2 School Committee representative, by the Ward 2 Democratic Committee and a copy was given to the Graphic)

Dear Dr. Prince:

At its meeting of July 13, the Newton Democratic Ward 2 Committee unanimously voted to express its disappointment that you, its duly elected representative to the Newton School Committee, chose not to attend the July 7 meeting of the Newton School Committee.

It is our expectation that you will attend all meetings of the School Committee irrespective of the subject matter on the agenda or the attendance of other School Committee members.

Peg Hannigan, corresponding secretary

Commitment

To the Editor:

The League of Women Voters of Newton has long believed in autonomy for school committees. We do not lightly encourage the Board of Aldermen to take action regarding a School Committee decision.

However, the practical considerations of the effect of the vote regarding the Metco budget and what that means to the City of Newton are properly within the purview of the Board of Aldermen.

We recognize that some School Committee members feel their election was a mandate to cut the fat out of the budget, and we approve all reasonable efforts to reduce expenditures without weakening the school system. The vote to deal with the unexpected reduction in the Metco grant by eliminating that sum in direct expenditures ignored completely the value of the Metco program in helping to defray normal classroom expenses, and also ignored the superintendent's statement that he expected to be able to absorb $44,000 in other places in the budget.

Some people feel that the School Committee vote was intended as a message to the state government that the cities and towns would not, and should not be expected to pay for programs that are supposed to be funded by the state. Given the amount of Metco funds ($256,000) that are assigned to defray general school system expenses, we feel that the School Committee's actions are more likely to be seen as a lack of commitment to a quality Metco program or even perhaps, to the principle of a voluntary metropolitan program.

Jane Leighton,
LWV president

Tax rate issue

To the Editor:

I have been closely following the articles and letters regarding Metco. The article that appeared on page one Thursday, July 15, "No Reconsideration of Metco," convinced me that the people running this city are taking us, the citizens, for fools.

Mayor Mann said "It isn't a tax rate issue, it's a matter of principle." Of course it's a tax rate issue. I'm sure I am not the only person in Newton who cannot afford to pay for a "principle," especially when I would have to pay myself for some of these services. AND I LIVE HERE.

In the same edition there was a letter to the editor from Sen. Brooke and Reps. Drinan and Harrington. They do not live in Newton or pay taxes here. I am insulted by the inference that we, the people of Newton, are prejudiced and close-minded.

Let Sen. Brooke and Reps. Drinan and Harrington do something about the taxes in Massachusetts before they start sermonizing about the "barriers to advancement."

Massachusetts taxes do nothing but rise. Perhaps these three gentlemen spend too much time tearing down barriers instead of tax rates.

Mrs. D. E. Morrissey,

Flower power

By Virginia Payette

The Democrats are glowing with brotherly love. The Republicans aren't, but they will be after Kansas in August. That leaves us the flower lovers.

Flower lovers?

Absolutely. Any day now, war is going to be declared in every garden club in America, and if you think the Ford-Reagan forces are hostile, wait till the stamens-set starts to draw its pistils.

The subject, in case you missed it in the frenzied suspense of the Democratic convention, is the selection of a (get ready, now) national flower.

(Well, why not? It's too hot to begin worrying whether Jimmy Carter's economic policies will create more inflation. Or whether Reagan will crank up World War III. Let's join our congressmen in their preoccupation with the birds and the bees.)

Which, in the natural order of things, brings us to flowers. Each state has its own (no self-respecting chamber of commerce would let an opportunity like that get away), but there is no official U.S. flower. You may not have known that. Now you do.

Congress has been remiss, as in so many other things, in getting around to this. So a group of New Yorkers is revving up a campaign to promote the marigold. It's a "friendly flower," they say.

That, of course, will have to be checked out by the FBI and the CIA. Maybe even by Henry Kissinger, who comes from Germany where the national blossom is the corn-flower. Make of that what you will.

All we know about the marigold is that it's yellow, which will make it immediately suspect in the Reagan camp. And that for years the late Sen. Everett Dirksen fought for its adoption as the national flower. But he died before he could get it out of committee.

A lot depends, we can suppose, on who wins in November. Carter comes from Georgia, where the Cherokee Rose rules all other posies. Ford's native Michigan voted in the apple blossom, and Reagan's home state of California has the poppy from whence, in certain varieties, comes opium.

But not even a soilslide would give the new president the nerve to name a national flower on his own. Not until he hears from the garden-club caucus and the smoke-filled potting sheds in the backyards of America.

It's a hot-house issue, all right. Maybe even fraught with more political peril than the Panama Canal.

Liberals, for instance, might welcome the bleeding heart as an appropriate symbol of our country's concern for the downtrodden and oppressed of the world.

For Conservatives, who'd like to find a way to get the federal government off their backs, there's a perfect choice: the prickly pear cactus.

Folks on welfare and unemployment compensation would go for the forget-me-not. Fans of the sexual revolution (not to mention a few congressmen we know) might like the passionflower.

And how about clover for the minority groups who claim people are always walking all over them?

Or maybe the Lady Libs would opt for the lady's-slipper, although they'd probably march down Main street for the right to change it to "person-slipper." And for the militant gay groups there's an appropriate posy so obvious I won't even mention it.

For the malcontents among us who see America as a second-rate power on its last legs, let's nominate the lily. There's one for those who itch to "eyeball" the Communists, too: the loosestrife.

For Mr. Carter, who teaches Sunday School when he isn't giving old pols lessons in how to sew up elections, how about the Jack-in-the-pulpit? And for all those other gentlemen who had hopes of making it to the White House, the bitterroot.

If we had to pick a flower symbolic of the next few months ther'd be no contest: the trumpet creeper will be in bloom until November 2. But, as the marigold mavens point out, this is forever.

A frivolous issue, maybe, but more fun then wrestling with taxes and nuclear warheads and how to bring back a surge of national morality to business and government.

And if Congress tries to duck the issue by complaining they're too busy (trying to sneak another raise for themselves?), they can always pass it along to the Ethics committee. It never seems to find anything to do.

Trust the schools

To the Editor:

Though often feeling ambivalent about the Newton schools, I have grown to deeply appreciate and trust Supt. Aaron Fink, administrators, teachers and counselors, etc.

In recent years I have become increasingly aware and concerned about the kinds of demands and pressures we impose upon educators. I regret that while my children were in school I was unable to be more supportive of the School Department.

Unfortunately, we now have a School Committee that not only behaves outrageously but is unable to work with the School Department. It is painful to learn that programs of proven value, such as Metco, are in danger of ending. The changes this School Committee is bringing about are changes that inhibit healthy creativity and growth.

If something of value is taking place, it must be that an increasing number of people will become more thoughtful, aware and involved in community concerns.

Recreation notes

Playground tennis tournament starts Aug. 2

Plans are being completed for the Newton Recreation Department's Annual Playground Tennis Tournament to be held at the Newton North High School courts on Monday, Aug. 2, starting 9:30 a.m.

There will be two divisions, Midgets for 10, 11, and 12 year olds, and Juniors for those 13, 14 and 15 years old. The tournament is open to boys and girls.

No player holding a New England Lawn Tennis Association ranking, or who has won any of their sanctioned tournaments will be eligible.

Any boy or girl, except those to whom the restriction applies, may sign up with tennis instructors Ellen Heart or Steve Freeman on days that lessons are given at their playground, or with their playground leaders, or may simply report to the North High School Courts on the morning of the tournament. Trophies will be awarded the winners and runner-ups.

Tennis Lessons

Playground Tennis Lessons given by instructors Ellen Hearst and Steve Freeman are very popular this summer. The team tours the city's many play areas throughout each week. Interested boys and girls should check with playground leaders to participate in the program.

Midget Baseball

Some 220 boys and girls aged 10 to 12 years are playing in the 17-team Midget Baseball League during regular playground hours.

The 8-team South Division leader is the Hyde School Nine coached by Ned Moan and Mark Wasserman. They have posted a perfect 4-0 record to date.

In the 9-team North Division, Cabot 2-0, leads the way. The Coach is Gerry Goolkasian.

Junior Baseball

The Junior Baseball League of ten teams is playing a 9-game schedule this season. The 13to 15-year old youngsters play Wednesday and Friday afternoons at playgrounds throughout the city.

Teams that have been impressive in early season play include Upper Falls, Carr and Franklin.

Sketching Course

The Newton Arts Center and the Newton Recreation Department are offering a sketching course by well-known Newton artist and weaver Dora Hsiumg.

Classes will be held at the Newton Centre Playground Wednesday mornings, Aug. 4, 11, 18 and 25 from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. The fee is $8. To register call 969-3171.

District II Playgrounds

Supervisor Bill Barry reports varied activities at District II playgrounds. These include baseball, bowling field trips, beach trips and girl's softball. Attendance has been high this year.

District II playgrounds include Hamilton School, Williams School, Auburndale Playground, Burr School, River Street Playground, West Newton Common, Davis School, Franklin School, Wellington Playground and Warren Junior High School.

Leaders Colleen Coyle and Peter Hurwitz recently took a group of 35 children from the River Street Playground on an all-day outing to the Cochituate State Park.

There will be a Water Safety Show at Crystal Lake Wednesday, Aug. 4, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Children participating in the swimming lessons at Crystal Lake are invited to participate and should contact their instructor. Various swimming groups will perform skills according to their ability lecels, ranging from Beginners through Advanced Lifesaving Courses. Survival techniqus will be demonstrated, equipment rescues, including use of paddle board for rescue, and various lifesaving skills will also be demonstrated. The public, especially parents, friends and relatives of these children participating in the show are urged to attend. Also, a sailing demonstration will be given by those involved in that program.

Sports win over politics

NEW YORK (UPI) — Give the American public a choice between sports and politics, and it's no horse race. Sports wins by a mile.

Those were the results of the national network television ratings for the week ending July 18, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., and the figures came as a surprise to no one.

Baseball's All-Star Game, carried by ABC Tuesday night, competed with the dullest night of the convention — which is saying a lot — and came out in first place in the week's ratings.

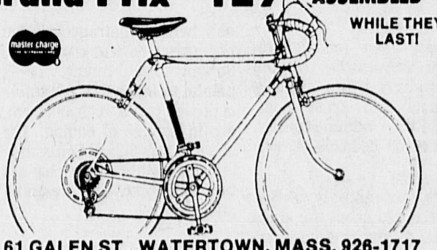

To add insult to injury, the second-place winner was the All-Star pre-game show.

Tour

Several students from Emerson School in Newton Lower Falls were recently treated to an hour-long tour of Boston Harbor as guests of Boston Gas. The company sponsors curuises throughout the summer for youth and senior citizen organizations. Among those who enjoyed the salt air and scenery were (from left): Joey O'Donnell, John Sheridan and Marie Geraci; (back row) Athena Chooljian and teacher Kay Harney.

Federal employees to receive benefits

A bill guaranteeing federal employees the right to receie full retirement benefits without losing any unemployment compensation has been enacted into law.

The bill, filed by State Rep. Lois Pines (D-Newton), was designed to insure that the final group of nearly 300 Boston Naval Shipyard employees idled by the base's closing would receive their full unemployment compensation and federal pensions.

"The program is entirely federally funded and brings extensive revenues into our state, thus improving Massachusetts' economy by increasing our 'gross state product,' " said Pines. "With absolutely no cost to the state, we will be allowing retired and displaced federal employees to receive full benefits."

The ombudsman for the Office of Employment Security estimates that the bill will aid 3000 to 5000 peole. Since unemployment benefits are available for an absolute maximum of 65 weeks, the bill could affect each person for only that length of time during which he or she is entitled to unemployment compensation.

The initiator and enthusiastic supporter of the bill, Mrs. Sophie Danziger of Newtonville, expressed concern that the workers who were retained after the shipyard's July 1, 1974, official closing and now being terminated, would not be eligible for their full benefits. Previous legislation which had enabled the workers to obtain their pensions and their full unemployment benefits expired July 6, 1976.

Both Pines and Mrs. Danziger fought for the approval of the emergency legislation which extended the deadline through Dec. 31, 1977.

18th-century American artists' work on exhibit

Three of the most prominent painters in late 18th-century London were not British.

Copley, Stuart, and West, and three Americans, successfully competed with British artists and challenged the European assessment of the art of the Colonies as "provincial."

The Boston Museum of Fine Arts will host an exhibition of their worksfrom July 21 through Oct. 17. This exhibition will be shown in conjunction with paintings by New England Provincial Artists: 1775-1800.

The paintings have been drawn from the MFA's collections and private and public collections throughout the United States.

Thirty-five to 40 paintings will chronicle the journey of these painters from the Colonies to England and the Continent.

Fully illustrated catalogs of both collections are for sale in the Museum Shop.

For pure opulence—Oscar De La Renta

Oscar De La Renta's gray wool shooting jacket with suede shoulder gunpatch tops brown suede vest, matching skirt and tattersall checked bow blouse.

"I design for women, women of the world, women who care, who love what they see and want it but do not care where the idea comes from. Such a woman cares about herself, about her looks, about the impression she gives of herself, about how seductive she will be and that also is what I care about." Oscar De La Renta's handsome face is flushed with pleasure following a showing of his fall '76 fashions.

He speaks protectively and defensively about the women who are his clients (they are the moneyed people in the U.S. as well as Europe).

"Women have become very productive, active in many fields and why should these women have some kind of uniformity in clothes? Let their creativity and intelligence choose for them the way they should look—sporty, tailored or seductive. That is why the clothes I have designed and their many accessories give to these women the opportunity of endless variety and ways."

Outstanding in his collection are his gay and wonderful peasant dresses. When asked about the vibrant flower prints that stand out sharply against a black background, he proudly offered wool challis dresses and had found them a joy to work on.

He pointed out that a yellow hammered satin evening gown, cut on the bias in trus Jean Harlow fashion, was very expensive because the fabric by Abraham cost $45 per yard . . . "But," he smiled, "you can see that we use very little of it."

Oscar's day clothes are in finely woven tweeds and wools with great attention paid to exquisite detail tailoring.

Following are some of the fashions seen on the runway:

Full length mammoth plaid cape in mulberry colors worn over winey pants tucked into high wine suede boots. This cape may also be worn over a light wine jumpsuit with deep side pockets, interesting yoke stitching worn with it, a violet beret.

Gray flannel slacks and matching turtleneck worn with a muted gray-violet print shirt and gray corduroy vest. A gray visored cap completes the subtle outfit.

Layers of luxuriously finery—under a mohair black, gray and mulbury tweed cape, a gray peasant mid calf peasant dress with a black crushed suede belt and black suede boots.

An American beauty rose unlined dream of a coat worn over a straight line skirt, with deep side pockets and a cowl neck black and rose tweedy sweater.

Gray flannel skirt and jacket worn with a white, gray and burgundy plaid vest over a finely checked green and cream shirt. A gray beret and gray suede boots accessorize the costume.

Babushka dresses—those peasant dresses worn at festivals have become Oscar's fun dresses. Border prints present a riot of color with flowers spilling down the front of the skirt and dancing around the hem of his full skirts. The babushka (triangular scarf tied low on the forehead matches the dress fabric). Apron dresses that are meant for the dance floor and never the kitchen—the gaily printed aprons accent the main color-against-black theme of the dresses.

Oscar De La Renta revels in evening wear. His thinking is that at night every woman, whatever her life and job, should have the privilege of escaping....the right to accentuate her feminity. She should slip into clothes with seductiveness, and become one of the maidens of the Arabian Nights.

A garnet moire dinner suit, the dress simply styled and elegant with a flattering short matching jacket.

Black velvet pants, a bolero peppered with gleaming jet and a gleaming white satin shirt with a narrow black tie. Black braid outlines the bolero and pants pockets.

A scarlet wool finely detailed coat worn over a mere tube of a black silk crepe dress meant for the reed slim figure.

For the gal with a lot of daring, a flaming red silk shirtwaist worn open to the waist with matching silk tassled rope belt, mandarin neck and the skirt open to the thigh.

Shocker of the showing, a full and flouncy black taffeta jump with huge bloomer type legs that were buckled just below the knee, the top a mesh of see-through sparkles.

Oscar's tuxedo, a black velvet short fitted jacket edged in gleaming satin worn with a white silk shirt and proper black tie.

Food and Fashion

by Ruth Lenson

Across the kitchen counter

Summer calls for cool cooking. The best way to do it is with your refrigerator producing delicious, satisfying gelatin dishes.

Let's talk about cooking with unflavored gelatine and the awareness that gelatine is a much more versatile product than as a base for molded salads and desserts. It's ideal for any course of a meal—and snacks as well.

Unflavored gelatine is a great food stretcher for both diet and non-diet dishes. This gelatine is a natural food, unlike most packaged gelatine mixes which have an 85 percent sugar content. Look at the information on the back of most fruit-flavored packaged gelatine mixes, you will see that the average serving size (½ cup) contains 80 calories—and if the gelatine is prepared with water there is hardly any nutritional value at all. By contrast, unflavored gelatine has no artificial coloring or flavoring and each envelope contains only 28 calories.

Cold cuts by themselves are not particularly glamorous, but served on a platter with an attractive molded potato salad, they become quite special.

Following are some gelatine techniques offered by the Knox Gelatine Company. If you would like twelve recipes, all under 100 calories per serving, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Knox Gelatine, Dept. LCR, Thomas J. Lipton, Inc., 800 Sylvan Avenue, Englewood Cliffs, N.J. 07632 and ask for "The Delightful Dozen."

1. All you really need to remember is that 1 envelope of unflavored gelatine will gel 2 cups of liquid. In recipes that call for 1 tablespoon, simply use an envelope of Knox, and once you remember how much gelatine you need for how much liquid, all you need to know is the simple preparation process. This involves dissolving the gelatine over low heat, combining ingredients and chilling until firm. Only two or three minutes required to dissolve the gelatine in liquid.

2. If you chill a gelatine mixture in the same stainless steel or enameled metal saucepan in which you dissolved the gelatine granules, the mixture will gel faster because metal is a good conductor.

3. If the recipe calls for "chilling until slightly thickened" and the mixture chills quite firm, place the container over low heat and stir gently until the mixture is the right consistency.

4. Unmolding is easy. Dip container into warm (never hot) water for about 5 seconds; carefully loosen gel from side of container with tip of sharp knife. Invert serving dish; shake gently until gelatin slips from container onto dish. If gel doesn't come loose easily, repeat process.

BASIC "ANYTHING" DESSERT
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
¼ cup sugar
1-½ cups fruit juice or drink (except fresh or frozen pineapple)

Sprinkle gelatine over cold water in small saucepan. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatine dissolves (until no granules are visible) about 3 minutes. Remove from heat; add remaining ingredients and stir until sugar dissolves. Pour into individual dishes, 2 cup mold or bowl. Chill until firm. Serves 4.

BASIC "ANYTHING" SALAD
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 to 4 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup juice, bouillon or water
Salad ingredients

Sprinkle gelatine over cold water in small saucepan. Place over low heat; stir until gelatine dissolves completely (3 min.) Remove from heat. Add remaining ingredients and stir until sugar dissolves. Chill mixture until thickened and very syrupy. Fold in 1-½ cups cut up vegetables, cooked meat or fish. Pour into 3 cup mold or bowl; chill until firm.

COOL 'N CREAMY COLESLAW SALAD
2 envelope unflavored gelatine
1-¾ cups cold water
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup mayonnaise
½ cup Wishbone California Onion Dressing
¼ cup lemon juice
5 cups shredded cabbage
1 cup grated carrots

In medium saucepan, sprinkle gelatine over 1 cup water; stir over low heat until gelatine dissolves, about 3 minutes. Stir in sugar, salt and remaining ¾ cup water; cool slightly. Blend in mayonnaise, onion dressing and lemon juice; chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Fold in cabbage and carrots; turn into 6-cup mold and chill until firm, about 4 hours. Makes 10-12 servings.

GEORGIA PEACH RELISH
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup water
1 can (16 oz.) peach halves in heavy syrup, drained, chopped (reserve syrup)
¼ cup packed brown sugar
1 cinnamon stick, broken
½ teaspoon whole cloves
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup seedless raisins
¾ cup chopped celery
¼ cup slivered almonds

In medium bowl, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over water. In small saucepan, combine reserved syrup with enough water to equal 1-½ cups sugar, cinnamon, and cloves. Simmer 10 minutes, then bring quickly to a boil. Strain boiling syrup over gelatine and stir until dissolved. Add lemon juice and raisins; chill stirring occasionally, until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Fold in celery and almonds; turn into individual molds or 3 cup mold. Chill 3 hrs. Serves 6.

SNOWS ARE CLEAR GELS TO WHICH unbeaten egg whites have been added after the mixture has partially set; then the mixture is beaten until stiff and chilled until firm. These are sometimes called "sponges."

BASIC FRUIT JUICE SNOW
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
½ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 can (6 oz.) frozen fruit juice concentrate, kept frozen
¾ cup ice water
2 unbeaten egg whites

Sprinkle gelatine over ½ cup cold water in saucepan. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatine dissolves. Remove from heat and stir in sugar, salt, frozen concentrate and ice water. Stir until concentrate melts. Chill, if necessary, until slightly lumpy. Add to unbeaten egg whites in chilled mixing bowl and beat at high speed of electric mixer until mixture begins to hold its shape about 7 min. Spoon into dessert dishes or 6 cup bowl and chill. Serves 8. Variations: Use orange, grape, lemonade, limeade and fruit punches (except pineapple).

COMPANY APPLESAUCE RING MOLD
2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
1 cup cold milk
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 can or jar (1 lb.) applesauce
3 cups creamed cottage cheese
1 cup dairy sour cream

Soften gelatin in cold milk in saucepan. Place over low heat; stir until gelatin dissolves. Stir in sugar and salt. Remove from heat; blend in remaining ingredients; mix thoroughly. Spoon into 6 cup ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on serving plate. Fill center with chicken or seafood salad. Makes 8 servings.

CHICKEN SALAD

Combine 2 cups cooked chicken cut in chunks, 1 cup thinly sliced celery, one-third cup sliced sweet gherkins, 1 cup sliced cucumber and enough mayonnaise to hold ingredients together. Spoon into center of ring mold.

Company applesauce ring mold

Information please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Ma. 02026.

Our readers are the greatest! Your response to those looking for recipes has always been prompt and your sharing most generous. We received three recipes (exactly identical) for the reader who requested Mile-A-Minute Cupcakes. We would like to thank Mrs. T.F., Dedham, one reader who did not give her name or initials, and Belinda Perkins for the recipe. Here it is:

MILE-A-MINUTE CUPCAKES
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 and one-third cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ cup cocoa
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup hot coffee

Cream shortening and sugar well. Add egg, beating well. Sift together dry ingredients and add alternately with milk, vanilla. Beat well. Add hot coffee and blend well. Bake in lightly greased cupcake tins in 350 degree oven for 20 minutes. Makes 1-½ dozen.

Question: Several months ago, maybe a year, you published recipes for the freezer. One of these was for apple muffins which contained nuts and brown sugar. They were by far the best apple muffins I've tasted and somehow I have misplaced my recipe. Would you help me out? Thank you

Dolores Tighe, Roslindale

Answer: It's very difficult to go back a year in our files—can one of our readers come to the rescue? Please.

Mrs. C. Smith of Westwood writes: I have something different in a banana recipe which calls for the over-ripe bananas no one in my family will eat with the exception of this yummy dessert! In fact, I purposely plan to have enough over-ripe bananas to at least double the recipe. (Thank you, Mrs. Smith!)

BANANA BRITTLE

Peel two fully ripe bananas; slice thinly. Fold banana slices, ¾ cup crushed peanut brittle and 1 tsp. vanilla into 1 cup heavy cream, whipped with 2 teaspoons confectioners' sugar. Spoon into dessert dishes and chill at least 1 hour. Makes 4 servings.

Our thanks to Mrs. E.M. Condon, W. Roxbury who writes: Mrs. A.H.D. of Dedham requested recipes to use rhubarb. Here is a very good one:

STRAWBERRY AND RHUBARB JAM
5 cups diced rhubarb
2-½ cups sugar
1 pkg. strawberry jello

Combine rhubarb and sugar and let stand overnight. In the morning, boil for 12-15 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in Jello; stir till dissolved. Pour into jars and seal. Makes four 8 oz. glasses. Delicious!

Question: I'd appreciate a recipe for making Margarita Cocktails, please.

R.D., Walpole

Answer: Six Margaritas coming up!

MARGARITA COCKTAILS
3 medium to large lemons
Salt
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons tequila (9 oz.)
6 tablespoons triple sec (3 oz.)
Cracked ice

Cut lemons in half; twirl rims of cocktail glasses on cut lemon surfaces, then dip in salt. Chill. Squeeze lemons to yield ½ cup juice; combine with tequila, triple sec and cracked ice in cocktail shaker. Shake well and pour into chilled glasses. Or combine in electric blender; cover and blend for 30 seconds. Serves 6.

Question: The other day some friends and I ate breakfast at a pancake house type of restaurant and someone mentioned cornmeal buttermilk pancakes. We were all intrigued with the idea and wondered whether you've ever come across this recipe. Thank you very much.

N.J., Dedham

CORNMEAL MOUNTAIN BUTTERMILK PANCAKES
1 egg
1-¼ cups buttermilk (or regular milk plus 4 teaspoons vinegar)
1 tablespoon molasses
¼ cup melted shortening
1 cup unsifted regular flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup yellow cornmeal

Beat together the egg, milk, molasses and shortening. Add the flour, sifted with the salt, soda, and baking powder; add cornmeal and stir just to blend. Bake on a moderately hot greased griddle. Makes about 16 pancakes.

Question: I've eaten and enjoyed Salade Nicoise in restaurants but never attempted to make it myself. Now that the weather is hot, I thought it would make a very good, light supper meal. Would you please print the recipe?

Mrs. L.C., Westwood

Answer: A perfect main dish which can be assembled in the cool of the morning:

SALADE NICOISE
¾ cup olive oil
¼ cup red wine vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt
Freshly ground pepper
2 tablespoons each finely chopped chives and parsley
4 large boiling potatoes and boiling salted water
1-½ pounds green beans
2 large tomatoes
3 hard cooked eggs
10 anchovy fillets
½ cup pitted extra-large ripe olives
1 tablespoon capers (optional)
Boston lettuce
1 can (7 oz.) white tuna, drained

For dressing: shake together oil, vinegar, salt, pepper, chives and parsley; chill. Cook unpeeled potatoes in boiling salted water 20 minutes or until tender; cool immediately under cold water; peel and slice. Pour over just enough dressing to coat slices; mix lightly. Cover; chill at least 2 hours. Cut off ends of beans and cut into 1-½ inch lengths; cook in boiling, salted water 15 minutes or until crisp-tender; drain and cool with cold water. Drain and turn into a bowl and coat with some of the dressing. Cover; chill at least 2 hours. Using a large platter, mound potato salad in center; arrange green beans, tomatoes and sliced hard cooked eggs around potatoes. Top with anchovy fillets. Garnish with olives and sprinkle with capers. Chill until serving time. Add broken up chunks of tuna and drizzle remaining dressing over all. Serves 4 as a main dish.

Peck to preach at combined service

Rev. George Peck

Rev. George Peck, dean and professor of theology at Andover Newton Theological School, will be the guest preacher at the Newton Summer Union Service on Sunday, July 25.

The service will be at 10 a.m. in Newtonville United Methodist Church, Walnut near Washington Street, Newtonville. The four remaining services will be held at Second Church, West Newton.

Peck will preach on the subject "Reluctant Revolutionaries."

Born in a coal mining town in Australia, Peck received encouragement to enter the Christian ministry from his father who served as lay preacher for 45 years. His father was a coal miner, but through study at night school became a manager for the last 20 years of his career.

At 18, Peck entered the five-year ordination course at Queensland Baptist College, where he was the only student in the school's history to earn first-class honors.

He holds degrees from University of Queensland, University od London, and Melbourne College of Divinity. From 1963-65 he held the Peter Brooks Saltonstall fellowship for graduate study in theology at Harvard University, where, in 1971, he was inducted as a honorary member of the Phi Beta Kappa Societe.

He served Baptist churches in Brisbane from 1954-58. From 1958-63 he was dean and principal of Eastern Theological College in Jorhat, Assam, India. He has been dean of Andover Newton eince 1966.

Mary Ann Hall of Waban was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Bonney Nickerson Ford of Ridegewood, N.J.; and Elizabeth Nickerson LaRowe of Cheyenne, Wy., the bride's sisters.

Best man was the groom's brother, Charles R. Bianchi. Robert H. Nelson, Bath, Me.; William B. Nickerson, Marblehead, the bride's brother, ushered.

Mrs. Bianchi is a graduate of Nasson College and Flushing Hospital Medical Center School of Medical Technology. Mr. Bianchi is attending Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

A reception for the couple was held at The Vale in Waltham. After a wedding trip to Nova Scotia and Cape Breton, the couple will take up residence in Troy, N.Y.

Volunteers honored

Newton residents were honored recently for their volunteer service to Brookline Hospital at ceremonies held at the hospital.

Cited from Chestnut Hill were Mrs. Jacob Bresnick, Mrs. Rubin Epstein, Celia Kaplan, Rose Krozy, Mrs. Morris Mould, Mrs. Milton Segal, Mrs. Abraham Starensier and Sam Weinstein.

Cited from Newton Centre were Mrs. Norman Sherman and Mrs. Daniel Striar.

Witnesses' convention next week

The Newton Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses will attend a four-day district convention of the religious group in Providence, July 29 to Aug. 1.

The theme of the conference is "Sacred Service" and the program will address itself to improving life spiritually within the family circle.

There will be specific information for husbands, wives and young people designed to examine the problems confronting society today and suggesting concrete solutions to solve them.

The program will feature Bible lectures, symposiums, discussion periods and four Bible dramas to be presented in full costume.

A baptismal service will be one of the highlights of the meeting on Friday.July 30.

The principal address will deal with the question, "Will Serving God Solve Your Problems?" It is scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 1 at 2 p.m.

Homestead seeking info on Smallwood furniture

Between 1855 and 1874, a Newton Corner furniture factory turned out sofas, easy chairs, parlor suits, and divans "of new and original design."

Located in Snake Hollow, on Waverley Avenue between Tremont and Washington streets, the factory and warerooms were run by Edwin A. Smallwood, who lived on Washington Street, just around the corner from the factory.

Smallwood's father, Thomas Smallwood, had come from England to Newton in 1819. An experienced cabinetmaker, he had started the family business, which employed about 60 workmen.

The Smallwood family belonged to the First Church of Christ at the corner of Centre and Homer Streets in Newton Centre (now the Greek Evangelical Church).

The Jackson Homestead and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts are interested in acquiring more information about this nineteenth century furniture operation. Anyone who has knowledge of the family or the furniture would be helping to regain knowledge of the past if they would call the Jackson Homestead at 332-3920.

Weddings

Hawaiian theme highlights Young-Watson wedding

Rebecca Young of Newton Centre and Kenneth L. Watson of Roslindale were married at noon June 26 in a double ring ceremony in All Saints Church, Brookline.

Mrs. Kenneth Watson

A garden reception with a Hawaiian theme followed at the home of Judith Davidson Young. The bride and groom welcomed each guest with an orchid lei as the orchestra played the "Hawaiian Wedding Song." Muu-muu clad waitresses served a luau luncheon.

Honor attendants were Nancy Cooksey and Judith D. Young. Bridesmaids were Patricia Watson and Deborah Watson, sisters of the groom. Kial and Michelle Young, nieces of the bride, were flowergirls.

Best man was George MacDougall of Ipswich. William Cantin of Dedham, William Manning of Norton and the bride's brother, Mark Young, ushered.

Kathryn Irwin of Newton Centre was in charge of the guest book.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charlotte Young of Brookline and actor Adam Scott of Palm Springs, Calif. Both are former Newton residents. The bride is a graduate of Newton South High School and attended College of the Desert. She is employed at the Gillette Co.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Watson of Roslindale and is a New England Telephone Co. employee.

When they return from a honeymoon in the Hawaiian Islands and southern California, they will live in West Roxbury.

Anne Marie Downing weds Edward J. Siff of Newton

In an afternoon ceremony in St. Patrick's Church, Watertown, July 3, Anne Marie Downing was married to Edward J. Siff by Rev. Frank Scannell.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Downing of Watertown and Mr. Siff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Siff of Newtonville.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Maureen Collins of Brockton, was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Peggy Cochrek of Brockton and Suzanne Siff of Newtonville.

The groom's brother, Sidney Siff, was the best man. James Collins, the bride's brother-in-law; and Arnold Smith of Malden ushered. Michele Madej, the bride's niece, was in charge of the guest book.

The bride is a graduate of St. Patrick's and Watertown High School and the Robert and Richard Beauty Academy. Mr. Siff attended the University of Massachusetts and is currently at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing.

After a reception at the Burlington Holiday Inn, the couple left on a wedding trip to Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Siff

Service note

Airman Scott Lande, son of Mrs. Dorothy Lande of 256 Ward St., Newton Centre, has graduated at Lackland AFB, Tex., from Air Force basic training. Airman Lande attended Newton High School.

Laitman-Rosenblum rites solemnized in New Rochelle

Mrs. Bruce Rosenblum

Lori Lee Laitman, daughter of Lt. Col. Ret. and Mrs. M.A. Laitman of New Rochelle, N.Y.' was married June 20 to Bruce Edward Rosenblum, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gershen Rosenblum of Newtonville, in Temple Israel, New Rochelle.

Mrs. Marcie Kotler of Villanova, Pa., and Dr. Lynn Siebert of Madison, N.J., sisters of the bride, were matrons of honor. Ms. Deborah Propp, cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor; and Ms. Kathy Rosenblum, sister of the groom, was a bridesmaid. Ms. Leila Kotler, niece of the bride, was a junior bridesmaid.

Steven Rosenblum was best man for his brother.

The bride graduated magna cum laude from Yale University in 1975 and received a master of music degree from the Yale School of Music in 1976.

Mr. Rosenblum graduated cum laude from Yale in 1975 and is now director of music at the Buxton School in Williamstown, Mass., where his wife will also teach music next year.

Local educator gets media award

Lonnie Carton, whose WEEI-produced radio educational series "The Learning Center" is heard on all CBS-owned stations, has been selected by the American Psychological Association as a winner in their 1976 National Media Awards competition.

The awards are presented annually to recognize and encourage outstanding and accurate reporting which contributes to the public knowledge and understanding of psychology. One of the four winners, the Newtonville resident is the only broadcaster eligible for the $1,000 Grand Prix Award which will be announced Sept. 2 at the 84th Annual Convention of the American Psychological Association in Washington, D.C.

Her academic credentials include undergraduate work at Johns Hopkins University in her native Baltimore; a master's from the University of Maryland and a doctorate in educational psychology from Penn State University. She has taught at Penn State and Temple University.

A recipient of the Outstanding Educator of 1975 Award, she is a professor at Tufts University and has served as an advisor to many educational organizations, as well as consultant to Boston, Newton and Somerville public schools. She is also an educational specialist for Tufts New England Medical Center.

"The Learning Center" can be heard on WEEI (59) Monday through Friday at 1:16 and 9:16 a.m., and 3:36 p.m. Also on Saturday at 10:16 and 11:52 and sunday at 3:16 a.m. and 5:17 p.m.

Newton professor gets MIT chair in linguistics

Professor Morris Halle of Newton, a leading scholar in the modern field of linguistics, has been appointed to the Ferrari P. Ward Professorship of Modern Languages and Linguistics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Ward chair was established at MIT in 1966 through a bequest from Ward, an inventor, industrial consultant and a member of the MIT Class of 1926. The professorship was the first to be established at the Institute in this field, in which Ward had a particular interest.

The appointment, effective July 1, was announced by Harold . J. Hanham, dean of the MIT School of Humanities and Social Science. Halle also becomes acting head of MIT's reorganized Department of Linguistics and Philosophy.

In the Ferrari P. Ward Professorship, Professor Halle succeeds Noam A Chomsky, who has held the chair since it was established.

Dr. Halle is one of the most distinguished linguists of our times," Dean Hanham said. "At MIT, he said, "Professor Halle has special claims for recognition. He has been in charge of the linguistics program since its beginning and as thus virtually its department head, and he has served selflessly on Institute committees."

Halle was born in Latvia in 1923 and came to the United States in 1940. He received the M.A. degree in linguistics from the University of Chicago in 1948, then went to Columbia University to study with Roman Jakobson. In 1949 he accompanied Jakobson to Harvard University, where Halle received the Ph.D. degree in Slavic Languages in 1955.

Halle joined the MIT faculty in 1951 as assistant professor in the Department of Modern Languages and as a staff member of the Research Laboratory of Electronics. He was promoted to associate professor in 1956, and was made full professor in 1961.

Halle's academic honors include a J. S. Guggenheim Memorial Foundation Fellowship in 1960-61 for studies in Russian dialectology. During the same year, he was a fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences, at Stanford University. In 1962 he was named a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and in 1974 he served as president of the Linguistic Society of America.

Ritcey named vice president of UCT group

Harry Ritcey of West Newton has been installed as first vice president of the Grand Counselors' Association of the Order of United Commercial Travelers of America (UCT).

The association is a UCT auxiliary comprised of present and past grand counselors (regional and state presidents) of the fraternal organization.

The United Commercial Travelers of America is a fraternal benefit service society, founded at Columbus, Ohio, in 1888. Its members are organized to provide civic service through programs such as aid to the mentally retarded, safety, cancer education and youth enrichment.

JACK LAZARE, host of WHDH's "Sounds in the Night," will be the principal speaker at the July 23 meeting of the Rotary Club of Chestnut Hill. He will speak on "The Business of Radio and the Community." Lazare, president of the New England branch of the Screen Actor's Guild, is a resident of Waban.

Nussbaum appointed to NEMC special staff

Gilbert H. Nussbaum, Ph.D., of Newton has been named to the special and scientific staff of the New England Medical Center Hospital department of therapeutic radiology.

From January, 1975, through June, 1976, Nussbaum held an appointment as a post doctoral fellow in medical physics at the M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston, Tex.

He has been a member of the physics faculty of the University of Tennessee and a member of technical staff of Bell Telephone Laboratories in the atmospheric physics research department.

Nussbaum received his M.A. degree and Ph.D. degree in physics from Harvard University. He was born in New York City and received his B.S. degree, magna cum laude, from the City College of New York.

He and his wife, Susan, live at 107 Mt. Vernon St., Newtonville.

Ventura serves 20 years with Metropolitan

Guido Raymond Ventura of 88 Auburn St., Newton, recently celebrated his 20th anniversary as a member of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's sales force, the company has announced.

Ventura joined Metropolitan Life in June, 1956. Currently he is an agent in the Framingham office at 540 Worcester Road. He has qualified six times for the company's Leaders Conference and is a graduate of the Life Underwriter Training Council course and the Professional Sales Development course.

Ventura is a committee chairman for the Boy Scouts of America and a former scoutmaster of Troop 355.

Arnold greene Labs to host tour for scientists

The Arnold Greene Testing Laboratories, Inc., of Natick will be host on Wednesday, Aug. 18 to a tour offered leading American and foreign researchers, scientists and engineers attending the Second International Conference on the Mechanical Behavior of Materials in Boston.

Nearly 800 are expected to attend the August 16-20 conference.

The Greene laboratories which do general testing for industry, were selected for the visit by the convention arrangements committee. Other conference tours will also be held at the AVCO Everett Research Laboratory, the Instron Corporation and MYS Systems Corporation.

The convention participants from all over the world will exchange information of fundamentals, concepts, methodology and data pertaining to the mechanical behavior of solid materials.

The visit to Natick will stress the influence of the independent laboratory on products. Arnold Greene, a resident of Newton, president and founder in 1947 of the company bearing his name, will host the visit.

RICHARD JAY BERTMAN, AIA, of Newton, accepted the Plywood Design Award for 1976 for his firm, Childs Bertman Tseckares Associates. The award was given in the multi-family category for the Massasoit Crossing Condominium in Mashpee.

Cancer Crusade collects $50,000

Nearly $50,000 has been contributed to the American Cancer Society's 1976 Crusade ri Newton, according to the latest results tallied.

As of June 30, $47,583 had been raised Arnold Zaff, chairman said. Newton's goal for the 1976 Crusade is $64,950.

Zaff expressed confidence that Newton will attain its Campaign goal. He saie that dnations are being received daily and that some special events are being planned for August.

"It will be only through the help of everyone that the battle against the dreaeful disease of cancer will be won," he said.

He pointed out that there are still many households and firms that have not made a contribution in this year's drive, and they should send their check for the Newton Crusade to: Albert E. Leone Jr., treasurer, Bay Bank Newton-Waltham Trust Co., 235 Needham St., Newton, Mass., 82164.

"Large or small con tributions are all welcome," Zaff declared. "It is essential that everyone help in order to maintain the rehabilitation programs, services to cancer patients, and the society's public education program."

Secretary of State Paul Guzzi administers the oath of office as a notary public to Mrs. Lorre J. Mehlinger of 655 Beacon St., Newton Centre. Mrs. Mehlinger is a recreational therapist at a Canton nursing home. Her term as a notary public will run for seven years.

Party

Drop-in center has anniversary

A happy second anniversary was celebrated at the Newtonville Star's Drop-In Center last week. Nearly a hundred senior citizens turned out to enjoy a special birthday cake and coffee with Mayor Theodore Mann and Vin Sulprizio, store manager.

Mrs. Mildred L. Stetson and Arthur Lohan, co-directors of the center, were on hand to make sure everything went smoothly and everyone had a good time.

It all started two years ago with the opening of a Drop-In Center for senior citizens at the Newtonville Star as a result of a free transportation bus service for the elderly initiated by Star Market a couple of years before.

The Drop-In Center, located in one of the shops beneath the Newtonville Star, is open from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day, Monday through Friday. It not only offers a comfortable place for the Senior citizens to gather, with coffee always provided, but a variety of programs throughout the week, everything from blood-pressure measuring to arts and crafts. There's even a course in "Conversational Italian" taught by one of the habitues (92 years old) of the center!

Continuum offers new directions for women pondering their goals

"What am I doing with the rest of my life?" It's a question a lot of mid-life women are pondering these days.

They're women who were never educated for paid employment ad have spent the last decade or two raising a family. For many, divorce or the death of a husband has left them in the role of sole support. Now they need to find a career.

But it's the next step that's the hard one, because they come up against questions as basic as: What do I want to do? What can I do? What's "out there" to choose from? What do I have to show for the past 20 years as wife, mother and volunteer?

Continuum, a nonprofit educational organization in Waltham, has designed a program to help mature women find answers to those questions and, over a nine-month period, negotiate that next step.

The Continuum program has four components: on-the-job experience through internships, professionally-led support groups, individual counseling, and seminars in basic business skills.

"What makes this program unique is that all these things are integrated," says Rita Schore, (and a former full-time housewife herself). "For example, if you find out through career counseling that you have a facility for writing, you don't wait long to test it out — you immediately start negotiating for a writing internship."

Open houses to introduce Continuum will be held July 29 and Aug. 5, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., at Morton May Hall, 415 South St., Waltham. Call 899-8080 for information.

The internships are the backbone of the Continuum program. Each women has three or four during the year. She chooses thrm with the assistance of a counselor, from Continuum's roster of over 100 private businesses, nonprofit organizations and government agencies.

A woman may come to Continuum with a general sense of what she wants to do. One of last year's interns knew from her experience on the League of Women Voters that politics interested her. Her first internship in a state agency confirmed this. For successive placements, she took on more and more challenging projects in her field, ultimately drafting legislation for a state senator. After Continuum, she applied for was offered a paying job in government.

Other women use Continuum to "try on" a variety of careers. One started out doing research for an environmental agency, then switched to editing in a publishing house, and finally did marketing work for another publisher.

Interns go to their jobs Monday through Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The same hours on Friday are devoted to group meeting and workshops in skills such as business writing and oral communication. They also meet privately with a career counselor every other week.

In the Friday meetings, interns review their week, sharing successes and problems on the job. One women last year realized that an internship project wasn't right for her, but felt locked into the commitment. In fact, she admitted to often carrying out activities she didn't like simply because she couldn't say no. Together the group worked out a detailed plan of action for her, even rehearsing it in a role-play situation.

"I count that experience negotiating myself out of something one of the most important achievements of my lifetime," she says now.

Interns also share concerns about the repercussions of their new roles on their families. As one explains, "It's the changes in everyday mechanics not being there when the kids come home, juggling dentist appointments. These can turn into monumental obstacles. Just talking these problems out in the group, just knowing that you aren't alone can help resolve them."

Most agree that the increased responsibility and independence were good for their children.

"It was like an old-fashioned agrarian family," says one. "The kids were needed to make the whole thing run, and it was good for their self-images."

What do Continuum interns come away with after nine months? There are some tangible things: letters of reference, personal contacts in the working world, a carefully prepared resume, and often a portfolio of their work.

But the word that crops up again and again when last year's interns describe their Continuum experience is "Self-confidence."

Apothecker wins in weightlifting

Bruce Apothecker of Beacon St., Newton Centre, 18, won the middleweight Junior Olympics Open at the Holyoke YMCA by lifting 379 pounds recently.

Bruce, who started training three months ago for the Olympic lifts, is also last year's holder of the power lift title.

Bruce will be trying to break the New England Amateur Athletic Union (NEAAU) record at the next meet. His brother, Jeff, who is 21, holds the New England heavyweight title.

The brothers train together at the Waltham Boys Club with their coach, Denis Reno.

Newton rower on Trinity champions

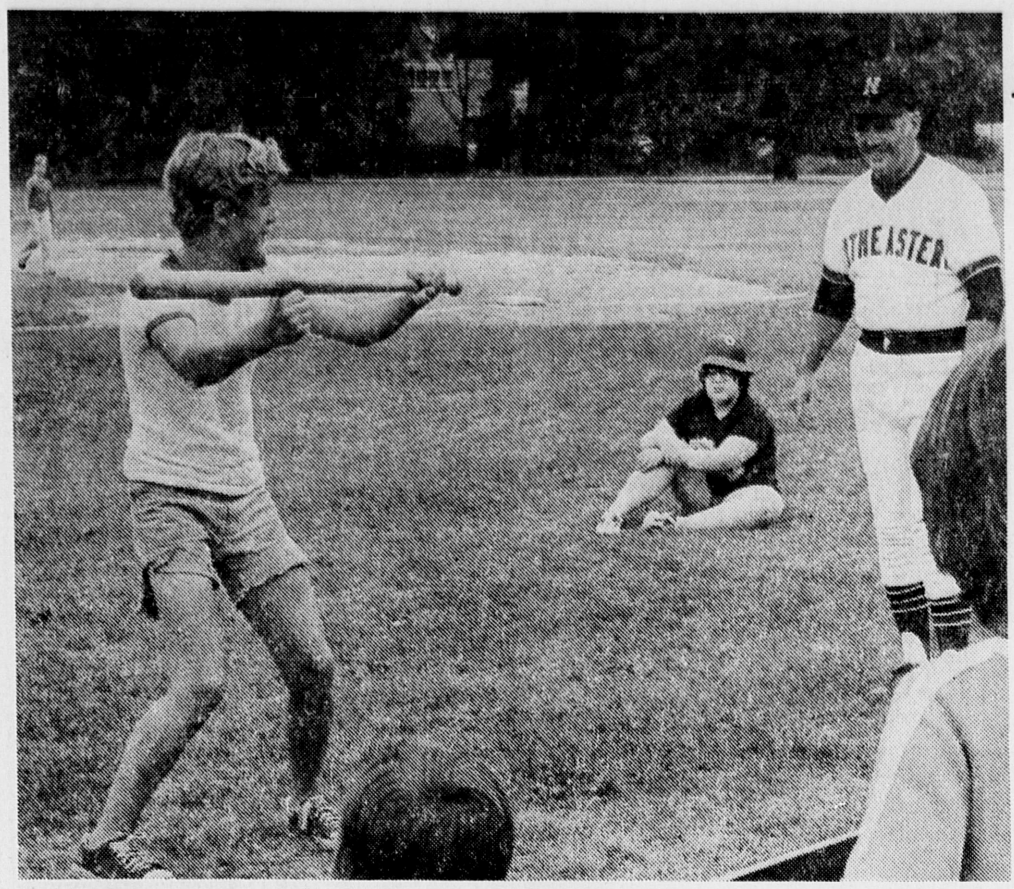

HARTFORD, Conn. — Clark W. Patteson of Newton rowed on the Trinity College crew which won a record-breaking first place at the annual Henley Royal Regatta in England.

Patteson was the number five oarsman on the varsity heavyweight eight-man crew which captured the prestigious Ladies Challenge Plate.

Thirty-two crews competed in this year's difficult Ladies Plate competition. Trinity was only the second American crew in the Plate's history to win it; Harvard was first in 1973. In one of the early races over the one-mile, 550-yard course, Trinity shaved six seconds off the old record to establish a new speed record of 6:24.

In the July Fourth final, Trinity defeated Queen's University of Belfast, Northern Ireland by one-and-a-third lengths, and beat Trinity Coolege of Dublin, Exeter University of England, and University College and Hospital of London in previous contests.

The Trinity junior resides at 96 Lenox Street, Newton.

Pellagrini clinic

Former Red Sox player Eddie Pellagrini took his baseball clinic to the Brewer Playground in Newton Centre recently. Over 350 enthusiastic youngsters took part in the two-hour demonstration. Bentley hoop schools taking applications

Bentley College's All-Star Basketball Schools for both boys and girls is now accepting applications for its two, week-long day-camp schools.

An outstanding staff of college and high school coaches will handle the instructions. Individual instruction, closed-circuit TV and films will be utilized.

Facilities at the Charles A. Dana Athletic Center which will be used include the steam and sauna rooms, weight room and the beautiful new field house.

The fourth annual boys' school will be open to boys ages 10-18 and will run the week of Aug. 16-20. The day camp will last from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

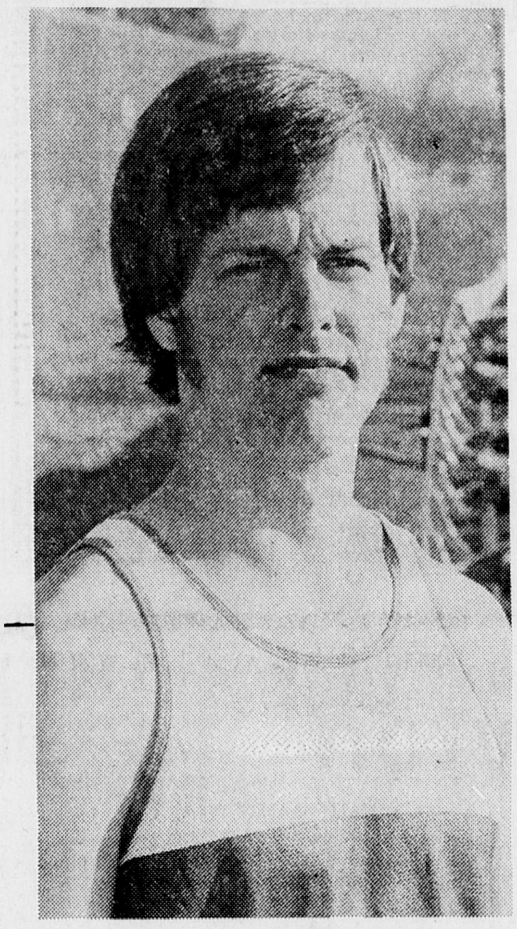

Instructors for the boys' school will include Al Shields of Bentley College, John Myers of Watertown High School, Joe O'Brien of Assumption College, Bob Bigelow of the Kansas City Kings and Brian Hammel of the Atlanta Hawks.

The girls' school, which runs from Aug. 23-27, is also open to girls 10-18. Joining Coach Shields and Coach Myers on the staff will be Daryl Leonard of Bentley, Elaine Martello of Watertown High School, Carol Swindler of Lexington High School and members of the Bentley College varsity men's team. The girls' school will run from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Further information about the camp can be obtained by writing to: Basketball Office, Bentley College, 450 Beaver Street, Waltham, Mass. 02154, or by calling 891-2256.

Woman hoopster plays sport with the guys

MONTREAL (UPI) — The physicalness of Olympic basketball doesn't bother 18-year-old guard Nancy Lieberman of the United States' team. The Far Rockaway, N.Y., native has never known any other type of game.

She has played basketball against the guys for most of her life and four years ago she started playing with the big boys at the "Beach" in Far Rockaway, where many pro players spend their summer afternoons working out.

"Actually, I never played against a girl until I was a sophomore in high school," said Miss Lieberman.

Only 4 U.S. boxers want life of pro

MONTREAL (UPI) — Tom "Sarge" Johnson, assistant U.S. boxing coach at the Olympic Games, said only four of America's 11 boxers are entertaining thoughts about turning pro.

The four are the Spinks brothers, Leon and Michael, Howard Davis and heavyweight Johnny Tate.

"But those four have to get the right deal," Johnson emphasized. "Professional boxing is a tough business and these kids know it. In the main, young boxers today are interested in education and preparing for their futures."

Scorekeeper misses easy layup

MONTREAL (UPI) — Granted basketball is not exactly the native sport of Canada but the officials handling the Olympic competition in that sport are having a little trouble keeping their scoring summaries in order.

For instance: when Egypt forfeited to Italy Tuesday, the Italians had to go through a ceremonial jump ball and score one basket before the game would be official. Renzo Bariviera took the tip and went in with a lay up for the lone basket of the 2-0 game.

After the game, the Canada scorekeeping crew blew the only statistic on the game when they published the scoring summary — they gave credit for the basket to Zanatta.

Tourischeva to retire after Olympic Games

MONTREAL (UPI) — Russian gymnast Ludmilla Tourischeva, who won the all-around gold medal at the 1972 Munich Olympics, will retire from the sport after the Montreal games, she says.

"My dream was to be in the third Olympics in Montreal and my dream has been accomplished," the attractive 24-year-old told reporters, after her U.S.S.R. team captured the 1976 woman's gymnastics team title here this week.

But Ludmilla has a bit more work ahead before retiring. She has qualified for Thursday night's individual finals in balance beam, floor exercise and vaulting. She will also be in the all-around finals tonight, but Romania's spectacular Nadia Comaneci was favored as heir apparent to Tourischeva's all-around crown.

Powell discus toss goes out of sight

MONTREAL (UPI) — Former world discus record holder John Powell, a San Jose, Calif., policeman, fired a women's discus — which weighs exactly half the men's — over a wall about 245 feet out of the Olympic practice area Tuesday.

The flying discus sent spectators scurrying for cover and then broke when it hit a concrete walkway. He was demonstrating technique to Lynne Winbigler, America's lone female Olympic discus entrant.

Newton woman eligible for top golf prize

Mrs. Gertrude Brown of 12 Janet Road, Newton Centre, is eligible to win a free trip to Scotland and $1,000 as a result of scoring a hole-in-one at the Spring Valley Country Club.

Mrs. Brown's ace qualified her for the 15th annual Rusty Nail Hole-in-One Sweepstakes, a national competition sponsored by the Drambuie Company of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The winner will be announced early next year.

The Inside View — By Joe Fitzgerald

Baseball came first for Tom Yawkey

The offer was too tempting to resist, too lucrative to turn down, and yet Ted Williams still had some misgivings about coming out of retirement to manage the old Washington Senators in 1969. So, as he often did when doubts assailed him, he picked up his phone and called a trusted old friend at Fenway Park for a bit of down-home counseling.

"I told him I thought he could do it," Tom Yawkey smiled some years later, recalling the conversation. "But there were two things which I said he'd have to work on. One was patience. Right away he snapped at me, saying he had proved his patience by working with kids in the instructional leagues. I told him he was right, but nevertheless, I reminded him no matter how many times he went over things in practice there would be occasions when a kid would make a key mistake in a ballgame, and that's when he'd need the patience. And the second thing I felt needed improvement was his press relations, which were not always cordial. I pointed out there would be times when he'd want to tell the writers to drop dead, but that he'd simply have to keep his cool."

Williams remained silent a moment or two, then replied, "Yeh, I guess you're right."

"Jeez!" Yawkey exclaimed, "You mean I won once?"

It was one of his favorite stories and he delighted in telling it.

A lot of Yawkey stories made the rounds a week or so ago when the grand old man of Boston baseball died as writers, broadcasters, athletes and friends strained to find the proper words or anecdotes to correctly describe what Yawkey meant to the town, the team and the game.

There were very few speeches to look up, for Yawkey doggedly avoided personal publicity. "I don't particularly care for publicity," he once told me. "I know there are some people, though, who are more interested in seeing their own names in the paper than they are in how well their teams are doing. Hell, anybody can get his name into the paper if he really wants to. He can rob a bank! I just never cared about that stuff."

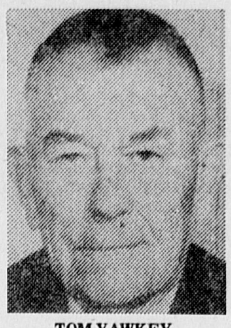

Indeed, the players were all that mattered in his mind - unless, that is, the overall interests of baseball came into conflict with the interests of his own team. For Yawkey, that posed no dilemma at all. The answer was simple. The good of the game always came first.

"His interests have always been baseball first and the Red Sox second," general manager Dick O'Connell once confided. "Many times he's voted for what he thought was best for the game, even though we might have voted differently from a Red Sox point of view."

I asked him why he did that.

"I don't know," he shrugged, "I guess it always seemed right to me. Maybe I developed that philosophy because of the owners I met when I first came into this game. Men like Clark Griffith of Washington and Connie Mack of Philadelphia didn't have any great financial backlogs. They depended on what they drew at the gate. Yet whenever it came time to vote, they considered the league first. And that's probably where I got the idea that the game is a helluva lot bigger than the interests of any one club."

But the Red Sox were the great love of his life. He poured literally millions of dollars into the franchise. There were a few great years in the late 40s and early 50s, and business generally has boomed since the famous "Impossible Dream" pennant of 1967, but it's reliably estimated that almost 30 of the 43 years he owned the team ended up in the red.

TOM YAWKEY

"Maybe he loved this team too much, from a practical business standpoint," one Boston front office executive privately suggested when I was doing a magazine piece on Yawkey a few summers back.

So I asked him about it.

"I've heard that before," he nodded, "and my only answer is that I certainly don't feel shortchanged. You see, I never looked upon baseball as an investment. There are a lot of markets today which offer much more security. Hell, the easiest thing in God's world is to drop a million or more a year in baseball today. But there's no law that says you've got to stay in it, is there? And I'm still here. So the answer must be that I enjoy this team and this game. I guess it's just in my blood, even though that's an old cliche.

"If a man starts out with a good financial nucleus, which I did, he's got to decide what he wants to do with it. Some men are obsessed with compiling massive fortunes, with making all the money they possibly can. I never saw the sense in that. I just made sure I had enough so that I'd never go broke if certain things turned sour. Of course I wish we'd done better some years. I wish it more for the great fans who have supported us than I wish it for myself. But we've had our share of excitement, I think, and there's never been a day I didn't love coming to this ballpark.

I asked him what his biggest disappointment had been. Perhaps the heartbreaking finishes of 1948 and 1949 when the Sox twice fell one game shy of the pennant? Perhaps the seventh-game defeats Boston suffered in the 1946, 1967 and 1975 World Series?

"I'm sure this sounds trite," he answered, "but over the years the biggest single disappointment personally has been the kids who came into this game with great God-given abilities and then somehow or other threw it all away. That's so sad, especially when you think of the millions of other kids - like our Jimmy Fund kids - who'd give practically anything for the same opportunity. They could have given baseball so much, but they didn't."

That will never he said of Thomas Austin Yawkey.

Geddes retires

SMITHFIELD, Rhode Island (UPI) — New England Patriots' linebacker Bob Geddes, a four-year veeran in preseason training camp for only one day, has decided to retire from professional football and enter private business.

He had been used sparingly since by the Patriots. He Geddes was drafted out of UCLA by the Los Angeles Rams in 1972 but traded to the Denver Broncos before playing any National Football League games. He played in every Bronco game in 1972 but was later dropped by the team and picked up by the Patriots in midseason in 1973.

reported to camp on Monday, two days late, worked out, and decided to retire Tuesday.

Two other Patriots' veterans, defensive lineman Arthur Moore, who has a viral infection, and safety John Sanders, who has a sprained achilles tendon, missed their second straight day of practice. Two rookies, linebacker Greg Murphy and wide receiver Bernard Coleman, were hurt Tuesday,

Murphy injured a shoulder and Coleman suffered a hamstring pull. Linebacker Sam Hunt, barred from team practices due to weight problems, continued to work out on his own.

TIX CUTOFF

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (UPI) — Midnight Saturday, July 24, marks the final day ticket orders for the $100,000 Volvo International Tennis Tournament will be sent to purchasers by return mail. After that date a special "will call" system will be in effect.

TRAVEL TRAILS

In recent years, Instant Asia has set out to rival Hong Kong, and it is doing just that . . . Not only does the city have all these attractions . . . it is also a crossroad for southeast Asia, Australia and Europe . . . More and more tourists are using it as a rest, recreation and hopping off place for additional exotic spots . . . Bali and other Indonesian islands are close by. Malaysia begins across a narrow strip of water . . . Singapore—a free port, one of the best cities for shopping in the East . . . Its stores display porcelain, carved jade and ivory, and packaged food delicacies from China . . . Unlike many, if ot most, Oriental cities, this capital of the tiny Republic of Singapore is spic and span clean, and you can drink the water.

James Bond fantasy an Olympic reality

Dejected Russian Boris Onischenko leaves Olympics

MONTREAL (UPI) — The fantasy world of James Bond gadgetry became Olympic reality Monday with the disqualification of Russian world champion Boris Onischenko for using a "bugged" epee in the fencing section of the modern pentathlon.

Onischenko's light touch was just a little too light—the judges discovered the 38-yearold Russian was scoring his hits by remote control.

British army sergeant Jim Fox thought there was something wrong when Onischenko was four-feet short with a lunge but registered a hit on the electronic board. Fox immediately protested to the judges, who ordered an inspection of the weapon.

It was then discovered Onischenko's epee had been rigged so it would indicate a touch on an opponent when no contact was made. Fencing is judged electronically and a hit is registered by an impulse passed down the weapon and wired to a special board so that judges can see who got the first touch.

"The weapon had been tampered with," said Carl Schwende, chief of discipline for fencing. "Someone had wired it in such a way that it would score a winning hit without making contact. We had no choice but to disqualify him. He is out of the Olympics."

Onischenko, a four-time world champion and an Olympic gold medalist in the team event, lodged an appeal. He claimed the weapon was not his and that he had borrowed it.

"The jury listened to Onischenko's explanation but decided his explanation was not good enough," said Schwende.

He said investigations had failed to find where the epee had come from if not the Russians.

Junior high students write children's books

Seventy-six new books by 76 first-time authors are on display during July at the Newtonville and Nonantum branches of the Newton Free Library.

The books, written by seventh-graders on the Violet team at F. A. Day Jr. High School, represent the culmination of work of the team on the children's literature unit, the last unit studied during the 1975-76 season.

In the unit seventh-graders read and make written reports on children's books, guided by the school librarian, an art teacher, and the classroom teachers.

In the next stages of the unit, students write their own stories, make dummy copies with pagination and illustration planned out, and finally produce their own finished books, complete with colorful bindings.

Among excellent examples of this year's crop are an ABC book, books about airplanes, animals, the farm dolls that come to life, and a book about individuality. There's also a book about gerbils in a pet store, several mysteries, a book about the circus, and even one about a dustpan and broom that ran away from their closet.

F. A. Day students who lent their books for this summer display will be able to retrieve their work at the school in September.

Red Cross needs disaster funds

The Newtonville Red Cross office has issued a plea for cash donations to help revive the depleted American National Red Cross disaster funds.

The disaster funds have diminished because the organization has been doing the job it is supposed to do.

As the Red Cross enter a new fiscal year, it must find monies to provide disaster assistance in a score of disaster operations currently extending halfway around the globe—from the typhoon-stricken U.S. Trust territories and Guam to the Teton Dam rupture in Idaho through Tulsa, Okla., into the flooded homes of Houston, Tex., and in four other states.

Although an emergency campaign is under way for $10 million, during the past five weeks $12,246,606 has been spent or committed for aid and service to 21,627 of the 26,000 families suffering loss.

The Red Cross is proud of the dedicated efforts made by volunteer throughout the country to raise the funds needed to offset this emergency, but asks the public not to relax its efforts until our fall disaster campaign goal of $10 million has been met. The need is real and urgent.

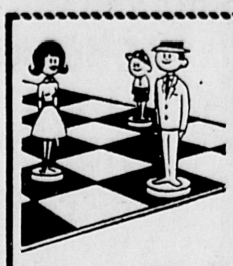

A contribution to the campaign can be sent to the Newton Red Cross Chapter, 21 Foster St., Newtonville, 02160. A legion of disaster victims will be grateful if you respond to this appeal.

Walk for Disarmament leaves fo D.C. Aug. 7

On Aug. 7, people of Massachusetts will take the first steps in a nonviolent walk from New England to Washington, D.C., as part of a national action for disarmament and for a reordering of priorities away from militarism and toward human needs.

The Boston-to-Washington Walk for Disarmament and Social Justice is one segment of a nationwide walk that began last January in California and will traverse 30 states before climaxing at the Pentagon in Washington in early October.

The walk is being sponsored and organized by one of the largest coalitions of groups working for peace and justice to come together since the height of the antiwar movement. Well-known individuals supporting the walk include Ralph Abernathy, Bella Abzug, Joan Baez, Julian Bond, Cesar Chavez, Dick Gregory, Benjamin Spock, Gloria Steinem, I.F. Stone, Studs Terkel, and many others.

The walk will consist mostly of short segments from one community to the next, although a group of long-distance walkers will provide continuity. This local orientation will allow each community to raise the issues of disarmament and social justice in its own way.

Generally walkers in every community will be explaining their beliefs that:

—more than half of every federal tax dollar this year will go for military expenditures, while programs for housing, health, education, mass transit go begging for funds.

—the four nuclear weapons added every day to a stockpile already numbering 30,000, enough to destroy the Soviet Union 36 times, heighten the "balance of terror" rather than furthering peace and security.

—except for the space program, military spending results in fewer jobs per billion dollars spent than any other type of government appropriation, thus furthering unemployment.

—military spending produces no goods or services that people can use, thus causing inflation.

—our military supports dictatorships and repression in such countries as Chile, Brazil, Spain, South Africa, Iran, South Korea, Taiwan, Indonesia, and the Philippines.

A Hiroshima Day vigil and a rally featuring Daniel Ellsberg will kick off the walk in Boston on Aug. 6. The main "coastal" walk in New England will pass through southeastern Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, while a "western" walk will start in Vermont and continue down the Connecticut River Valley. The two routes will join in New Haven and proceed to New York.

People wishing to participate in the walk can contact the American Friends Service Committee, one of the sponsoring organizations, at 48 Inman St., Cambridge, Mass. 02139, 864-3150.

Party Sunday for retiring druggist

After 43 years in West Newton, Irving "Tony" Polen is closing his drug store and retiring. Polen has been an institution in West Newton for over two generations. He opened his first drug store in 1936 over the bridge on Washington Street, next to the Myrtle Baptist Church. That store was later enlarged; and when he was displaced by the coming of the toll road, he moved to the corner of Elm and Washington Streets where he has been for the past 12 years.

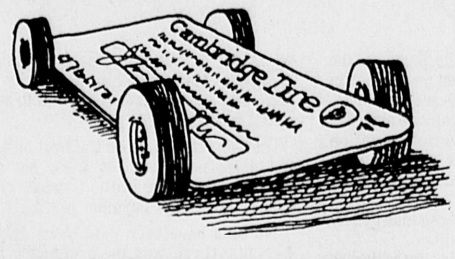

Polen's customers, employees, fellow businessmen and friends will hold a reception for him Sunday, July 25, from 2 to 5 p.m. at St. Bernard's Parish Hall, West Newton. The reception will be to extend our thanks to Tony for his kindness and helpfulness over the 43 years and wish him well in his retirement.

Although the drug business has changed over the years, Polen's personality and interest in all his customers have not. Two generations have had an opportunity to buy their ice cream cones, get their prescriptions filled, and receive some fatherly advice. Always an optimist, Polen had a kind word for everyone and about everyone.

Msgr. John Quirk offered the use of St. Bernard's parish hall and Atty. Harry Lynch and Paul Burke went ahead with the arrangements.

All are welcome.

the Metco program as passed by the majority last month.

Mandell claimed that the Metco reimbursement of $1197 per pupil is $737 less than the per pupil cost used to compute general fund reimbursement from the state.

Mandell also said for the majority, "We're very clearly working on our mandate," noting the Voice platform said,"Unless state-mandated programs are properly funded, municipalities should have an option to reject or accept such programs."

The Voice platform, which the conservative members agreed to before defeating four liberal incumbents last November, futher said, "Although we have a responsibility to our neighbors in the larger community, our emphasis must be placed on resolving our own problems first."

Mandell also this week refused to attend an aldermanic Education Committee meeting last night (Wednesday) called by Ald. Edward Richmond to discuss the Metco program.

In a letter to Richmond Monday,Mandell said he could not attend because of a previous committment.

Mandell, who was informed of the meeting July 9 and again on July 15, said he is willing to cooperate with the Board on all subjects of joint responsibility with the School Committee.

Mandell also said he hoped the meeting to gather information on Metco was "not politically inspired since this will only continue to exacerbate the problem."

Richmond said he expected Secretary of Education Paul Parks to attend the Wednesday meeting, but Superintendent Aaron Fink could not attend.

In defense against School Committee member Robert Cohen who claims Newton is making money on Metco, Mandell presented four sets of per pupil costs used for Newton.

Except for the Metco reimbursement for next year which will be $1197 per pupil according to the budget passed, the following figures represent Mandell's projections of previous years figures based on the rate of inflation.

The complete per pupil cost in Newton including the payment on the bonded debt and police crossing guards but not including transportation is $2362.71. This figure is not used for any state reimbursement purposes.

The per pupil cost based on the state formula for Chapter 70 reimbursement for general education is $1934.

For students attending the schools as state wards Newton receives $1720 per pupil.

Mandell said the "state officials trying to dictate to local officials as to how they are to spend taxpayers money on this issue is analogous to 1776 and the cause of the Revolution."

The chairman also criticized Mayor Theodore Mann's move July 7 to have police cruisers sent to the homes of School Committee members in an attempt to raise a quorum for the special meeting on Metco that turned out to be a public hearing.

"The mayor had better be more concerned with local taxpayers and stop hiding behind his concerns about the city's so-called reputation, which was not enhanced by his use of Gestapo tactics when he sent out the cruisers to attempt to trick the Committee members," Mandell said.

He claims that the police told them, "We have a quorum, please come," when in fact there was no quorum.

Housing

Collaborative (TAC), the Authority's architect, visited the Beaconwood and found rocks and some lawn erosion, Savignano said, but he responded in May and June, and TAC is now satisfied.

The rocks came from the gravel fill that Concrete had to bring in to cover all the peat on the site, he added.

Savignano claims the lawns just need to be maintained, not re-done.

Concrete feels it has fulfilled its contract, but NHA hasn't paid them any money since January or February, Savignano said.

"They're in violation of contract for not paying me," he concluded.

Meanwhile, Quinn said Monday that representatives of the state Department of Community Affairs (DCA) are coming to look at Beaconwood this week and perhaps they can "apply pressures" on the landscaping matter.

Beaconwood Road residents are also without screen doors.

The Commission last week authorized Quinn to purchase 40 storm-screen doors for the project at $41.95 each after he checks with customers who have used the Sun-Shield Window product for more than two years and finds they are satisfied.

The firm sells to government agencies on General Services Administration (GSA) contract prices via the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Prices are about half those charged by local suppliers, Quinn said.

The Commission decided to authorize Planning Director Charles Thomas, the Newton Community Development Authority's sole member, to sign its checks.

NCDA absorbed the Housing Authority's construction programs July 1 and supervises its management of housing projects.

Until July 1 Quinn, as executive director of NHA, could sign checks up to $400, while those over that amount required a signature from Treasurer Henry Wilson.

Now, the Housing Services Commission has a choice of either designating Thomas to sign and Wilson to countersign, or having Newton Comptroller Lawrence Marino sign all its checks.

No provision is made for Quinn to sign small amounts.

The Commission chose the first option and authorized Quinn to work out an efficient procedure with Thomas and Wilson for prompt payment of bills.

No bills have been paid since July 1 because there was no procedure for signing the checks or setting up accounts.

Other officers elected were Leo Karas, vice chairman; Frank Quinn, former executive director of NHA and now director of housing services, as secretary; Henry Wilson, former NHA treasurer, as treasurer; and Donald Ferreri, the labor representative and a former NHA member, as assistant treasurer.

Attending the meeting were Commissioners Miller, Ferreri, Quinn, Karas, Buchbinder, Wilson, and Mimi Tyler; also, Assistant Director Jennifer Volkert and Janet Gannon, a Beaconwood tenant and employee.

Signs

The new zoning ordinance regulating signs would control window signs, which in the current ordinance are allowed at will.

Window signs will be allowed to cover up to 25 percent of the window area, and signs inside for three feet back from the window will be considered window signs.

The committee and the Planning Department have reduced the maximum size of the principal sign from the present 200 square feet to 100, calculated on the basis of two square feet for each foot of frontage of the building.

When a business building occupies a corner, there may be two principal signs, one on each side of the corner. If a business is housed in two adjoining buildings, the principal sign may be divided.

Secondary signs will be allowed at rear and side entrances, up to one square foot for 50 feet of frontage, and directory signs will be allowed on multiple-tenant buildings, with listings not to exceed one square foot per tenant.

The ever-increasing presence of yard- and garage-sale signs on posts all over the city was attacked by limiting the location of the signs to private property, the number to one sign per piece of property, and the size to five square feet.

Violations of the ordinance could subject the violator to a $50 fine, Assistant City Solicitor Jason Rosenberg noted, but the ability of the city to enforce this provision, and many other provisions of the revised ordinance, was bought into question by the City Planning Committee.

According to state law, Rosenberg said, every sign for which permission is required should be inspected by the city once a year.

The new ordinance has a provision that every sign for which a building permit is issued shall be inspected every two years.

The committee deleted a provision establishing an inspection fee payable by the owner of the sign. It left in a permit procedure that requires submission of the plan for the sign to building official, who shall notify the Urban Beautification Commission and the planning director, who will submit an "advisory report" within three weeks.

The 11-page revision has been in process for more than one year.

According to the new state zoning enabling act, the Board of Aldermen must act on the ordinance within 90 days after the public hearing Aug. 9, or else the whole hearing process must be repeated.

Copies of the complete proposed ordinance are available at City Hall.

Land Use

time being in its 2000 Commonwealth Ave. office.

The redesign is an attempt to satisfy neighborhood opposition to the height and mass of the proposed building, which nearly caused defeat of the project by vote of the Board of Aldermen July 6.

Reconsideration filed by Ald. Robert Tennant kept the proposal alive until the next meeting of the Board, July 26.

The changes in the design incorporate many of the changes suggested by Ald. Ernest Dietz, who has long represented Newton Centre.

The redesigned building will cost an undetermined amount more to build, Thomas said. The estimated cost of the last version was slightly more than $2 million.

Approval of the Board of Aldermen is needed before a determination can be made about whether the new plan will meet financial guidelines of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Oscar Wasserman is expected to present revised plans for his proposed condominium, Nahanton Woods, which he hopes to build on some of a large parcel of land at Winchester Street and Nahanton Street, Ward 8.

In exchange for a rezoning of land and permissive use to build, Wasserman has offered the city 24 acres of the 28-acre parcel and will fulfill the requirement that developers lease 10 percent of their units for subsidized housing, by buying and rehabilitating several houses anywhere in the city and turning them over to the Housing Services Commission.

Besides needing more detailed information on Wasserman's plan to deed land to the city or give the city a conservation easement and on his means of satisfying the "10 percent rule," the Planning Department also wanted some modification of the site plan for the building.

Wasserman now, according to Thomas, has "stepped" the building into the hill at the rear of the property somewhat, farther away from the wetland that is wanted by the Conservation Commission.

The Conservation Commission opposes the project because it has earmarked the entire parcel for acquisition as conservation land and feels that the building and its access road will destroy the wetland.

Roach

private individual," Lappin wrote.

"I find that such a zoning change was obtained by NRA and that the land is presently being utilized for these purposes," the decision continued.

Under chapter 79, section 22 of the Massachusetts statutes (the eminent domain law), land damage cases can go either before a single judge or a judge and jury.

If either party is not satisfied with the single judge's decision, that party still has the right to insist on a trial by jury, according to the statute.

The "de novo" trial request must be filed within 10 days after the parties are notified of the judge's decision.

The first judge's decision is read to the jury and is prima facie evidence in the second case.

NRA's attorney, Philip Cronin, was not aware of the "de novo" request on Tuesday, but said it was not unexpected.

"My view is that I think the judge's finding is fair," Cronin said.

Roach's valuation is "disproportionate", Cronin said, because Roach himself paid only $85,000 for 70 per cent of that land four years before the taking.

Roach believes the land is worth more than $1 million.

Still facing NRA, and inherited by its successor agency the Newton Community Development Authority, are land damage suits from four other former Lower Falls property owners who had land taken for urban renewal.

Abraham Ginsburg, Rose Kedzierski, Katherine Kenjeska, and John McGuiness all have suits pending in Middlesex Superior Court.

Ginsburg's case is on the desk of Assistant Clerk of Courts John Drohan for docketing as soon as a judge is available to hear land damage cases, Drohan said last week.

In the seven year lapse since the land takings, all five 1969 members of the NRA either resigned or were replaced as their terms expired.

Chairman at the time of the takings was Newton contractor Mario DiCarlo.

A city ordinance that took effect July 1 replaced the NRA with the Newton Community Development Authority, whose sole member is Planning Director Charles Thomas.

Ward House

fourth bedroom. porch also appears to have been

The Victorian added at this time.

From then on, no substantial changes occurred, as the home passed to the next two generations.

Exactly how does one do an historically accurate, quality renovation of an old house?

Most important, Barrett and Vila are quick to warn, this is not a field for amateurs.

Historic renovations should be done only by people with experience who have the financial connections to pay the huge cost of labor and materials that must be pumped into the house. .

Or, renovators have to be people with great tolerance for living amid the plaster dust and chaos for months while their capital is tied up in the house.

When Bob and Diana are considering buying a building, they pool their talents and analyze the prospects.

Bob knows the design end. "I go in and walk around and walk around ... I talk to Diana. I go over there again, and we discuss it over and over," Vila explains.

Diana looks at rooms and space with the economic potential in mind.

"I really love to play with space, and I think about it in terms of the market," she says.

"How do you take a space and get it historically accurate and make it as liveable as possible?", Barrett and Vila ask themselves.

You sit down and explore all the options, doing it right with quality materials and marketing in mind, Diana says.

Next, set up a budget and work within it, but be flexible enough to change if a "find" during the project opens up new possibilities.

A small crew of young workers who have helped on earlier projects and share Bob and Diana's interest in accurate craftsmanship, have been working on the John Ward House since spring.

All three downstairs fireplaces have been uncovered and are now operable.

A prize find in the restoration, the old brick fireplace with Dutch oven and warming oven, has been opened up on both the kitchen and dining room sides, and the original wood above it sandblasted to await proper finish.

The brick has been cleaned and re-pointed.

An outside wall in the dining room, rotted from extensive water seepage, had to be ripped out and totally re-built.

Half the clapboards have been replaced.

Damaged window panes are being carefully replaced with glass cut from the old storm windows found in the basement.

Original flooring, some laid in boards a foot wide, will be sandblasted to remove paint and expose the old wood.

And the Victorian porch has been torn off.

Neither Vila nor Barrett is a trained architect.

"I was always fascinated with space and how things fit together,"says Diana.

But architecture "wasn't what little girls did" so she went into languages, took medical courses, and eventually obtained a master's degree from Harvard Business School.

Now she is a self-employed management consultant to hospitals and a part-time staff member at Harvard School of Public Health.

However, the old fascination for playing around with space never dimmed.

Coming from a banking family, she wasn't scared to put money into something, she says.

She bought an old building at 263 Beacon Street, Boston and rennovated it.

Next she revamped one at 32 Commonwealth Avenue.

She still owns and manages both of them.

Bob Vila met Diana and joined forces with her on the Boston townhouses after he returned from Europe in 1973.

He intended to become an architect when he enrolled at the University of Florida in 1964, but he left two years later with an associate degree in journalism and eventually obtained a bachelor's degree in history before going to work with the Peace Corps in Panama and Europe.

He did architectural resoration on a seventeenth century French farmhouse in Alsace-Lorraine with some friends.

Vila now does consulting work, advising other people who want to buy old houses and fix them up' and he rennovates buildings for clients.

A high point of the Ward project for Bob has been the "archaeology stage".

As the workers carefully ripped out wood and plaster, Ward family mementos turned up: old checks, antique nails, a workman's shoe, and children's toys.

The garbage mound out in the yard where the family buried its small amount of household rubbish has yielded old pieces of bottles and antiques.

The Ward house renovation will halt soon, because Vila and Barrett plan to sell the house and want the ultimate owner to make the final aesthetic design decisions.

While Diana and Bob have installed the basic amenities - totally new wiring, plumbing, heating - they feel the people who will live there should choose the final design of the kitchen, wall decor and wood finishes.

Metco

He doesn't feel Newton is losing money on Metco.

Fink has asked the School Committee to reinstate some of the Metco staff paid for by direct cost reimbursements and accept about a $40,000 deficit in the Metco budget to be made up from any surpluses in the regular school budget.

Glenn said in his letter that it was unfair for School Committee to absorb the $81,729 reduction by cutting so much personnel.

"We are concerned that (you) have chosen to take this cut almost entirely in services and support provided to the students in the program.

"The proposed budget (passed by the Committee) shows a reduction of less than 1 percent in the amount which would be used to defray general school expenses, but a reduction of more than 33 percent in the amount for direct services and support," Glenn said.

School Committee member Honora Kaplan said Wednesday that if the state pulls out of the Newton Metco program, "Newton will lose over a quarter of a million dollars in state reimbursements that the taxpayers would have to cough up."

After emphasizing the benefits of the program for Newton and Boston children, she referred to Mandell's refusal to meet again and said, "I don't think the whole program should be jeopardized for the sake of a principle."

OBITUARIES

James Shea

A funeral mass was celebrated Saturday (July 17) by Rev. Leroy Owens in Our Lady's Church for James E. Shea.

Mr. Shea, 50, of 457 Centre St., Newton' died Wednesday (July 14) in Mt. Auburn Hospital, Cambridge.

Mr. Shea had been employed as a bricklayer and was a veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict.

Mr. Shea is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary Shea; and his sister, Mrs. Sarah Nardone of Newton.

John M. Powell

John Mark Powell, 84, of Waban, insurance executive and past president of Newton-Wellesley Hospital, died Thursday (July 15) after a long illness.

A 1914 graduate of Indiana University, Mr. Powell began his 60-year career in insurance in 1915 when he joined the actuarial department of Travelers. In 1931, he became the president of the Loyal Protective Life Insurance Co. of Boston. His association with the firm lasted 45 years.

Active in community affairs, Mr. Powell served as president of Newton-Wellesley Hospital from 1947 to 1950. He was president of the Kenmore Trade Association, the Waban Neighborhood Club, Waban Improvement Society and the Union Church Society and director of the Newton Community Chest and Brae Burn Country Club.

Mr. Powell was a member of the Masons and the Shriners as well as a member of the Algonquin Club, the University Club of Boston, New England Senior Golfers' Association, Lewis Bay Yach Club and Bald Pate Colony Club.

Husband of the late Ada Powell, Mr. Powell is survived by his son, Jerome M. of Wellesley; a daughter, Mrs. Anita Olson of Needham; and five grandchildren.

Memorial services are to be arranged.

Robert Joyce Jr.

A funeral mass was to be said at 10 a.m. this morning (July 22) in St. Ignatius Church, Chestnut Hill, for Robert J. Boyce Jr., 20, of 895 Commonwealth Ave., Newton Centre.

Mr. Joyce died suddenly Monday (July 19) at his home.

He was a graduate of St. Bernard's School and St. Sebastian's Country Day School. He would have been a junior at the University of Massachusettsse—Amherst in the fall.

Mr. Joyce is survived by his parents, Robert J. and Marie R. Joyce; three sisters, Kathleen, Annellen and Eileen, all at home; his paternal grandparents, Frederick and Anna Joyce of Auburndale; and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary V. Phillips of Chestnut Hill.

Pasquale Persico

A funeral maes was said Monday (July 19) in St. Jean's Church for Pasquale Persico

Mr. Persico, 90, of 270 Pearl St., Newton, died Thursday (July 15) at his home after a long illness.

Born in Caramanica, Italy, he came to West Newton as a young boy. Mr. Persico was a retired landscape gadener.

Husband of the late Mary Persico, Mr. Persico is survived by his sister, Mrs. Antonette Cinelli; his niece, Susan Cinelli, with whom he made his home; and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Rose Tambascia; and several nieces and nephews.

Burial is in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Hospital nurse praises EMT training program

The Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) training program provides valuable information to the hospital and alerts the emergency unit in advance to the arrival of patients, according to Barbara Dart, head nurse of the emergency unit at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Newton-Wellesley participates in the 10-hour clinical learning sessions required for program participants. According to Mrs. Dart, this is important toward the orientation of the new EMT to hospital procedures.

The technician is able to provide a medical analysis of the situation which proves valuable when he calls in an injury or must administer treatment personally.

The EMT program qualifies technicians to assist in the hospital emergency unit and work closely with physicians and nurses to provide comprehensive and proper treatment.

With knowledge of anatomy, physiology, and emergency medical procedures, the EMT can do much to stabilize serious injuries and sustain life until other treatment can be administered in a hospital emergency department.

The Newton Police Department now has 76 certified EMT's out of a 233 person force. The police operate eight fully equipped ambulances and seven station wagons.

Although the police operate the ambulance system, the Newton Fire Department also has 17 certified EMT's on its crew of 285.

Members of the departments take state-offered courses at nearby hospitals and schools. The basic training involves a minimum of 81 hours of classroom and field instruction by physicians, nurses, and other specialists. At least 10 hours of instruction are spent in a hospital emergency unit assisting and observing the treatment of emergency patients.

Program participants must then pass a written and practical skill examination to be recognized by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts as am Emergency Medical Technician.

The EMT must take a recertification course every year to update and refine his or her skills and participate in prescribed supplemental training.

Their skills include the evaluation of medical emergencies, splinting and stabilization of fractured bones, extrication of people from crashed vehicles or collapsed buildings, and cardiopulmonary resuscitation or closed heart massage.

The Massachusetts Ambulance Law was enacted in 1973 and it requires that, among other things, by July of 1977 all emergency ambulances be staffed by at least two EMTs.

Katzenberg elected CJP council chairman

Arthur D. Katzenberg, Jr., of Newton, has been elected chairman of the Business Men's Council, Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

Arthur Katzenberg

Katzenberg succeeds Paul D. Slater, who resigned the chairmanship to be able to free as much time as possible for his responsibilities as CJP's 1977 general campaign chairman.

Composed of CJP campaign leaders and workers, the Business Men's Council conducts a year-round program of interpretation on behalf of CJP and its agencies.

Katzenberg is a trustee of CJP and a member of its Campaign Executive Committee. Active in CJP campaigns for many years, he served this year as chairman of Leadership Gifts, and in 1975 was cochairman of the Pacesetters Division.

He has been appointed associate chairman of Big Gifts for the 1977 drive.

He has been on the executive board of the Greater Boston Chapter, American Jewish Committee, and a member of the New England Regional Board of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai Brith. He is president of Frontier Petroleum Co.

LAURIE ROACH, was recently honored by the Mass. Bay Community Colleges and the American Legion. She received the Best All-around Student award from the school and an Outstanding Young American Award from the American Legion. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Roach and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Roach.

Senior citizens' Spanish course starts July 26

A course in beginning and advanced conversational Spanish for senior citizens will be offered starting July 26 by the Newton-Wellesley-Weston RSVP at the Newton Community Service Centers, 429 Cherry St., West Newton.

Francis Argento is the teacher of this course designed to prepare seniors to converse in Spanish.

There will be a relaxed and congenial classroom atmosphere. The only costs are a $1 registration fee and the purchase of an inexpensive textbook.

The course begins Monday July 26 at 10 a.m. Classes run for two hours.

For more information call the Retired Senior Volunteer Program office, 969-5906.

First aid course taught Tuesdays

The Newton Chapter of the American National Red Cross will offer a Multimedia Standard First Aid course beginning Aug. 3. This course will be given in four two-hour sessions, each on Tuesday evening. The dates are Aug. 3, 10, 17 and 24. Class meetings willbe from 7-9 p.m. at the Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville.

The Multimedia Course is designed to provide basic skills in first aid and accident prevention. It features programmed workbooks, films and guided practice sessions.

There is a $5 charge for texts and supplies. Pre-registration is mandatory, and may be accomplished by calling the Chapter House at 527-6000.

UN Proposes International Year of Child

By JOHN F. SIMS

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Ninety million children around the world suffer from moderate to severe malnutrition, the United Nations estimates.

There are more children receiving no formal education than there are children in school.

"The situation of children in many parts of the developping world deteriorated further in 1975," Henry R. Labouisse, director of the United Nations Children's Fund, told a recent conference.

Labouisse said UNICEF field indicated, "The number of children dying from preventable diseases, suffering from severe malnutrition and missing the educational preparation for a decent life was clearly on the increase."

In the distribution of the world's wealth, children, and especially those in developing countries and especially girls, most often come away with an empty bowl.

To draw world attention to the plight of these children, UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim has proposed the United Nations organize an International Year of the Child to be held in 1979.

The UN has organized international years before: a year for food, a year for population and the International Women's Year. Those events produced varied and often disappointing results, UN officials say.

One thing is certain: if UN members decide to go ahead with an International Year of the Child, the world body itself will try to emphasize action over talk.

Waldheim himself, in his report on the proposal to the General Assembly, warned "the idea of holding a large world conference during the International Year of the Child has generally met with reserve or more negative reactions."

UN officials feel that conferences held in other international years became too heavily politicized and served to divide rather than unite the world community in joint action.

"Our emphasis would be on the basic services that we feel are essential for children," John Charnow, secretary of the UNICEF executive, said in an interview.

The basic services are in the area of maternal and child health, including family planning, safe water supplies and waste disposal, better quality foods and education.

The staggering scope of the task is indicated by these UN figures:

The World Health Organization estimates that about 10 million children under the age of five in developing countries suffer from severe malnutrition. Another 80 million suffer from moderate-level malnutrition.

By 1985 it is estimated that worldwide 375 million children will be out of school, compared with 350 million in school.

World Health Organization figures show that in 91 less developed countries, 85 per cent of the rural population has no access to safe drinking water.

Less than 10 per cent of the rural population of developing countries live within walking distance of a health facility of any kind. That means about 1.8 billion people have to travel, usually on foot, six miles or more to get health care.

The World Bank estimates that about 900 million people in developing countries live in absolute or relative poverty. Of these, 350 million are children under 12 and expectant and nursing mothers.

"The 'quiet emergency' facing millions of children daily ... still exists," Labouisse said.

In many countries, discrimination against female children is traditional and systematic. Boys are given preferential treatment in nutrition and education because they will be expected to contribute to a family's income.

Discrimination against women as an area in which change is needed was emphasized during the International Women's Year. UN officials hope a children's year will draw attention to that problem again.

Officials at UNICEF do not want the year of the child to become their sole responsibility.

Many UN agencies have expressed an interest in participating, Charnow said. "We want it to be system-wide.

"But in fact, the real effort will not have to come from the United Nations. It must be from the governments of the countries involved.

"All we can do really is raise the consciousness of the world community to the problems of children. We can help with advice and training, but the real effort, and the money, will have to come from the governments."

The general assembly will not debate the proposed year of the child until later this year, but UN officials have a growing feeling that it will take place.

Waldheim's proposal to the assembly summed up the hopes of all: "An International Year of the Child, properly prepared and implemented and enjoying widespread government support, could lead to significant and lasting improvements in the well-being of the world's children."

Sunspots may wipe out CB radio chatter

By CHARLES J. CANNON

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — A federal scientist says Citizens Band radios will be "nearly useless" for several years beginning about 1978 because of increasing sunspot activity.

Donald L. Lucas, assistant director of the Department of Commerce's Office of Telecommunications, says the period of peak interference will begin in 1978 and will last three to five years. During that time, he says, CB radios will be "nearly useless for their intended purpose, which is directional, short-range communication."

The problem, according to Lucas, is that sunspots increase the ionization of the "F2 layer," a region in the ionosphere many miles above Earth. The increased ionization causes the F2 layer to become highly reflective.

"Normally, a CB radio signal goes out in all directions," Lucas said. "When the F2 layer is not highly ionized, the upward-bound part of the signal passes through the F2 layer and on out into space."

When the F2 layer is ionized, however, it reflects the signal back to earth at a random point, possibly hundreds of miles away from where it originated.

"You can imagine what kind of a mess will be caused by 20 million CB signals, all bouncing back to earth at random," he said. "The reflected signals will cause a jumble of static which will knock out most local signals beyond a mile or two."

Lucas said the interference would be most prevalent during daytime hours in the fall, spring and winter months.

"The F2 layer is relatively stable during the summer and, therefore, does not ionize to the point where it becomes so highly reflective," he said.

Lucas said the interference would be most prevalent between 15 and 40 megahertz, the radio frequencies used by CB and ham operators, medical diathermy machines and landmobile units. Some police, fire and industrial frequencies also will be affected but to lesser extents, he said.

During the summer, CBers will be hampered by another form of interference called "sporadic E-skip."

This type of interference, which is unrelated to sunspot activity, occurs in the "E layer" just below the F1 and F2 layers.

Skip, unlike the interference caused by ionization of the F2 layer, occurs in patches which come and go. Many CBers currently try to bounce their signals off the skip patches, enabling them to talk to points around the country well beyond the 150-mile legal limit imposed by the Federal Communications Commission.

"For some reason, which we can't explain, E-skip is very pronounced in the summer months at mid-latitudes in the United States," Lucas said. "This is directly contrary to the monthly variation in interference from the F2 layer, tending to make the interference potential from both sources a year-around happening."

Lucas said the F2 interference is related directly to the number of sunspots, which occur in 11-year cycles. Low-frequency communications generally are disrupted only during the three to five years of peak sunspot activity during the middle of a cycle.

"The same thing happened during the last 11-year cycle, but very few people noticed it because there weren't that many CBers on the air," Lucas said. "And the same thing will happen during the next cycle and every cycle after that.

"With the increasing number of persons using CB radios, it may get to the point where you'll be lucky, during these periods of peak sunspot activity, to be able to talk to your neighbor a mile or two down the road."

"I hear music, I hear melody..."

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

JEFFERSON, N.H. (UPI) — Tens of millions of Americans have heard the music and melody of Fred Waring for 60 years.

Few realize that millions more people, not just his Pennsylvanians, sing the way they do today because of Waring.

Fall, winter and spring he is on the road non-stop with his choral group. Summers Waring is home in Delaware Water Gap, Penn., where for 30 years he has run workshops for school music teachers.

Waring says 30,000 persons have attended those workshops and 25,000 of them were music teachers. He remembers one who was responsible for 7,000 pupils every year, another who was superintendent of music in Philadelphia.

Whether they're from Philadelphia — population 2 million — or Baraboo, Wis. — population 8,000 — those teachers go home with an armload of Waring arrangements phoneticized syllable by syllable so anyone can sing it as Waring wants.

His Shawnee Press has published millions of copies of Waring arrangements since 1946, when a handful of teachers who had listened to his radio show asked if they could observe him working during Christmas vacation. They liked his arrangement of "Battle Hymn of the Republic," wanted to try it at home and someone suggested "why don't you publish it."

"Battle Hymn" alone has sold 5 million copies. Waring said such greats as Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern, Cole Porter and Rogers and Hammerstein asked him to publish choral arrangements of their songs because "any songwriter wants to be sung in the schools. They want to be sung by future generations."

"When you talk about how many people have been influenced (by his published arrangements and the music schools) it has to be in the millions," Waring said as he unwound after his final concert of the 1975-76 season, a tent show at the White Mountains Festival of the Arts.

The concert was what it has been for decades — always the same, always new.

Always new are the latest songs in Waring arrangements. Always the same are the beautiful blend of voices, the clear enunciation, the old favorite songs, the high hilarity of music master and singers which rapidly spreads to the audience.

Seventeen years ago the hilarity was Waring introducing "sweet love songs" and the soloist ripping into "Mack the Knife." "That's not a love song," Waring interrupted. "I love that song," the tenor yelled back.

This year the shouts of delight came when Waring introduced "the songs America loves best" and they turned out to be a medley of soulfully sung commercials for hamburgers, malts and margarine.

The cast includes a few veterans like percussionist Poley McClintock, who's been with Waring since they started a four-man band in 1916. Most of them are young musicians of college age whom Waring has found through his summer schools.

After the show they fuss about finding him something to eat. And the girls tease the short, slender dynamo who is pleased at being 76 in 1976.

Music isn't all Waring's life, just most of it. He perfected a steam iron and the Waring Blendor ("Throw the others out and get a Waring, a Waring, a Waring," he admonishes his audiences) and enters into Republican politics.

He and a small group of The Pennsylvanians sang all over New Hampshire in 1952, drawing people in to hear then-Gov. Sherman Adams start the bandwagon which led to the election of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

BEAUTY PAGEANT

MEXICO, Mo. (UPI) — The 41st annual Miss Missouri pageant will be held July 8-10 at the Missouri Military Academy in Mexico.

OZONE LAYER

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Scientists have come up with a new technique for measuring the possible depletion of the earth's protective ozone layer. As a result man may learn how ozone is transported and if it is being destroyed by man-made pollutants, according to a report by Dr. John C. Gille, atmospheric researcher to the Committee on Space Research.

The methood is known as "limb scanning" — looking at the earth's horizon from space. It enables scientists to view the atmosphere in layers and analyze the vertical distribution of atmospheric elements, including ozone.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Why zinnias die—Just a few short years ago any one could grow good zinnias. Today, this favorite annual is getting difficult to raise, mainly because they are so susceptible to alternaria blight. We've seen entire plantings of zinnias totally destroyed by alternaria, a fungus carried on seed or within it. It is possible for the young seedlings to be infected before they emerge from the soil. After the plants are up, look for spotting of the foliage, a common symptom. The spots are usually reddish brown. As the spots get larger, the affected leaves become dry and brown. The fungus also strikes the blossoms, causing them to darken, wither and become a mess.

Affected plants wilt completely. Control: Not easy once it sets in. Seeds should be treated with captan before sowing. Dust or spray plants with benlate or captan. Do not wait until plants are seriously hit. It will be too late to control them then. Try susing resistant varieties such as State Fair.

Hanging baskets—If you want your hanging baskets to look great all summer long, keep the plants shapely by snipping out spent blooms and seed pods. Do not let seed pods remain, or get a chance to develop. Cut off any dead or infected parts of the plant. Keep your hanging basket uniformly moistened at all times. Then dry out quickly, since they hang in mid air, so don't forget to keep them watered, almost daily. The plants are in a confined area, meaning they use up the nutrients readily. Feed your hanging basket at least once very three or four weeks, using a liquid plant food such as 23-19-17.

Buckwheat flies—Cluster flies, also called "Buckwheat flies" are starting to show up. They get into new homes as well as older ones. Control consists of sealing up points of entry and that's not easy. In attics hang a no-pest strip, or spray with Diazinon. Use the vacuum sweeper to get rid of them in corners. If it's of any consolation to you, buckwheat flies are not filth carriers, as in the regular house fly. They are dopier, some fall flat on their backs and kick their legs.

Green Thumb Clinic—"We have euonymous vines on the foundation of our house. The leaves have tiny white specks on them, as if covered with snow. What causes this?

Answer—You have euonymous scale. White flecks are the male scales. First brood hatches around May 25th, and a second brood comes along around July 30. Control: Spray with diazinon (Spectracide) at labeled rates, around end of July. Give another spray about 10 days later.

MUSICAL DESIRES

Q. Your column really sparks an interest in knowing more about one's horoscope. I was born in Somerville, Mass. on June 19, 1932 just before midnight, I was told that if I have been born any later I would have been a June 20th baby. I seem to be a true Gemini only intensified. A latent wish is emerging, the desire to learn to play a musical instrument well. I wonder if my interest will carry through the long period of concentration and practice. It could be expensive, but I would love the challenge. What do you think? J.M.B.

A. "We are the music makers

We are the dreamers of dreams—

We are the movers and shakers

Of the world forever, it seems."

Arthur W.E. O'Shaughnessy

You are one of those who are blessed with fine possibilities to develop skill with a musical instrument. At the time of your birth, Daylight Savings Time was in effect giving you Pisces on your Ascendent and it's "ruler" Neptune in very Favorable aspect to the planet Mercury in Cancer in your Fifth House, as well as in Favorable aspect to Venus, also there. Music should prove an ideal means of expressing your inner feelings as well as "food for the soul."

Earlier in life your Gemini Sun indicated a certain nervous restlessness with varied interest but it being in your Fourth House, also in Favorable aspect to Neptune, it indicates that during the latter half of your life, you could settle down. Your Moon in Capricorn indicates an ability to control this restlessness and concentrate on your objectives and achieve your ambitions.

Your Uranus on the cusp of the Second House (money) in Favorable aspect to Jupiter in Leo "ruler" of your Tenth House, in your Sixth House, usually indicates that you should have little difficulty taking care of expenses. In fact unexpected gain is possible. You can do it if you wil, so go to it!

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

TWO HUNDRED YEARS AGO a handful of rebellious free-thinkers stood fearfully but firmly before the strongest power on earth and declared their independence. They fought a long, bloody war and emerged victorious. From that war was born the Constitution of the United States, breathing life into a federal republic which has stood longer than any other government.

Democrats define employment policy

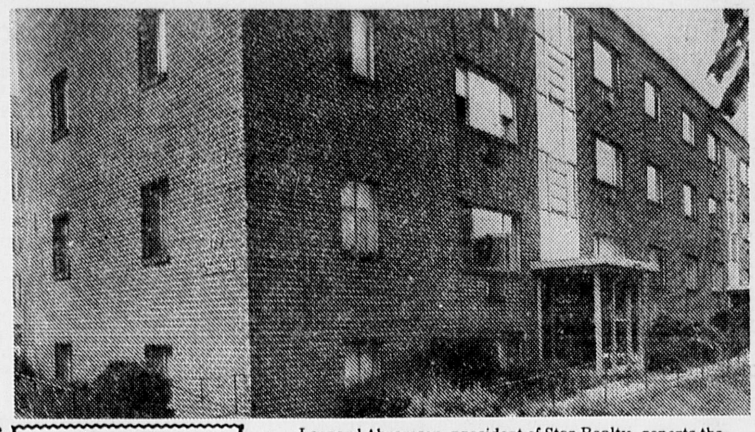

BOSTON (UPI) — A broadly defined full employment policy, followed by welfare and tax reform, is the primary economic objective of the Democratic Party platform, according to the platform committee secretary.

"The first objective has to be full employment," the secretary, former Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan, told approximately 75 news media representatives at a seminar on Economic Policy and Presidential Politics, the third of five sponsored by the First National Bank of Boston and the Boston Herald American.

Many of the remaining planks in the platform were dismissed

Auto workers begin contract negotiations

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers union began negotiations today with the Ford Motor Co., the second of the four major U.S. auto companies to get an outline of contract demands for 680,000 auto workers.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock repeated the hand-shaking performance that started contract talks Monday at General Motors Corp., and then presented the union's initial proposals.

He will repeat the ceremony Wednesday at Chrysler and again Thursday at American Motors, leaving negotiators eight weeks to reach contract settlements.

Current three-year contracts with the "Big Three" companies expire at midnight, Sept. 14, and a day later at AMC. Critical bargaining won't begin until late August when the union selects the "target" company—the auto firm which will be asked to come up with a pattern-setting agreement or face a strike while its competitors continue to build cars.

Ford is seen as the most likely strike target, observers say, because the union this year is seeking major contract innovations to ensure job security and shorten the work week. The No. 2 auto company was last the "target" in 1967 when it was struck for 66 days.

GM's top labor negotiator said Monday that there is no reason for an economy-crippling auto industry strike this fall, but admitted that pensions could be one major roadblock in the way of a peaceful contract settlement.

More than 700 GM retirees, demanding some help against inflation, marched in a picket line outside GM's world headquarters as the 1976 round of negotiations began.

Kidnap truck buried in broad daylight

LIVERMORE, Calif. (UPI) — The kidnapers of 26 children apparently buried in broad daylight a moving van which was used last Thursday to entomb their victims.

Newsmen Tuesday went to the rock quarry where the kidnapers took the children and the school bus driver they abducted 100 miles away at Chowchilla. Investigators dug up the van, which bore a sticker reading: "Find us first in the yellow pages."

The kidnap victims were forced to enter a tiny hole and descend a ladder into the van from which driver Ed Ray and some of the older youngsters clawed their way out 16 hours later.

Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates, who held a joint news conference with Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins, said the kidnapers used heavy equipment, such as a bulldozer, to bury the 30-foot-long van.

"I always say if you are going to commit the crime, be obvious as hell," said Bates. "If they had snuck around here with shovels at night, they would have been caught."

Bates said he still had no idea of the motive for the crime. "Whoever did it put a great deal of planning, effort and even money into it," he said.

The kidnapers prepared the van by cutting a hole in the top for an entryway and bored two five-inch holes that held exhaust fans. A 4-inch flexible hose 35 feet long extended from one of the holes into tree branches where it could not be seen. The van also was equipped with mattresses, a small amount of food and water and an improvised toilet.

The vehicle was originally owned by the Palo Alto Van and Storage Co., which sold it last November. The sheriffs declined further comment.

Uncovered

Workmen prepare to raise the 30-foot truck van that was used to entomb 26 kidnaped children and their bus driver for 16 hours until they managed to escape late Friday in Livermore, California. The van was 8-feet wide and 8-feet high after the top was crushed in by the weight of the earth above. The van's tires were still inflated when it was pulled from the hole. UPI

Suit planned by anti-handgun group to ban rival queston

BOSTON (UPI) — Sponsors of an initiative petition to ban private possession of handguns in Massachusetts planned to file suit in state Supreme Court today to keep a rival question off the November ballot.

People vs. Handguns gathered more than 110,000 signatures to force a referendum on their proposal to ban all guns with barrels 16 inches or less.

A legislative substitute, which would establish additional mandatory minimum sentences for persons convicted of gun related crimes, was later pushed through the legislature by conservative lawmakers aligned with the state's powerful gun lobby.

People vs. Handguns attorney Robert Stewart said Tuesday the suit asks that Secretary of State Paul Guzzi be ordered to remove the substitute from the ballot because it is not germane to the main question and deals unconstitutionally with powers unique to the courts.

The full Supreme Court is in recess until September and is not expected to take the matter up until then.

Stewart said, however, he will seek an immediate injunction, "probably next Wednesday," from a single justice that would force Guzzi to include language in the voter information guide his office sends out before each election explaining that the legislative substitute might not be on the ballot because of the suit.

If both questions are allowed to remain on the ballot, voters would have the option of voting for one, both, or neither, and the question receiving the greater majority—even if both received a majority—would become law.

"The subject matter of the substitute...is not what the people had in mind when they drafted the initiative amendment," Stewart said.

He said he will also argue that the legislative substitute falls under the same rules governing initiative petitions and, according to the rules, "initiative petitions cannot deal with the powers of the courts."

The legislative substitute would prohibit judges from suspending sentences. The Supreme Court earlier this year upheld the power of the legislature to enact laws ordering judges to impose certain sentences, such as the mandatory one-year jail term called for in the Bartley-Fox gun law, which requires private handgun owners to have permits.

Stewart and a People vs. Handguns official said their suit was ready to be filed Tuesday. However, the filing was initially postponed until Thursday because Middlesex County Sheriff John J. Buckley, an outspoken proponent of gun control, was vacationing on Cape Cod and unable to attend a news conference announcing the filing.

The news conference and filing were rescheduled to today by People vs. Handguns after UPI learned the reason for the delay.

"We were going to file it today but Buckley couldn't make the news conference," an official said before the program change.

Income tax cut extension okayed by Senate Finance Committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has agreed to extend current income tax cuts at least through 1977, turning back all efforts to cut popular deductions for state and local gasoline taxes.

Both actions were reverses of the Finance Committee's massive tax revision bill, which has run into increasing criticism for dozens of amendments added for special interests.

With committee Chairman Russell Long, D-La., saying it probably will take another two to three weeks to complete the bill, the Senate next turns its attention to a series of "people" provisions including expanded tax breaks for child care and retirement income.

The bill, including the tax cuts, must go back to the House, which passed a similar bill earlier. Some action must be taken by Sept. 1 to guarantee that the income tax withholding rate will not rise when a temporary freeze on the rates expires.

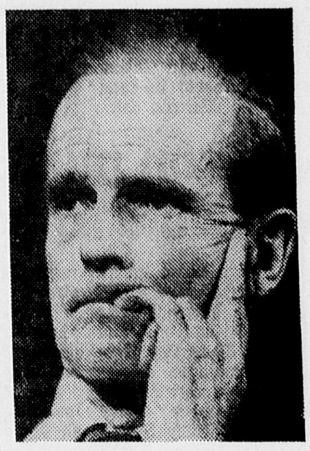

The 66 to 28 vote to extend the tax cuts through 1977 overturned the Finance Committee's recommendation that one major element of the tax cut — the $35 per person tax credit — be ended next June 30 as a way to hold down the revenue loss in the bill.

However, opponents said this was merely a ploy to give additional tax breaks to special interests, and it was obvious that the tax cuts would be extended next year anyway.

The vote came on an amendment by Sen. James Allen, D-Ala.

In two votes, the Senate affirmed its intention to leave the popular deduction for state and local gasoline taxes just as it is. It voted 50 to 42 to reverse the Finance Committee's decision to allow deductions only over the first $50 of tax, then voted 54 to 38 against an amendment by Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., to kill the deduction.

Opposition

The tax reform bill being considered by the Senate Finance Committee came under fire yesterday in Washington, from these two Senators, Ted Kennedy, D.-Mass. (left) and William Proxmire, D-Wis. Both have listed dozens of amendments which they said benefitted only one taxpayer or a small group. UPI

Surcharge agreement reached in compromise auto insurance bill

BOSTON (UPI) — Agreement has been reached by a legislative panel on a compromise auto insurance bill which would impose surcharges of up to $200 on drivers who cause accidents or are convicted of moving traffic violations.

Action on the bill, hammered out by a House-Senate conference committee late Tuesday, is expected today in the Massachusetts Senate. House debate is expected Monday.

The bill, a compromise between similar measures passed by the House and Senate, calls for:

— A tough merit-rating plan. Under the proposal, drivers who cause accidents or are convicted of moving traffic violations would be surcharged. The surcharges range from $25 for speeding to $200 for drunk driving. Surcharges for accidents would be set by the insurance commissioner. Good drivers would be rewarded with premium reductions.

— Open competitive rating. If this proposal is adopted, individual insurance companies, rather than the insurance commissioner, would set rates for auto coverages. The commissioner would, however, be empowered to review and overturn company-set rates.

— Repeal of the no-fault system of property damage coverage, under which a driver involved in an accident collects from his own company for damage to his car regardless of who caused the accident. The no-fault system would be retained for bodily injury coverage.

The conference committee rejected a number of House proposals including one which would have barred companies from putting drivers in an assigned risk pool, where they would pay higher rates, if they had not caused an accident or been convicted of a moving violation in the past three years.

Action on the bill comes two weeks after the insurance industry filed with the state a request for a $171 million auto insurance rate increase for next year. A hearing on the request has been set for Aug.23.

If, as expected, the pending legislation is passed with the open rating provision the hearings will not be needed since companies will set their own rates.

Vote due today to overturn 'jobs' veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In February, President Ford and Congressional Democrats waged a veto battle over jobs. Ford won. Now they are having a rematch, and there are indications that this time the Democrats will win.

The Senate votes today on whether to override Ford's veto of a $3.95 billion measure which Democratic sponsors claim would create or preserve up to 350,000 jobs. The bill is a scaled-down version of a $6 billion measure Ford vetoed in February.

The new version includes $2 billion for public works projects to create jobs mainly in the construction industry, $1.25 billion in budget aid to keep state and local governments from having to lay off employes and $700 million for water treatment plants in 33 states which feel they were shortchanged in an earlier allocation of pollution control money.

After Ford's veto in February, the House voted to override, but the Senate fell three votes short of the necessary two-thirds.

Both houses have passed the trimmer version by more than two-thirds margins.

The new test also came at a time when the latest unemployment figures showed a rise from 7.3 per cent in May to 7.5 per cent in June.

Ford says the new bill, though smaller, contains the main faults of the old one. In his veto message July 6, he said the bill would create only half the number of jobs claimed; the average cost per job would be $25,000; the jobs would not be lasting ones; and the peak impact would not come for 18 months, when it would overstimulate an already recovering economy and cause inflation.

Final action near on court reform

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts Legislature is nearing final action on what is being billed as the major court reform legislation of the current session.

The Senate gave its approval Tuesday to the bill which will authorize the use of 25 District Court judges to relieve a backlog in the Superior Court system.

"This will be the major judicial reform legislation of the current year," said Senate Judiciary Chairman John J. Conte, D-Worcester.

"We have been told that this will finally eliminate the backlog in the Superior Court system."

The Senate approved the measure without debate after a technical amendment was offered by Conte and adopted. It now goes back to the House for approval of the change.

If the House approves the change, the bill needs only a routine enactment vote in both branches before going to the governor.

Conte said the measure has the approval of court officials and a special commission studying ways to relieve the current Superior Court backlog.

Under the bill, the chief justices of the Supreme Court and the Superior Courts will pick 25 District Court judges to serve on Superior Courts, particularly in Suffolk County.

Cases could be transferred across county lines to help relieve the backlog. As a result, Conte said, Suffolk County cases can be heard in Middlesex courts and a reimbursement procedure wil be set up for one county to reimburse the other.

The bill carries a two-year authorization and will not become effective till September.

Conte said court officials requested the delayed starting date so District Court judges can be trained to assume the superior court duties.

Harris case stalled by old newspaper

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The trial of William and Emily Harris was halted by discovery of a yellowed newspaper emblazoned with Hearst kidnaping headlines in a jurors' bathroom — an attempt, a defense attorney charged, to sabotage the trial.

The trial judge Tuesday ordered an investigation to learn how the 2½ year old newspaper got into a bathroom supposedly accessible only to jurors, court employes and guards.

The newspaper was planted "to sabotage this jury and this trial," said defense attorney Leonard Weinglass, calling it an "overt attempt 'o...prejudice this jury" by recalling the Harrises' connection with the kidnaping of Patricia Hearst.

A copy of the Los Angeles Times for Feb. 6, 1974, was found in a waste basket, bearing a picture of Miss Hearst and the headlines "Hearst pleads with Kidnapers," and "Vows Help if Daughter Freed."

Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler interrupted the trial to probe the incident, taking sworn testimony from court employes and jurors and asking the sheriff's department to investigate.

The Harrises, members of the Symbionese Liberation Army who allegedly helped kidnap Miss Hearst, are on trial on 11 charges of assault, kidnap and robbery for an alleged SLA crime spree with the newspaper heiress, who became their comrade. She is to stand trial later on the same counts.

AFL-CIO KENNEDY

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass, has been endorsed by the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education for reelection this fall.

The political arm of the 500,000-member Massachusetts State Labor Council also endorsed 10 other congressmen Tuesday.

John Callahan, COPE director, said a presidential endorsement from Bay State labor leaders will probably come in the fall. AFL-CIO president George Meany gave the national labor federation's endorsement to Jimmy Carter Tuesday.

The other congressional endorsements went to incumbents Joseph Early of Worcester, Edward Boland of Springfield, Robert Drinan of Newton, Paul Tsongas of Lowell, Michael Harrington of Beverly, Thomas P. O'Neill of Cambridge, Margaret Heckler of Wellesley, James Burke of Milton, and Gerry Studds of Cohasset.

VICE IN CAMBRIDGE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Police were scheduled to obtain warrants today against six men and 12 women on various prostitution-related charges.

A police spokesman said the warrants, to be obtained from Cambrdige District Court, were the result of police visits to seven suspected houses of prostitution, some operating under the disguise of massage parlors.

Acting Police Chief Leo Davenport ordered the investigation following complaints by persons living near the suspected houses.

"This is only the beginning," said the spokesman. "This may be the start of the citywide drive."

KILLING PETS

BRAINTREE, Mass. (UPI) — Bizzare killings of a dog and two birds at a pet shop have offficials puzzled.

"Anyone who would break into a pet shop and kill adog and two birds has to be real sick," said Robert Fitzgibbons, owner of the Wanna Pet Center.

Fitzgibbons opened his shop Sunday and found an eightweek-old German shepherd and two parrots strangled to death.

"The place looked like it had been bombed out," he said. "Breaking and entering is one thing, but the wanton killing of pets is quite another. It had to be done by savages."

The floor was strewned with glass from empty fish tanks and there was an estimated $3,000 in damages. The dog had been worth about $150 and each bird about $500.

Missing were two other birds, a calculator and a typewriter.

Intruders apparently entered the store through a rear bathroom window, Fitzgibbons said.

NAVAL YARD

BOSTON (UPI) — Residents of the city's Charlestown section have endorsed a plan to include the Charlestown Naval Shipyard in the Boston Redevelopment Authority's urban renewal project.

At a public hearing, about 35 residents gave strong support to the proposal which BRA Director Robert Kenney said would be sent by Mayor Kevin White to the City Council and then to the state Department of Community Affairs for approval.

The plan for the yard calls for 1,000 housing units, a hotelconference center and space for business, offices, light industry and institutional activities as well as a historic preservation area and a waterfront park.

BOSTON LOBBYIST

BOSTON (UPI) — Mark Shields, hired to promote Boston's image in Washington, has billed the city $3,300 for work performed in April, $2,200 for May and $1,415 for half of June.

Shields, who spent the second half of June working on the presidential campaign of Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ari., will continue as a consultant for Boston "on an indefinite basis," according to Vice Mayor Edward Sullivan.

Sullivan said Shields would be contracted "at a cost not to exceed $40,000" this fiscal year.

Country Players juniors to produce fall play

The Newton Country Players have selected Renee Massimo of Waban and Belinda Annis of Newtonville as producers for their season's curtain-raiser, "The Roar of the Greasepaint, The Smell of the Crowd."

The perennial favorite will be directed and choreographed by Paul Tines of Waltham with Peter Sklar of Newton serving as musical director-pianist.

Belinda Annis

Renee Massimo

With a cast comprised of Newton Country Players' Juniors, performances are slated for Sept. 30 and Oct. 1-3, with a matinee on Sunday.

The production will be available at reduced rates to sponsor groups and theatre parties interested in fund raising, with alternate dates available, at the Rebecca Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton, which has a seating capacity of 200.

Co-Junior Representative on the Players' board of directors, Renee Massimo, 13, is a ninth-grade student at Meadowbrook Junior High School, where she appeared recently as Brenda in "The Pajama Game" and Rebecca in "Our Town."

For the Players, she has played Eloise in "Curse You, Jack Dalton," the queen in "Sunshine for the Queen," the girl in "The House of Bernarda Alba," a member of the chorus in "Suds or How to Win a Princess" and of the silhouette in "Picnic," and as an urchin in the current production.

Renee has also served on the production staff of several offerings.

Lindy Annis, 15, is a junior at Newton North High School and is now in Paris as a summer exchange student. At school she is a member of the Shakespeare Club and Players, appeared as Cobweb in "A Midsummer's Night Dream," and has successfully completed the theatre arts course.

While attending Dade JHS, Lindy portrayed Joseph in "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat" and Rhoda in "The Bad Seed." She has studied mime with the National Mime Theatre Boston, and modern jazz with Prof. Sanda Hagen at Northeastern University.

A junior member of the Players, she has performed under their aegis as Lillyanna in "Sunshine for the Queen," Hildegarde in "Anybody for Tea" and in the opening tableau of "Picnic."

She has worked props and stage crew, assisted as an usher and crew member for many other Players productions.

For information concerning individual membership or theater party sponsorship, phone Jim Sloane at 969-2665 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre 02159.

Newton music, theater groups receive $10,500 from state

Four Newton-based groups have received a total of $10,500 from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, State Rep. Lois Pines has announced.

The four groups are the New England Chamber Opera Group, the Picadilly Square Theatre Company, the Metropolitan Wind Symphony, and the Theatre Experiment Laboratory.

Of the $10,500, $3000 was awarded to the New England Chamber Opera Group, $3500 to the Picadilly Square Theatre Company, $500 to the Metropolitan Wind Symphony, and $3500 to the Theatre Experiment Laboratory.

Rep. Pines has long been a strong supporter of the council, which was established in 1966 for the purpose of encouraging the development of the arts and culture in Massachusetts.

"I am extremely pleased that such a substantial amount of funding has been allocated to Newton-based groups," said the Newton legislator, whose efforts were partially responsible for the funding. "I strongly believe that the development of the arts in Massachusetts deserves high priority and strong support fom both public and private sources. Strong emphasis on the developmetnt of the arts is an essential lifesign of a vibrant civilization."

"Due at least in part to the encouragement from their grant, the Picadilly Square Theatre Company is now planning to expand its 1976-77 program to include runs of four different plays, "Pines said." The assistance from the council has enabled the Picadilly Company to upgrade its program and attract more funds from September through May and will include plays by Harold Pinter, Shakespeare, Anouihl, and Phillip King."

According to Muriel Dolan of the Picadilly Square Company, more and more private businesses have followed the state's lead and joined in contributing funds to support the Newton Centre group.

LAWRENCE, Mass. (UPI) — Tony Lopes, defending New England welterweight champion, scored an eight-round technical knockout Tuesday night over Juan Colon in a championshipship fight.

Lopes, 146, Brockton, opened up cuts over each of Colon's eyes and the referee stopped the fight. Colon, 147, is from Lowell.

CAR CORNER

by John Borelli, Mast. Tech. No. 3428

In the 1890's Americans still considered the automobile a somewhat freakish invention. They relied instead on railroads, bicycles, and horse-drawn carriages to get them around. And no wonder, in the America of those days only 200 miles of paved roads existed outside the cities. There was predictably little interest in European cars and engine development for about a decade after they had begun to be exploited in France and Germany. Soon after 1890, however, American automotive pioneers began assembling crude horseless carriages.

Metco crisis still unresolved

Ald. Matthew Jefferson regards Ald. Robert Stiller talking about Metco. (McKinnon photo)

Mayor, Mandell trade digs

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

The mayor and the chairman of the School Committee continued to take potshots at each other this week over the cut in Metco funding.

Since the School Committee cut the Metco budget June 28, Mayor Theodore Mann has been trying to get the cut restored.

School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell has, since then, refused to attend meetings called by the mayor and another School Committee member, Robert Cohen, and has encouraged other members not to attend the meetings.

Mandell maintains that the $82,000 cut is the only fiscally responsible action that the Committee could take, Newton since the state underfunded the Metco program by that amount.

Mann wants the Committee to heed the advice and warnings from the state Metco administration that the program is in jeopardy if the $82,000 is not restored.

Mann has also been working hard on state officials to try to get the funding restored, and has been in contact with all Newton's legislators to see what influence they can use on Governor Michael Dukakis to obtain full Metco funding.

Mandell is adamant that Newton's taxpayers should not have to absorb any of the state's Metco deficit.

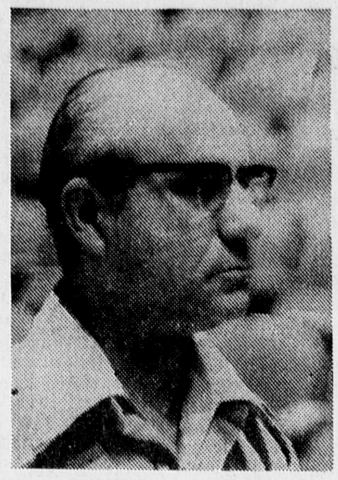

He had several comments and questionsabout recent developments in the Metco situation.

Referring to the action of the Board of Aldermen Monday night, when it voted 14-4 to ask the School Committee to try to reach a "favorable" conclusion" with the state, Mandell said he thinks the Board is "not playing fair" with the taxpayers and should not continue "to mix into areas not in its purview."

He proposed that the question of whether Newton citizens are willing to pay a portion or all of the costs of the Metco program should be put to the people via a referendum.

Mandell also feels that if Newton pays any of the Metco deficit this year, in the future the city will be expected to "pick up the whole tab." The Metco budget this year for the 350 children in the program was $697,000 before the cut.

Mayor Mann wants Mandell to sit down with state Department of Education and Metco officials and work out a way of cutting the $82,000 from a different portion of the Metco budget, as suggested by the state.

Chairman Mandell

But Mandell's response is that he has done that. The next step, he says, is for the state Department of Education either to accept or reject the Newton Metco proposal.

Karl Fuller, director of the Equal Educational Opportunities bureau,, will present the proposal to Commr. Gregory Anrig Aug. 4, Mandell said.

There will be time for the Newton School Committee to take whatever action it may feel appropriate at that time, Mandell said.

Mandell questions why the state has cut Newton's Metco budget by $82,000, which is one-third of the total state cut, when Newton has only 12 percent of the total number of Metco students.

If the cut were proportional to the size of the program, Mandell said, the cut would have been only $29,000, which the School Committee "would have gone along with."

The mayor, in turn, said that Mandell is "playing a game" that may end up costing the taxpayers of Newton $256,000 if the Metco program is discontinued in Newton by the state.

Mann said the teachers hired by the school system partly for the Metco program cannot be fired after April 15, and therefore would have to be retained and paid, whether or not they are needed.

Mandell responds that the cost would not be more than $100,000, because in September there are always vacancies due to resignations over the summer, and there are funded but not filled positions waiting.

"There is more flexibility than the mayor will admit," Mandell said.

Mayor Mann

His point seems to be that if the city once agrees to assume part of the cost, it may then be committed to take over the Metco costs.

Mandell has especially harsh words for the Board of Aldermen, which he characterized as "presumptuous," and said it should pay more attention to the zoning problems that are "keeping young people out of the city," thereby causing school enrollment to further decline.

"I am seriously disturbed," Mandell said, "by Mr. Richmond's (chairman of the aldermanic Education Committee) high-handed manner in arbitrarily setting meeting dates of his committee without giving the School Committee chairman and the Committee the courtesy of coming to an agreement on a mutually acceptable date."

Mandell also complained that the agendas were not set by mutual agreement.

"I seriously question his good intentions in maintaining good will between the two bodies (Board of Aldermen and School Committee)," he said.

Board urges Metco negotiations go on

In spite of an attempt by Ald. Robert Stiller to "charter" consideration of a recommendation in favor of Metco, the Board of Aldermen Monday night reaffirmed its support of the program.

Stiller's attempt to close off any action on the recommendation supporting the present level of Metco participation and asking that the School Committee "create a dialogue" with the state resulted in a long and acrimonious parliamentary battle between Stiller and Board President Joseph McDonnell.

The item under discussion was labled a "recommendation" so that it could not be chartered. A charter objection is a right provided by the city charter to preclude action until a subsequent meeting.

Stiller challenged the right of McDonnell to rule that he could not exercise the privilege of charter objection on the matter, and produced a written opinion from an assistant city solicitor which said that a recommendation is in effect the same as a resolution, which is subject to charter objection.

McDonnell would not accept that decision and ruled that the item was not chartered.

The final vote was 14 in favor of the recommendation, 4 opposed. Opposed were Ald. Wendell Bauckman, Donald Budge, Andrew Magni and Robert Tennant.

Ald. Ernest Dietz, Robert Gaynor, James Miller, Sidney Small, Stiller, and Domenic Taglienti were absent for the vote.

Stiller, after being turned down on parliamentary procedure, had left his desk and was seated at the back of the aldermanic chamber.

Tuesday morning Stiller said on the telephone that he is "not against the Metco program as long as it is funded 100 percent by the state."

His reason for trying to delay the passage of a Board expression of hope that the budget cut will be restored, he said, is that the matter should never have been before the Board.

"We have no right to be involving ourselves with School Committee matters," Stiller said.

Threatened Metco staff hires lawyer

Four Newton Metco personnel who will be laid off under the current Metco budget have hired a lawyer to help them in a possible suit against the city.

Lawyer Warren D. Atlas said in a letter to the School Committee and superintendent that he wants to discuss the matter with "city representatives" before he files a suit on behalf of the four who may be laid off.

Psychologist Juan Lovelace, social worker Jewell Bell, counselor Charlayne Murrell, and Lesley Christian have retained the labor-lawyer who said he would attend Wednesday night's School Committee meeting.

School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell said he would not attend the meeting set for last night, but had referred the letter from Atlas to the Committee negotiating lawyer.

Mayor Theodore Mann referred his copy of the July 16 letter to City Solicitor Howard Levine.

43 units voted for Paul St.

The decision may be made today (Thursday) on whether the proposed elderly housing on Paul Street will be considered for federal funding in its reduced size.

The Board of Aldermen Monday night voted to reduce the size of the proposed apartment house from 52 units to 43, even though there is serious doubt in many people's minds that HUD funding will be available, because of the high per-unit cost incurred by the reduction.

Planning Director Charles Thomas said this week that he, as planning director and also chairman of the Community Development Authority, which would be responsible for building the housing, and a member of the Housing Services Commission will meet with HUD officials today to discuss the matter. If the smaller building is not rejected out of hand, the final decision may take several weeks.

A rush job of redesigning parts of the building was done in the past two weeks to try to make it acceptable to the neighbors of the project and the Board of Aldermen.

The latest design reduced the height of the building by one more story, but Newton Centre residents still held out for no more than a four-story building.

The original proposal for a six-seven-story building aroused massive opposition.

The site is in a Business B district, which allows the construction of a six-story building as a matter of right. Permission is needed from the Board of Aldermen to exceed the allowable density (number of apartments on the site).

The action of the Board Monday night was a reconsideration of a previous 14-10 denial of the petition, after which the new design was done.

Most aldermen seemed reluctant to vote the housing out of existence, and by a

Crystal Lake swimming cut

Poor visibility in the water forced curtailment of swimming at Crystal Lake this week .

Swimming was restricted to the shallow area enclosed by the front of the H-dock and the shallow area to the left of the dock.

There will be no interruption in swimming and sailing lessons, Recreation Commissioner Russell Halloran said Wednesday.

An algae bloom due to high temperatures and lack of rain last week was treated with copper sulfate by Allied Biological Control Corp. Whether the murky water is related to the algae is not known, Halloran said.

According to state sanitary and safety codes, there must be at least four feet visibility in the water. Visibility is being tested several times a day now, Halloran said, and on Wednesday morning was still below standards.

Halloran has called in Allied Biological to try to remedy the turbidity problem.

The turbidity is not related to the operation of the machine that keeps the water from becoming stagnant at the swimming area, Halloran said.

The machine, called an Aqualator, causes currents in the water that prevent the overgrowth of bacteria in the water. Bacteria counts are taken by the Health Department at least once a week, Halloran said, and more often when he feels it desirable.

There are other things to do on the Cape

BY CYNTHIA BLACK
of the Graphic staff

Clearly, God did not intend that all of us have perfect vacations.

We tempt fate year in and year out, and ultimately, we get rained out. Or it's cold that week. Or both.

As one of the co-authors of a new Cape Cod vacation book put it, "If you've come for a summer vacation and it's not sunny, somehow there's a feeling of failure."

It so happens that a rainy day on Cape Cod prompted Evelyn Kaye to begin work on a new guide to the Cape, "The Family Guide to Cape Cod."

She was ultimately joined in the effort by Bernice Chesler, author of "In and Out of Boston with (or without) Children."

Ms. Kaye describes a rainy day on the Cape. She and her children join a caravan of cars awaiting admittance to an aquarium. Sorry, she is told, full up.

She said in an interview last week that she and the children began to make a list of places to go. And from that list the book was born.

She asked Bernice Chesler for advice on setting up the book on the Cape and eventually the two Newton women decided to collaborate on the book.

"Most books rhapsodize about the Cape," Ms. Chesler commented. "They don't give practical information."

The two women pooled their existing knowledge and then began exploring. They wanted to provide a practical guidebook that would give visitors a general idea of what there is to do on Cape Cod besides visiing beaches.

The book's format is basically an alphabetical survey of the 15 identifiable Cape communities. In each section, a map, directions and vital statistics are provided. Then, in a departure from run-of-the-mill guidebooks, selected bits of information about unique and lesser known areas are given.

Names, times, costs, directions and notes of caution are included. Mindful that things do change, phone numbers, wherever possible, are also povided.

Authors Chesler and Kaye also compiled a list of craftspeople willing to have visitors, and their names and locations also appear in the book.

It gives a visitor the opportunity to select from a range of small museums, libraries, restored houses, family restaurants and nature trips to sample while visiting the Cape.

"The Family Guide to Cape Cod" tells you not only where the bicycle trails are but where to rent the bicycles. It tells you when there are story hours at local libraries. It tells you where you can rent a boat to go freshwatwer fishing.

In doing research for the book, Ms. Kaye, who has had a summer home in Marstons Mills for the past 10 years, said "There is so much more than I thought was there."

Ms. Chesler underscores the variety; each beach, each community is different. "If you've been to one, don't think you've been to them all.

Many items also give a truthful indication of the size of the crowd you're likely to encounter at some of the attractions. Sometimes it says "not too busy on cool or rainy days," and sometimes "tends to be crowded."

Day trips to Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard are also covered in the book.

One final suggestion from the authors. If there isn't a single place you feel like going on any given day, why not stay right where you are and cook a nice, old-fashioned Cape meal ?

The recipes are at the end of the book.

1. What is the oldest operating homemade ice cream shop on Cape Cod?
2. What is the highest point on the Cape?
3. Where can you call for a personal visit with one of the Cape's most unusual artists who does Polish paper cutting and sells decorated eggs and driftwood figures?
4. Where will you find a fascinating mall that provides fun in all weather and offers products ranging from exotic foods to bargain sneakers?
5. How do you find an annual Indian powwow with exhibitions and a show culminating in the selection of an Indian princess?
6. Where can you get a beach buggy wildlife tour revealing nesting terns in early summer, shorebirds in migration and fascinating facts about vegetation and geologic history?
7. What fudge shop gives you free samples before you buy?

George Withington candidate for 16th District representative

George E. Withington of 63 Bigelow Rd., West Newton, has announced his candidacy for state representative from the 16th Middlesex District, which includes Ward 2, Precinct 4, all of Ward 3, and all of Ward 4 with the exception of Precinct 2.

Withington has been an elected member of both the Newton Republican City Committee and the Republican Ward 3 Committee since 1964. In 1966 he was elected president of the Newton Young Republicans Club. He was a sergeant-at-arms at the Massachusetts Republican State Convention in Boston. In 1974 he was a delegate to t e Massachusetts Republican State Convention.

A 1962 Nichols College

George Withington

Graduate where he received a B.B.A. degree in management, Withington is a Newton businessman. He is a former secretary of the Newton Jaycees, and an area chairman of the West Newton Neighborhood United Fund Campaign in 1967.

Withington feels that there is a need to have more Republican representation in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, where Democrats outnumber Republicans by more than three to one. He feels that there should be a strong opposition party.

Withington believes that action should be taken on the following issues:

1. Massachusetts should adopt a merit rating system for automobile insurance, so that good drivers would pay lower premiums than bad drivers.

2. The present 8 percent meals tax should be returned to the 5 percent of 1975, and meals under $1 should not be taxed at all. The present 8 percent meals tax is putting an excessive burden on small lunch counters and restaurants, and particularly on older citizens living on a fixed income.

Withington opposes a state graduated income tax, because he believes it would mean that most citizens in the state would pay more state taxes. If a graduated income tax is adopted there would be a decrease in the economic base of the state, as more businesses and individuals move out of Massachusetts, resulting in greater state unemployment. Furthermore the voters of Massachusetts have defeated a graduated income tax referendum question in three previous elections.

Withington has long been concerned with the irresponsible policies of the state legislature. As state representative from the 16th Middlesex District, Withington will dedicate his efforts toward restoring confidence and responsibility in state government.

Sen. Jack Backman seeks reelection

Sen. Jack Backman announced this week that he is seeking his fourth term in the state Senate.

This year, Backman dedicated his efforts to the restoration of medical services which were cut out of the fiscal 1976 budget.

In a year-long, hard battle, Backman achieved a major political victory when the legislature heeded his warnings of disaster and restored to the fiscal 1977 budget most of the services which had been eliminated.

Restoration of the budget cuts is typical of Jack Backman's political style. He stood alone, as with his introduction of the first handgun control bill in Massachusetts. But in the end it is his opponents who usually find themselves supporting him.

For example, legislators who voted against the medical services for needy persons the first time it came up joined him for final passage. Even the governor, who had instituted the cuts, signed the budget with the Backman amendments for medical services included.

Sen. Backman stated, "Who can question government's responsibility to assure these basic medical services?"

When Backman first filed his bill for gun control, some 2000 gun enthusiasts appeared to oppose the bill. Since that time, Backman has been joined by many legislators and organizations, such as the League of Women Voters and People vs. Handguns, in his struggle to ban handguns. This November the issue will be on the ballot for the voters to decide.

However, Sen. Backman never was content with social legislation alone. He says, "Economic growth and human services must develop together." Although this has not received as much publicity as Backman's other programs, it surprised Jim Howell, vice president of the First National Bank of Boston, to find that Backman was the author of sweeping legislation for an economic development corporation for Massachusetts, a regional economic plan for New England, a foreign trade zone at the Boston Navy Yard, and a model state job opportunity program.

Backman first formulated these concepts during the height of the postwar prosperity before the current recession had even begun.

Sen. Backman stated, "The whole future of New England depends upon bold steps to rejuvenate the economy. The New England Regional Commission has printed and distributed my concepts in a report to the six-state region. It is now time for action."

Backman said that top priority for Massachusetts is to "wake up the legislators and financial leaders to the concept that we can rejuvenate the New England economy, that economic growth and the quality of life in this region go hand in hand."

Backman, an experienced and responsive legislator, is seeking his fourth term as state senator and has represented the new Brookline-Newton district since the district was created two years ago.

Throughout his legislative career, Backman never hesitated to take new or unpopular positions if he believed they were in the best interests of the people.

Jack Backman drafted and sponsored the creation of the Office for Children and the Office for Elderly Affairs; revision of the state's drug laws; decriminalization of public drunkeness; regulation of ambulance services; prison reform to improve rehabilitation; authorization of pretrial diversion treatment for youngsters; adoption and extension of rent control; administrative appeal procedures for the Department of Public Welfare; insurance coverage for newborn children from birth; 50 percent reimbursement to cities and towns for the MBTA deficit; guaranteed adequate income for the elderly, blind and disabled; office for the deaf; state nutrition board; labeling of ingredients on all ice cream packages; no-fault divorce; and requirement for a price tag on all new laws.

Backman's efforts on behalf of the people of Massachusets have resulted in numerous awards, including the Better Life Award from the Mass. Federation of Nursing Homes (1973), First Annual Public Service Award from the Council for the Deaf (1975), Public Citizen Award from the National Association of Social Workers (1975), and Man of the Year Award from the Mass. Council on Alcoholism (1976). In addition, he was on the Boston Globe's Senior Citizen Honor Roll each year it was awarded.

Backman has also served as president of the Temple Emeth Couples Club, and has been active in community and school organizations in Brookline.

He has served as chairman of the Minority Rights Committee of the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Boston and currently serves on its Israel Task Force. He is also active in the Zionist Organization of America, American Jewish Co gress and as a Temple Emeth director.

He now serves as chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs and chairman of the Special Committee on Employment.

He has been a practicing lawyer since 1948. He is a member of the Massachusetts and United States Supreme Court bar and founded the Boston law firm of Backman, Katz and Levy.

He is a graduate of Syracuse University and Harvard Law School, and is a World War II veteran. Jack and Lillian Backman have four children.

Thieves take money, equipment in 7 breaks

Police reported seven breaks this weekend which netted thieves a total of $550 worth of cash and bicycles, in addition to two air conditioners and tire wheels.

Quint's Florist at 1585 Centre St., Newton Highlands, reported at 9 a.m. Saturday that someone forced the rear door of his shop and took $100 from two cash drawers.

Karen Leonard, an employee in the Marriott Motor Hotel in Auburndale, reported that a man about 20 took $50 from her purse and fled from the building.

The Arrow Publishing Company at 1238 Chestnut St., Upper Falls, reported the theft of two air conditioners from south side windows sometime between Thursday afternoon and Friday morning.

Two residents of 288 Grove St. reported their apartments had been broken into Friday between 3 and 9 p.m. Jeff Anderson reported his bedroom was ransacked but nothing appeared to be missing, and Robert D. Sykes reported that a tape recorder was stolen.

The Division of Program at 88 Chestnut St., West Newton, was broken into between 5 p.m Friday and 8:30 a.m. Sunday through a window that had been repaired from a previous entry. Film from a refrigerator was thrown about an office, but nothing was known to be missing.

Two cars were stripped of their wheels in the main lot of Silver Lake Dodge, 444 Watertown St., between 5 p.m. Saturday and 10:30 a.m. Sunday police reported.

Michael Albert of 32 Kelveden Rd., Waban, reported a 3-hp. leaf blower worth $150 and two Schwinn bikes worth $125 each stolen from his home Sunday.

Drinan says Army omitted indirect costs of Devens shutdown

Cong. Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass.) has called upon the Army to increase significantly its cost and economic analysis in conducting the impact study at Fort Devens.

In a letter to the Secretary of the Army, Martin R. Hoffmann, the Congressman stated that while the proposed scope of work at Devens "encompasses many significant socioeconomic effects of the realignment, it apparently omits a number of potentially important consequences of this action."

Drinan's letter was in response to a draft outline of the scope of work proposed by the Army for the environmental impact statement. He wrote that the outline "largely ignores the important indirect or secondary effects of the cutbacks," most notably federal governmental costs associated with a severe reduction at Fort Devens.

"Attorneys in my office have been in close contact with Pentagon officials and others involved in the environmental-impact-statement process. Through the continuous monitoring at every step of the way, we will insure that the study is comprehensive and fair."

Drinan also wrote to the Arthur D. Little consulting firm, which will conduct much of the study for Pentagon officials.

Mayor reviews draft of state economic development program

Mayor Theodore Mann, chairman of the Local Government Advisory Committee, was among members of the LGAC which met with Gov. Michael Dukakis and Director Frank Keefe of the Office of State Planning last week to review the draft version of the state's new economic development program.

The program, designed to change the state climate toward business and industry and to promote industrial growth, is considered one of the major steps being taken to reverse the recent eonomic downtrend in Massachusetts.

The LGAC recommended that a standing committee of local officials be named to revise and update the program on a long-term basis and urged the governor to include members of the business community in any further review committees to ensure that the business point of view is included in shaping state policy.

In addition, the LGAC advised that a timetable be established for meeting both the short-term and long-term goals of the development program, and suggested that the state study the possibility of a state industrial development financing authority to fund industrial development or industrial parks in communities, while leaving final regulatory power over accepting new development in the hands of local officials.

A major consensus voiced by the group, which is composed of local elected and appointed officials, was that "the problem of growth is not a state problem alone, but also a local problem," and that some lack of growth is due in part to the unwillingness of some local communities to allow industrial development to take place.

It will be advantageous to identify towns and cities that are willing to encourage industrial growth in order for the state to be able to promote Massachusetts as a site for new business investment, the local officials noted.

Keefe informed the group that many of the suggestions made by the LGAC will be incorporated into the final version of the document, while the governor urged that the bers of the LGAC consider this a draft document even after publication and continue to make additions and corrections tohelp form the state's dans for economic growth.

Keefe asked that the LGAC meet with him again in September to discuss economic development further.

Ms. Manes directs Community Schools

The Newton Community Schools Commission announces the appointment of Lee Alpern Manes to the position of executive director of the Community Schools.

Ms. Manes, a native of Brookline who resides in Newton, holds a graduate certificate in education from the University of Vermont. She studied at Brandeis University, where she was a Ziskind Institute grantee at the Heller School for Advanced Studies in Social Welfare.

Ms. Manes was executive director of Zionist House, an agency of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies. She was on the faculty of Meadowbrook Junior High School and Newton Headstart. She also was a classroom teacher at the Memorial School in Winooski, Vt.

Included in her involvement in community affairs was her participation on the Boston Mayor's Committee for Cultural Affairs for the Bicentennial, discussion leader of a Brandeis Women's Committee Study Group, and membership in the American Jewish Committee.

Few private-school students request loans of textbooks

Less than 8 percent of the 2100 Newton students attending private schools have asked the School Department to lend them books for September, even though the School Committee agreed to provide funds for such textbook loans as required by state law.

As of July 15 the School Department had received requests from 156 private school students living in Newton to borrow 488 books which will cost the city $3300.

According to District Coordinator Harold Beattie one private school in Newton has yet to notify its students of what books its students will need, but requests from students of seven schools in Newton and one in Brookline added to any forthcoming requests will be "well within the $9000" budgeted by the School Committee in February.

A total of 2128 Newton students attend private schools throughout the country, with 1065 attending private schools in Newton, according to School Department statistician Vincent Silluzio.

The School Committee allotted $9000 for the program based on $25 worth of books for each of 2000 students. For the 156 students that have applied, the average cost per pupil is $21.15.

Deadline for students applying for books is "on or about Aug. 1" according to guidelines passed by the School Committee in March.

This is the first year the School Committee has complied with the state law mandating towns to lend textbooks to private school students. The last School Committee refused to lend books because the law was being contested in court and still is.

Newton has complied with the law by making available a list of all books used in a classroom for instruction by 20 or more students.

The student must submit a verified list of what books the school will be using to the School Department, and then the School Department sends the student a list of which of the books requested are available.

Students do not have to make a deposit for the books to be borrowed, but have to pay fines for damage or nonreturn.

The actual cost of the program will come to more than $333333333333 when postage and clerical

'300 costs are added, but will be less than $9000, Beattie maintains.

Billboard firm to fight ban

By PRISCILLA LEITH
Graphic Correspondent

Billboards are coming down in Brookline, but their counterparts in Newton have a way to go before they follow.

Briefs are to be filed Aug. 5 with the state Outdoor Advertising Board on the latest challenge relating to the elimination of five Newton signs.

John Donnelly and Sons, owner of two billboards outlawed by a recent change in Newton zoning laws, is propping the billboards up with legal challenges that will keep them standing at least through this fall.

The OAB scheduled hearings for June 29 on removal of the five Newton signs, located in Auburndale, Newton Highlands, West Newton, Chestnut Hill and Nonantum.

However, at a prehearing conference that morning Donnelly filed a motion with OAB to quash the hearings.

Donnelly contended that landowners who rent the space for billboards are parties to the hearings, because their rights are affected.

Such landowners had not been notified of the June 29 hearings, and Donnelly argued that OAB must give them notice.

The hearings were suspended and the prehearing conference involving Donnelly, OAB and City of Newton representatives and attorneys took up the time allotted.

Arguments on Donnelly's objections took place on July 13.

The Newton Law Department argued that Donnelly's motion should be denied because the proceeding is a licensing hearing and what happens between the property owner and his lessee is irrelevant.

Carried to its conclusion, the Law Department says, Donnelly's argument would mean that every time a licensee broke the law, for instance on a liquor license violation, the property owner would become involved.

Just last week OAB ruled in favor of the city and against Donnelly's motion.

Now Donnelly has contested the Newton billboard ban on a new front.

The state Supreme Judicial Court ruling of December, 1975, on a Brookline ban, the catalyst for Newton's new law, did not cover the Newton situation, Donnelly says.

It's a new case since a U.S. Supreme Court decision ruling that prescription drug advertising falls under the First Amendment right of free speech, according to Donnelly.

The Law Department is busy this week working on briefs against that argument.

In Brookline, the 22 illegal signs are just coming down after traveling a long legal road through OAB hearings and court challenges.

Donnelly fought their removal every foot of the way from the 1971 town meeting ban to the Supreme Judicial Court decision last year.

The billboard company is dismantling its Brookline signs, but that doesn't mean the firm has given up the battle.

Instead of continuing court appeals against Brookline, Donnelly is bringing court action for compensation under the federal Highway Beautification Act.

According to an OAB spokesman, Donnelly intends to take the Newton billboard case all the way through the state courts, and then on to the U.S. Supreme Court on the basis of the First Amendment.

The sign company has told OAB that it intends to call about 25 witnesses to oppose OAB's upholding the Newton ban.

Rules governing the OAB hearings on permit renewals restrict testimony to specific violations which OAB has cited for each sign, and Donnelly has been advised to confine its witnesses to these points.

The Outdoor Advertising Board has set September 14 at 9 a.m. for resumption of the hearings on the original issue of whether to renew permits for the five Newton billboards.

Ice cream peddler Eli Sherer of Newton Centre sits in his truck rented from Novelty Ice Cream of Cambridge. Regula tions in this native city of his and the state meals tax make it hard for him to earn money this summer before he goes back to school. (Williams photo)

Would you walk 500 feet, pay 8% tax for a cone?

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

Ice cream is a simple enjoyable treat to most people, but it's hard to make a living by selling it from a truck in Newton.

Not only do vendors have to charge the 8 percent meals tax as everywhere in Massachsetts, but in Newton a driver can't ring a bell or sell within 500 feet of a playground.

Eli Sherer, 17, is trying to make a living this summer selling Popsicles from a truck in Newton, Brookline, and Waltham, but has been stopped by Newton police for ringing his bell inside the city.

The city ordinance prohibiting the sale of ice cream within 500 feet of a playground or using a noise to attract customers anywhere within the city was passed in 1965, Sherer said.

But he didn't know about it until this year when he was warned by police. His brother sold from a truck in Newton five years ago, and he never heard of it.

Sherer, who has lived in Newton most of his life, said, "It looks ridiculous when police have nothing better to do than chase ice cream men off the street'" in reference to one occasion when two cruisers went up and down the street about four times waiting for him to ring his bell.

The 500-foot restriction here (1000-foot in Brookline) means "in most cases that the ki8ds have to cross the street, creating a greater hazard than i we parked on the park," he said.

Sherer plans to fight the city ordinances, which can be enforced by a $5-50 fine, with the aldermen.

Furthermore, Sherer has filed suit in Suffolk Superior Court to stop Tax Commissioner Owen Clarke from collecting the 8 percent meals tax from ice cream vendors.

"With this extra tax on the ice cream, the price must go up' and nobody believes that the state is taxing the ice cream. They think I'm doing it to raise my profit margin.

"How am I supposed to make any profit at all?" he asked.

Paintings, rugs, clocks gone from Chestnut Hill

Thirteen oriental rugs of unknown value were the prize for thieves who bypassed an alarm in a Chestnut Hill home last week where two clocks and a few oil paintings were also missing.

Det. Manley Kiley was not as of Wednesday provided with a detailed list of what was missing from the home of Henry D. Stevens, 96 Middlesex Rd.

The gardener for the family discovered the break at 8:47 a.m. Monday, and the home was last checked by a relative the previous Monday.

According to Det. Kiley two men waring gloves bypassed the alarm's key station at the front door, pried the door open, and left out the back door to a van apparently parked in the driveway.

Det. Kiley does not feel this theft was performed by the same group that robbed a Chestnut Hill home in February of more than $200,000 worth of paintings and valuable artwork. The paintings in that robbery were recovered, but the other artwork was not.

Kiley said the value of the rugs, two or three oil paintings on the walls and some taken from the attic, and a grandfather and banjo clock taken did not approach the total value from the other break.

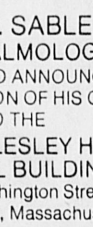

Police are continuing the investigation.

Pierson accuses School Committee in letter

South side curriculum coordinator Geoffrey Pierson wrote an accusatory letter of resignation this week, callling "the tactics and strategies of some School Committee members counterproductive and divisive."

Pierson said last week he resigned because his position had been threatened during budget hearings, and he would be get8ting paid more at his new job in the Lexington school system. -

School Committee Chairman Emeritus Manuel Beckwith deeply regretted the resignation, calling it "another step down in the tragedy of what's happening to the Newton schools," and knows of at least one principal that is seriously considering leaving the system.

Pierson will be assistant superintendent for instruction 8 in Lexington. The superintendent there said his job begins Aug. 23, although his resignation is not effective until Sept. 1, according to his letter to Superintendent Fink.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink called Pierson "a guy of superb intellect" and a "damn good administrator." The superintendent said Pierson had previously turned down other job offers in other school systems, but noted the job responsibility of the district coordinators, of which there are two, has grown recently because of budget cuts of other personnel.

Mandell wished Pierson well in his new job, but feels he overreacted to the change in philosophy brought on by the new School Committee.

"Anytime there is a shakeup in a board, like a board of directors, there's going to be a ripple effect," Mandell said.

"Certainly there is a different philosophy, and I can understand the fear of the unknown . . . but his letter implies that we (the Committee) ought not to discuss the continuation of jobs," Mandell said.

Following is an abridged text of Pierson's letter:

"The prospect of an interesting position in a highly-regarded school system would be a powerful incentive under any conditions. Under present conditions, however, the performance of my work has become increasingly difficult, and, consequently, my interest in working elsewhere has grown increasingly intense.

"The School Committee has made a number of decisions and taken a number of positions which threaten my ability to supervise the school system's performance.

"Throughout its interviews with coordinators, many of the Schol Committee's questions reflected a concern for the development and maintenance of curriculum guidelines, for the use of these guidelines and related materials in classrooms across the city, and for the evaluation of these curricula and the supporting methodology.

"Yet at the same time that the committee appeared to be endorsing the continued development and supervision of coherent city-wide curriculum, it was undermining the authority and effectiveness of those who perform this function by:

"— calling for "interviews" of coordinators with less than 24 hours notice and with very little explanation of intent. This action immediately established the coordinator as "vulnerable."

"— eliminating assistant coordinator positions in math

Have a Backyard Fair, aid leukemia research

Several hundred children in the Greater Boston area are staging fairs in their backyards to raise money to be used in the research of leukemia.

WCVB-TV, Channel 5, cosponsors this event and Phil Esposito, former Bruins star, is the special events director.

Last year the Backyard Fairs raised $13,580 for leukemia research.

Children and adults wishing to aid leukemia research by having their own backyard fair may write to Phil Esposito, special events director, Backyard Fair, 739 Boylston St., Boston 02116.

The first 100 chairmen and their helpers will be invited to attend Leukemia Day at Paragon Park on Friday, Aug. 27. Over 100 other prizes will be drawn from the returns from Backyard Fair chairmen.

Control on guns

One thing on which the people of Massachusetts do not get their way is the enactment of a new federal law either banning the use and possession of handguns or the mandatory registration of such guns.

The powerful lobby of the National Rifle Association makes a greater impact on Congress than does public opinion.

A watered-down gun-control bill filed by Congressman John Conyers, Michigan Democrat, is considered to have little chance of passage during the present conressional session and may not even reach the floor of the national House.

Too many Congressmen either cater to the Rifle Association lobby or represent constituents in rural areas who insist on their right to have a rifle in their home or a revolver in their pocket or both.

Even members of the Massachusetts delegation in Congress are divided in their opinions as to what kind of federal gun-control law should be placed on the statue books.

Congressman Robert F. Drinan of Newton is the most vigourous advocate of a strong gun-control law.

Others, who agree with Drinan that a restrictive handgun law should be adopted, include Speaker-to-be Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., and Congressmen John Joseph Moakley, Michael J. Harrington and Edward P. Boland.

Members of the Bay State contingent, who are less enthusiastic about the Conyers bill, include Congressmen James A. Burke of Milton, Joseph D. Early of Worcester and Paul Tsongas of Lowell.

Burke reportedly favors stiffer penalties for handgun crimes but is reluctant to take arms away from law-abiding citizens.

Early, from central Massachusetts, supports private gun ownership, with penal reforms rather than new gun-control laws.

Tsongas is opposed to further gun-control measures.

Congresswoman Margaret M. Heckler, a Republican, urges mandatory prison sentences for handgun felonies.

Congressman Gerry Studds of Cohasset picks a number of flaws in the Conyers bill.

He opposes increases in the fees for dealers in rifles and guns, is against mandatory handgun registration but favors a ban on "Saturday Night Specials."

Meanwhile, it appears that the people will get a lot of talk from their elected representatives on Capitol Hill but no effective federal law which would make it less likely a criminal would have a revolver in his possession which he could use to kill or wound a law-abiding citizen.

It would seem we could get some law which would make it less likely an innocent person would be shot while walking a street peaceably or going about his business within the privacy of his own home.

That shouldn't be too much to ask.

Flower power

By Virginia Payette

The Democrats are glowing with brotherly love. The Republicans aren't, but they will be after Kansas in August. That leaves us the flower lovers.

Flower lovers?

Absolutely. Any day now, war is going to be declared in every garden club in America, and if you think the Ford-Reagan forces are hostile, wait till the stamens-set starts to draw its pistils.

The subject, in case you missed it in the frenzied suspense of the Democratic convention, is the selection of a (get ready, now) national flower.

(Well, why not? It's too hot to begin worrying whether Jimmy Carter's economic policies will create more inflation. Or whether Reagan will crank up World War III. Let's join our congressmen in their preoccupation with the birds and the bees.)

Which, in the natural order of things, brings us to flowers. Each state has its own (no self-respecting chamber of commerce would let an opportunity like that get away), but there is no official U.S. flower. You may not have known that. Now you do.

Congress has been remiss, as in so many other things, in getting around to this. So a group of New Yorkers is revving up a campaign to promote the marigold. It's a "friendly flower," they say.

That, of course, will have to be checked out by the FBI and the CIA. Maybe even by Henry Kissinger, who comes from Germany where the national blossom is the corn-flower. Make of that what you will.

All we know about the marigold is that it's yellow, which will make it immediately suspect in the Reagan camp. And that for years the late Sen. Everett Dirksen fought for its adoption as the national flower. But he died before he could get it out of committee.

A lot depends, we can suppose, on who wins in November. Carter comes from Georgia, where the Cherokee Rose rules all other posies. Ford's native Michigan voted in the appie blossom, and Reagan's home state of California has the poppy from whence, in certain varieties, comes opium.

But not even a soilslide would give the new president the nerve to name a national flower on his own. Not until he hears from the garden-club caucus and the smoke-filled potting sheds in the backyards of America.

It's a hot-house issue, all right. Maybe even fraught with more political peril than the Panama Canal.

Liberals, for instance, might welcome the bleeding heart as an appropriate symbol of our country's concern for the downtrodden and oppressed of the world.

For Conservatives, who'd like to find a way to get the federal government off theri backs, there's a perfect choice: the prickly pear cactus.

Folks on welfare and unemployment compensation would go for the forget-me-not. Fans of the sexual revolution (not to mention a few congressmen we know) might like the passionflower.

And how about clover for the minority groups who claim people are always walking all over them?

Or maybe the Lady Libs would opt for the lady's-slipper, although they'd probably march down Main street for the right to change it to "person-slipper." And for the militant gay groups there's an appropriate posy so obvious I won't even mention it.

For the malcontents among us who see America as a second-rate power on its last legs, let's nominate the lily. There's one for those who itch to "eyeball" the Communists, too: the loosestrife.

For Mr. Carter, who teaches Sunday School when he isn't giving old pols lessons in how to sew up elections, how about the Jack-in-the-pulpit? And for all those other gentlemen who had hopes of making it to the White House, the bitterroot.

If we had to pick a flower symbolic of the next few months ther'd be no contest: the trumpet creeper will be in bloom until November 2. But, as the marigold mavens point out, this is forever.

A frivolous issue, maybe, but more fun then wrestling with taxes and nuclear warheads and how to bring back a surge of national morality to business and government.

And if Congress tries to duck the issue by complaining they're too busy (trying to sneak another raise for themselves?), they can always pass it along to the Ethics committee. It never seems to find anything to do.

The super rich still pay no tax

Commentary by Gus Tyler, syndicated columnist

NEW YORK — In 1969, the Congress of the United States was startled by a report from the then Secretary of the Treasury Joseph Barr, in which he revealed – for the first time in our history – that there were 155 persons, with adjusted gross incomes above $200,000 who had paid no federal income tax in 1967.

The revelation set off an outcry. Candidates ran for office on platforms to reform the tax law to force these superrich to pay a "minimum tax." Congress hastened to enact the "reform."

And now, several years later, we discover that in 1974, there were 244 wealthy individuals with adjusted gross incomes of $200,000 or more who paid no – yes, NO – federal income tax.

By a quick count, Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D.-Minn.) concluded that "about 57 per cent more individuals with incomes over $200,000 paid no taxes (in 1974) than in 1969."

How is all this possible if Congress enacted a law for a "minimum tax" on these super-incomes?

The answer is "loopholes."

In 1969, Congress moved to plug "loopholes"; namely, "preference incomes," that is, "income that was never subject to taxes."

The reason this tax "reform" did not work is that the plug had loopholes that were bigger than the original loopholes. The plug turned out to be a puncture.

Those who pay no taxes at all, however, are only – to quote Sen. Kennedy (D.-Mass.) – "the tip of the iceberg. For every tax avoider who wins the loophole game by reducing his taxes to zero, there are countless more who use the loopholes and tax shelters to slash their taxes to levels close to zero."

For instance: in 1972 (the latest year for which we have the count) income from "tax preferences" was about $8 billion.

Under the minimum tax "reform" that preference income should have been taxes at 10 per cent – to yield $800 million. Instead, the yield was only $216 million – or a paltry 2.7 per cent.

How did this happen – how did 10 per cent become 2.7 per cent?

Through the punctures in the plug:

To begin with there is an exemption of $30,000 on preference income – immediately reducing the amount of that income subject to the 10 per cent "minimum" tax.

Second — but trickier — is a great big gaping hole in the present law that allows the rich to cut down tax payment on preference income by deducting for any other taxes paid.

Thus, if a man has an income of $165,000 in a year – $120,000 of which he earned as an exectuive salary and $45,000 of which he got through preference income – he pays no tax whatsoever on that $45,000.

Doing fast mathematics, Sen. Nelson (D-Wis.) concluded that the rate of taxation for this man with an income of $165,000 was 27 per cent.

"Which is the same rate of taxes as a worker in a steel mill pays?" Nelson asked.

"Yes," answered Sen. Mondale, "with a salary of $15,000 a year."

To plug the "plug" a coalition of senators – Mondale, Kennedy, Humphrey, Haskell, et al – have proposed to wipe out this deduction for other taxes paid, to raise the rate from 10 per cent to 15 per cent, and to cut down the exemption from $30,000 to $10,000, "to take a little money from those who are very very wealthy to help keep what is already on the books for individual taxpayers."

Blue law referendum

If I can go to the race track and blow a week's pay I surely ought to be able to buy my kids a pair of sneakers.

By Steward Powell UPI State House reporter

BOSTON (UPI) — Rep. William G. Robinson says if a Massachusetts citizen can play the dogs and ponies at the track on Sundays, it should be legal to buy a kid a pair of shoes.

"If I can go to the race track and blow a week's pay," the Melrose Republican said, "I surely ought to be able to buy my kids a pair of sneakers."

But Rep. Thomas D. Lopes disagrees.

"We do not need to commercialize the day of rest — Sunday," the New Bedford Democrat says.

The two viewpoints clashed Tuesday as the Massachusetts House decided to ask voters whether the time had arrived to open liquor and retail stores on Sunday.

The tradition-bound House twice has rejected setting aside the so-called blue laws that prohibit Sunday sales. The regulations date from the 1600s when colonialists imposed restrictions to assure attendance in church.

On a 153-69 vote, the House gave near final approval to a proposal to put a statewide nonbinding referendum on the November ballot.

"You want us to legislate people into church?" asked Robinson. "You're kidding me."

Pressure for opening liquor and retail stores on Sundays has come largely from communities bordering New Hampshire, a state allowing Sunday sales.

Business and labor interests across Massachusetts have lobbied successfully to kill previous moves to open retail outlets on Sundays. Business fears higher costs while labor union worry that Sunday operations would jeopardize a day traditionally reserved for family activities.

The referendum, with additional legislative action, would go on an already crowded November ballot. Referendum questions already facing voters include a proposed ban on handguns, changes in electric rate structures, a ban on nonreturnable bottles and a question on establishment of a public power authority.

One more question may require voters to spend up to 20 minutes in the voting booth, an opponent of Sunday openings argued.

"If we allow this particular matter to be placed on the ballot, it would just add to the confusion," Lopes said.

Faced with twin rejection in June of proposals to legalize Sunday sales, border communities hope favorable sentiment in a referendum can be used to win Sunday sales at a later date.

"The day of rest is pretty well commercialized as it is," said Rep. David J. Swartz, DHaverhill.

Swartz noted that 48 exceptions to the ban on Sunday sales already exist and said allowing Sunday sales would enable businesses in border areas to successfully compete with neighboring New Hampshire.

Democrats will dominate in Bay State unless...

Analysis by J.J. Smith, state columnist

Massachusetts Democrats will continue to control the state legislature for at last the next two years as, once again, the roll-over-play-dead electoral blueprint of the once-proud Grand Old Party leaves huge gaps as regards challengers.

Republican candidates filed nomination papers for less than half the seats in the House of Representatives and the state Senate — with GOP contenders seeking just 17 of the 40 Senate seats and 96 of the 240 up for grabs in the lower chamber.

While there will be a minimum 26 new faces in the 1977-78 Legislature — 24 House, two Senate — members of the GOP appeared to have "dropsy" when it came to picking up nomination papers. This despite that 19 representatives will seek other offices or retire from elective office, and three House seats already are vacant. In the Senate, two incumbents are forsaking reelection to take legislative staff spots at better pay. Thirty-one of the 38 Democratic senators want to return, as do all seven present Republican senators.

In a state where the GOP once was proudly potent, the party's low state of affairs is shocking. Failure to field even token opposition for more than half the state and county seats being filled this year is striking evidence of GOP decadence and decline.

This space has commented in the past on the very real question of how long, given present apathy, the Republican Party of Massachusetts can continue to remain viable. Indeed, the question may well be posed as to whether it is viable even now.

GOP chieftains voice optimism because there are potentially strong candidates fielded in various Congressional races, but, on balance, drawing comfort from that is the purest form of wishful thinking. Numerically there is an improvement over two years ago when only half the Congressional district had Republicans in contention while eight GOP candidates are in the lists for the state's 12 seats in Congress this time.

Republicans also are fielding a candidate against U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, although this appears an excise in futility with even some political pundits having difficulty in remembering the challenger's name.

The continuing tong war between Republican conservatives and liberals in Massachusetts in recent years has been debilitating, devisive and devastating in terms of party harmony. This was highlighted, if that's the proper word, during the last gubernatorial campaign when then-GOP State Chairman Bill Barnstead publicly repudiated Republican Gov. Frank Sergeant in the heat of the campaign.

Barnstead, a maverick with somewhat scrambled political ideas, now wants to unseat U.S. House Majority Leader Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill Jr. in the Eighth District. The Barnstead candidacy has not noticeably disturbed O'Neill or his top aides thus far.

Seemingly, the GOP's greatest political sin comes under the heading "internecine warefare" — as exemplified by that special Barnstead brand of political hari-kari when he publicly sabotaged his party's incumbent governor. In second spot is that old sin "missed opportunities" — races, both legislative and congressional, where the GOP might have had a solid shot with a strong challenger.

With all the bright people in the Republican Party in this state it would appear that someone should be able to come up with a viable plan to put together once again what is a political humpty-dumpty. Instead the situation steadily worsens.

The losers are not the Republicans, either rank and file members or those who would wear that label as an elected official. Rather, the voters of Massachusetts are being short-changed through this denial of an election-day choice in so many vital races.

Mass. Republicans number some 500,000 — surely some among that number would make strong candidates? When a supposedly "major" political party abandons more than half the potential seats in the state Legislature without even token opposition, something is radically wrong.

Schiller resigns from GOP posts

To the Editor:

I have resigned from all officesI hold in the Republican Party organization of Newton, which are first vice president, Republican Women of Newton; second vice president, Newton Republican Club; member, Ward Two Republican Committee and Newton City Committee.

I will change my registration to independent, while remaining active as ever in civic affairs.

My disenchantment with the national level arises from the factional partisanship that appeals to a narrowing reactionary base in the electorate.

On the local level I blame personality cliques fighting for room on a sinking ship.

I want to work for a better school system, lower taxes, and effective municipal services. My time spent working for a moribund party organization could be better spent working in the interests of the people of Newton.

As I leave the Republican party I regret also to say that the party has left me. The party of Lincoln has come to stand for a very narrow band on the political spectrum, far too reactionary. Our leaders, from Ford and Reagan on down, seem to harbor a collective death wish.

While the Democrats may not offer any more palatable alternatives — Carter's reality remains to be seen — I can no longer in good faith defend the factional partisanship that calls itself "Republican."

Statistics from the Newton Election Commission show 17,400 registered Republicans [illegible] a 20-year drop from 41 percent of all voters to a meager 17 percent. Mrs. Schiller believes this is due to self-defeating exclusionary policies and a failure of Party leadership.

I believe in a two-party system, but such a system works best when each party represents a diversity of views.

I fully expect to support and work for Republican candidates in the future. I may support Democrats. I may support alternative candidacies. But at this time reason and conscience oblige me to sever my formal affiliations with the Republica Party of Newton.

Mandell's 'mandate'

To the Editor:

The chairman of the School Committee continually represents that the last School Committee election gave him (and the other School Committeemen on the Voice slate) the mandate to make "fiscal conservatism" the most important matter in Newton today.

Fiscal conservatism is indeed a very critical issue at a time when many of our citizens are having a difficult time making ends meet.

However, let us look at the Metco issue. The Metco program is a well-established program for which we are reimbursed from the state for well over half a million dollars. Because the state is not able to live up to its total funding commitment, we are unfortunately facing a shortfall of approximately $81,000 in anticipated revenue back from the state.

The school superintendent recommended reducing the shortfall by approximately $37,000, leaving approximately $44,000 as the amount now disputed in the total Metco funding. The superintendent felt he could not cut this amount representing vital support services, as it was tantamount to "killing the program."

The chairman and some members of the School Committee (Ash, Delicata, LeConti and Prince) are insisting on "saving" the city $44,000, and that has ended up polarizing a city.

Mandell's virtuous insistence seems inconsistent with his ardent support of a multimillion dollar sports complex for Newton South.

Voice's platform stated that "the School Committee should provide high quality education. . . . within the constraints of a reasonable tax burden." The present School Committee budget does just that. Voice people certainly didn't contemplate the destruction of a worthwhile program over the sum of $44,000 in the name of "fiscal conservatism."

As one of the founders of Voice, I believe that I can speak with some knowledge about the purposes of Voice. The chairman needs to be reminded that part of Voice's platform was "to preserve Newton as a well-managed city whose government is honest, fair, and responsive to all the needs and desires of its citizens."

The mandate, Mr. Mandell, was to be responsive — meaning attending public and informational meetings, not boycotting them or speaking on the behalf of other School Committee members. The mandate was to assess priorities for spending, and just as important assessing the impact of not spending in certain areas.

The mandate was to use good judgment. The mandate was not to use "fiscal conservatism" irresponsibly, or only when it suits your specific purposes.

A little more statesmanship from all parties would go a long way now with less rhetoric about that well-worn cliche "fiscal conservatism."

Cold, hard facts on Metco

To the Editor:

I think it is about time the citizens and taxpayers of Newton understand the cold, hard facts that whether the Metco shortfall is $82,000, or can be reduced to $44,000, the taxpayers will again get "the short end of the stick" from the state, which never seems to keep any promises or commitments it makes.

We were supposed to have a voluntary Metco program with full funding. Is it really voluntary, and where is the full funding?

We were promised much-needed local aid from the new lottery game to relieve the local taxpaeyer's burden. Did the state keep its word?

In the meantime, our state reimbursements are decreasing while the state salaries, including the state representatives, are increasing. How's that for helping the local cities and towns?

Also, what are our local state representatives presently doing to get full funding to cover the Metco shortfall? Nothing. It seems they are more interested in prison reform, gun controls, bottle deposits, no-fault divorce, and now a new one, jury duty reform.

Someone said the the Metco shortfall isn't a tax rate issue, it's a matter of principle. That's political trash, whether it is done in-house or by outsiders. Someone said it is our moral obligation to help the inner city with its problems. They forgot to add "but not at the expense of the Newton taxpayers."

Someone also said we are making a profit on Metco. We should call in the state auditors, and if they can prove we are making money on Metco, the superintendent of schools should be fired for preparing and submitting a padded and possibly fraudulent budget for reimbursement.

My primary and basic concerns are to give the best education possible to all Newton children at the least cost to the taxpayers. I think we should be spending our time, energy and priorities in this area. I do believe in helping children and people from other cities and towns like Boston, but not at the expense of the taxpayers of Newton.

This year's expected tax increase plus revaluation will cause extreme hardships for many taxpayers. Who will help these people pay their tax bills — the mayor, the Board of Aldermen, or the state?

In conclusion, I would like to suggest that Mayor Mann and Joan Saklad, alderman-at-large from Ward 6, volunteer to be cochairmen of a fund-raising drive for the Metco shortfall. They could appoint our four state reps as campaign managers and their slogan could be, "Put your money where your mouth is."

Beckwith found chaos

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Kenneth Hartford this week with a copy sent to the Newton Graphic in response to a letter in the July 15 Newton Graphic.) Dear Mr. Hartford:

A man can't even go to the men's room anymore without being accused by you (VOICE) of interfering with a Newton police officer!

Your recent letter to the editors of our local newspapers accusing me (a peace-loving School Committee member) of such action demonstrates how ridiculous, libelous, and dangerous you and VOICE can be. Bob Haldeman and John Ehrlichman make you and your group look like amateurs, but I must say you keep trying.

There used to be a time in the history of Newton School Committee meetings when a member could peacefully go to the men's room and not return to find chaos and police officers in action' and citizens of Newton being ejected from the auditorium.

Mr. Hartford, I did two things when I returned from the men's room: one, I asked the police officer what was happening, and two, when Mr. Mandell asked if any member objected to his declaring an emergency session, I called out "I do," but was not heard.

Please don't apologize, just let Newton return to being the proud city it used to be.

'Dangers to liberty'

To the Editor:

In a recent letter, Mr. David Lurensky appeared to present himself as one of the founding fathers of Voice. He was not happy with his offspring and offered suggestions for their improvement.

He concluded with a parting admonition from Justice Brandeis, who served on the Supreme Court from 1916 to 1939. Mr. Lurensky proposed that "all of us, including Voice, will best promote the common good by following Justice Brandeis' concept of the rule of reason."

Mr. Lurensky was good enough to advise me that the source the brief quotation was Brandeis' opinion in a 1927 case involving free speech, Whitney v. California. I offer a supplement from a case that came a year later, Olmstead v. U.S. It has long been my favorite, and I now find it more applicable to the local situation. If we are to be influenced by the opinions of Justice Brandeis, which may be a good idea, the more we know the better we can make our own judgment.

Brandeis wrote: "The makers of our Constitution . . . sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone — the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men."

Below that we read: "Experience should teach us tox ur guard to protect liberty when the Government's purposes are beneficent. Men born to freedom are naturally alert to repel invasion of their liberty by evil-minded rulers. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment by men of zeal, well-meaning but without understanding."

Justice Brandeis died in 1941. To apply to our problems today what he said and wrote during a period of public service that lasted over sixty years requires more than casual attention.

Stiller replies to League

(Editor's note: the following letter was sent to Jane Leighton, president of the League of Women Voters of Newton, with a copy to the Newton Graphic.) Dear Mrs. Leighton:

I am in receipt of your letter of July 12, 1976, with regards your commitment to the Metco program, and I share your belief that the Metco program should be supported.

However, I feel that your condemnation of the School Committee is ill-founded and it would be best if your remarks and actions were directed to the state legislators and to the governor whose actions are responsible for the impasse which exists.

It is not the intention of the Newton School Committee to do away with the Metco program. I would tend to agree with you that there is more than $81,000 available not only in the school budget but also in the city budget to pay the shortfall from the state. The significant point is that, as history has long taught us, one cut leads to another and one abuse leads to still more until the brakes are applied.

It is my belief that the Newton School Committee is sending the message back to the state loud and clear that if they wish to support the program then that obligation rests at the state level or else the entire voluntary aspect of the program becomes one of mandatory compliance by the city and at an increased cost to the Newton taxpayers.

In my estimation the League of Women Voters has confused the concept of issues with the plans used to carry out those concepts and, once again, you have fallen into that trap of being so in favor of the concept that you fail to give full credence to how that concept is being implemented.

I disagree completely with your assumption that the Metco funds allocated to indirect services are fallacious. I suggest that you check, as I have, with members of the superintendent's office and of the School Committee and I am sure you will determine that were there no Metco program there would be consolidation of classrooms and the elimination of teaching positions. PD Superintendent Fink himself has stated time and time again that the amount of funding requested from Metco could rationally be defended, and it is strange, at this point, that we are questioning his determination of the funds needed to carry out the Metco program.

In closing, I again suggest you direct the weight and prestige of the League of Women Voters of Newton in decrying the shabby treatment of the Metco program by the state and demand that our legislators, Representatives Harrington, McGrath, Mofenson, and Pines and Senator Backman, utilize their offices in securing the funds necessary from the state.

I recognize that the state has fiscal problems, but so does this city. I, for one, will continue to demand funding for all state-mandated programs. That is my responsibility as an alderman of the city of Newton. Newton...opinion-Stiller...4

Once again, I urge you to put the blame where it belongs — not on the Newton School Committee, not on the Newton Board of Aldermen, but on the lack of commitment of our state legislators and the governor and the Commissioner of Education for failing to properly fund the Metco program.

Robert Stiller
Alderman, Ward 8

Politicians are to blame

As a parent, taxpayer, and lifelong resident of Newton who is faced with a tax bill in excess of $2000 on my modest six-room home, I vigorously protest the attempt to use my tax dollars to make up for the state-created deficit in the Newton Metco program.

We are not all wealthy in Newton. There are many like myself who are being forced out of this city by the free spending that is ever present.

Criticism should be directed at the double-dealing politicians, who have attempted to raid the lottery money as well as gone back on their word to provide full funding for Metco.

The responsible members of the School Committee have attempted to cut costs. For this they have been subjected to the dirty politics of innuendo, disruption of meetings, character assassination, slander, and threats of class-action suits. It would seem that you are a bigot and a racist when you attempt to do the job you were elected for.

My seven-year-old daughter was almost struck by cars twice during the past year, because this city cannot afford to put a policewoman in front of her school! I can only assume that second-class citizens like my family are expendable in the face of Metco.

I would suggest that all those who are so free to spend my tax dollars solicit contributions to the Metco deficit.

To use a very common expression, put your money where your mouth is.

Police role condemned

To the Editor:

People throughout our nation have been shocked in recent times by the revelations of government officials who have used law-enforcement agencies to further their personal political goals.

Though the residents of Newton can readily perceive the ramifications of the preceding tactics, they don't seem able to discern this type of mischief when it happens right under their noses.

What law was Mayor Mann attempting to uphold when he dispatched police personnel to "deliver" school committee members to a special meeting? Why did Police Chief Quinn allow his people to be used in such a fashion by the mayor?

Regardless of one's stand on the funding of Metco, we, the citizens of Newton, must unequivocally halt such shenanigans by members of our local government.

This type of underhandedness, which so recently permeated our national scene, must never again be allowed to spread its venomous tentacles anywhere in our great nation.

Spinal Cord Injury Center headed by Dr. Freed gets $750,000

The New England Regional Spinal Cord Injury Center at University Hospital in Boston, with Dr. Murray M. Freed of Newton as director, has been designated a model demonstration project for regional spinal-cord injury programs throughout the country by the Rehabilitation Services Administration of the United States Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The announcement was made in Washington, D.C., by Sen. Edward W. Brooke, who said University Hospital's unit would be a "unique facility in New England offering those suffering spinal-cord injuries the fastest and best possible care."

The designation, which brings with it an award of $250,000 annually for three years, will enable the Regional Spinal Cord Injury Center to establish a model multidisciplinary treatment program to address the total medical, physical, vocational and emotional needs of the spinal-cord-injured person.

The grant also will help train professionals for spinal-cord-injured persons as well as to provide others in the field and members of Congress with patient-care and cost-effectiveness information.

University Hospital, a major teaching affiliate of Boston University School of Medicine, was the first nonmilitary general hospital in the United States to offer comprehensive treatment for spinal-cord injury. A unit for specialized care was opened in 1955 under the direction of the late Dr. Donald Munro, world pioneer in the care of the spinal-cord-injured.

Dr. Freed, of Newton, chief of rehabilitation medicine at University Hospital, is director of the center. Dr. Freed, who is also professor and chairman of rehabilitation medicine at Boston University School of Medicine, emphasized the total needs of spinal-cord-injured persons, as mandated by the award.

"It's not enough to enable the patient just go out the door of the hospital. He has to function in the community, and for this he needs help in such things as being accepted and getting rid of architectural barriers."

The vocational and academic records of spinal-cord-injured persons are exemplary, Dr. Freed said. "They do excellent work in an appropriate field with an appropriate physical set-up."

A team of hospital specialists aiding in the treatment of spinal-cord-injured patients includes two neurosurgeons, a urologist, general surgeon, neurologist, orthopedist' plastic surgeon, psychiatrist as well as internists with special interests in infectious diseases, pulmonary medicine, vascular disorders and joint diseases. Other health professionals include a rehabilitation nurse, social worker, psychologist, bioengineer, occupational and physical therapists and recreational personnel.

The center will also develop normative and epidemiological data on spinal-cord-injured persons. One aspect of the epidemiological data will be to determine whether spinal-cord-injured persons are affected by certain diseases earlier than the general population.

"As spinal-cord-injured persons approach normal longevity, they are prone to the same diseases that affect the general population — heart attack, cancer and stroke," said Dr. Freed. "We want to learn whether they are subject to diseases earlier because of problems associated with spinal-cord injury."

The normative data will include such information as normal blood pressure for the spinal-cord-injured, which is different from that for the able-bodied population.

The New England Regional Spinal Cord Injury Center will combine its confidential data with those collected at the 10 other model spinal-cord injury centers across the country, Dr. Freed said.

An important part of the comprehensive treatment program, Dr. Freed said, is skilled evacuation from the sites of accidents, which account for most of the 8,000-10,000 injuries annually. Dr. Freed anticipates close cooperation with Linda Leddy, director of the state's Office of Emergency Medical Services, to assure the best methods of evacuation for the spinal-cord-injured.

The center's six-member advisory council, composed of paraplegics and quadriplegics, counsels Dr. Freed on matters related to spinal-cord injury.

Boston Ballet performs on Esplanade Aug. 4-8

The Boston Ballet will present two different programs during its third consecutive summer of free performances on the Esplanade.

The first set of performances, Aug. 4-8, features George Balanchine's "Pas de Deux" from "Stars and Stripes," "Concerto Barocco," and "Valse Fantasie," and William Dollar's "The Duel."

In the spirit of the Bicentennial, the Boston Ballet is performing an excerpt from "Stars and Stripes," a colorful, ebullient ballet full of patriotic exuberance based on marches by John Philip Sousa.

The full ballet was presented last March as part of the Boston Ballet repertory season. In response to the popularity of "Stars and Stripes," the "Liberty Bell and El Capitan" excerpt will be performed on the Esplanade.

"Concerto Barocco," a longstanding favorite with Boston Ballet audiences, was first performed by the company in 1964 at the Boston Arts Festival. An abstract ballet in three movements, "Concerto Barocco" is designed to mirror the rhythms and emotions of the Bach score.

"Valse Fantasie," a classical work, is one of three sections of Balanchine's full ballet "Glinkaiana," choreographed to music by Michael Glinka.

"The Duel," a haunting dramatic work, takes place during the Crusades. The opening scene describes the first encounter between Clorinda, the pagan princess, and Tancred, the Christian warrior. After a passage of time, the two meet in mortal combat. Only after he has wounded her fatally does Tancred discover that his masked assailant is the woman he loves.

The second set of performances, Aug. 11-15, features Boston Ballet artistic Director E. Virginia Williams' "The Green Season," Boston Ballet Resident Choreographer Ron Cunningham's "Tubby the Tuba," "Concerto Barocco" and the Pas de Deux from "Le Corsaire", based on the choreography of Marius Petipa.

substitution of the Land Use Committee report were able to act on the original 52-unit proposal as if it were an amendment to the committee report.

Denial of the 52 units, which came on a 12-11 vote, cleared the way for a vote on the 43 units, which were approved 23-0.

Land Use Committee Chairman Eliot Cohen commented during the proceedings that he doubts that the project will ever be built.

"I'm beginning to find it difficult to believe those who say they'll support low-income housing anywhere else in the city," he added.

Stiller repeats questions to Education Secretary

Ald. Robert Stiller from Ward 8 was one of the strongest speakers at last Wednesday's Education Committee meeting as a Committee of the Whole.

Stiller and other members of the Board repetedly sought from State Secretary of Education Paul Parks an explanation of why Newton suffered so much by the governor's cutback in the state Metco budget, and asked Parks to explain and justify the Metco Central fund and the high cost of busing pupils from Boton.

In a letter to Parks on July 26, Stiller, echoing many statements made by School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell, hoped Parks could convince the Legislature and the governor to restore full funding to the state Metco account.

Stiller's three questions to Parks are as follows:

"1. Inasmuch as 11 percent of the Metco students are educated in Newton, why was the Metco shortfall payment to Newton cut in excess of 30 percent? Of the $250,000 cut by the governor for funding of the Metco program, almost $82,000 was cut from the Newton budget.

"2. Metco Central's budget for 1975-75 totaled $510,000. For each student in the Metco program $170 was paid to Metco Central to fund the bureaucracy which has now grown around this program. How much has the Metco Centarl funding been cut in proportion to the total state shortfall?

"3. Has your office assessed the viability of effecting savings in the busing portion of the Metco program, which now amounts to $586 per pupil, and the savings applied to the shortfall?"

Two visitors left short at Chestnut Hill station

An Oklahoma man had $750 worth of goods stolen from his car and a Weymouth man was robbed of $4 at the Chestnut Hill MBTA station early this week, police reported.

Edwin Helm of Dallas Street, Moore, Okla., returned to his van 11:40 p.m. Monday to find someone had forced open the vent window to gain entrance during the two hours he was gone.

Missing from the van were a spare tire, a stereo amplifier, tuner, and speakers, and a Kowa camera with a total value of over $750.

Jeff Craig of 59 Webb St., Weymouth, was the subject of an unarmed robbery at the station at 7:40 p.m. Sunday.

Craig told police that two men got out of an early Sixties black Oldsmobile and waited until they were alne, when they approached him and demanded his money. He gave them the $4 he had.

Newton Centre scientist studying disorientation and disequilibrium

Gravity keeps us from falling off the earth, but it's not a foolproof guide to distinguishing up from down.

After certain maneuvers, a pilot flying right side up can feel convinced that he is tilted. Other persons suffer from chronic disorientation; they may get dizzy when they stand up, or have trouble walking steadily, especially in the dark.

Since 1963, a team of researchers, led by Prof. Laurence Young of Newton Centre, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has been studying the mechanism and limitations of the system in the inner ear by which we orient ourselves in space.

The work was originally aimed at understanding the role of motion in piloting aircraft and other vehicles, and at developing cheaper and better flight simulators for training pilots.

But it is also leading to medical applications. The researchers are developing a relatively inexpensive set of instruments to help doctors diagnose the causes of dizziness, disequilibrium and related disorders.

The work is being conducted by Prof. Young, and senior research associate Dr. Howard T. Hermann of Newton and several others, all of the Department of Aeronautics and Astronautics. It is sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the National Institute of General Medical Science, and the M.I.T. Health Sciences Fund.

Prof. Laurence Young

The work has included studies of the physics and chemical composition of the semicircular canal in the inner ear, mathematical models of fluid flow in the canal, experiments with goldfish and monkeys, and studies of the ways in which the vestibular system — the system responsible for balance — can be fooled.

Airplane passengers often experience such illusions, Prof. Young said. For example, when an airplane is in a holding pattern over an airport, passengers may feel that the plane isn't turning. Under other circumstances, they may feel that they are turning when they aren't. And in an accelerating airplane on a runway, they may feel that they are being pitched upward before the plane rotates or leaves the ground.

These illusions can be dangerous. For example, a pilot catapulted off an aircraft carrier will feel pitched back; he may assume that he is tilted upward, adjust the controls to straighten out the airplane — and plunge into the ocean.

In fact, Young said, such "orientation errors" have been blamed for 10 percent of U.S. Army helicopter accidents in 1971 and 17 percent of those accidents which were attributed to pilot error.

By studying the illusions and the processes in the inner ear that cause them, Young and his colleagues have made models to predict what forces will cause what illusions. They believe this information will be useful in training pilots.

"The current practice is to teach the pilot to totally ignore his vestibular system, to rely only on the instruments," Prof. Young said. "But in an emergency it's hard to fight nature. I would rather have pilots recognize and understand the illusions."

He also thinks the M.I.T. studies will be useful in devising inexpensive flight simulators. The best simulators now cost millions of dollars. "I think we'll be able to design cheaper and better ones," he said.

But right now, the researchers are concentrating on developing instruments that would help doctors determine whether a patient's disequilibrium is caused by a malfunction in the inner ear, in the transmission of nerve signals from the ear to the central nervous system, or in the central nervous system itself. Dr. Young hopes to begin clinical tests of some of the instruments by the end of the year.

In their series of tests, the patient would sit in a spinning chair, or a chair moving back and forth; have hot or cold air blown in his ear to study pressure changes in the semicircular canal; have a low-level direct current pass through his head to stimulate the nerves leading from the semicircular canal; put his head forward, back and to the side; look at moving stripes, and stand on a posture platform.

In each test, the patient's reaction would be determined by measuring the rapid, involuntary oscillation of the eyeballs that accompanies dizziness. This oscillation, called nystagmus, would be measured by electrodes placed on the head; results would be analyzed by a microprocessor.

The work is being conducted in M.I.T.'s new Biomedical Engineering Center for Clinical Instrumentation, which was set up to develop medical instruments that take advantage of new miniprocessors.

While many of the equilibrium tests are simply improvements of existing tests, the use of microprocessors is new. It provides a reliable and relatively inexpensive method of analyzing nystagmus.

Previous computerized systems have ben limited to large research centers; with the microprocessors, the researchers believe the equipment can be simple and inexpensive enough to be used in small clinics, or even a doctor's office.

Route 9 footbridge scheduled for construction in April '77

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) applauded the recent announcement that a long-awaited pedestrian overpass will come up for contract bidding in October, 1976.

Crossing Route 9 from Meredith Avenue on one side to Circuit Avenue on the other, the walkway will allow adults and schoolchildren living in Newton Upper Falls to walk safely to the Eliot MBTA station and to Newton Highlands.

According to Pines, seven people have been killed in recent years at this high-hazard location and many more face this risk daily.

"I have scaled mountains of red tape and bureaucratic haggling working for the realization of this life-saving overpass," Pines said.

"After community outrage at the situation jelled into an informal proposal for the overpass, the battle began. First came the preparation of the legally required feasibility study. Experts, engineers, and drafters were sought out to assist in the formulation of the plan. Community expectations had to meet the many practical problems.

"Then, after the initial feasibility study group rendered a favorable report, concerned community members had to mount a petition campaign to overcome opposition from adjacent property owners. A public hearing had to be organized and then held where problems and objections, both old and new, were aired. In fact, at each phase of the project, a myriad of new problems arose which had to be solved before the project could continue.

"Now that the 50-unit home for the elderly on Thurston Road is under construction, the prediction made by the independent traffic engineers (who authorized the feasibility report) that the need for the overpass would become more critical when more elderly residents moved into the area is coming true. In fact, the apartments for the elderly will be completed and occupied before the overpass will be ready for use," added Pines.

Construction is now scheduled to begin in April, 1977, with completion projected for October, 1977. The overpass will feature a continuous steel superstructure designed to permit handicapped people to use it and have access to the MBTA. The state Department of Public Works will be responsible for its construction and annual structural maintenance.

Knitting and crocheting (10 a.m.-noon), Mrs. Connie Cassale.

Conversatinal Italian (1-3 p.m.), Francis Argento.

Sunday bus trips are conducted periodically by the Center. Call 527-6770 for information. Sewing and art classes are also available by appointment. If you are interested, please call Mrs. Stetson or Mr. Lohan at the Drop-In Center, 527-6770.

Thanks, Tony

Over 200 people paid tribute Sunday to Irving "Tony" Polen and his wife, Helen, who have just retired as owners of the Newton Dale Pharmacy in West Newton Square after 43 years. Along with this clock with the engraving "from your many West Newton friends" Tony received citations from Myrtle Baptist Church, the state legislature, the City of Newton, and Temple Emanuel. Msgr. John Quirk offered the use of St. Bernard's parish hall for the tribute. (Williams photo)

Mt. Ida campers swim for fibrosis

A swim-along will be held at the Mt. Ida Day Camp in Newton for the benefit of the Massachusetts Cystic Fibrosis Foundation on Thursday, Aug. 5.

The swim-alongis under the direction of Herbert Callahan, director of Mt. Ida Day Camp and Richard Fletcher, pool director. Also assisting will be pool staff and counselors.

Camp Director Callahan said, "there will be approximately 200 campers participating. Our campers have been encouraged to participate in the swim-along because the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is a good cause and we believe in children helping other less fortunate children."

The Cystic Fibrosis Swim-Along involves campers recruiting sponsors, who will pledge 25 cents per lap. The Swim-Along is one of 27 held at day camps and recreational facilities throughout Boston and Massachusetts.

Proceeds from the swim-along will be used for research of cystic fibrosis, an incurable lung disease affecting children.

s . .

In August, an awards ceremony will be held at Mt. Ida Day Camp to give recognition to the campers who participate in the swim-along.

Community Schools need teachers

The Newton Community Schools are now planning programs for the fall semester. The Community Schools coordinators with their local committees will be selecting leaders for various activities among those who wish to serve their neighborhoods.

If you have special knowledge or a skill that you can teach and would like to share with people in your community, please write to the Newton Community Schools office at City Hall, telling of your interest and experience. Be sure to include your phone number. You will be contacted.

The Newton Community Schools program serves all citizens of Newton. The program is designed to extend the traditional role of the neighborhood school into that of a community center for all ages. It reflects the needs and interests of the entire neighborhood of each individual school.

Five Newton students working and learning with Rep. Lois Pines

Five high school and college students from Newton are serving as members of State Rep. Lois Pines' staff this summer.

"Since the state provides me no funds for a paid staff, I am delighted by the assistance of these talented young people," Pines said. "They are being given an opportunity to gain firsthand experience in the workings of state government and to acquire the skills they have been learning in school, and in addition, they greatly expand the potential of my office by supplying a much-needed source of manpower."

The Newton volunteers are Howard Levin of Newton Centre, a second-year student at Duke University Law Echool; Barbara Fischbein of Newton Centre, a Harvard College freshman; Stephen Sepinuck of Waban, a Newton North High senior; Ellen Freedman of Waban, a Newton South High senior; and Wendy Silverman of Newton Centre, a Newton North High senior. Five others from other communities are also assigned to Pines' office.

The students are working on projects which include investigating ways to encourage the expansion of business in the Commonwealth, a restructuring of the unemployment compensation system in Massachusetts, assisting the Asbestos Commission (chaired by Pines) by investigating the cancer-causing effects of asbestos in public buildings, the federal takeover of public welfare, and many issues pertaining to the environment, women's rights and public safety.

"These students provide the assistance which enables me to monitor current legislation and plan for the new session of the legislature. They are an indispensable source of staff support, and their efforts will result in better representation for our community," Pines commented.

School teaching how to be a parent

What red-blooded male adolescent wants to learn about sissy stuff — "child-raising?"

For adolescent girls, lessons in "parenting" may seem more palatable. But that doesn't make such courses a hit with all the teen-age females.

Whether they like it or not, however, more and more students in public schools are getting doses of "parenting" education: how to be a good Dad, how to be a good Mom.

Family break-ups, unsettled children who grow up to be unsettled adults, heartbreak, dents to the psyche and other bad scenes result from parenthood without preparation.

Authorities at the U.S. Office of Education believe the next generation of parents will do a better job if given basic training in how to be a parent.

The newest trends in education go beyond babysitting rituals and help the (emerging?) adults to learn about family survival — when baby makes "three".

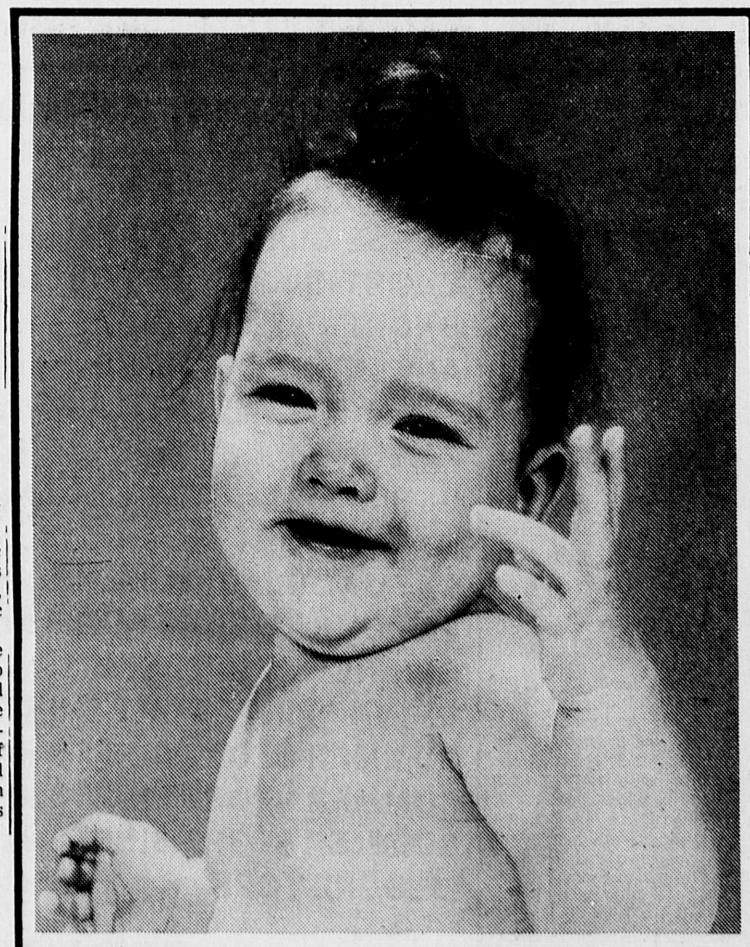

The courses use multi-media presentations and go all out to hold the adolescent's attention. No two courses are alike in every detail and some incorporate home-based programs, too.

"The Growing Child" curriculum in the Central Susquehanna, Pa., school system holds student interest with such titles as "Babies as Small Barbarians" and "Some Baby Stole My Wife."

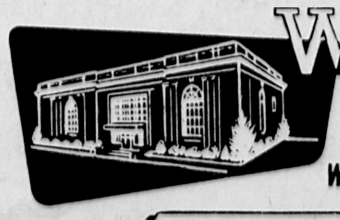

The Education Commission of the States is out with a report on policies to foster the role of the family in child development.

A curriculum sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education is helping many thousands of teen-agers to understand child-raising.

Men's fall fashions will be versatile

There's no single "in" look for men's fall and winter fashions, was the consensus at a recent Men's Fashion Association of America meeting held in Pennsylvania.

Rather than a structured set of "do's and don'ts", men and boys will be free to mix and match, coordinate and separate to their heart's content.

For the past three years, men of all ages have chosen conservative three piece suits as well as the ever popular blazer and slacks accessorized with a matching or contrasting sweater topping a print shirt. It appears that the vest remains important in both plain and reversible stylings.

Versatility is what it's all about — as seen in suits ranging from dressy town models to tweedy "country look" town suits in solid colors, tweeds, stripes, herringbones, checks and plaids with fabric options including denim, corduroy, worsted flannels, soft wool flannels and many others.

Lester Frankenstein, president of Michaels Stern & Company, maintains that men have three basic styles to choose from in formulating a suit wardrobe.

"The three suit styles today are traditional or natural shoulder, contemporary or gentleman's fashion, and international or forward fashion. Each has its own special characteristics, but differences in shoulder treatment are critical to each look.

"Natural shoulder clothing is called Ivy League, school boy, Eastern style and even 'meat ball' clothing by some. Whatever you call it, it's conservative. Shoulders are smoothly rounded with just enough padding to maintain shape and hide the bones. The impression is both scholarly and businesslike. Pants are straight-legged and center vent is modest.

"The majority of men today, however, "said Frankenstein, "wear suits styled with a classic shoulder, having just a bit more padding and forward, but not exaggerated pitch. This is the classic approach in dressing. There is usually just slightly more of a slimming effect in waist and chest and often a gently flared slack. Suits and sport coats may have double vents and treatments such as fancy or slanted pockets, stitching or special lapels."

The international style calls for suits to feature higher, more heavily padded shoulders with a forward pitch and roping at the sleeve head. There is also more pronounced slimming of chest and waistline and trousers tend to have more flare. There are also more embellishments such as slanted or open pockets, double breasting, lapels with notches and more double needle stitching.

In the sweater market, texture and detail, stripes and novelty effects are key characteristics to watch ... and designers are choosing yarns which lend themselves to surface interest, heather looks, and ombre shading. Outstanding styles include classic pullovers, collared sweater shirts, and wrap-styled sweaters. Stripes are the headliners this season, and novelty sweaters with three-dimensional surface interest are expected to be best sellers.

Leisure suits will continue to make a strong statement this fall season even though we hear from certain areas that manufacturers would like to soft pedal the style. Designers would prefer that men express a more open attitude toward clothing and not lock themselves into just one look.

As one manufacturer said, "The trick in initiating new fashion looks for men is helping timid fellows feel brave and, most of all, safe. That's why manufacturers are now developing interrelated sportswear that looks good no matter how mixed. A division of Munsingwear, Inc. introduced its Grand Slam Ltd. Collection ... two totally distinct lines for fall — one woven, and the other knitted. Each group has separates which combine for a vested, suited look. The collection includes jackets, slacks, sweaters and shirts — all geared for the easy life. Checks mix with stripes mix with neat geometrics mix with solids mix with painterly patterns. Also," he continued, flannel goes with corduroy and worsted goes with tweed.

"The best part of it all is that all the items within each group are scaled and colored to interchange with each other. A man can experiment with his wardrobe without biting his nails."

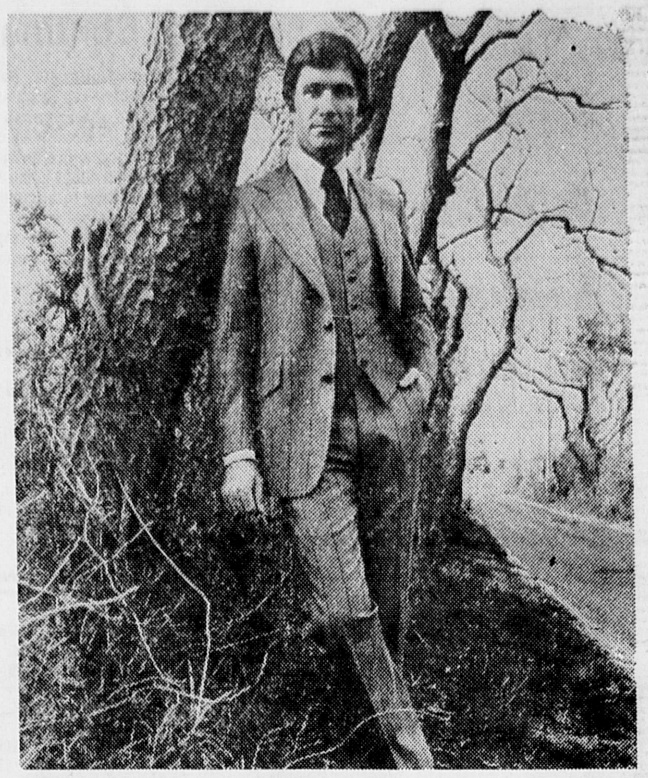

The swagger trench coat models will again dominate in rainwear but sprinkled with new treatments in poplins, polished cottons, coated fabrics and vinyls.

Velvets will add a new look of luxury to fall and winter fashions in two-and three-piece suits, jackets and easy suits for dress-up wear for men and boys.

Super soft fabrics will be used in loungewear—jumpsuits, caftans and robes styled strictly for indoor at-home relaxing.

Sports outerwear will be varied in lengths from the blouson and bomber waist-lengths to finger-tip pea coats and knee-length stadium coats, with the newest trend for men in big overshirts.

Things are really looking up! Not only will men look good for fall and winter, but they'll feel especially relaxed and comfortable with their well-chosen clothes.

The natural shoulder, vested, hacking suit has some tell-tale English accents. Broad, rolled, wind-tabbed lapels, flapped hacking pockets, suede elbow patches, leather buttons and side vents. By J. P. Stevens & Co.

Across the kitchen counter

Hooray! Summer's marvelous melons are here! You can now enjoy cantaloupe, honeydew and watermelon to your heart's delight! Revel in the knowledge that melons are low in calories and rich in vitamins A and C - they are the easiest of all desserts to serve on a hot day.

Select a cantaloupe with no trace of stem but with a pronounced cavity where it was pulled from the vine. Creamy yellow color and velvety surface are signs of ripeness in a honeydew, but color can vary with the melon's origin.

Mark Twain once wrote about the watermelon, "It is chief of this world's luxuries. When one has tasted it, he knows what angels eat. It was not a southern watermelon that Eve took; we know because she repented."

Fresh watermelon boat filled with turkey salad makes spectacular summer party fare. Great for a buffet, serve it with a vegetable relish dish, assorted cheese and hot rolls.

The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association has a few buying tips for us.

The sugar content of a watermelon depends largely on whether it was picked when mature, for this is one of those fruits which should have attained complete sweetness by the time it is harvested. A high quality melon will be firm and shapely, with a sort of velvety bloom over its surface. The side which touched the ground as it ripened will be a yellowish color., "Thumping" a watermelon tells us very little about its eating qualities, say the experts.

Not only is the flesh of the watermelon most delectable, but the shell itself can be fashioned into a scalloped "boat" from which to serve a salad or fruit cup. When empty, after the meal, the shell can be rescued and trimmed into oblongs for the ever-popular pickled watermelon rind.

Once purchased, handle melons with care–they're perishable. If the melon is not quite ripe, keep it at room temperature for a day or two before refrigerating. If ripe, place in a plastic bag or wrap to keep the flavor in the melon and out of the other foods. Do not store cantaloupes near lettuce, carrots, celery or broccoli.

Head your weekly shopping list with melons, they brighten hot summer days!

FRESH WATERMELON BOAT WITH TURKEY SALAD

2 quarts cooked turkey, cut in large chunks
4 cups seedless green grapes
3 cups diagonally sliced celery
1 cup French dressing
4 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
Two-thirds cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Watermelon balls

In large bowl, combine turkey, grapes and celery. With fork or wire whisk, mix French dressing, lemon juice, mayonnaise, salt and pepper until well blended. Add dressing to turkey mixture; toss lightly to moisten ingredients. Cover; chill until ready to serve. Spoon into Scalloped Watermelon Boat along with watermelon balls cut from boat. Serves 12.

SCALLOPED WATERMELON BOAT

Cut watermelon in half lengthwise 1 inch above the center. Remove pink fruit with melon ball cutter or ½ teaspoon measuring spoon. Remove seeds. Scrape out remaining fruit and drain well. Measure around rim to decide how wide to make scallops. If it measures 45 inches, there is room of 15 3-inch scallops or 30 ½-inch scallops. Cut a cardboard pattern the desired with of the scallops at the bottom edge and trace pattern with knife tip around outside edge of melon. Cut with small sharp knife. Chill melon bowl until ready to fill with melon balls and turkey salad.

WATERMELON RIND PICKLE

2½ pounds prepared watermelon rind
Water to cover
1½ teaspoons salt
4 teaspoons alum
5 cups sugar
2½ cups cider vinegar
2 cinnamon sticks, 2 inches long
2 teaspoons whole cloves
½ teaspoon cracked whole ginger

To prepare rind, cut off the discard green skin of rind; trim off red pulp except for thin pink line left for appearance. Cut rind into 1-inch squres or diamonds. Place rind in enamel or stainless steel kettle. Add water to cover and salt. Bring to boiling point; reduce heat and simmer only until rind can be pierced with a fork, about 15 minutes. Add alum; cool; cover and let stand overnight. Next day, turn rind into colander or large sieve; rinse well under running water. Drain. Return rind to kettle. Add sugar, vinegar and cinnamon. Tie cloves and ginger in cheesecloth bag and add. Bring to boiling point, stirring until sugar dissolves. DO NOT BOIL. 1 Remove kettle from heat; cool. Cover and let stand overnight. On 5th day, heat rind in syrup but DO NOT BOIL. Remove and discard spice bag. Drain off syrup to another saucepan. Bring to boil. Fill hot sterilized jars with hot rind, then fill to ⅛-inch from top with boiling syrup; seal. Store jars in cool, dry place about 1 month before using. Makes 3 1-pint jars.

UPSIDE DOWN CANTALOUPE CAKE

¾ cup margarine, divided
½ cup packed light brown sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2 cups cantaloupe balls
½ cup granulated sugar
1½ cups sifted all purpose flour
1 egg
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk

Melt ¼ cup butter in 8x8x2-inch square pan. Sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon. Arrange melon balls, round side down, over bottom of pan, set aside. Cream remaining ½ cup margarine with granulated sugar; beat in egg. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Blend into creamed mixture alternately with milk. Turn into pan over melon balls; spread evenly. Bake in 350 degree oven for 45 to 60 minutes until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Let stand for 5 minutes; invert and turn out of pan. Serve warm, with whipped cream or ice cream. Makes 8 to 12 servings.

PICKLED CANTALOUPE

1 cup water
1 cup sugar
¼ cup white vinegar
3 sticks cinnamon
14 whole cloves
4 cups fresh cantaloupe pared, sliced and cut into wedges

Combine water, sugar, vinegar, cinnamon and cloves in a saucepan. Simmer, uncovered, about 5 minutes. Add cantaloupe and heat to boiling. Cool. Chill at least 1 day before serving. Makes about 1 quart. Serve with poultry or meat.

HONEYDEW SURPRISE

1 pkg. lime gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 cup (canned) chunk style pineapple, drained
1 cup mandarin oranges
1 medium honeydew melon
Cottage cheese
Greens
French dressing

When dissolved gelatin is cold and slightly thickened, add pineapple and mandarin orange slices. Peel whole melon. Cut a slice from one end and remove seeds. Fill center with thickened fruit gelatin. Wrap in transparent wrap and refrigerate until gelatin is firm. When ready to serve, slice; place each slice on a bed of greens and spoon cottage cheese around edge of melon. Serve with French dressing.

Information please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Ma. 02026.

We're most grateful to Sarah Feinstein of E. Greenwich, R. I. who again shares her very special recipes. Melt-Away Bars are a shortbread type cookie that tastes great when; you're drinking icy cold milk. Her recipe for Choco-Dot-Pumpkin Cake came from the Buono Appetit Restaurant in Providence where homemade pastries are the specialty of the house. Thank you, Sarah!

MELT-AWAY BARS

1 egg, separated
2 cups all purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1 cup margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped walnuts
Colored sugar

Combine in mixer bowl, egg yolk and remaining ingredients except nuts and sugar. Blend well, Stir in ½ cup nuts. Spread in ungreased 15x10-inch jelly roll pan. Beat egg white till frothy; spread over mixture. Sprinkle with remaining nuts and colored sugar. Bake at 350 degrees 25-30 minutes. Cool slightly and cut into bars. Yield: 40 bars.

CHOCO-DOT PUMPKIN CAKE

2 cups all purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
¼ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon ground cloves
1½ cups sugar
4 eggs
1 can (1 lb.) pumpkin (2 cups)
1 cup vegetable oil
1 cup Kellogg's All Bran Cereal
1 cup (6 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 cup coarsely chopped nuts

Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, spices and sugar. Set aside. In a large mixing bowl, beat eggs until foamy. Add pumpkin, vegetable oil and all bran; mix well. Add sifted dry ingredients mixing only until combined. Stir in chocolate pieces and nuts. Spread evenly in ungreased 10x4-inch tube pan. Bake until wooden pick comes clean. Cool completely before removing from pan.

Question: My friends call me the "Dump-cook" because I like uncomplicated recipes which call for dumping all the ingredients into a pot and just letting it all cook by itself with very little assistance from me. It's true – I don't care for cooking and make no bones about it, so please keep me in mind whenever you come across a "dumping" sort of recipe.

Mrs. F. T., W. Roxbury

Answer: Came across a recipe you may want to try when you're in the mood to do some "dumping":

CATCHALL CASSEROLE

1½ pounds lean ground beef
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon instant chopped onion
3 medium potatoes, pared and thinly sliced 1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 can (7 oz.) whole kernal corn, drained
1 can (8½ oz.) diagonal cut green beans, drained
1 can (10½ oz.) condensed vegetable beef soup

Crumble ground beef on the bottom of a 7½ x 11½ inch baking dish. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and instant chopped onion. Layer with potatoes, corn and beans. Top with the soups. Cover loosely with foil and bake in pre-heated 350 degree oven for 1 hour. Uncover and bake 30 additional minutes. Serves 4-6.

Question: I hope you can help me. My husband takes his lunch every day and I've noticed lately that when I make a date and nut bread and spread it with cream cheese or a slice of cheddar cheese, he prefers it to cake or cookies; therefore, I'm looking for recipes of this nature. I also find that wrapping the bread, once out, in foil keeps it fresh in the refrigerator for as long as one week. I enjoy your columns and will look forward to seeing a new bread-type recipe. Thanks. Mrs. A. T.; Westwood

Answer: I think you will want to add this quick bread to your date and nut bread to further your husband's lunch time enjoyment.

QUICK ORANGE PEANUT BUTTER BREAD

1 medium orange unpeeled, cut in bite-size pieces+
One-third cup peanut butter
2 tablespoons butter or margarine softened
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup fresh squeezed orange juice
1 egg, beaten
½ cup chopped salted peanuts
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt

In electric blender, blend orange pieces to yield two-third cup puree. In large bowl, combine peanut butter and butter (or margarine). Stir in brown sugar, orange puree and juice, egg and peanuts. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Add to orange mixture, stirring until just blended. Pour into greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Bake at 300 degrees for 1 hour or until toothpick inserted in center center comes out clean. Cool for 10 minutes. Remove from pan; cool on wire rack. Makes one loaf.

+Cut orange in half lengthwise and with shallow "V", shape cut remove white center core. Cut in bite-size pieces.

Mrs. M. L., Dedham, shares with us what she calls her "summer standby", a refreshing mold made with just two ingredients.

RUBY BORSCHT MOLD

1 quart bottle borscht
2 pkgs. lemon jello

Dissolve jello in boiling borscht. Pour into mold. Chill until set. Unmold and serve with sour cream and scallions. Dressing may be made by grating a cucumber into a pint of sour cream.

Saar begins as principal of temple religious school

Temple Sinai of Brookline has announced the appointment of Shalom Saar, teacher of American and Middle Eastern Jewish studies and doctoral candidate at the Harvard University School of Education, as principal of the Temple Sinai Religious School.

Saar was graduated from the Harvard School of Education where he specialized in school administration and planning. He received his certificate in Jewish education from Gratz College in Philadelphia, his B.A. from Swarthmore College, and his teaching diploma from the Governmental Institute for Naval Studies in Tel Aviv, Israel.

Saar has taught American and Middle Eastern Jewish studies at Temple Emeth in Newton, and at Jewish and public schools in Swarthmore, Havertown and Springfield, Pa.

Born in Tripoli in 1945, Saar studied in Israeli schools, was a deck supervisor and navigator in the Israeli Navy, assistant director of the Mitzanim School of Maritime Studies in 1969, and came to the United States in 1970.

Temple Sinai Rabbi Frank M. Waldorf and President Benjamin Goldfarb said Saar will expand courses of instruction at the religious school and augment innovative teaching methods in the study of Hebrew, Bible, Jewish history and culture.

Shalom Saar

More than 100 students from Newton and others from Brookline and Brighton will attend the temple school this year. Classes are held Tuesday and Thursday afternoons and on Sunday morning. For information on school registration, the public may contact Principal Saar or Rabbi Waldorf at Temple Sinai, 50 Sewall Ave., Brookline, 277-5888.

Weddings

Susan and Roger Horn will live in New York City

Anthony's Pier 4 was the setting June 27 for the marriage of Susan Robin Grossman to Roger William Horn. Rabbi Benjamin Rudavsky officated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Grossman of Newton Highlands. Mr. Horn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Horn of Bergenfield, N.J.

Robin Gluck, a friend of the bride's, was the maid of honor. Ellen Moskovitz of West Hartford, Conn., was a bridesmaid.

Russell Horn of Bergenfield was the best man. Ushers were Randy Grossman of Newton, Ronald Elman of Stanford' Conn., Richard Cavicchio of Marlboro; and Henri Douvry of New Milford, N.J.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Bridgeport in Connecticut and is an assistant editor. Mr. Horn graduated from the University of Bridgeport and is an accountant.

After a reception at Pier 4, the couple left on a wedding trip to Greece and the Greek Islands. They will live in New York City.

Newton woman will chair Hadassah event

The Boston Chapter of Hadassah has named Mrs. Boris Novak, Newton Highlands the 1976 Donor Bruncheon chairman. This year's "Golden Jubilee" celebrating the 50th annual major fundraising event of the Boston Chapter, will be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton-Boston Hotel, Prudential Center Nov. 22. Over 1000 members and guests are expected to attend.

The granddaughter of the late Rabbi Morris Greenberg, of Temple B'nai Israel, Willimantic, Conn., Marcia Novak was an active member in United Synagogue Youth (USY) during her teenage years and later served as president of the Williantic Chapter and regional board.

She visited Israel in 1959 on a USY Scholarship Award.

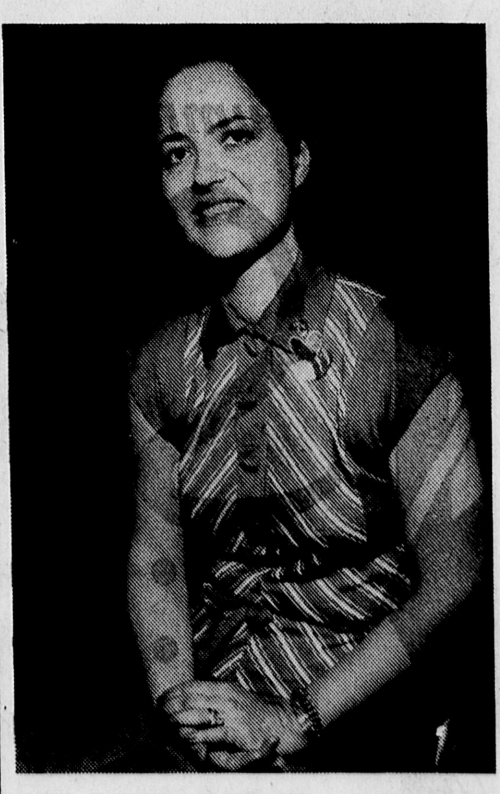

A graduate of the University of Connecticut and Eastern Connecticut College with a bachelor of arts degree, Mrs. Novak received her masters in education from Boston University and has taught in the school system of Norwood and Newton, currently teaching at the Beth Elohim Nursery School in Wellesley.

A three-generation life member of the Boston Chapter of Hadassah, Mrs. Novak is a board member of the Eleanor Roosevelt Group and served last year as one of its vice presidents, programming chairman and co-chairman of the Donor Bruncheon. She has also served in past years as bulletin editor, subscribers and Hadassah supplies chairman.

An active member of the Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel, Newton and its Havarah Steering Committee, she was a past co-president with her husband of the Young Marrieds Study Group of the Temple.

Mrs. Novak will spearhead efforts with Special Gifts Chairman Mrs. Burton Katz, Newton Centre, for a kickoff party and luncheon for special givers to the Hadassah Medical Organization to be launched Monday, Aug. 2, at the summer estate of Mrs. Harry N. Gorin, Marblehead. Mrs. Max N. Matzkin, national president of Hadassah, will be the featured speaker of the afternoon highlighting the accomplishments of the largest women's zionist organization in the United States and the continuing need of multimillions of dollars to continue its life-saving work in Israel through its network of hospitals and medical services.

Over 1000 invitations were mailed this week to special donors, inviting them to attend the first of a series of fundraising events celebrating the "Golden Jubilee" of the Boston Chapter of Hadassah's HMO Program.

Mishkan Tefila welcomes Rabbi Richard M. Yellin

Rabbi Richard M. Yellin

The congregation of Temple Mishkan Tefila of Newton welcomes Rabbi Richard M. Yellin as its new spiritual leader.

Rabbi Yellin has been selected to succeed Rabbi Israel J. Kazis who has served Temple Mishkan Tefila for the past thirty years and now becomes rabbi emeritus.

Rabbi Yellin is a graduate of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. He earned a B.S. degree from Columbia University and studied at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem at the Graduate School of Judaica. He has served as a chaplain in the United States Army and has been the associate rabbi of Adas Israel Congregation of Washington, D.C., since 1971.

While in Washington, Rabbi Yellin's organizational and communical activities included vicepresident of community relations Washington Men's ORT; secretary of the Metropolitan Ecumenical Training Center; board member of the Jewish Council on Aging of Greater Washington; board member of M.I.N.D. Inc., halfway house for mental illness; rabbinic advisor, Jewish Marriage Experience of Greater Washington; task force of institutional ministries, Council of Churches, Washington, D.C.; Rabbinical Assembly Representative: Commission on Jewish Chaplaincy, National Jewish Welfare Board; spiritual advisor, Seaboard Region, National Federation of Men's Clubs.

Rabbi Yellin has written several articles for Jewish publication.

He has also been invited to participate in the National Federation of Jewish Men's Clubs' convention, where he will give an address entitled "1776 — The Past — Jewish Creativity as a Force."

Rabbi Yellin, 33, was born in Philadelphia, Pa. He and his wife Judity (Lipton) are the parents of four daughters, Aliza, Ariel, Devora Ami and Rachel.

Family Counseling has infertility program

While society is presently leaning toward measures to stem our growing population, the infertile segment of the society has been overlooked and pushed aside.

Many couples want very much to have a child of their own, have tried over a period of time, and have been unsuccessful.

Now through Family Counseling Service (Region West) at 74 Walnut Park, Newton, these people have a place to share their feelings and experiences and to understand and deal better with their personal "crisis of infertility."

Ellen Bresnick, ACSW, will be facilitating groups for couples or women frustrated in their efforts to reproduce. Mrs. Bresnick presented her basic working paper, "The Crisis of Infertility," to the National Conference on Women and Health held last year at Harvard University. In addition, her ideas are [illegible]ed in the revised edition of [illegible]r Bodies, Ourselves."

The infertility program at Family Counseling Service will be under the guidance of a professional advisory committee. Members of the committee are Ann Bruhn, M.Ed., director of social services, Leonard Morse Hospital; Dr. Sumner Gochberg, Beth Israel and Boston Lying-In Hospitals; Dr. Joel Rankin, Framingham Union Hospital; Ann Schwartz, ACSW, director of social services, Waltham Hospital; Suzanne Slotnick, R.N., director of continuing care, Glover Memorial Hospital; Dr. John Yeransian, Newton-Wellesley Hospital; Robert B. Hill, ACSW, executive director, and Ruth Pike, ACSW, director of professional services of Family Counseling Service (Region West).

A brief description of the program is available to Ob-Gyn professionals. Anyone, professional or lay person, is invited to contact Mrs. Bresnick at 965-6200 for more information.

Pierson letter—and social studies without regard for the impact of this reduction on program development in elementary schools and the junior high schools, three of which have lost, at the same time, assistant principal positions.

" — eliminating and then restoring the position of English Coordinator. This harrassment contributed to the sense in the school system and the community that city-wide coordination is not valued.

" — restoring the science consultant on the basis of phone calls and popular endorsement rather than on an examination of staffing needs.

" — frequently expressing mistrust of administrators.

"Perhaps the most confusing of these actions was the restoration of the science consultant. Clearly the loss of this individual and the position would have limited our science program, as the loss of assistant math and social studies coordinators has limited our efforts in these areas.

"Yet the School Committee's choice to restore one of these positions, because of the many phone calls and other forms of support, indicated clearly that the continuation of coordinator positions is dependent upon demonstrations of popularity rather than upon the superintendent's evaluation of the need for the role.

"Unfortunately, coordinators cannot always take popular positions. In my own case, if my continuation were to be a function of how many people would rally to my support at budget time or how vigorously the superintendent could defend my position, then I would feel my authority to confront people and issues — a vital part of my work — severely undermined.

"The irony of all this is that by diminishing the coordinators' role, the School Committee is diminishing its own capacity to influence teaching and program.

"Supervision, done properly, is a complex set of procedures requiring adequate staff and supporting funds for materials and workshops. There is no less expensive alternative. Anyone who thinks teacher performance is improved by administrative fiat knows neither the research nor the classroom.

"Thus, with the elimination of assistant coordinator positions in math and social studies; with the reduction of funds for summer workshops, projects and development, and consultant funds; and with the addition of many of the federal project coordinator's responsibilities to those of the district coordinator's, the School Committee has reduced the system's capacity to develop new programs, to supervise guidelines across the city, and to respond to an increasingly tenured faculty's need for professional training and growth.

"The past commitment of Newton to these very areas has distinguished it from other, less ambitious systems.

"The removing or limiting of crucial elements in the present supervisory structure threatens to create a system of either mindless autonomy or mindless uniformity.

"In addition to these substantive modifications, I have found, as have others, the tactics and strategies of some School Committee members counterproductive and divisive.

"For instance, when a School Committee member, discussing "our school budget" in the local press offers the following misinformation — 'school performance in terms of reading, verbal and mathematic skills have been dropping steadily' and that the response of the educational establishment has been 'to make the tests easier' — his intent can only have been to create suspicion and mistrust for the institutions he has been elected to oversee.

"When the superintendent is conspicuously ignored during discussion, when several members reveal their positions and ideas only through votes to cut budget and reject programs, then I think many of us who live in Newton and who have children in the schools must question the motives of some of the individuals elected to represent our interests.

"I have enjoyed my four years in Newton immensely, and am grateful for the opportunity to a have worked with a gifted superintendent and a highly competent staff. Though no longer an employee of the system, I will remain an intensely interested observer of future actions which affect the quality of education here," Pierson concluded.

Two students play in 'Mama'

Nina Gleekman of 35 Rangeley Rd., West Newton, and Joanie Sudhalter of West cast Newton have been in the Emerson College "Youtheatre" production of "I Remember Mama" to be presented the week of Aug. 9.

Nina, a junior at Newton North High, is in her first year at Emerson with the Summer Youtheatre Program as a part-time student. She will be playing the part of Aunt Jenny.

Joanie, a sophomore at Newton North, is also attending Emerson for her first time. She will be playing the parts of Aunt Sigrid and Dorothy Schiller.

A friendly welcome awaits visitors to Holland

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (UPI) — There's an old Dutch boast that God made the world, but the Dutch created Holland.

And probably only the dogged Dutch could have done it. For almost one-half of this country has been created by land reclaimed from the sea over the past 700 years. It is now about twice the size of New Jersey and still growing.

In addition, more than half of its nearly 16,000 square miles is below sea level. For example, the Schipol international airport outside Amsterdam, one of the most modern and efficient in Europe, was built on the site of a drained lake and is 13 feet below sea level.

But nonswimmers need have no fear. Mighty dikes hold back the North Sea, and canals, dams and pumps prevent flooding in the polders and other reclaimed regions in the Netherlands, more commonly known as Holland after its two most densely populated provinces.

Hundreds of canals — which also play a major role in commerce and transportation — lace the pancake-flat countryside decorated with lush farmlands and vast carpets of multicolored flowers, including the famed Dutch tulips.

Dotting the landscape, like sentinels on guard, are old windmills which once provided much of the power needed to grind grain, pump water, etc. Some still are in service — you can hear the vanes whistle in the wind — but electric power is more common now and many of the old windmills have been converted into homes.

There also are small towns and villages where men, women and children still wear the traditional wooden shoes, winged lace caps, wide pantaloons and long aproned dresses.

The only windmills and wooden shoes Americans will find in Amsterdam — where most begin their visit — are in souvenir shops. But Amsterdam — which celebrated its 700th anniversary last year — has about 100 canals and numerous other attractions, old and new.

The best way to start sightseeing is by a glass-roofed canal boat. We began our tour from the landing stage of the Amsterdam Hilton where our party of American journalists were guests of Hilton International and the Netherlands National Tourist Office.

We glided under countless bridges in the older section of the city, past narrow cobblestoned streets and rows of attached 17th century gabled homes once owned by aristocrats and wealthy merchants. When we remarked on the narrowness of the houses, our guide explained that it was because buildings were taxed according to their frontage in olden days.

There are numerous guided bus tours available also. Or you can go on your own — get a good map — by public bus or trolley. Taxis are reasonable and metered and the tip is included in the fare.

Getting around should pose no difficulties — the Dutch are friendly and courteous and almost everybody speaks some English.

Don't miss the Rijksmuseum with its priceless collections of the works of Rembrandt, including the Night Watch, and other Dutch and foreign masters as well as interesting silver and ceramics exhibits. It's only a short walk to Rembrandt's home, housing many of his sketches and etchings, which is open to the public.

Want more? There's the new Vincent Van Gogh Museum, with a tremendous collection of paintings, sketches and other memorabilia of the famed 19th century artist and the works of his contemporaries; and the Municipal Museum with its displays of Matisse, Chagall, Picasso and other modern painters.

Other attractions include the Royal Palace built in the mid-1600s; the Oude Kirk (Old Church) consecreated in 1306; the 15th century Nieuwe Kirk (New Church); and the Portuguese Synagogue, which dates back to the 17th century.

A place of pilgrimage for many tourists is the Anne Frank House, where the young Jewish girl and her family hid out from the Nazis for two years and where she wrote the diary which later was to stir the world. It's a moving experience. Pictures she clipped from movie and other magazines are still on the wall of her room.

There are guided tours also to diamond workshops — Amsterdam is the world's biggest diamond-cutting center — and to the Heineken Brewery.

No guide is necessary to visit Amsterdam's red light district, around the Zeekijk. Just ask the first Dutchman you see — prostitution is legal here and the play-for-pay girls display their wares openly behind windows marked with red lights. The porno shows and shops are centered here, too.

Americans need only a valid passport to enter the Netherlands. The Dutch guilder or florin is worth about 40 cents U.S.

Gross national product slowly inches up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's economy expanded only 4.4 per cent in the second quarter, less than half the growth rate of the first quarter, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the "real" Gross National Product—the nation's total output of goods and services stripped of inflation—rose $13.4 billion between April and June. According to a revised estimate, the GNP soared 9.2 per cent in the first quarter.

At the same time, the department reported that the inflation rate, as measured by the GNP implicit price deflator, grew from 4.3 per cent in the first quarter to 5 per cent in the second.

The department also said personal income—all income received by all Americans—advanced only 0.4 per cent in June, the smallest one-month increase in the past five months.

The moderate second quarter rise marks the fifth consecutive quarterly rise in the "real" GNP since the nation began pulling out of the recession last spring.

The Commerce Department said the real GNP now stands at $1.259 trillion, 1.4 per cent above the $1.243 trillion mark which was recorded in the fourth quarter of 1973 before the economic downturn began.

Government economists did not find the slowdown in the nation's growth rate particularly distressing. Today's report is just a preliminary GNP assesement and most felt that the revised figures will look much better when more data is available.

Retail sales, which make up roughly two-thirds of the real GNP, have perked up again and business investment is expected to pick up in the months ahead.

Citizen Band radio is a complicated but interesting field. The CB transmitter uses the same ultra-high frequency that is so vital to other kinds of radio transmission, including that of television. It turns out that this UHF is strictly line-of-sight transmission because of its high-frequency characteristics. This means that effective transmission radius is generally limited to about 5 to 10 miles.

With the increasing popularity of CB Radio's, NEWTON CAR RADIO, 873 Walnut Street (cor. Mexico's bloody 'Black Palace' to get the ax

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Scores of the famous and infamous — presidents and assassins alike — have passed through the gates of the "Black Palace."

But soon the 2,296 inmates of 76-year-old Lecumberri Prison — including 62 Americans awaiting sentences on mostly drug-related charges — will leave.

The "palace" is marked for demolition. The prisoners will be transferred to two new prisons under construction on the city's outskirts.

The notorious maximum security male penitentiary, built in 1900 under dictator Porfirio Diaz, has a long and bloody history.

Francisco I. Madero, Mexico's president from 1911 to 1913, spent his last days there awaiting death after a coup by Gen. Victoriano Huerta.

Jack Monard Vanderich, the hatchet-murderer of Trotsky who fled Stalinist Russia for sanctuary in Mexico, served out his sentence behind Lecumberri's bars.

Mexico's toughest prison has been "home" for famous Mexican muralists Diego Rivera and David Alfaro Siqueiros, as well as noted Mexican writer Jose Revueltas, political activists who all fell out of favor with Mexican governments in their time.

The chief of Mexico's Communist Party, Valentin Campa, who ran as an unregistered candidate in Mexico's recent presidential election, also has been a "palace guest."

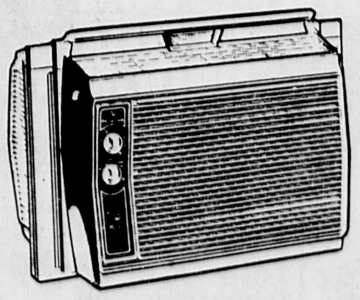

AIRMAN FRANCIS J. MELIA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Melia of 12 Milton St., West Newton, has graduated at Lackland AFB, Tex., from Air Force basic training. He is a 1975 graduate of Newton North High School.

Ungar becomes principal engineer

Eric E. Ungar of Newton has been elected a principal engineer of Bolt Beranek and Newman Inc. Election to the position of principal at BBN is reserved for a select few individuals who, through their technical accomplishments and leadership, have made outstanding contributions to the success of the company oper a long period.

Ungar is an internationally recognized authority in structural dynamics, mechanical vibration, and noise control. Since joining BBN in 1958, he has been engaged in research, development and consulting and has held several technical management positions.

He has written more than 100 technical articles, has contributed chapters to several handbooks and reference volumes, and recently translated from German and revised a book entitled "Structure-Borne Sound."

Prior to 1958, he participated in the development of second-generation atomic weapons at Sandia Corporation and served on the mechanical engineering faculty of New York Univesity. He received a B.S. degree from Washington University in 1951, an M.S. from the University of New Mexico in 1954, and an Eng. Sc.D. from New York University in 1957.

Eric E. Ungar

A fellow of the Acoustical Society of America, Ungar presently is chairman of that society's technical committee on shock and vibration and recently served as associate editor of the Acoustical Society's journal.

He is a member of the Executive Committee and secretary of the Design Engineering Division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, whose vibration and sound committee he chaired for over a decade.

New limits on who's to see tax return

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted new limits on who can see and use a taxpayer's income tax return.

The action buttresses "the right of all Americans to be secure from government snooping into their private tax information," said Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., after the Senate Tuesday approved a major section of the tax revision bill.

The approval is tentative because it is subject to later reconsideration as the Senate completes the lengthy bill and the House adjusts differences.

One provision would require the president to ask in writing for access to a tax return, and the information could go only to the president and certain other officials.

The Justice Department, if it wanted to see returns, would have to show "probable cause" the taxpayer was violating the law, for a court to allow access to the return in a nontax matter.

Before the Internal Revenue Service could furnish any tax information to another agency, the agency would have to set procedures "satisfactory to the IRS for safeguarding the tax information it receives," the Senate Finance Committee said in a report on the bill.

The bill would make certain unauthorized disclosures felonies rather than misdemeanors, with a prison penalty of up to five years and fine up to $5,000.

It also would set standards for those who prepare tax returns as a business. It would exempt winnings from state lotteries, keno games, bingo and slot machines from withholding requirements.

Indicators rose 0.3%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government said today its forecaster of future economic trends — the composite index of leading indicators — rose only 0.3 per cent in June, the its smallest advance in seven months.

The slight increase followed a May figure of 0.7 per cent, which was revised downward, and was the smallest rise since last November when the index moved up only 0.1 per cent.

Originally, the Commerce Department had put May's increase at 1.4 per cent. However, the department today cut that figure in half, saying current data indicates that net new business for the month was less than previously thought.

Unemployment fund debt overstated by $500 million

BOSTON (UPI) — Estimates made only three months ago of the potential debt in the state's unemployment fund were overstated by nearly $500 million or 100 per cent, state unemployment officials now acknowledge.

Division of Employment Security Director John Crosier said Tuesday a recalculation of the estimated debt shows the state unemployment fund will have a $500 million deficit by 1980.

The new figure compares to deficit estimates of about $1 billion or more which were announced by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, Crosier and other administration officials in late April.

Dukakis announced the potential debt figure in an April 20 news conference in which he unveiled his legislative proposal to boost assessments against private industry.

"Unless the trend is reversed," Dukakis warned, "we could owe $1 billion by 1980."

The bill, which also would cut unemployment benefits, is still under study by the legislature's Commerce and Labor Committee and leaders of that panel now say action will be delayed till September and possibly longer.

The House Tuesday adopted an order extending the deadline for reporting on the governor's bill to Sept. 17.

"The reason for the substantial reduction," Crosier said, "is the use of a different set of assumptions regarding the unemployment rate."

He said the recent reduction in the state's rate had a lot to do with the drop in the anticipated debt. In addition, he said, a change in a supplemental federal benefits program allowed the state to drop a number of persons out of the jobless category.

"That program distorted the numbers," he said. Other unanticipated factors include higher employment and thus a higher contribution by employers.

Crosier said the state has thus far borrowed $235 million from the federal government due to the deficit in the account.

The director said he still believes the state must act to reduce the deficit by increasing assessments against industry. He said he does not believe the state should wait for Congress to boost the taxable wage base.

A bill which would boost assessments beginning in 1978 has passed the U.S. House and is awaiting action in the Senate.

"I still assume the position that we need to move more quickly," he said.

Sen. Alan R. McKinnon, DWeymouth, Senate chairman of the Commerce and Labor Committee, said the panel is still trying to work out a compromise on the bill. He acknowledged, however, legislators may be reluctant to act so close to an election.

Coup against Amin foreseen as Uganda continues to decline

By RAYMOND WILKINSON

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — After five years of harsh and erratic rule, Idi Amin appears to be slipping from power as dictator of Uganda with increasing momentum.

Faced with almost insurmountable diplomatic, economic and military problems, Amin now must reckon that a coup against him is not only possible but probable, many observers in East Africa say.

The economy of Uganda, a country Winston Churchill once called the jewel of Africa, is at a standstill because of a cutoff in oil supplies from Kenya.

With virtually no aviation fuel available, most international flights have been halted.

Private motoring has been banned and the food distribution system is breaking down. Amin has admitted he has less than a week's petroleum reserves left.

More ominously, the shortages are reaching the army, until recently considered Amin's surviving center of strength but now reportedly riddled with indiscipline and even mutiny.

Ironically, the mercurial president's latest and most serious crisis was sparked by a seemingly unrelated incident — Israel's July 3 commando raid on Entebbe airport to free more than 100 hostages from proPalestinian hijackers.

Amin accused Kenya of complicity in the attack but his blustering threats to attack the neighboring African nation have backfired.

Comforted by its newfound closeness to the United States (Washington sent two reconnaissance aircraft to Nairobi during the crisis and a U.S. Navy task force steamed off the coast), Kenya rejected Amin's threats out of hand and hung tough on its own demands.

These included payment by Uganda in cash and foreign currency for all Kenyan goods, notably oil supplies that Amin must purchase from the Kenyan port of Mombassa — East Africa's only refinery.

Amin does not have the money to pay for the oil. His only sizeable reserves belong to the army and would probably last less than a week in any conflict.

One knowledgeable source who recently visited the Ugandan capital of Kampala said Amin now has "zero support" among both civilians and military.

Kenyan newspapers have reported widespread mutinies in the army and another assassination attempt against Amin last weekend.

Most of these reports are probably exaggerated. Nevertheless, diplomatic observers said all probably contain some truth and Uganda's supreme policy making body, the defense council, is almost certainly reviewing its options.

Amin has survived numerous assassination attempts during the five years he has ruled Uganda with brute force and terror. The next attempt, observers say, ocould come from within the defense council.

His main hope for survival appears to be the Arab nations he has befriended.

According to Middle East reports, the Arab League will meet shortly to discuss his urgent request for cash or oil. One unconfirmed Kenyan report said Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy already has sent Amin $60 million in cash.

If the Arabs provide substantial financial aid, Amin may be able to buy oil quickly enough to save himself, at least for a time.

Without Arab help, many East African observers believe, he appears doomed.

Democrats' unity surprising

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the category of final observations about the 1976 Democratic national convention:

1. It was said by some that nothing of interest really happened at Madison Square Garden.

2. It was said by others that the reason nothing happened was that Jimmy Carter strong-armed all opposition into silence.

Not so on both counts.

On the first count, it is true that there were no fights of any consequence on the convention floor. That in itself is of some interest in view of the Democratic party's record in recent conventions.

But the absence of conflict was not the news. The appearance of unity was. Anyone who had seen at close quarters the depth of emotion expended by the Democrats who sliced and chopped at each other for 12 years had to go to this convention skeptical about the chances of keeping the peace.

This convention was conducted on a civil plane, but not because the feuding Democrats have become tired of arguing about doctrine. The same contending ideologies that had ripped up previous party meetings were represented at New York and still exist in the party as it moves toward the 1976 campaign.

The difference was the willingness of the opposing camps to accept defeat without walking out or to gain victory without feeling a need to destroy the other side. The difference was the realization that the Democratic Party could not win the presidency unless it presented at least the image of unity to the voters.

Which brings up Carter's role in keeping the convention quiet. There is no doubt that the candidate-apparent, as aware as anyone else that shrill and bitter controversy could hurt his chances in November, wanted a peaceful convention.

And it is also true that Carter used his strength in the pre-convention period to defuse a number of potential conflicts on the platform and on convention and party rules. The success of this effort, however, did not turn on Carter's ability to choke off dissent.

Carter had the nomination in hand before the convention because the opposition, still strong enough to make a loud fight, decided after the last primaries to go with the Georgian instead of battling to the bitter end. But Carter did not go to that convention with enough votes or influence to gag any determined bloc of delegates who wanted to make trouble.

In plain fact, the delegates rolled over, accepting compromises and finesses that would have been junked with little ceremony when the feuding frenzy was at its height. There was some publicly stated unhappiness about some of the Carter proposals, but there was no revolt because the delegates did not want one.

This, of course, made for a "dull" convention in terms of what happened at Chicago in 1968 and Miami Beach in 1972. No riots, no walkouts, no shouting matches, no high drama. But also no open wounds, and for the first time since the early 1960s, agreement within the party that the main chance is winning the election

Newton boy competes in Owens Classic

Steve Hartman of 108 Albemarle Road, Newtonville, competed in the 12th Annual Jesse Owens Junior Track Classic Boston Championship Meet on Wednesday evening, July 21 at Boston University's Nickerson Field.

He placed fourth in the Boys 10-11 year old 50 yard dash event, which won him a place on the relay team which will compete in the Inter-City Championship Meet in Philadelphia on August 14.

Eleven year old Hartmen is one of 36 Boston area athletes, ages 10 to 15, who will be flown to Philadelphia to compete with champs from 13 other cities and treated to a special tour of Philadelphia and Valley Forge.

Jesse Owens was present at the Boston event to congratulate the winners.

Steve is the son of Dr. & Mrs. Allan Hartman.

Dibiasi ends career in blaze of gold

MONTREAL — Klaus Dibiasi, with the look of a Roman god, closed out his classic career Tuesday night by holding off a 16-year-old American challenger to become the first man in Olympic history to win three gold medals in platform diving.

The 28-year-old Dibiasi, who began his spectacular career 12 years ago with a silver medal in the 1964 Olympics, faced the image of his youth in precocious Greg Louganis of El Cajon, Calif.

Louganis was superb. Dibiasi was better.

Regardless of the outcome, the final diving event of the 1976 Olympics was to be Dibiasi's last competition and the pressure to win his third gold medal was intense.

"I think the pressure was going up each time," the soft-spoken Dibiasi said. "In '64 there was not much, in '68 a little bit, in '72 more and now it was impossible."

Making it even more difficult to retain his title was a bout with tendonitis, which kept him from diving the week previous to the Olympic competition.

"I started diving the day it started," Dibiasi said, referring to the springboard competition, in which he finished eighth.

Six former winners in Pleasant Valley golf

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Six former winners will be among the 166 golfers teeing off Thursday when the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Classic golf tournament begins but some of the game's biggest names will be missing.

Million-dollar winners Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Tom Weiskopf and Billy Casper have bypassed the annual tournament at the Pleasant Valley Country Club, where the pro-am event was taking place today. However, 1975 winner Roger Maltbie has returned along with former champions Victor Regalado (1974), Lanny Wadkins (1973) Bruce Devlin (1972), Dave Stockton (1971) and Tom Shaw (1969).

Lee Trevino, who regularly plays for the $40,000 first prize, had to cancel out because of a bad back. But Hubert Green, winner of three straight tournaments earlier this year, and Ben Crenshaw will be in the field along with Lee Elder, Al Geiberger, Dave Hill and J.C. Snead.

In announcing Trevino's cancellation, PGA official Dusty Murdock revealed Nicklaus had attempted to enter the event for just the second time in its 10-year history.

"He truly tried; he just couldn't get rid of his commitments," said Murdock. "He only competes in 16 or 17 tournaments a year out of 42. With all his obligations, he's in a tough position."

Despite the lack of top names, 42 of the PGA tour's top 50 money winners will tee off. Green leads the pack with $188,979 in earnings.

Maltbie, who won his first pro tournament a week earlier, carded a final-round 68 to win the 1975 tournament with an eight-under-par 276.

American hoopsters were motivated

MONTREAL (UPI) — The team many experts felt didn't belong here won back the gold medal most Americans felt they never lost.

But, if the truth be known, the youngest ever United States Olympic basketball team was more concerned with vindicating its own image than avenging the country's highly controversial 51-50 loss to Russia in the 1972 championship game at Munich.

From day one of training camp, the makeup of the team had been bitterly criticized because seven of the 12 members were from the Atlantic Coast Conference. Four of those were from the University of North Carolina, coached by Dean Smith, who also happened to be coach of the Olympic squad.

The critics were answered with startling swiftness when the Americans, whose team motto was "sacrifice," crushed Yugoslavia, 95-74, Tuesday night to reclaim the single most important medal in the eyes of most Americans.

"The best motivating force behind this team was all the talk and complaining about the players who were selected," said Smith.

Adrian Dantley, who led the American effort with 30 points, had to leave the game for 3½ minutes during the second half after Drazen Dalipagic, Yugoslavia's high man with 27 points, gave him an elbow above the right eye.

"The guy went up for a jump shot and I just stood there," explained Dantley, a first-team All-America from Notre Dame. "He came down with his elbow. He didn't mean to do it, but I need seven stitches there."

Earlier in the day, the Soviet Union earned the bronze medal by beating Canada, 100-72.

On the lightest day of activity in these games, the U.S. also picked up a silver and a bronze medal Tuesday. Greg Louganis, a 16-year-old from El Cajon, Calif., placed second in the 10-meter platform diving, although bothered by a nagging toothache, and Dennis Conner and Conn Findlay of San Diego, Calif., were third in the Tempest class of the yachting competition.

As a result, the U.S. remained third in gold medals with 22 and second in total medals with 65. The Soviet Union leads in both categories with 29 and 80 respectively, while East Germany has 28 gold and 63 total.

In addition, America advanced four of five boxers— light welterweight "Sugar" Ray Leonard, lightweight Howard Davis, bantamweight Army Sgt. Charles Mooney, and flyweight Leo Randolph—into the semifinals of that competition, guaranteeing each at least a bronze medal, with another four men fighting Thursday night in the quarter-finals of their divisions.

Klaus Dibiasi of Italy won the platform dive, his third consecutive gold medal in this event following a silver medal in the 1964 Olympics. This was his final competition.

"I think the pressure was going up each time," said the 28-year-old Dibiasi."In '64 there was not much, in '68 a little bit, in '72 more and now it was impossible."

In weightlifting, super heavyweight Vassily Alexeev of the Soviet Union reclaimed a world record from East Germany's Gerd Bonk and successfully defended his Olympic title with a combined jerk and snatch lift of 968 pounds. Alexeev, who weighs 345 pounds, set the new record on the second of his three tries with a jerk of 561 pounds. Bonk took the silver medal.

Following Tuesday's rest day, track and field competition resumes today with five finals on the schedule: the 110-meter hurdles, 3,000-meter steeplechase and hammer throw for men and the women's 200-meter dash and high jump.

200 for Jenkins and two for Zimmer

BOSTON (UPI) — Ferguson Jenkins won his 200th game as a pitcher and Don Zimmer notched his second win as manager. It seemed like it took a long time for both.

The Red Sox ended their consecutive losses at six games Tuesday night, holding on for an 8-7 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Of his 200th career win, with the help of two relievers, Jenkins (9-7) said, "I thought I'd get it earlier in the season with this ball club. Nine games seemed like an eternity to get to."

Jenkins joined the Red Sox this season, figuring the defending American League champions would provide him with a lot of runs. But he lost some close ones early in the year when the Boston batters didn't produce.

Zimmer, who took over from Darrell Johnson when the Red Sox continued to lose, now is 2-7 and Boston is tied for last place. He was pleased with the win, especially since the Indians pulled so close.

"That final out was the biggest relief since I've managed the Sox," Zimmer said.

Jim Rice drove home what proved to be the winning run with a fielder's choice groundout in the fourth inning.

Fred Lynn, who had two hits, knocked in two runs and scored three times, hit a one-out double in the fourth and went to third on a Carl Yastrzemski single. Rice then hit to second baseman Duane Kuiper as Lynn came home.

Jenkins, who is only the third active pitcher to reach the 200 plateau behind Gaylord Perry and Jim Kaat, gave up 14 hits, struck out three and walked one. Jim Bibby, 6-3, lasted 1 2-3 innings, giving up six runs on five hits including a first-inning Carlton Fisk homer.

George Hendrick hit a homer for Cleveland.

The Indians chipped away at the Boston lead and the ninth inning caused some anxious moments for Zimmer. The tying run was on first base and Boog Powell was at bat.

Powell, always a home run threat, hit a long fly that just went foul.

"I'm 45 today, but I was 50 when Boog Powell hit that ball in the ninth," Zimmer said.

Powell finally flied out, and Buddy Bell struck out to end the game.

"This kind of game keeps the people in their seats," Jenkins said.

"I thought we had them in the first but you never know in this game," Zimmer said. "We got the base hits at the right time and that's the reason we won. It was only the fourth time in nine games when we could play our kind of game and not have to come from behind."

Cleveland coach Frank Robinson said Jenkins is "a tremendous pitcher. Two hundred wins is a great achievement, but milestones don't mean as much until after you leave this ballgame. That is when milestones mean something."

The Red Sox send Rick Jones (4-1) against Jack Brown (7-6) tonight in Fenway Park.

Saints trim 11

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — New Orleans Saints Coach Hank Stram trimmed 11 players from the club Tuesday in the biggest cut since training camp started, reducing the team to 90 candidates.

Placed on waivers were draft choices quarterback Greg Kokal, Ken Downing, and Steve Seminoff.

Free agents turned loose were running back Rocky Thompson, tight end John Strada, defensive end Dana White, center Chris Kete, wide receivers Robert West and Mike Williams, and defensive backs Abb Ansley and Peanut Martin.

The club must be reduced to 60 players by next Tuesday.

Patriots waive receivers

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI) — The New England Patriots have waived wide receivers Al Marshall and Harris Davis, leaving 83 players in camp.

Marshall joined the Patriots as a free agent in 1974 but sat out most of past two seasons with injuries.

Davis, a former quarterback at Virginia, was in camp as free agent after a season with the San Diego Chargers.

As those players left Monday, three injured veterans rejoined the team in double practice sessions. Defensive lineman Julius Adams and defensive back John Sanders, both bothered by leg ailments, participated along with offensive tackle Leon Gray, previously sidelined by an eye injury.

Rookies get their chance with Patriots

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI) — New England Patriots coach Chuck Fairbanks will give the rookies a chance to show their stuff in the National Football League team's first preseason game.

The Patriots will play the New York Giants Sunday.

There are expected to be quite a few cuts from the Patriots' large roster in the days following.

"We'll try to look at the younger players," Fairbanks said.

"If I just wanted to go all out and win the game, I'd use Steve Grogan at quarterback every day," Fairbanks said. "I'd never even find out whether Tommy Owen could play."

Grogan is the top candidate for the job vacated by the trading of quarterback Steve Plunkett.

Fairbanks said he wouldn't neglect the veterans and would make sure they "get a lot of work" before the regular season begins.

Fairbanks said he saw "excellent progress" so far.

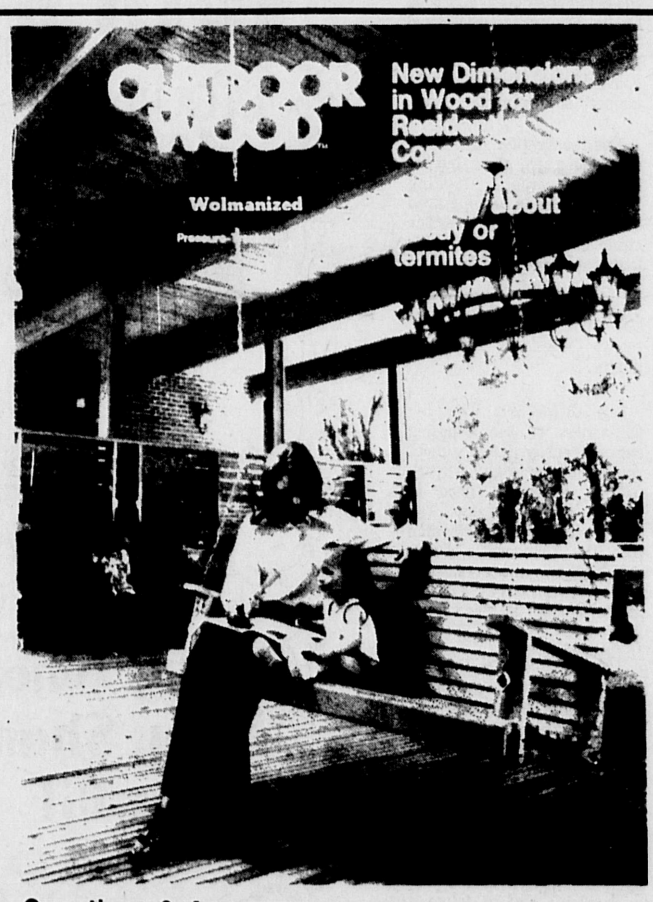

"We're pretty much free of injury this year and the players in general just seem to know more about what to do," Fairbanks said.

Some minor injuries in camp include: sprained ankle tendon bothering linebacker Rod Shoate and hyperextended elbow affecting defensive tackle Pete Cusick. Also, Art Moore had a viral infection and suited up Tuesday for the first time in 10 days.

Questions & Answers about Outdoor Wood™

1. What is Outdoor Wood?
What nature does for such popular woods as redwood and cedar, pressure-treatment with Wolman* preservative chemicals does for many other species of wood. These protective salts, forced deep into the wood under high pressure, provide a permanence that makes Wolmanized* lumber and plywood, the Outdoor Wood, last for decades without impairing the natural beauty of the wood. And, because many of the other species of wood that can be treated are plentiful, Outdoor Wood is relatively inexpensive. Since it will not rot and termites can't destroy it, you don't have to worry about costly maintenance or repair. Outdoor Wood is truly the sensible building material for today's do-it-yourselfer.

2. What color is Outdoor Wood?
The long-lasting preservative treatment gives Outdoor Wood a light green color.

3. Can Outdoor Wood be stained or painted?
Yes, since Outdoor Wood is properly dried after preservative treatment, it can be stained or painted as desired.

4. What kind of nails should be used with Outdoor Wood?
We recommend galvanized nails.

5. If Outdoor Wood is used in the water for a pier, or for the side of a garden trough, will it still resist decay?
Yes, unless you plan to build a deck or pier in salt water. For that application, all wood coming in contact with the water should be pressure-treated to a heavier retention.

6. How long is Outdoor Wood expected to last?
We have tests running now where Outdoor Wood has been in service without decay or insect damage for over 35 years. But remember, most grades of untreated lumber will last only 3-7 years before rot or insect damage occurs.

7. How economical is Outdoor Wood?
In comparison with clear heart and construction grades of Redwood and other naturally durable species, Outdoor Wood will cost considerably less.

Police to teach bike law before giving out tickets

"Bicycle riding is only as safe as the bicyce rider," according to Chief William Quinn of the Newton Police Department.

Chief Quinn said, "We normally think of children when we think of bicycle riding. However, lately more and more adult riders are using bicycles for recreation and transportation.

"It is this group that is creating problems. According to these riders, they are supposedly using common sense when they ride, yet many do not observe the bicycle laws, which were passed with safety in mind.

"Many riders actually challenge the motorist, cutting in and out, and failing either to signal or to look before passing parked cars.

"Another weakness is pulling to the center line in preparation for a left turn. Under the Saltonstall Bicycle Act, this is legal, but there is another law that shoud be observed before cutting in front of a moving car, i.e., the law of motion. Should a cyclist fail to look or signal and then cut in front of a moving car, a serious accident could occur because a car cannot stop instantly.

"Red lights, as a control measure for automobiles, also apply to cyclists. Too many cyclists feel they have the right to ride through. It is not only a violation but is very dangerous.

"Adults with older bicycles without lights and reflectors riding after dark also endanger themselves."

The chief continued, "I could go on and on citing the many faults.

"However, these same cyclists are reasonable people of good nature, intellect, and have a fair share of common sense, yet ride with disdain for their own safety and the rights of drivers, pedestrians and most important, the great majority of cyclists who do observe laws which they helped enact. In addition, they create a bad example for the younger cyclists.

"Under the terms of the Saltonstall Bicycle Bill, a citation procedure was outli
ed. The late Judge Franklin Flaschner believed, and Mayor Theodore Mann and many of our aldermen agree, that an educational period should have the same effect and that sincere cyclists would endeavor to pass the word that safety and observance of vehicular regulations are the same.

The law states that cyclists should ride on the right side of the roadway, stop for all signal devices and stop signs, signal for all turns, yield to pedestrians, ride single file, ride single rider only, except tandems or baby seats with a stirrup and harness to secure a child, and must have a bike equipped with a front light and a reflectorized material for night riding.

"Each of these regulations is planned to improce the safety of the rider and the cooperation of the rider is necessary to insure greater bicyle safety," Chief Quinn said.

RECORD RATE

Needham rejects 34 home development near Irving Rd.

NEEDHAM — The Board of Appeals has denied the request of a Newton realtor for a variance which would have allowed him to build 34 houses on half the required area.

In a unanimous decision filed with the town clerk yesterday, the board found that petitioner Mario DiCarlo of Lasell Realty Co. of West Newton failed to demonstrate "substantial hardship, financial or otherwise, so as to warrant the granting of the requested variance."

DiCarlo at the June 29 hearing had sought a variance to create 34 single-family houselots each with 10,000 square feet of area on his property at the corner of Milo Circle and Irving Road.

The land is presently zoned for 20,000-square-foot lots so that only 19 houselots could be created. DiCarlo's proposal would also have made houselots with 80-foot frontage in an area were 100-foot frontage is required.

In its written decision denying DiCarlo's request, the Board of Appeals further stated that DiCarlo "has not presented the board with satisfactory evidence on its acquisition costs for the subject premises or on its inability to sell the subject premises either in total or in lots conforming with the Needham zoning by-laws."

DiCarlo had said at the public hearing that he acquired the land 20 years ago from a developer he was working for who went bankrupt and gave DiCarlo the land in settlement. DiCarlo had further said he had listed the property for sale five or six years ago, according to the Board of Appeals records.

Big request

The Board of Appeals also maintained in its decision against DiCarlo's requested variance that because the petitioner proposed creating so many (34) houselots at variance with the existing zoning, granting the variance would "constitute a substantial derogation from the intent and purpose of the Needham zoning by-laws."

At the hearing, DiCarlo and Needham realtor William Casey had maintained that the land had been zoned for 20,000-square-foot building lots in the 1950s out of fear of rapid growth in that area and lack of town sewage connections. The land is in the northernmost section of town by Rte. 128 and off St. Mary Street.

The Board of Appeals remarked that if the conditions for the 20,000-square-foot restriction in that area no longer exist, the property owner should seek town meeting rezoning of the parcel rather than an appeals board variance.

No one appeared at the June 29 hearing in favor of DiCarlo's request, and a large turnout of area residents protested the increased density of development because of concerns about traffic congestion and drainage problems. A written opinion from the Planning Board also opposed granting the requested variance.

DiCarlo and Casey both mentioned that developer McNeil & Associates had expressed an interest in the Milo Circle property. McNeil is presently proposing building low and moderate income apartments off Central Avenue under Chapter 774, the state's anti-snob zoning law.

Board of Appeals members told Casey that his remarks about the possiblity of selling DiCarlo's property to McNeil were irrelevant and amounted to a threat that the land would be sold for low and moderate income housing if the board denied a variance for the smaller lot sizes.

Casey said he did not intend to be making a threat. He also maintained that the smaller-size lots should be premitted because 72 per cent of the lots in the zoning district which requires 20,000-square-foot lots already have less than the required 20,000 square feet of area.

Democrats' unity surprising

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the category of final observations about the 1976 Democratic national convention:

1. It was said by some that nothing of interest really happened at Madison Square Garden.

2. It was said by others that the reason nothing happened was that Jimmy Carter strong-armed all opposition into silence.

Not so on both counts.

On the first count, it is true that there were no fights of any consequence on the convention floor. That in itself is of some interest in view of the Democratic party's record in recent conventions.

But the absence of conflict was not the news. The appearance of unity was. Anyone who had seen at close quarters the depth of emotion expended by the Democrats who sliced and chopped at each other for 12 years had to go to this convention skeptical about the chances of keeping the peace.

This convention was conducted on a civil plane, but not because the feuding Democrats have become tired of arguing about doctrine. The same contending ideologies that had ripped up previous party meetings were represented at New York and still exist in the party as it moves toward the 1976 campaign.

The difference was the willingness of the opposing camps to accept defeat without walking out or to gain victory without feeling a need to destroy the other side. The difference was the realization that the Democratic Party could not win the presidency unless it presented at least the image of unity to the voters.

Which brings up Carter's role in keeping the convention quiet. There is no doubt that the candidate-apparent, as aware as anyone else that shrill and bitter controversy could hurt his chances in November, wanted a peaceful convention.

And it is also true that Carter used his strength in the pre-convention period to defuse a number of potential conflicts on the platform and on convention and party rules. The success of this effort, however, did not turn on Carter's ability to choke off dissent.

Carter had the nomination in hand before the convention because the opposition, still strong enough to make a loud fight, decided after the last primaries to go with the Georgian instead of battling to the bitter end. But Carter did not go to that convention with enough votes or influence to gag any determined bloc of delegates who wanted to make trouble.

In plain fact, the delegates rolled over, accepting compromises and finesses that would have been junked with little ceremony when the feuding frenzy was at its height. There was some publicly stated unhappiness about some of the Carter proposals, but there was no revolt because the delegates did not want one.

This, of course, made for a "dull" convention in terms of what happened at Chicago in 1968 and Miami Beach in 1972. No riots, no walkouts, no shouting matches, no high drama. But also no open wounds, and for the first time since the early 1960s, agreement within the party that the main chance is winning the election

Distinctive town houses at Redwood Mews, East Walpole

Nestled into the natural contours of greenery, Redwood Mews marks a distinctive concept in design.

Located in East Walpole, this 24 unit complex comprises of one, two and three bedroom townhouses.

Creative Environment, Inc. inspired the design and planning, keeping in mind the individuality and privacy afforded only in private ownership.

This unique planning was blended into a residential area using a contemporary design in natural redwood. Beautifully landscaped with bright flowering shrubs and vines, the concept is much like you would find in Southern California.

Many outstanding features have been built into each townhouse at Redwood Mews. Not only the distinctively designed features, but the finished items that come with each unit.

Variety of floor plans with cathedral ceilings, skylights, some with lofts are just a few of the highlites offered. Wall to wall carpeting, color appliance kitchen, 2 full baths, full basement are included in these anemities.

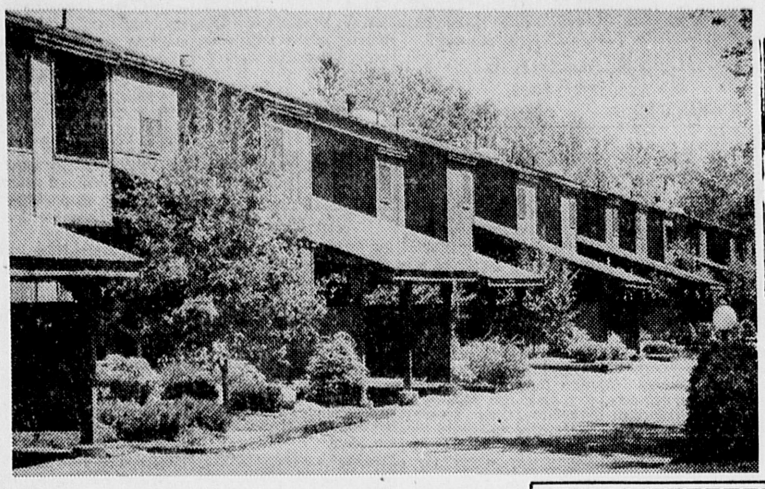

Private patio area grounds provide the "green thumb" for gardening or leisure activities. Protective parking is provided along with ample space for guests.

When a person buys a townhouse at Redwood Mews, he automatically becomes a member of the Association, a corporation organized for the purpose of managing all of the property in common.

Redwood Mews provides swimming pool facilities, and within walking distance, tennis courts and children's recreational area are available.

Located minutes from the Walpole Shopping Mall, assessible to all major arteries, Rte. 1, Rte. 95 and Rte. 128, as well as public transportation to Boston, this complex is ideally situated.

Appointment for showings are made by calling 275-9324. Directions from Rte. 128 at Dedham, take Rte. 1 South to Coney Street (Walpole Shopping Center) take right at Coney St. to end, turn right on Pleasant Street, one block on right to Redwood Mews.

Bonds are for giving at weddings.

Give the bride and groom a U.S. Savings Bond. Who knows, maybe when they buy their first house, their first car, or take their first vacation, it'll be because you gave them their first Bond. U.S. Savings Bonds. A good way to start a marriage.

Take stock in America.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at most banks. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Grab a Piece of The Mushroom!

EARN $10,000. YOUR FIRST YEAR

PAPA GINO'S restaurants are sprouting up all over New England. And they are growing very nicely, thanks to a solid reputation for good Italian food and good management.
This expansion program has created a challenging and rewarding new opportunity for you in our management training program.
You will learn every phase of our business from the ground up, and you should be ready to manage a PAPA GINO'S restaurant within two years.
The job is a demanding one — long hours of work and study — but the rewards are there to be had. You can expect to earn $10,000 your first year. And, if you have what it takes, you can be making upwards of $19,000 as a PAPA GINO'S manager.
Find out more about this opportunity. Call (617) 449-3305 for an interview appointment.

Record earnings for automakers

DETROIT (UPI) — The announcement of record second-quarter earnings by Chrysler Corp. Monday apparently ended any chance for the firm to plead poverty in the current contract talks with the United Auto Workers.

With General Motors and Ford expected to announce record level earnings later this week, the Big Three automakers would be hard pressed to explain why workers should not get a jump in wages, cost of living protection and other benefits.

As early as last week when talks began, UAW Vice President Douglas Fraser, who heads the union negotiating team at Chrysler, said earnings would be a factor in the union's demands.

"Had we met in 1974 or 1975 to work out an agreement," Fraser said, "I'm sure finances would have been a major question. There sure won't be any grounds to plead poverty this year."

In contract talks Monday, Fraser's attitude was evident as UAW officials told Chrysler and General Motors they want the new contract to include improved cost-of-living protection, plus an increase in base wages that exceeds the 3 per cent figure in effect for the past six years.

Chrysler, the first of the Big Three to report quarterly earnings, said profits hit $155.1 million in the period, compared to a $55.5 million loss a year ago.

"The company is in solid financial condition," Chairman John Riccardo and President E. A. Cafiero said in a joint statement.

The executive said a major factor in Chrysler's rapid recovery was the continued strong sales performance of the compact Dodge Aspen and Plymouth Volare.

Chrysler's profit, which was well above the $128 million prediction of industry analysts, indicates GM and Ford also will reveal whopping earnings Wednesday and Thursday.

GM could set corporate history with its report. Analysts have said the world's largest car-maker's earnings might exceed $920 million for the quarter, approaching American Telephone & Telegraph's $939.6 million in second quarter earnings. ATT's report was the highest ever reported for a corporation.

Ford is expected to have earnings of $430 million, compared to $106 million in the second quarter last year.

HOTEL CHECKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Buying HiltonCheques in advance could help cut down on the cost of travel. The checks guarantee one rate — $35 single and $42 double, including service charges and taxes — at 21 Hilton International hotels in Europe, Morocco and Israel through next March 31. Hilton says the special rate offers savings of 15-25 per cent on published tariff rates at most hotels. In addition, many of the hotels include a bonus of one or more meals for guests who pay with the Hilton Cheques which can be purchased through travel agents and ticket offices of Trans World Airlines.

INCREASE REPORTED

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — More than 700,000 foreign tourists arrived in Greece during the first three months of 1976, an increase of 56 per cent over last year's figures.

A spokesman for the National Tourist Organization said visitors from the United States accounted for 121,794 arrivals and made up the greatest number of a total 700,492 visitors. West Germany came second, with 81,376 arrivals, followed by Yugoslavia, Britain, France and Sweden.

Warning on broken Mercury vapor lights

By Michael J. Conlon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government is warning teachers and other personnel in the nation's schools to be on the alert for broken mercury vapor lights in gymnasiums and other buildings.

There have been at least two instances in which persons exposed to such lamps were burned. Rules now being drawn up would require such lights to go off automatically when they are broken.

The Bureau of Radiological Health says many mercury vapor lights are made to permit the inner light to burn even when the outer glass envelope breaks. The inner light emits ultraviolet radiation that can be harmful to humans when the outer envelope is broken.

"A particular danger of this situation is that a person may be unaware of the lamp damage and hence not realize there is a risk of injury," the agency said. "The injury usually appears as an irritation of the eyes and a burn of the skin, similar to acute sunburn."

The bureau said it recently received one report of injuries from a damaged lamp at a public school gym in Nassau County, N.Y., and another from a public school in Montgomery County, Md., in 1974.

"Mercury vapor lamps are used throughout the country in schools, sports arenas, commercial and industrial facilities, and for outdoor applications such as streetlighting and floodlighting," the agency said.

Until rules are published to correct the situation by requiring an automatic shut-off, the bureau said school personnel should be "made aware of the potential exposure problem and be on the alert for signs of lamp damage, such as broken glass on the floor."

It said lamps should be inspected regularly and broken ones disconnected promptly.

—— The Consumer Product Safety Commission has recalled a quarter million electric arc welders it said may pose a substantial hazard in electric shock and skin burns.

The brand is the "Midway Electric Arc Welder," manufactured since 1950 by Western Manufacturing and Supply Co., Kearny, Neb.

The agency said "construction of the unit allowed the power supply voltage to reach the electrodes directly in a way that could result in a shock for anyone coming in contact with the electrodes or a piece of metal in contact with the electrodes. In addition, the welder's metal housing lacked thermal insulation, posing a threat of severe skin burns."

Consumers who own the tool are advised to mail it directly to Western Manufacturing and Supply Co., 1400 West 22nd St., Kearny, Neb., 68847, attention Mr. P. Beshore, with a note containing the consumer's return address and the cost of postage spent to return the unit.

The CPSC said the company will refund the purchase price plus postage.

"The welder unit was sold with an assortment of electrodes, an eye shield and printed materials," the agency said. "The name 'Midway' appears on the face plate. Model numbers include DD, D, E. F, DS and K." The welders sold by mail cost $9.95 to $14.95 each.

—— From Ventnor, N.J.: "I wrote to Bristol Myers, they sell Ultra Ban deodorant. I bought and used it and developed a bad rash under one arm. I wrote them about it and never received an answer. There is still an irritation under the one arm.

"On the spray can it states that if a rash develops discontinue use of it. Why are they allowed to market it? I never had any problem before."

Some risk is involved in almost every product on the market. In this case you were forewarned of an adverse reaction and even told what to do if it occurred: stop using the product.

Most people apparently don't suffer the reaction you did. If a product were banned because only one person or a few persons had a minor problem, it might not be fair to the many others who suffer no ill effects.

The fortunate aspect of all this is that the product, like many others, carries warnings of potential adverse reactions. The bigger problem is with products that leave a user in the dark about potential risks.

Traffic restricted The 93-year-old Smithfield Street Bridge in Pittsburgh, PA. has forced state officials to impose severe traffic restrictions during the evening rush hour for the second time in four days. A serious crack was found in the structure. Rep. H. John Heinz met newsmen at the bridge where he announced that he would submit a bill today asking for federal funds to repair bridges. UPI

Theme parks enjoying increased popularity

By Murray J. Brown
UPI Travel Editor

Enjoying increasing popularity with American vacationists are the multimillion dollar theme parks offering a wide variety of amusements, entertainment and other attractions for young and old.

There are thrill rides, African wild game safaris, recreations of the days of the Old Wild West and other exciting eras in American and European history, animated cartoon and fairy tale characters and other facts and fantasies.

Last year, an estimated 75 million men, women and children who spent an average of $10 each visited the 40 major theme parks across the United States. That was 28 million more than the combined total of 47 million who attended all professional football, basketball and baseball games in 1975.

Industry reports show Walt Disney World in Orlando, Fla., with more than 12.5 million and Disneyland in Araheim, Calif., with more than 10 million, were the two most popular parks. Incidentally, Disneyland, the first of the theme parks, marked its 21st anniversary in July.

What the industry figures don't show is how many visitors failed to get the most for their time and money because of poor planning or other reasons.

So here are some tips from Dennis Speigel, general manager of Kings Dominion on U.S. I-95 about 25 miles north of Richmond, Va., on how to visit a theme park:

— A single admission charge usually includes rides, shows and other attractions but check travel agencies or write the park. Ask also about family rates or group discounts. Discount coupons are offered sometimes by local merchants.

— Most of the parks are open at night and offer reduced price tickets after 5 p.m. Some, like Kings Dominion and its sister parks Kings Island in Ohio and Carowinds in North Carolina, schedule topflight entertainment during the evening. Kings Dominion also features night safaris into its wild game preserves for viewing afterdark activities by free roaming lions, tigers, etc. Some hotels, motels and campgrounds sell combination tickets that are good after 5 p.m. and the following day.

— Wear comfortable clothes and shoes and, if there are school-aged children, expect to do lots of walking. Get a schedule of the day's events, particularly of the live shows, at the entrance. Also ask for a map so you can plan the shortest routes to the various amusement, entertainment and theme areas.

— Eat one big meal and snack the rest of the day — it's easier on the budget and you can rest on benches while munching on a hot dog, hamburger, pizza or taco. Remember most people eat lunch between noon and 1:30 p.m. and dinner between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. Plan meals to avoid the big crush — eat lunch around 2 p.m. and dinner after 7 p.m., for instance.

— Pace yourself. Going back to your room to rest or nap between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. might be a wise idea, especially if you have small kids. Put off the more popular rides and attractions until the early evening hours when other visitors are having dinner or heading home and the long lines will have vanished. It usually will be cooler, too.

— Early starters can avoid waiting crowds and other time-consuming bottlenecks by moving against the general flow of traffic. Most visitors head from the gate to the nearest attractions; you will probably get to see more if you start your visit at a more distant one.

Speigel said the least crowded day at most parks is Friday —"people are traveling on Friday, going to their destination." Crowds generally are smaller on Wednesday and Thursday, too.

The busiest day at the height of the season is usually Saturday, followed by Sunday, he said. And the busiest months are July and August when school is out.

Spiegel suggests that if lodgings are needed, make reservations as early as possible.

UNSAFE RATING

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Colombia's professional pilots association has given a "black star" (unsafe) rating to seven international airports in the country. The Bogota, Medellin, Cali, Barranquilla, Cartagena, San Andres and Leticia airfields were scored for "total inadequacy of firefighting and rescue units."

Civil aeronautics authorities have shrugged off the pilots' criticism. They noted they recently released statistics that 58 per cent of all crashes in Colombia are due to pilot error and speculated that the pilots are "talking revenge."

TOURISM DOWN

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Airline companies report that tourists booking flights to Argentina have dropped off by 60 per cent since April.

The peso exchange rate has stabilized and prices have gone up since the military government took over March 24 from President Isabel Peron, so the tourists from Brazil, Peru, Chile and other countries no longer find Argentina as much of a bargain.

Although purchased in 1867, Alaska did not gain territorial status until 1912.

INDIAN PATHS

PARIS (UPI) — French travel authorities have reached into American Indian folklore to help the millions of tourists traveling by car in France to avoid traffic jams on highways and roads in July and August.

Posters carrying the image of a smiling little Indian boy named "Smart Bison" will guide tourists off the jammed speedways onto quiet less crowded country roads.

Tourist authorities are working on plans to reward tourists who will follow Smart Bison's path. They are thinking in terms of lottery tickets that would allow winners to get a bonus for up to 300 liters of free gasoline.

BULLFROG SEASON

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The bullfrog hunting-fishing season in Missouri opens at sunset June 30 and closes Nov. 30. Hunters and fishermen are limited to eight bullfrogs per day.

Family planning help not given to all in need

More than half the poor and near-poor women in Massachusetts needing family planning services did not receive care by mid-1974, according to a recent study. Of an estimated 203,900 low- and marginal-income women in the Commonwealth in need of family planning services, only 97,500 were served in fiscal year 1974.

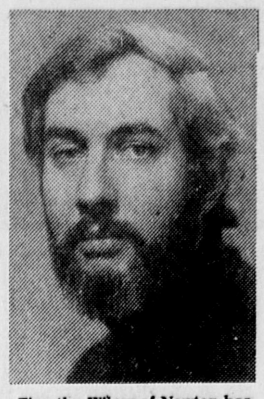

The study documents the need to expand services, particularly for marginal-income women and for sexually active teenagers in all income categories, according to the Planned Parenthood League.

The Massachusetts study is part of a nationwide series prepared by the Alan Guttmacher Institute, the research and development division of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, under a grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation.

John T. Luebbers, Jr., president of the Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts, commented that "the study points to continuing and serious inequities in the availability of family planning services in the Commonwealth." He urged that public funds be made available at realistic and adequate levels to enable Massachusetts residents, regardless of age or income, to voluntarily control their fertility.

Although clinic caseloads have increased dramatically in recent years — from 7300 women in 1968 to 60,300 in 1974 — considerable growth is still required to meet the need for family planning services. The study estimates that expenditures of $12.2 million would provide access to services for all Massachusetts women in need.

The Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts is a nonprofit social service and health education agency whose goal is to encourage and facilitate responsible fertility-related behavior. It is the only Massachusetts affiliate of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

Timothy Wilson of Newton has recently been named head of Palfrey Street School, an independent alternative high school in Watertown. Formerly Director of Title I Programs for Arlington Public Schools, Wilson succeeds Edward Ryerson, who founded Palfrey Street School in 1965. The school, an accredited coeducational high school, provides opportunities for learning in a noncompetitive, creative environment.

Girl gets taste of theater

Alexandra Briggs of 25 Hawthorne Ave., Auburndale is one of twenty-seven Boston area young people spending part of their summer on the of the Tufts University Arena Theater learning about everything from curtain calls to costume design.

The summer children's theater at Tufts, called Magic Circle, gives young people between the ages of 11 and 16 a six-week taste of the theater arts. The program also puts them directly under the lights with the production of two plays for young audiences.

Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland" opened the Magic Circle Children's Theater season July 28.

"Toad of Toad Hall" will be presented Thursday and Friday, July 29 and 30, at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., and Wednesday through Friday, Aug. 4-6, at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. All seats are $1.25. For reservations at the Tufts Arena Theater on Talbot Avenue, Medford, call 623-3880.

Col. Cranston R. Rogers of Newton, commanding officer of the 329th Engined Engineer Group, 94th Army Reserve Command, has retired after 30 years of service in the United States Army Reserve. During the colonel's tenure, the 329th Engineer Group has been highly praised for its many outstanding contributions to community action programs.

Equipment missing from Nonantum office

Thieves broke into the office of Commission of Education Issues at 55 Chapel St., Nonantum, and took $270 worth of equipment, apparently after breaking three windows elsewhere in the building that cost $400.

A pocket calculator worth $53, a dictating machine worth $218, and a set of headphones were taken from the office, sometime between Friday afternoon and Monday at 10:30 a.m., police reported.

The windows broken on the third floor of the building belonged to the Educational Center at that address.

Clay Chevrolet reported that four new tires and wheels worth $700 were taken from a Camaro in the Crafts Street lot between 4 p.m. Friday and noon Saturday.

Five cars in the parking lot of American Legion Post 440 were stripped of their emblems by thieves Monday night. Emblems from two Cadillacs' a Ford, a Lincoln, and another car were taken from hoods and trunks sometime before 7 p.m., police said.

Briefcase detector gets evidence

NEW YORK (UPI) — Employe pilferage costs industry a big share of its estimated total $16 billion loss to crime, but it's tough to get evidence that will stand up in court even when a company knows what's going on.

Catching the thieves, even red handed, is not enough under existing court decisions. It's necessary to catch them under circumstances where there will be witnesses who can give admissible testimony. And the method used must not involve "entrapment" or provocateur procedures.

One of the newer devices that has had some success in this endeavor is an electronic detector that fits in a briefcase, made by Microlab-FXR, Inc., Livingston, N.J., manufacturer of sophisticated electronic components.

Harry Augenblick, a graduate of M.I.T. and ITT's executive ranks, heads the firm.

He explained the detector works by reaching out with an invisible beam through walls, clothing and enclosed vehicles to pinpoint tiny electronic markers that serve as concealed tags on all sorts of products. When the tagged articles are taken or tampered with, the tags cause the detector to sound the alarm by means of audible, visual or body vibrations. The range is about 100 feet, much longer than in other systems.

Augenblick gave several examples of successes in the detector's first year of use.

A government agency that bought two units last summer and three more in November has achieved six arrests and cut down its theft range substantially.

A company plagued by constant loss of items after shipment used a unit to trace the pilferage to a Texas distribution warehouse where both the pilferer and the fence who was buying stolen watches were caught in the presence of witnesses. A body vibrator signal was used in this case.

A department store chain suspected a shipping clerk of masterminding the steady disappearance of electronic calculators from its warehouse. Electronic tags were hidden in several cases of the calculators and the briefcase containing the detector was set behind a wall in the path a thief likely would take in carrying the cases out. By this means the stolen calculators were monitored as they moved to the loading dock and were loaded in a truck. The truck was allowed to depart and was followed by police in another car. The truck driver and the shipping clerk both confessed the theft.

Augenblick stressed getting legally airtight cases against pilferage requires proper procedure. A mistake in procedure can foil the detector just as a careless procedural error by a human can frustrate and sabotage days of careful police work in investigating a crime.

Therefore, Microlab-FXR conducts monthly all-day seminars at its New Jersey headquarters to instruct customer executives and plant guards in how to use the detector to insure the circumstances of arrest will produce witnesses whose testimony is admissible.

While merely catching the thieves has a tendency to reduce theft losses, Augenblick said, if you don't get admissible evidence, there can be the peril of false arrest suits or suits for unjust firing.

WOMEN'S LIB

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sentiment among Americans for women's lib has made tremendous strides in recent years, according to the Institute of Life Insurance. An institute survey found that the percentage of Americans in favor of women's lib rose from 49 per cent in 1972 to 61 per cent last year.

A pair of boots could save your life

A Newton physician expects to save as many as 50,000 lives every year by outfitting patients with a pair of boots.

Not just any boots — these are connected to the PED Venous Blood Pump, which is the invention of Dr. Charles S. Lipson, medical director of Clinical Technology International of Canton.

Lipson designed the Venous Blood Pump for use during and after surgery to prevent pulmonary embolism, the formation of vascular blood clots which is the cause of more than 50,000 deaths in the United States each year.

The inventor first noted that most blood clots formed during surgery originate in the legs where blood flow in and out of the smallest and deepest vein networks becomes sedentary, allowing blood coagulation and the formation of clots.

To prevent this, Dr. Lipson constructed a special pair of knee-high vinyl boots and inflated them with compressed air. During surgery, the intermittent increase and decrease of air pressure stimulates the normal pumping action in the leg muscles of a person who is exercising.

The action forces blood to circulate out of the deep vein system of the calf and speeds the rate of blood flow in the thigh, thereby reducing the opportunity for clots to form. The rate of pressure increase is crucial to the success of the procedure, since squeezing the calf off and on is not in itself sufficient to generate blood flow.

The carefully studied pressure-time cycle used only by the PED Venous Blood Pump is patented by the U.S. government.

Lipson explained that until now, the only approach has been to give anticoagulant drugs to patients who doctors suspect may develop pulmonary embolism during surgery. "However, these drugs can cause serious side effects in many patients," he said.

"Alternative post-operative methods such as leg exercising, pressure bandages, elastic stockings or electrical stimulation have proved unsatisfactory and even dangerous," he said.

"Pulmonary embolism following surgery is a leading cause of post-operative in-hospital deaths. Too often a patient dies from complications which develop after surgery rather than from the problem which necessitated the operation itself. "It's cases like this which prompted the saying 'The operation was a success but the patient died.' Since medical authorities believe that more than 50 percent of blood clots actually begin during the operation, preventative methods to be used during surgery are absolutely necessary," Dr. Lipson concluded.

The results of a study by three New York hospitals were detailed in an article published in the May, 1976 issue of "Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics."

A year before the PED Venous Blood Pump was put to use in these hospitals 20 out of 123 patients undergoing surgery developed pulmonary embolism or associated complications during or following the operation. Five patients died.

The following year, with the PED Venous Blood Pump used routinely in the operation, only nine out of 123 patients undergoing surgery by the same surgical team developed the superficial phlebothrombosis. No fatalities occurred in patients who received the intermittent compression treatment from the blood pump.

The PED Venous Blood Pump, manufactured and distributed by Clinical Technology International, of Canton, is being used at Newton-Wellesley Hospital under the supervision of Dr. Lipson. "Persons most needing treatment by the PED Venous Blood Pump during and after surgery may have histories of high blood pressure, strokes, bleeding ulcers, arthritis, varicose veins, obesity, phlebitis, heart disease, cardiac problems and more," the doctor said.

"However, for every patient with an obvious reason to use preventative methods during surgery, there are 10 patients whose susceptibility is not apparent to the eye."

Lipson added that the PED Venous Blood Pump may be comfortably used in many cases for prolonged post-operative treatment because the patient's legs rest inside the boots on a cushion of air. "The pump can never be the cause of a bleeding complication, a wound infection, or a drug reaction," he said.

He estimated that the use of the boot will save money because the treatment of phlebitis and pulmonary embolism is far more expensive than using the boot and pump. The savings may amount to $600 to $1000 per 100 surgical patients, he indicated.

CETA giving jobs to 162 Newton teeners

Summer '76 is the coolest in terms of youth activity that Newton has experienced in almost a decade, according to Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann.

The mayor said he attributes this year's healthier youth scene in part to good city youth services and part to a quickening economy that is yielding more jobs for young people.

He also cited the fact that 162 Newton young people from economically disadvantaged homes are working at jobs arranged and subsidized by Newton Area CETA's summer youth work-experience program.

Mann is chairman of the Newton Area CETA consortium that includes nine other west suburban towns and cities. Charles F. Miller is director of the federally funded employment and training agency that services a youth and adult clientele.

In describing the impact of the CETA youth jobs, the mayor said, "Clearly these young people from low-income families — and these are the only kids who are eligible for CETA jobs — have greater need for help in getting started than kids from career-oriented homes. Poverty automatically limits their horizons, unless there's some form of benign intervention."

The mayor said that recent reports from young jobholders and from city and nonprofit agency heads who are job supervisors were heartening.

One salient point is apparent, Mayor Mann said — the CETA young people are able and they are aiming for the top. Economic background is no barrier. He listed doctor, forest ranger, nurse, draftsman, and probation officer as some of the professional and paraprofessional careers these young people are trying for.

"This high level of aspiration is primarily a tribute to the kids themselves," the mayor said. Secondary credit goes to "the caring community," he said, mentioning school guidance counselors, CETA youth counselors, and such helping agencies as Newton Community Services Center, Scout groups, boys' clubs, and Recreation Department programs.

CETA youth jobs are restricted by federal regulation to children from families with annual gross incomes below $5500 for a four-member unit. A sliding scale makes adjustment for families with more or less members.

During the summer of '76 CETA expenditures in Newton are projected participants. for $100,000, sustaining 162 Last summer, expenditures amounted to $59,535 in Newton, and enrollment was 113.

During the '75-'76 school year, the CETA youth work-experience program employed 128 Newton young people and spent $91,000 for wages.

At the present time, all youth jobs are with municipal offices or nonprofit agencies. The work sites are predominantly in the city of Newton. The remainder are in adjacent towns.

Recreation notes

Water safety show Wednesday at Crystal

The Newton Recreation Department will sponsor a water safety show at Crystal Lake on Wednesday, Aug. 4, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Children enrolled in the swimming classes at Crystal Lake are invited to participate and should contact their instructor.

Various swimming groups will perform according to their ability levels, ranging from beginners through advanced lifesavers.

Survival techniques and equipment rescues including the use of a paddleboard and various lifesaving techniques will be demonstrated. The public, especially parents, friends and relatives of the participating youngsters, are urged to attend this special event.

There will also be a sailing demonstration by those involved in the program at Crystal Lake. The Mrs. Worthing L. West Award will be presented to the outstanding girl of the year, and the Gilbert J. Champagne Award will be given to the outstanding boy of the year.

Tennis Tourney

The Newton Recreation Department's annual citywide tennis tournament will be held at the Newton North High School courts Monday, Aug. 2, beginning at 9:30 a.m. The two divisions are midgets, for boys and girls aged 10 to 12, and juniors, for ages 13, 14, and 15.

No player holding a ranking from the New England Lawn Tennis Association or has won any of the association's sanctioned tournaments is eligible to compete.

Newton boys and girls may sign up with tennis instructors Ellen Hearst or Steve Freeman on the days lessons are given at their playgrounds, or with their playground leaders, or by reporting to the North High courts on the morning of the tournament. Trophies will be awarded to the winners and runners-up.

Twilight League

Standings in the Newton Recreation Department's National Twilight League through July 19, are Boys' Club, 12-3-1; Mosca Club, 9-6-0; Upper Falls Panthers, 8-6-2; Newton Centre, 7-7-2; St. Bernard's, 7-7-1; Auburndale Sports Shop, 7-8-0; and Matthews Club, 1-16-0.

Amateur Show

There were some 25 contestants in an amateur show patterned after the "Gong Show," held recently at the West Newton Common.

The young people came up with many imaginative costumes and acts, including take-offs on TV commercials and comedy skits.

Contestants included Tommy and Judy Perkins, Frank Bianco, Pinky Sturniolo, Judy and Theresa Hucksinder and Larry and Linda Romana. Playground leaders are Brian Vallely and Joan Passerini. A special showing of the World Series film followed the show.

Playground Trips

Some 65 youngsters from the Auburndale Playground recently took a trip to Lincoln Park in South Dartmouth, under the direction of leaders James Ryan, Diane Astone, Tim Dunn and Irene Horrigan. Another 60 children from the Wellington Playground and the West Newton Common also made the trip. Leaders are John Carey, Joan Passerini, Susan Murphy and Brian Vallely.

Needlepoint winners

The Second Annual Needlepoint Contest of the Newton Recreation Department was won by Wendy Benson, Jo-Ann Lake, and Stephanie Stokes.

Honorable mention goes to Cheryl Stover, Susan Siroky, Louise Brightman, Elvira Stephenson, Tanina Savanzo, Rosemary Hinteregger, and Mary Buckley.

The competition centered on designing and stitching name tags. Bette Feinstein was the needlepoint instructor.

Somersault

You don't have to be an Olympic competitor to join the Newton Recreation Department gymnastics team, as demonstrated recently in Newton Centre by Frank Giovannini of Newton. Country Players invite all theater enthusiasts to join

The Newton Country Players will launch an intensive drive for new members this week in an effort to augment their number before the opening of their 21st season of community theater activity.

With an unusally ambitious schedule and many new projects in the wings, additional manpower is essential for the accelerated program.

Acknowledged as one of the foremost community theaters in New England, this season the Players will offer their three annual major attractions, plus a full-scale musical production by the Players' Juniors, "The Road of the Greasepaint, The Smell of the Crowd," which will open the season Sept. 30.

The trio of adult productions is the musical, "How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," in November; the lyric folk play, "Dark of the Moon," in February; and the Tennessee Williams' dramatic classic, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," next spring.

All productions will be staged at the Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St.

In addition to their annual entry in the New England Theatre Conference Drama Festival, the Players are planning drama workshops for the aspiring actor, director or crew member with minimal experience in theater craft. Also on the agenda are the season's kick-off social and second annual barn sale in September. A Junior member workshop is also under consideration.

President Marcia Massimo of Waban has extended an open invitation to all residents of the Newton community to join the group, stressing that the Players' current enrollment includes members from all eleven villages of Newton, singles as well as couples, student members as well as adults of all ages.

"Our doors are open to anyone interested in participating either as an active member or audience. The variety of opportunities for expression, self-discovery, new friendships and hard work are limitless. The Players need artists, costume designers, carpenters, prop gatherers, house managers, musicians, actors and more. All share in the common goal of putting on the best production possible," she said.

During the past eight years, the Players have involved themselves with aspiring playwrights and the production of new, untried scripts. Between 1970-72, they developed their own theater workshop in association with Newton Junior College. They affiliated themselves also with the Newton Art Association in an effort to bring both cultures to the community and were a vital factor in the formation of the Newton Cultural Affairs Commission, the success of Newton's annual Springfest and the acquisition of the new Newton Arts Center.

The Players, winners of NETC's "Best Production Award, 1975" and host group for the festival this year, is a nonprofit, nonsectarian, philanthropic association comprised of local residents who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theater activity on community and educational levels.

Its purpose is to bring together those individuals who are active or interested in any and all phases of community theater in order to make them aware of theater activity on these levels; to foster and encourage interest and participation in the many facets of community theater areas; to provide a medium for the exchange of information and ideas for mutual benefit; and to promote local interest in the dramatic arts.

Each member is entitled, at no extra cost, to one ticket for each of the three adult productions (two tickets on a "couple" membership), a subscription to the newsletter, and advance notice of all auditions and productions. There are four categories of membership:

A sustaining member is primarily a spectator, not a participant, and without voting privileges. Although he or she is not required to share in the work of the group, a contribution is welcome in all activities.

A student member, between the ages of 12 and 22 and regularly enrolled as a full-time student of an accredited educational institution, is required to participate in the group's activities but does not hold voting privileges. Based on the merit of his or her work and interest, he or she can be advanced to active membership.

An active member is expected to participate in productions on a volunteer basis, either onstage or backstage, and in the maintenance of the group, but does not hold voting privileges. Based on the merit of his or her work and interest, he or she can be elected to the board.

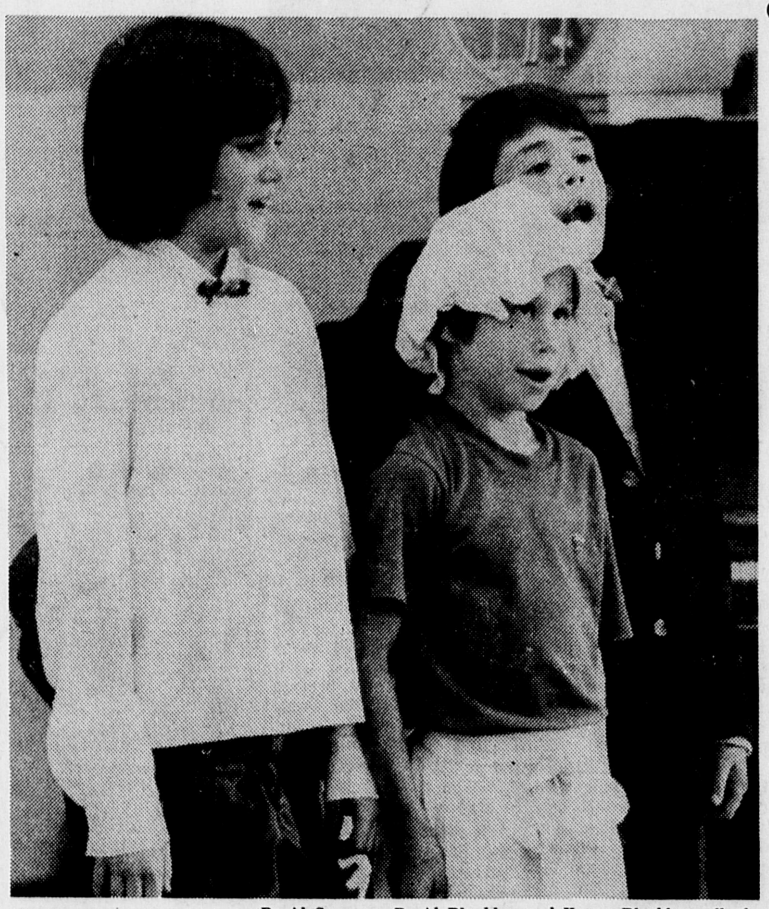

A board member, so voted by the board of directors, is eligible to vote and to hold elective office and share in the continuing responsibility for the artistic, financial and economic well-being of the organization.

Dues are $5 for student members, $8.50 for each single membership, and $14 for couples in all other categories. For further information, contact business manager Jim Sloane at 969-2665 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

CONTEST OPEN

NEW MILFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Entries are open in the 17th annual Miss American Teen-Ager Pageant, which will have its finals nationally televised from the Historic Towne of Smithville, N.J., near Atlantic City.

All girls 13 through 17 years of age who are single and U.S. citizens are eligible. Free details and entry blanks are available from Contestant Coordinator, Miss American TeenAger Inc., P.O. Box 221, New Milford, N.J. 07646. Enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Servants

David Sweeney, David Blacklow and Kenny Blacklow, all of Newton, play servants in a play given by children at the Chestnut Hill School summer arts program.

'Bye Bye Birdie' socks it to Elvis at two shows

The Newton Recreation Department is presenting "Bye Bye Birdie," its summer musical for 1976, at Meadowbrook Junior High School, Wheeler Road in Newton Centre, on Thursday, July 29, and Friday, July 30, at 8 p.m.

Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students and children. For further information and reservations, call 527-9579 or 969-3171.

"Bye Bye Birdie" is a delightful musical comedy which satisfies the reaction of the world to Elvis Presley's induction into the army back in the fifties.

The story of Birdie involves Albert, a scheming publicity agent who arranges for Conrad Birdie, the Presley-style singer, to give one last kiss to a girl from Sweet Apple, Ohio, on the Ed Sullivan Show, the night before he must enter the army.

The reaction of the Sweet Apple townsfolk to Birdie's visit will provide all with a very entertaining evening.

STRAW HAT

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (UPI) — The Mount Washington Valley Theatre Company summer program June 29-Sept. 5 will include Woody Allen's "Play it Again, Sam," George M. Cohan's "The Tavern," Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men," William Inge's "Bus Stop," and the mystery "Night Watch" by Lucille Fletcher.

New Children's Museum exhibit lets kids experience handicaps

"Many of us don't know much about people with special needs, and some of what we do know may be wrong.

"We think that not knowing can make people uncomfotable. Kids especially should know that:

— a special need isn't contagious.

— a special need sn't a punishment.

— having a special need doesn't make you helpless.

— you can ask questions about a special need.

"It is natural to be curious. We hope that this exhibit will make people more comfortable and help them to understand that all people have differences, but that easically we are all the same."

These few simple ideas begin the introduction to a new participatory exhibit at the Children's Museum on the Jamaicaway called "What if I Couldn't . . . An Exhibit About Special Needs."

In the experimental exhibit, developed under a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, children and adults visiting the Museum's Visitor Center are experiencing the world of the handicapped in a supportive, nonthreatening atmsphere.

Its design enables normal children toget a sense of what it's like to have a handicap.

The exhibit is divided into six sections, each corresponding to a different handicap — hearing and visual impairment, physical disabilities, mental retardation, learning disabilities and emotional disturbance. Descriptive posters and graphics are placed throughout the exhibit area, leading visitors through each section.

What if I couldn't see very well? Museum visitors look through a series of lenses to view he world as the visually handicapped person nigt.

What if I couldn't hear very, well? Tapes simulating conversation as heard by the hard of hearing can be played, and Morse code messages, felt on the vibrating diaphragm of a special phone, can be sent and received.

What if I coudn't walk? A child can sit in a wheelchair and maneuver across bricks, gravel and a rug.

What if I didn't have a hand? Prostheses can be handled and manipulated with the help of trained exhibit staff.

Each section displays manipulative materials t at children can touch, see, or hear. By provieing a chance for active participation with a particular handicap — whether it be a physical or learning disability, an emotional disturbance, or mental retardation — normal children can begin to understand the daily realities of children with special needs.

Chapter 766, a Massachusetts law passed in 1974, and the Education for All Handicapped Children Act, a national law passed in 1975 to insure fee public education for special-needs children including placement in educational programs with nonhandicapped peers, set up the legal foundation for social and academic acceptance of handicapped children in public school programs.

But the most persistent barrier to the laws' success so far has been the general public's lack of knowledge and information about handicapped people.

"When children are given an opportunity to participate and ask questions, they tend to become less fearful of the handicapping condition and less likely to assume that a person with a handicap leads a dull and limited life," says Elaine Gurian, director of the Museum's Visitor Center. "Every effort has been made to make this exhibit supportive, sensitizing, and nonthreatening."

In response to requests from schools and other museums across the country, the Children's Museum plans to adapt the exhibit into a traveling unit, and develop an expanded version of "What if I Couldn't ..." as a permanent exhibit in its new facilities on the Fort Point Channel.

The exhibit will be on display at the present museum site on the Jamaicaway through August. The Visitor Center is open daily 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on Friday evenings 6 to 9 p.m.

Premier Previews

by Frank DeAmicis

You know, first impressions are sometimes misleading. For example, I read somewhere that schoolmates used to call Raquel Welch "Chicken Legs" never dreaming she would become such a beauty.

The point is, you have to wait to see what develops.

Judging from the mail I received since my apology for the Premier's less than perfect opening appeared in this column, I can see many people are doing just that. As one writer puts it "Any new restaurant needs a period of time to work out the kinks before it can be judged fairly."

Many letters also offered some constructive criticism and suggestions to help the Premier II on its way. We are grateful for these letters and have been working to develop the kind of system that will guarantee the quality, service and complete satisfaction you demand. For example, we have built a staff of some of the best food service people in the industry and are making rapid progress with our new kitchen which now boasts the latest equipment. As a result, the Backstage restaurant is scheduled to open again in mid or late August and is sure to be the talk of the town. Meanwhile the Cafe and Oscar's are attracting and pleasing record crowds.

Like they say... "If you're not happy tell us; if you are — tell a friend."

We appreciate your patience and understanding and are happy to say we are ready to make your next visit pleasant and enjoyable. So if you were among those who were a bit disappointed during our developing stage, we invite you to take a second look and let us show you the kind of quality and service that has continued for over half a century and is pleasing over 2,000 patrons a day.

I hope you will watch this column for further developments and continue to send your suggestions and comments to me at Premier II, 299 Harvard Street, Brookline. Of course, I also hope you will stop by the Premier II soon and give us a chance to change that first impression.
